

LOCAL NOTES.

KEUKA, September 23. How the Press has been... Ex-Congressman... many or more that have been gamblers thereby.

Mr. J. M. Leedy, who has more iron in the fire than any other one at this point, has made a good crop of Irish potatoes, rice, etc.

What have I been doing all this time? Nothing. I infer from the remarks of J. F. in last week's TIMES-HERALD that he is not much in the favor of our missionary schemes in China.

I had a poem nearly ready for the press, but after reading the last TIMES-HERALD my poem went into the stove. I ring out. I am not in it. J. B.

A western Alabama editor, says an exchange, was writing up a local theatrical entertainment recently and he wanted to be particularly nice about it, so he mentioned the names of several young ladies of the town and wrote, "they all filled their parts to perfection."

Mr. John Long, formerly of Denver, Fla. My dear husband—hoping by the divine guidance of our guardian angel these lines may reach you or some one of your company, that you may know of my distress.

BOWSER'S BALLOON.

HE TOYS WITH IT IN ORDER TO SAVE HIS LIFE. An Exercise Which, However, Was Not So Satisfactory as It Might Have Been.

"Now what are you going to do?" queried Mrs. Bowser as dinner was finished the other evening and Mr. Bowser removed coat, vest, collar and necktie.

"Mrs. Bowser," he solemnly replied as he returned from the front hall with a pasteboard box in his hand, "it's no wonder that medicine doesn't do us any good! The wonder is that we are not in our graves!"

"But we are not ailing. We don't need medicine!" "We don't, eh? I haven't said anything to you about it because I didn't want to hasten the climax by scaring you half to death, but as a matter of fact the pair of us have been heading for the tomb at a gallop for the last six months! I wouldn't say anything about it now only I think I have found the remedy."

"Remedy! Why, I thought both of us were in perfect health!" "What you thought and what was and is are three different things, Mrs. Bowser. Here is what the doctor recommended for both of us."

"A toy balloon! Are we to eat it, smell it, or what?" "No, ma'am, we are not to eat it, smell it or what! If you had done less gadding and more reading, you might have heard of the Delaarte movement. You might have heard that this little balloon has been the means of drawing thousands of people back from the yawning grave."

"Oh, yes; you let it float around the room and follow it up and strike it! I was reading in the paper the other day about how many people had broken their arms and legs and necks. You think you need the Delaarte movement, do you?"

"I don't think anything about it, but know it!" hotly exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he rolled up his shirt sleeves. "If you want to sit around and die for the want of a little common sense exercise, all right, but I propose to regain my lost health and live on as long as I can. The Delaarte movement is the simplest and most beneficial of all athletics. I permit the balloon to float away—like that. Then I step forward and strike it—like this."

"Mercy on me, but you'll knock the whole house down!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser as the chandelier rattled and a vase toppled off a bracket. "Let me get out with the baby! If some one should tell you to come home and play ball with dynamite bombs, I suppose you'd do it! The idea of any such nonsense benefiting your health!"

"Nonsense, eh?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he jumped forward and led with his left and kicked a chair over. "That shows how much you know about anatomy! In delivering an upper cut like this, you bring into play the muscles of the neck, shoulder, arm and leg. The blood also!"

But Mrs. Bowser and the baby had retreated to the library. "Egad, but if she wants to die let her die!" growled Mr. Bowser as he dropped his suspenders off his shoulders to give his arms more play. "Anybody with the sense of a canary knows that you must have exercise to keep your health. Here I am in the prime of life, and yet I'm lop shouldered, humpbacked and as weak as a!"

He had been following the balloon about and punching at it. A right hand swing missed the floating object and brought down a glass globe from the chandelier. "What on earth has happened now?" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser as she stuck her head out of the door. "Nothing! When I want you, I'll knock on the door."

Mrs. Bowser retreated, and he gathered up the fragments of the broken globe and deposited them on a chair, and squared off to his work again, saying: "I dunno who old Delaarte was, but he was a corker on exercise. Couldn't have started a movement better calculated to bring out all the!"
