Commission delays vote on Hidden Harbour development

By Michael d'Oliveira

PELICAN WRITER

Pompano Beach – Concerns over size and density of the proposed AMP IV Hidden Harbour mixed-use development on Federal Highway and 15th Street ended in another delayed vote.

The project was tabled until Sept. 11.

Residents wanted answers that Graham Penn, the attorney representing the project, said he could not answer.

Penn said those details weren't available yet because the developer was focused on getting the land use change first. He said more specifics would be known at a later date. He added that rumors that the company planned to sell the property after the land use approval were false. The developer plans to finish the project, he said.

That did not stop the questions.

Residents asked for details on the rest of the project, including the number of bedrooms for each unit and heights of the buildings.

Located at the current Aquamarina Hidden Harbour site, a boat storage facility at 2315 NE 15 St., the proposed development included a maximum of 323 residential units and 65,000 sq. ft. of commercial space on the 8.9-acre site. Developers requested

City hires trapper to deal with chicken "infestation"

Pompano Beach – Why did the chicken cross the road?

To dig up Vivian King's yard.

It's an old joke, but not too funny to King.

King, who lives on Northwest 14 Street west of Dixie Highway, said her neighborhood has been "infested with chickens" for five or six years. Between the loud crowing, the damage to her landscaping, and the defecation, she said the situation is out of control.

"I've got the worst back in America, but I can't stand them digging up my

Budget proposal shows finances stable in Lighthouse Point

By Judy Wilson

PELICAN STAFF

Lighthouse Point – Taxpayers here will enjoy a slight decrease in the millage rate in 2018-19 thanks to a 7 percent increase in property values.

The assessed value of the city is $2.4 billion, the highest in its history.

Residents will however pay a fire fee $15 higher and adding $100,000 to the general fund. The fee is among the lowest in the county.

Commissioners got their first look at the budget being proposed for the new fiscal year Tuesday. It drew little comment.

Later, Commissioner Earl Maucker responded to The Pelican saying, “Values continue to increase in Lighthouse Point enabling us to keep the tax rate down and still have funds to operate and plan for the future.”

Major capital improvements here are dependent on the passage of a $40 million bond issue in November. Addressing this Maucker said, “We’re hoping to pass the bond issue for a new fire station, and improvements to recreation, public works and the library, but until then we have a budget that will take care of our needs.”

The proposed $16 million general fund is up from this year’s anticipated $15.5 million, largely due to increases in salaries and benefits including pension contributions.

The building department shows the highest increase in expenditures, almost 10 percent, due to outsourcing that department, and includes $175,000 to rewrite the building code. It is an enterprise account, funded by permit fees.

Code enforcement’s budget will increase with the addition of a part time enforcement officer to work weekends.

Increases in public works are higher than normal due to Hurricane Irma. Some of that spending is reimbursable from FEMA.

Funding for the library is up 10 percent and includes a part time children’s librarian.

Parks and Recreation which oversees three parks and funds the city’s special events is showing a slight decrease in spending in 2018-19 due to the fact the tot lot at Dan Witt Park has been completed.

The largest departments, police and fire, show 7 and 2 percent increases respectively due to pension contributions negotiated by the unions, in addition to the contributions that will now be made to the Florida Retirement System.

A capital improvement budget of $514,000 includes vehicles for police and fire departments, public works equipment and purchases to improve technology.

The general fund is balanced with $83,694 carried over from prior year surpluses.

Plans for new city hall, mixed-use development move on in Oakland Park

By Judy Vik

PELICAN STAFF

Oakland Park - No formal agreements have been signed, but after several months of negotiations this city has a “handshake agreement” with Integra Investments for mixed-use development on West Dixie Highway.

Broward County will provide more than $1 million in incentives for development of the two city-owned lots north and south of Park Lane West.

In order to entice quality development, the city needed to commit to some guarantees, City Manager

David Hebert said. “The developer needed a long-term tenant. The anchor tenant will be city hall operations, both those at the existing facility on Main Street and those in the Municipal Building on Dixie Highway.”

Hebert said he wanted to dispel some mis-impressions. “We still own city hall, and no determination has been made on what will happen to this building,” he said. “That doesn’t mean the city couldn’t build its own city hall again someday.”

“This will create enormous

City issues Call to Artists for submerged "Lady Luck" for sculpture

By Michael d'Oliveira

PELICAN STAFF

Pompano Beach – Aboard the 324-foot Lady Luck, an octopus runs the craps table and sharks play poker, but they will soon have more company.

The city is now seeking artists to submit designs for a sculpture that would fit into the Lady's casino theme.

Lady Luck, a ship sunk off the coast of the city in 2016 as an artificial reef, is one of 17 submerged ships that comprise Shipwreck Park. The watery park runs from Pompano Beach to Lauderdale-By-The-Sea. The Okinawa, sunk in 2017, is the latest addition to the park.

Rob Wyre chairs Shipwreck Park Foundation. He says artificial reefs draw attention to the importance of natural reefs. Both provide food and shelter for marine life and help lessen the impact storms have on the coastline.

"Our natural reef is important, and we've got to protect it . . . artificial reefs take the pressure off natural reefs," said Wyre. He added that members of the Shipwreck Park Foundation will be happy to see the sculpture once it is created. About 30 steel posts were placed on Lady Luck before she was sunk so more art could be added in the future.

"We did think ahead," said Terry Davis, chair of the city's Public Art Committee.

Davis said whatever sculpture is chosen will evolve and change because coral will grow on it and make it part of the underwater environment of the ship. "I'm really looking forward to seeing what the artists come up with."

But looking at the sculpture won't just be for SCUBA divers who visit the wreck. After the chosen artist finishes his or her work, the statue will be on display on land for one year before it joins the underwater "casino."

Deadline for artists to apply is July 2. The sculpture's budget is $35,000. Submissions can be made to pbpublicart.com

New faces on horizon for Pompano Beach candidates for Nov. 6 election

By Anne Siren

PELICAN STAFF

An expected fierce campaign for the mayor's seat between Commissioners Rex Hardin and Mike Sobel will have two fresh candidates in the run, Debresia Nathel Lesane and Cynthia D. Floyd.

Pompano Beach mayoral candidate, Debresia Nathel Lesane

Lesane, 33, owns Gjungle Oil, a hair growth oil. "I grew up here," she says. "My granddad, English Irving, ran for mayor back in the day."

With a deep love for the city, Lesane adds that ending "gentrification" and unifying the city are her major goals.

She points out the wide range of businesses that should attract the "world."

Lesane studied at FAMU and sells Gjungle on her website.

Pompano Beach mayoral candidate, Cynthia D. Floyd

Floyd, 50, a Pompano Beach native, handles accounts receivable and billing at The Court at Palm Aire. "I am an active person in the community," she says. She has served as vice president of North Broward County NAACP under Willie L. Lawson and as secretary of the HOA and Concerned Citizens at Holiday Lake. Floyd is mother of five children. She says she is running because the current mayor [Lamar Fisher] "... visits my church from time to time. I know he is a great man. I can grab the baton and keep up the good work." Among those "good works" are improving state-wide ratings for public schools, expanding affordable housing projects and adding more safety and preventative measures to all schools. Floyd is also a gospel vocalist at Worldwide Christian Center.

District 1 race count up to four

In District 1 John Geer and Andrea McGee will also have company in the race with Don McNeil and John Denis Cavanaugh, bringing the total number of candidates to four.

Pompano Beach District 1 candidate, Don McNeil

McNeil, 67, is a retired Delta Airlines pilot and former Coast Guard aviator. McNeil earned a B.A. from University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in history and political science "I have served on the airpark advisory board and am interested in watching Pompano progress."

He says there are a "lot of good things going on in the city. It's the last great deal for a place to live. McNeil is married to Rhonda Lynn. They have lived in the city since 1991. Some of McNeil's concerns are traffic congestion and making the air park a better neighbor.

He believes in responsible growth and wants the city to get a "handle on sober houses." Recently the city passed a local law that requires ADA-compliance for all group homes and in many cases certification. McNeil supports the new law.

Cavanaugh, 47, is a client relationship manager for LexisNexis, an information technology company. He earned a bachelor's degree in communications from University of Detroit-Mercy, Detroit. He is a 15-year-resident of the city and wants to continue along with a sustainable path for growth. This is Cavanaugh's second run for District 1. He says he will finance his campaign without "taking money from PACs and special interests. I will strive to be a responsible financial steward, starting with the campaign. Pompano constituents should expect an accounting for all city spending. Legislators must always have the constituents in mind when they sign off on a project." He is a single father with twin sons, Lincoln and Connor.

District 2 remains at status quo

In District 2, Tom Terwilliger and Rhonda Eaton had no additional challengers.

District 3

After Commissioner Rex Hardin announced he would not run for his seat, the run for District three will be between Thomas McMahon and Michael Skversky.

District 4

Incumbent Beverly Perkins will seek re-election to a second term in District 4.

Perkins faces two challengers: Carmen Dixon Jones and former commissioner, Ed Phillips.

Jones, a Pompano Beach native, seeks the District 4 seat to bring "diplomacy and hope back to the district."

Pompano Beach District 4 candidate, Carmen Dixen Jones

A Blanche Ely student for two years prior to its closing early '70, she graduated from Pompano High School. After graduation, she studied at the Moody Bible Institute in Boynton Beach. She worked for Florida Power & Light for several years. "Home ownership and senior services are critical to my community," she says. "Home ownership gives a person a stronger voice in the city. It contributes to upward mobility in the community. We also need a comprehensive senior program. I support the senior program at the E. Pat Larkins Center. But we need to expand it. Many seniors require a break. I have seen centers where there are reclining chairs and other amenities allowing them to rest and relieve pressure and swelling on their lower extremities."

Jones is a member of Kiwanis Pompano Beach Westside, the Broward County Children's Services Board, a commissioner on the Pompano Beach Housing Authority and a member of the Word of the Living God ministry. She supports the Broward Sheriff's Office, saying that she was told crime has been reduced in District 4 over 20 percent. "But there is always room for improvement."

Pompano Beach District 4 candidate, Ed Phillips

Phillips, 67, served District 4 previously as commissioner for four years. "I think we are on the cusp of a significant growth in our neighborhood. My skills, ability and experience as a business owner and community activist lends itself to ensure parity and the spirit of inclusion. Two components, safety and quality of life, ensure a healthy growth of community. If we can establish that, we will have business owners, citizens and civic groups in a stronger position to assist our local schools, find solutions for homelessness and deal with other issues. He graduated from Bethune-Cookman where he studied school guidance. Phillips is also one of the founders of Tiger Trail, an annual celebration of inclusion held during Black History month.

District 5

Incumbent Commissioner Barry Moss will face three challengers in November: Luciene de Paula Gomes, Leila Moavero and David Miller.

Pompano Beach District 5 candidate, Luciene de Paula Gomes

Gomes, a Realtor with a degree in international business, hails from Brazil. She is a 20-year resident who is taking her first step into politics. "I go to the meetings,

Pompano Beach District 5 candidate, Leila Moavero

Moavero was raised in San Francisco and began college as a pre-med major at UC Berkeley, but when opportunity knocked in the printing business, she opened the door.

Today Moavero, 55 and active in Pompano Beach for 24 years, is owner of Executive Printing & Mailing Services in Pompano Beach, but another knock has led her to seek the District 5 seat.

"Collier City [a community in District 5] residents have been asking me to run for over two years," she says. "This area feels neglected by the commission. One of the things I see is our elderly who need assistance from help with daily chores to lawn mowing."

Moavero wants to organize a community aid service where able-bodied residents can help those residents.

The district also includes Palm Aire. "This is an area that has everything," she says. "Parks, lakes, clubhouses, swimming pools and golf courses," an area to emulate throughout the city.

Moavero says one valuable asset to those who want to lead is a willingness to listen and then act.

She supports the CRA's work in guiding city construction and the "fresh look" it has given to the city.

"We need stores, tourists and more commerce to drive the economy of the city," she says. "That's what will help pay for our needs."

She urges local commissioners to start the conversation on sea rise issues and "bring in the experts" for guidance.

Moavero serves on several non-profit boards and is active in all parts of the city. She and her partner, Ray Doucette,

Vice mayor's comments directed at two candidates are out of line

To the Editor,

I have known Pompano Beach mayoral candidate Michael Sobel for over two years. I have seen him do nothing but try and improve this community. For commissioner Charlotte Burrie to call a man like this "evil" is laughable and obscene. If you want to talk about evil, go talk about Charles Manson or Adolph Hitler.

Reflections on doing our part

By Ira Wechterman

PRESIDENT, FRIENDS OF DEERFIELD ISLAND PARK

Having recently returned from an environmental and ecological adventure in the Galápagos Islands and the Amazon Rainforest of Ecuador, I cannot help reflecting on my own involvement with Deerfield Island Park.

The island is but a unique "left-over" from the development and construction of today's Florida. Once a part of the fresh water marsh that helped drain the Everglades, it is now an isolated parcel of native and invasive flora and fauna in an urban community.

The rainforests of the world are under siege by the forces of development, just as our unique Everglades are.

These forests are being cleared for agricultural production, housing development and the harvesting of trees. The rainforests are the source of many plant and animal species. Many of them have properties that are as yet undiscovered. Measured utilization of these global resources should be encouraged in order to preserve them for future generations.

The value of Deerfield Island Park lies not so much in its history, but in what it can bring to educating the public relative to our own unique position as being part of the "great sea of grass" – the Everglades.

We can demonstrate and encourage native plant horticulture, while explaining the damage that invasive species do our community.

We can support restoration of the Everglades and replenish the aquifer through rechanneling the drainage system closer to what it was. Some of this has already begun.

Lately we have seen extensive rains that we would hope were replenishing the aquifer, but that is not the case. Much of that rainwater is merely directed into canals and channels that ultimately dumped into the ocean.

We should each help change perceptions and the direction of local, state and federal activities.

We can do this not just for ourselves, but for the future.

Pioneer Grove wins state award

Deerfield Beach - This city's newly established Pioneer Grove, a zoning district designed to create a new downtown, has won an Excellence Award from the Florida Planning and Zoning Association.

The award for Outstanding Development/Design went to the city's Planning and Development Services Department.

Mayor Bill Ganz said, "This is an exciting time for our city. Pioneer Grove is going to have a look and feel that will be very unique and special. Our residents will have a downtown with a modern, industrial chic feel to it. We have some great talent on our staff, and the city commission is proud to see their efforts recognized by the state."

"This was a team effort that included not just the planning staff, but the Economic Development Department and Environmental Services Department. This award is a great honor but there is still a lot of work to be done, and we are looking forward to making this design a reality for our residents," said Eric Power, Planning and Development Services Director.

Pioneer Grove, is a newly established 119-acre zoning district which permits mixed use and is located in the heart of Deerfield Beach. It is intended to be a walkable neighborhood with integrated housing, employment centers, shopping, and recreation.

Buildings within Pioneer Grove will have a design theme reminiscent of the turn of the 19th Century and will incorporate the historical and cultural context of the cities heritage. Development has already begun, with new townhomes [currently under construction] within the Pioneer Grove district and the creation of the Branhilda Richardson Knowles Memorial Park, which is expected to be completed by October.

Annual 5th of July Beach Cleanup

Deerfield Beach - The City of Deerfield Beach hosts one of the largest Fourth of July festivals in the tri-county area, bringing over 70,000 people to the beach. Unfortunately, every year the celebrants leave behind large amounts of litter. Annually, city staff takes July 5 as a day to get the beach back to its pristine beauty.

The public is invited to lend a hand to this effort. The cleanup will be held 8 to 10 a.m. at the chickee hut across from the fire station at 71 S. Ocean Way. Snacks and water will be provided to all volunteers, but volunteers should bring their own reusable water bottles. Parking passes will be available to the first 25 volunteers.

In an effort to reduce any additional waste from being generated by the cleanup, volunteers are encouraged to bring their own container for litter collection. Those who bring their own will receive a reusable water bottle courtesy of Island Water Sports.

This cleanup is co-sponsored by Loggerhead Marinelife Center, Island Water Sports and Yoga Journey.

For more information on beach cleanups, contact the Department of Sustainable Management at 954-480-4391.

Forty-five percent hike in garbage fees "unacceptable" commission says

The city will go out for bid on its solid waste services after the new contract offered by Waste Management was declared "unacceptable" by the commission Tuesday night.

Waste Management presented the city with two options. One, the current service with a $14 monthly rate increase, the other, switching to 96-gallon garbage cans and adding a Saturday pick up day with a $4 a month increase. Currently residents pay $32 a month for two garbage collections, two recycling collections and one bulk pick-up.

Luigi Pace, representing the waste hauler, said the amount of bulk waste generated here is what has driven the rate up. This city of fewer than 5,000 residents produces 5,000 tons of bulk waste a year, he said.

Commissioners not only objected to the 45 percent rate increase, they also thought the large garbage carts "ridiculous" for elderly residents and did not like adding Saturday service.

Commissioner Earl Maucker said, "It is our responsibility to see if there is another solution."

The city will issue a request for proposal for its garbage and bulk trash pick ups, but will continue using Waste Management to process recyclables. Other cities seeking recycling contractors have received "zero bids" City Administrator John Lavisky said since the market for these materials has fallen drastically.

Pompano hosts tree give-a-way

On two Saturdays, July 14 and July 21, the Pompano Beach city nursery, 1000 NE 3 Ave., hosts its 10th annual tree give-a-way from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Parking will be in the lot immediately north of the nursery. The trees were originally purchased as seedlings and cultivated by nursery employees. Tree allowance is two trees per residence on a first-come, first-serve basis.

To qualify for a free tree, proof is requested for residency in the city.

Tree varieties include purple tabebuia, live oak, Christmas palm, triangle palm, silver buttonwood, clusia rosea, golden tabebuia and Phoenix sylvestris palm.

Rezoning paves way for redevelopment of long-vacant site

By Judy Vik

PELICAN STAFF

Oakland Park - Commissioners have rezoned property at 3501 and 3549 Powerline Road for construction of retail and office buildings.

Commissioner John Adornato voted no on the ordinance.

The property, consisting of seven parcels, was formerly the site of a career training center, demolished in 2015.

Prior to demolition, the eastern portion of the 3.37-acre site fronting on Powerline Road was rezoned from B-2, General Business, to PRZD [Powerline Road Zoning District.] The rear portion of the property remained zoned Light Industrial, and the southwest corner was unplatted.

The applicant, Oakland

Commerce Center, asked for rezoning to unify the site into one zoning district, the PRZD.

"This is 1.891 acres to be converted from industrial to commercial," said Alex Dambach, planning supervisor.

Proposed for the site are two buildings: A 15,600-square-foot multi-tenant retail building on Powerline Road and a 15,000-square-foot multi-tenant office building behind it.

The buildings will be separated by a drive isle and surrounded by a 134-space parking lot. Access will be from Powerline Road and NE 35 Court.

Broward County Transit determined sidewalk improvements are needed to improve access to public transit.

Michael Kravit, the project architect, said he was asked to design modern buildings. In the retail buildings, the high ceilings could accommodate open duct work for restaurants. Outdoor seating areas are possible.

"This development complements the Powerline Road corridor with modern architecture," Kravit said.

Resident Jeff Helyer said he was disappointed that the buildings are only one story, "but it's better than anything else on Powerline Road."

Adornato, "I have great concern. I don't think this is consistent with the vision we had [for Powerline Road.] This is not married to our pedestrian-friendly vision. The intent was to slow traffic and bring pedestrians and bicyclists.

"This is beautiful, but it's another warehouse, strip mall structure. It won't spur the kind of development we want," he said.

Vice Mayor Sara Guevrekian disagreed with Adornato. "I'm very excited about this and extremely supportive of this," she said. For years, first as a community activist and then as a commissioner, she said she has sought solutions for the blight on Powerline Road.

Guevrekian said the project owner's properties are very well managed and maintained. "I see this as a quality, low impact development at a horrendous traffic corner. I love, love, love it. This is responsible, low impact with a high level of architecture and landscaping."

Commissioner Michael Carn said he met with the project's team. "I asked for after-5 activation. I don't want this dead at 5 p.m. We're looking for excitement and a place to come."

Carn said he liked the design and the mature trees. "We're looking for a step up from what's there. Make it a step out. You are about to affect the gateway to our city. We have waited for something to blow our minds."

Fourth mural to be added to BaCA

On June 26, city commissioners approved a new mural to be added to the outside of the Bailey Contemporary Arts [BaCA] building, 41 NE 1 St. It will be the fourth mural in the alleyway behind BaCA.

In the past, Laura Atria, the city's public art program manager, said the city is deliberately adding murals there to create a focused artistic space.

Terry Davis, chair of the Public Art Committee, said two mosaics from the Trail of the Honey Bees project will also be placed in the alley. The Trail is a project, funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, where honey bee mosaics are placed at various city buildings to increase to raise awareness of the role honey bees play in the food chain.

"I'm sure [people are] going to love it. That's where they [host] the Old Town Untapped and people there are really starting to embrace the murals," said Davis. The cost of the mural is $1,500.

Pompano Beach Chamber of Commerce Chair Tim Hogans wins Man of the Year Challenge

By Phyllis J. Neuberger

PELICAN STAFF

Tim Hogans was honored to be the Man of the Year for his success in the fund raising challenge for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society [LLS] of Hollywood. He shares the award with Fort Lauderdale Woman of the Year, Michelle Homoky. They were crowned on June 9 at the 2018 Celebrity Cruise sponsored black tie event held at the Marriot Harbor Beach Resort. They were joined by the Boy and Girl of the Year, Tristan Balea and Sarita Moreno. Hogans and Homoky raised over $300,000 for LLS. The total raised by all taking the challenge was an impressive $546,207.70.

Hogans says, "I decided to take on this challenge in honor of so many of my friends who are cancer survivors and to help get more financial resources into the hands of patients here in Broward County. Cancer does not discriminate."

Hogans challenge was to raise as much money as possible in a 10-week period. Every dollar counted as one vote. The candidate who gets the most votes/raises the most money is named Man or Woman of the Year. In his fund raising effort, excerpts from his letter requesting donations were: "Everyone wins when cancer loses and with your support, my efforts will fund the therapies and treatments that save lives, not someday but today. Many LLS supported therapies not only help blood cancer patients, but are also now used to treat patients with rare forms of stomach and skin cancers and are in clinical trials for patients with lung, brain, breast, pancreatic and prostate cancers. All LLS funded drugs like targeted therapies and immunotherapies are now saving thousands of lives every day. On their behalf, thank you for your support."

Asked about the time and energy that went into this fundraising challenge, he says, "It was a heavy lift, but worth it."

Hogans, Homoky and all participants received thank you notes from the LLS Board of Trustees, and volunteers for their successful fundraising efforts that will change lives and cure cancer.

About Tim Hogans

Tim Hogans has many career and civic responsibilities beyond the 10 week LLS challenge. He is the External Affairs Area Manager for Florida Power and Light where his job is to grow and manage relationships with elected officials, businesses and county stakeholders in North Broward County.

As an active board member, he was ideally suited for his appointment as Chairman of the Board of The Greater Pompano Chamber of Commerce. His one year, event-packed term ends July 1 when Monica Ribeiro becomes the new chairman.

Hogans says, "I was delighted and grateful to serve the business community in this capacity. The Chamber is celebrating 71 years and thankfully organizations like ours will continue to provide the support that local businesses need, with advice on every subject imaginable at members' fingertips. We keep growing. We keep working to make a difference. We're here to stay and I was proud to be leading an organization that works as a strategic partner to the business community."

He stressed the value of chamber membership and the opportunities for exposure to businesses available to members. He ticked off a list including chamber breakfasts, after-hours networking events, business expo, golf tournaments, Fine Food and Wine, leadership programs, CEO roundtables, The Pineapple Jamboree and enterprise groups as well as the committees served by members. This chamber supports Pompano Beach, Margate and North Broward County.

yard . . . If you put mulch in your yard, God help you. They love it they dig it up so fast." She said she has to get up at five-thirty in the morning every day to chase them off her property before they dig up more of her yard. "No one should have to live like this. This is a not a farm, this is our community."

King isn't alone in her frustration.

Dist. 4 Commissioner Beverly Perkins said other residents in her district have been complaining about the chickens for years. "Chickens are everywhere in District 4," she said. At Tuesday's commission meeting, she announced that the city had hired a trapper to deal with the problem.

Public Works Director Robert McCaughan said the city hired All Broward Animal Removal to do the job. All Broward will be paid $50 per chicken and will officially begin trapping on July 2.

"If he's out there and runs around and doesn't bring any chickens in, we don't pay. It's not an additional employee we're funding. We pay for him as he provides service," said McCaughan, who said that the city's animal control department will verify when and where the chickens are captured.

McCaughan said he expects relatively easy pickings at first. But he's also certain the chickens will adapt and become harder to catch.

"The chickens are actually kind of smart. They can recognize the truck the chicken trapper drives and they run. As time goes on, it's going to be more difficult," McCaughan said.

King agrees with McCaughan on the chickens being intelligent, saying that they've learned to flee as soon as they hear her door open.

City officials have set aside $5,000 for the operation with the hopes of catching 100 chickens. It's possible more money could be allocated in the future. "I would say that's a start. I hope that number grows quickly," said McCaughan.

Catching chickens alive, said All Broward's owner, "Trapper" Mark, is what can make them so hard to catch. "If it's an open field, forget it." The trick is to use "pinch points."

One trapper chases a chicken into a closed-off section of the outside of a building, usually a home, where another trapper is waiting with a net. "You want to be able to funnel them. It's kind of like a rodeo."

Once All Broward begins, residents who want to report chickens should call Animal Control at 954-786-4027. They will direct All Broward to the chickens. McCaughan said any chickens caught will either be taken to a farm or humanely euthanized.

No surprises in Wilton Manors election filings

Wilton Manors – There were no surprises on June 22, the last day of filing for the Wilton Manors mayoral and commission races. Everyone who committed to running had already filed or announced weeks ahead of time.

This November, the candidates for the Island City's mayoral race are Vice Mayor Justin Flippen and Boyd Corbin, who has been highly-critical of the city over water quality issues. Mayor Gary Resnick, who has been in the position since 2008, the longest-serving mayor in the city's history, had originally declared he would run for re-election. In April, he announced he would run for a commission seat instead.

The other three candidates for the two commission seats are Commissioner Scott Newton, Central Area Neighborhood Association President Paul Rolli, and Dr. Katharine Campbell, who owns a counseling practice in the city.

Because Wilton Manors is not divided into districts, the two people who get the most votes will be elected to the commission seats.

Lord's Gift House at First Baptist Church restores a little hope into broken and damaged lives every Saturday

By Phyllis J. Neuberger

PELICAN STAFF

Maureen Lay called The Lord's Gift House to The Pelican's attention.

She wrote, "This mission of the First Baptist Church of Pompano Beach, 101 NE First Street, was started in 1993 right after Hurricane Andrew. We collected clothing and supplies for victims, but they no longer needed our items so we decided to take care of our own homeless and needy in this area."

What began with a few women is now run by Pastor Larry Vinkemulder and his team of over 84 volunteers. He says, "They come from our church, other churches, the community, kids earning service hours . . . they just seem to show up to help all week in preparation for Saturday."

The church pastors and volunteers refer to all persons at their tables as "clients."

"Our monthly restock grocery bill is often $6,000 paid with donations from the community and the church. In my 20 years heading this mission, we have never run out of supplies until we have run out of people."

He went on to say, "The people who come to the Lord's Gift House [LGH] may have been your neighbors who have had a financial collapse and lost their homes or jobs. They may have spouses or children with mental or physical challenges. Their needs are the same as yours and mine. They need clothing, food and someone to remind them that they matter. We try to be the ear that hears, the arms that offer a hug, but always to be the face of Christ that remind them they are loved."

Clients sign up for our service and once a month those who have signed up are invited to LGH where they can enjoy a hot meal, two sets of clothing and an emergency bag of non-perishable food to take away. Pastor Larry says, "LGH starts out on Saturday morning around 7:30 a.m. when we serve coffee and snacks, donated for 20 years by Publix. Then we have a Praise and Worship service. We take care of our clients and prepare for the arrival of Pastor Rubin Lima, who comes from his own church. Fifty weeks out of the year he cooks 400 meals and feeds dinners to from 100 to 400 clients."

[Left] Volunteers at the Lord's Gift House [LGH] carve turkeys and prepare for Christmas dinner that will be served to about 500 guests by 125 volunteer servers. [Below] Pastor Larry Vinkemulder welcomes the homeless to LGH every Saturday Morning. [Courtesy]

There's a "Showers of Blessings" truck with portable showers that comes to offer showers every few weeks. Tony Catapano, a volunteer, sits with those interested to guide them to available resources and possible jobs.

Donated supplies can be dropped off at the church. See list at the end of this article.

Every Monday and Thursday volunteers work from 8 to 11 a.m. packing up things and preparing for Saturday guests. Pastor Larry says a typical meal includes soup, a variety of entrees [fish, beef, lamb] with cold drinks, coffee and dessert. "We work with Pastor Lima's people if they sign up for clothing and food packages."

Pastor Larry has been with the church for 27 years; 20 of them running LGH with his two directors, Phyllis Long and Bette Collins. He says, "We work as a team outside and inside. Donations keep us in business. We shop for restock. Things seem to just show up."

Special events at Lord's Gift House

At Christmas time, every Saturday in December, we have a special store for parents who shop for gifts for their children from infants to age 18.

They even get wrapping paper and ribbon. While they have the pleasure of Christmas shopping for their children, they feel like more fortunate families.

The last Saturday before Christmas, LGH entertains up to 500 people inside for dinner with about 125 volunteer servers. Pastor Larry says, "We deep fry about 75 turkeys the night before and start cooking the sides at 8:30 a.m. Each Sunday School is responsible for side dishes. Everything is donated."

At Easter, there's an egg hunt for children, time to hear the true story of Easter and an Easter basket for every child.

This mission sets up the stage for the Pompano Beach

Kiwanis Club for their service at the ocean.

"We have many success stories. Clients who have reversed their circumstances have returned to us as volunteers. Now that's inspiring. Most people don't realize that many of us are just one pay check away from seeking help from LGH," says the Pastor. "We're people serving people and we're glad to help."

Donations needed

Hygiene items, toothpaste, tooth brushes, soap bars, shampoo, washcloths, and combs/brushes.

Clothing needed: clean, gently-worn clothing, shoes, socks, undergarments in all sizes for men, women and children.

Non-perishable foods needed: boxed and canned soups, cereals, snack crackers, meals, grits, non-refrigerated milk, peanut butter, jelly, canned fruit, vegetables, meat, fish.

Cash and check donations are also accepted. Make checks out to the Lord's Gift House and deliver or mail to the First Baptist Church, 138 NE 1 St., Pompano Beach, FL 33060.

To volunteer or donate call 954-745-6121.

Thanks to the Lord's Gift House donors and volunteers for what you do for people who need help.

Fighter plane with links to the CIA's Congo war is hangared at air park

Christina Henley [above], a former Realtor who fulfilled her lifelong dream of learning to fly after the economic "crash" of 2008, is a huge fan of the T-28. [Courtesy]

Steve Walenz and Greg Spatz stand proudly in front of their prized war plane, knowing it will be here after they are. "You'll only be its caretaker. It will outlive you," said the Texan they bought it from in 2016.

a covert history is about to become famous and it occupies a hangar at the Pompano Air Park.

In August, its owners, Greg Spatz and Steve Walenz, will fly it to Opa-locka where combat pilots from the 1960s, who flew the T-38 on secret missions in the Congo, will once again climb aboard.

"These guys were heroes," Spatz said this week. "And they were never acknowledged."

The war in the Congo, 1962-1967, was not acknowledged either. It was a CIA operation carried out under the direction of President Lyndon Johnson. American arms, planes and ships were sent to the Congo to shore up the democratic government's position against rebels seeking to overthrow it.

Add in elements of the Cold War - the rebels were supported by the Soviets and the Chinese - the fact that the prize was uranium and that the pilots were exiled Cubans, and you have one interesting story.

But it has been written. Cold War Navy SEAL was published in April, and its authors, James Hawes and Mary Ann Koenig, came south on a book tour. Spatz met them and a handful of the Cubans who had piloted the T-28 war birds.

How the story unfolds in interesting.

According to Hawes, whose book's complete title is "My Story of Che Guevara, War in the Congo and the Communist Threat in Africa," the T-28s had a direct impact on the outcome of the Congolese War.

Before the clandestine operation, the T-28s had been Air Force trainers. Then the Navy decided it wanted the planes reengineered to land on aircraft carriers, so powerful engines and tail hooks were installed. Its top speed was 340 knots and it flew to 38,000 feet.

acquired a small fleet of T-28s from the Navy and enlisted Hawes who in turn gathered up exiled Cubans to fly them. After the failed Bay of Pigs, these men had little hope of returning to their homeland.

By several accounts, these pilots and their powerful planes are credited with doing enough damage to the Communist-backed rebels, to keep the Congolese government in power.

Koenig, who lives in Vero Beach, is coming this way again the first week in August with plans to put the spotlight on the Cuban pilots and the T-28.

The plane at Pompano Air Park is one of only two surviving T-28s from the Congo War. It is a two-seater still equipped with its armament panel. Its vintage is 1954. Its maker, North American Aviation.

After the war, the planes were used to train jet pilots through the mid-80s, and today are used to fly into thunderstorms.

Spatz and Walenz bought their T-28 in 2016 from a Texan who told them, "You'll only be its caretaker. It will outlive you."

It has logged 6,000 hours and its current owners fly it often. Its distinctive dark blue color makes it easy to spot.

One local pilot who is almost as much a fan of the T-28 as its owners, is Christina Henley who goes up with Spatz often. She says the war plane "flies like a champ. . . it is interesting because of the ages of the kids who flew it, its purpose. It's a remembrance of how things use to be."

Her own plane is a Cessna 182 and she takes it all over the country to family reunions and to her hometown of Belmont, Miss.

Henley says she had always wanted to fly and had thought about it forever. A realtor for 40 years, the "crash" spurred her to put her dream into action.

A resident of Lighthouse Point, she got her pilot's license, started a pilots training school and is CEO of an aviation mechanics business at Pompano Air Park. "After the crash, I felt my mind needed to work again," she said. The mind needs new things."

The T-28 is of particular interest to her. "There's a lot of interest in old airplanes," she said.

Henley was involved with the Tuskegee Airmen exhibit that came to the airpark in May 2015. It featured the P-51 fighter flown by the Air Force's first black squadron. "Six hundred kids and 400 adults came out to see it," she said.

Spatz, a former builder of Home Depot stores, is also heavily into the aviation business, owning several hangers and a fueling station at Pompano Air Park.

"I am excited for people to know about this unique plane based in Pompano Beach," he said. "It has curb appeal."

Canal, park agreements resolve two ongoing issues

Lighthouse Point – The city has acquired the help of its two neighboring municipalities to resolve public works issues.

With the assist of a federal grant and the cooperation of Deerfield Beach, the debris left from Hurricane Irma in the 53rd Street Canal will finally be cleared. The canal is at Deerfield's southern boundary.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has awarded this city $159,000 for the project. The grant obligates the city for a 25 percent match - $39,324. Deerfield officials have agreed to pay half that amount.

The canal has always been prone to flooding, Public Works Director Charles Schramm said, a situation that worsened after the storm littered the waters.

The second agreement signed this week, is specific as to which city, Pompano Beach or Lighthouse Point, maintains Exchange Park, a seven-acre natural retreat on the Intracoastal Waterway.

This city has maintained the area since a 1979 agreement,

Tuesday to change the land use from commercial, low-medium density residential, which allows 10 units per acre, to mixed-use high density, which would allow 50 units per acre. Penn said the project would be limited to a height of three stories [or 35 ft.] in the portions adjacent to existing residential homes.

But some residents didn't believe him. Neither did Dist. 1 Commissioner Mike Sobel. "This is a royal con job and the residents are being bamboozled," said Sobel. He said the marina site "cries out for quality development" but this proposal was too much. By his calculations, the development would have to be 10 stories or higher to fit in the number of units the developer wanted. "This project is too big, it's too dense, and the residents don't want it."

Vice Mayor Charlotte Burrie and Dist. 4 Commissioner Beverly Perkins also said they would vote against it. When the project was approved by the commission in January of 2017, Sobel was the only "no" vote.

George Platt, representing the developer, asked why the vote had changed when the number of units was the same. Burrie said she would not be in office by the time the project was back up for approval; she didn't want to "hang" 323 units on the property. Perkins said she was worried how the development would impact the nearby

Hidden Harbour, a proposed development of 323 residential units and 65,000 sq. ft. of commercial space on the above 8.9-acre site, was tabled this week until more specific information can be revealed to the city and residents. The project faces the air park just west of the highway. The commission gave the developers until Sept. 11 to return with a new plan.

Several residents supported the project. Resident Melissa Milroy said mixed-use was a good project and that it was "time" to develop the "underutilized" site.

Dist. 3 Commissioner Rex Hardin said he would support the project and that changes made in the past with other projects, but not necessarily private development, are the reason people are "singing the praises" of Pompano Beach now. "Change is coming and we need to manage it. That's what this is about," he said.

But for the residents against the development, the change was too much. Especially the negative change to traffic they say will occur. "We all know it's going to be high," said resident Judith Harris-Blane. Developers have said a maximum of 1,377 trips per day would be generated from the development.

Penn also stated that, despite what some residents think, the developer would not be closing Northeast 23 Avenue and Northeast 16 Street. Residents expressed worry about the closures because it would block their direct access to Northeast 14 Street. Without Northeast 23 Avenue, drivers would have to do a U-turn on Federal Highway to get to Northeast 14 Street.

Penn said that the reason for the confusion was mostly a graphical error. In an aerial diagram, which shows the dimensions of the project, it appears that the development will be built over portions of the streets. In the description of the site's legal boundaries, it reads that Northeast 15 Street is to be vacated. Hardin brought the language issue up and Penn stated "on the record" that it would be removed.

Crime stats down in Lauderdale-By-The-Sea

Statistics released by the Broward Sheriff's Office this month show a 4.3 percent decrease in crimes as compared to 2016.

The town has the sixth lowest crime rate in the county and third lowest number of total crimes behind Sea Ranch Lakes and Hillsboro Beach.

The town reported a crime clearance rate of 24.2 percent, a 4.1 percent increase from 2016.

Traffic crash data

Chief Tom Palmer also reported on traffic crash data, noting the town experienced an increase in traffic crashes from 169 in 2016 to 201 in 2017.

But those figures are on the downturn.

From January to June of this year, the town has reported a 23 percent decrease in traffic crashes: 95 crashes in 2017 compared to 73 this year.

The most crash prone locations were 4399 N. Ocean Drive, near the Marathon station, seven crashes; 223 Commercial Blvd., six; and 4399 El Mar Drive, five.

BSO reports a 4 percent increase in traffic citations, from 824 in 2017 to 858 in 2018.

Among goals of the town's 2018 Action Plan is reducing traffic, pedestrian and bicycle violations through increased traffic enforcement. The Florida Department of Transportation awarded grant funding to BSO in LBTS for high visibility enforcement for pedestrian and bike safety from mid-December 2017 to April 2018.

Townhome project gets approval; plans are for 12 units

Judy Wilson

Lighthouse Point – The site plan for the first major townhome development built here in a decade was approved earlier this month by the planning and zoning board. As proposed by real estate developer Cavache Properties, the one-acre lot required 11 variances to accommodate the 12 residential units.

Among the variances OK'd by the board were setbacks for splash pools, balconies, guest parking, space between parking stalls and the elimination of raised parking curbs.

The RM-16 zoning was amended by the commission to allow 12 rather than the eight units in the code.

Proposed Cavache Properties town homes in Lighthouse Point. [Courtesy]

Cavache paid $1.4 million for the property located at 3879 NE 22 Way. Construction of the three and four bedroom homes is expected to be completed in early 2020. Prices in the gated community are anticipated to start at $765,000.

Sale of the property was contingent on site-plan approval.

"We are thrilled to be able to build on the last vacant parcel of this size in Lighthouse Point," said Adam Adache, managing partner of Cavache. "There have not been any new townhome developments in Lighthouse Point in 10 years which creates a very high demand for this type of product." Adache was also enthused about the city's reputation as an affluent and safe place to raise a family. Citing figures provided by the city he said, "Lighthouse Point has 2.88 law enforcement officers per 1,000 residents, which is 29 percent higher than the state average and a crime rate 36 percent lower than the national average."

Cavache is based in Pompano Beach and is currently developing Old Town Square, a 279-unit mixed use apartment building there.

The company is also developing 30 Thirty North Ocean, an urban beach condo in Lauderdale Beach.

The local townhome project has yet to be named.

July 4th fireworks

Pompano Beach celebrates July 4th this year with a Fireworks Extravaganza at the beach near the pier at 5 p.m. with live music featuring "Nostaljah," a Reggae band followed by "L Tribe," an R&B band.

At 9 p.m., sit back and relax as the colors light up the night sky with an array of fireworks launched from a floating barge in the ocean near the end of the Pompano Beach Fishing Pier.

Blankets and lawn chairs are welcome; however, personal fireworks, glass containers, alcohol, and pets are prohibited.

In case of inclement weather, a rain date for the fireworks show is Thursday, July 5th.

Pompano Beach District 5 candidate, David Miller

"I'm not a conventional politician, I'm actually Pompano Royalty from Collier City. "It's "Our Turn," a message from the youngest Pompano resident running as a city commission candidate. This is my "Call of Duty" for all the misfits, the misled, the special needs, the disenfranchised, low incomes, and those who never got an opportunity to express their ideas.

"It's a new age. It's a new age! And its our turn... it's about that time to represent because they spent 30 years in power and "we" still feel like "they" don't hear "us" so its here!

"Time for what?"
"Time for the new mind state that we have been thirsty for; the fresh start at southern living. I am the parks and rec conversation, the mentor-ship and elder inclusion conversation and as far as imagery the art advisory conversation.

"The community knows me as Pompano's Self Proclaimed Cultural Arts Ambassador. I teach people about how Culture is Art, Science and Religion which creates History. I love our glorious early African American history. The whole globe knows that our enslaved ancestors all had functional skills. All of them had skills as craftsmen beyond the field work that the master made them do.

"Now as a Gen X/ Millennial, we are trying to figure out how to have an innovative district.

"Our democratic cities and our politicians make enemies with one another. The school board is messed up; no real educators want to come teach in our black communities. Now the question becomes innovative for whom?"

"2018 the diamond in the rough is here, "Our Turn!"

but in 2016 the Florida Inland Navigational District cleared much of the land and planted grass which requires much more care.

Public Works Director Charles, Schramm presented an agreement which requires this city to mow the grassy areas, remove debris from the mangroves every three months and maintain the restrooms at an annual cost of about $10,000.

The acreage is owned Florida Inland Navigational District, but leased by the City of Pompano Beach. Originally, it was included in this city's land use plan to meet open space requirements. That need no longer exists, Commissioner Mike Long pointed out this week.

The park is on the south side of SE 24 Street and consists of natural foliage, nature trails and a beach.

Last November, commissioners balked at the increased expense and the city began talks with Pompano Beach. Both cities have law enforcement jurisdiction in the park.

City approves Intracoastal Drive signs

Lighthouse Point – Some streets with Intracoastal views will now be renamed Intracoastal Drive.

The designation is the request of former mayor Leo Bentz who will pay for the new signage, $250 for each one.

The new designation does not change the mailing addresses of residents on the streets which are NE 25 Street, NE 30 Avenue, NE 31 Avenue, portions of NE 23 and NE 25 Avenue and NE 48 Street.

Commissioner Mike Long asked if the renaming was okay with the residents and Commissioner Kyle Van Buskirk said other people may now want to rename their streets.

Bentz's wishes won the day with Commissioner Earl Maucker saying in this case the name makes "geological logic" and that Bentz is a "city advocate."

New city hall

opportunity for the city if we go forward with this," Hebert said.

The CRA plan first called for finding a developer for a mixed-use development on the West Dixie lots in 2005. That concept also was in the 2012 and 2017 planbook.

Hebert said the mixed-use development will centralize municipal operations, generate new taxable value, add additional parking and open other opportunities for development.

Sale price of the land is $2.550 million. If approved, the sale would happen in 2019.

In July 2017, the city hired Zyscovich Architects for design concepts.

As proposed, the south lot building will contain ground floor retail, live/work units and city hall offices with parking for 343 vehicles.

The building on the north lot will be a mix of ground floor retail and 87 residential units.

The city must commit to a 15-year lease for city hall spaces with two options for five-year renewals. The lease starts at $26.07 per square foot and goes up.

The city will agree to waive impact fees of $260,000, make $500,000 in roadway improvements and increase grant opportunities for retail businesses by $260,000.

"The numbers may seem daunting, but this meets so many of our goals," Hebert said. That includes a hardened facility [for city hall], new development, public parking and increased ad valorem revenues.

The city has owned the vacant lots for years.

"We will come back to the commission with a purchase and sale agreement, development agreement and lease agreement," Hebert told the commission last week.

The proposed development, previously referred to as the West Dixie lots, is now called Oakland Park Square. "This will be a public square and gathering place with ourselves as anchor tenant," Hebert said.

The existing city hall was constructed in 1963 and repurposed from a police and fire station. According to information provided by the city, the building is not a hardened structure, has obsolete electrical equipment

This rendering is of Oakland Park Square, a proposed development on West Dixie Highway. The city is now in negotiations with Integra Investments over the development. As proposed, the building to the south would contain retail, live/work units, City Hall and 343 parking spaces. The building on the north lot would contain retail and 87 residential units. [Courtesy, city of Oakland Park] and a deficient roof. Commission chambers have inadequate space.

The city's 2010 Facility Master Plan recommended constructing a new city hall due to its deficiencies.

Because of that, no estimates on hardening it have been undertaken Hebert said.

Integra Investments is a Miami-based private equity and real estate development firm, founded 12 years ago. Its projects include offices, multi-family and mixed-use, said Paulo Tavares de Melo, a principal with the firm.

Among their current projects are Aventura Park Square and Hallandale ArtSquare, a multi-family development on North Federal Highway.

"We're very excited about Oakland Park," de Melo said. "This is the kind of challenge that motivates us. We're excited to work with the community. Thanks for selecting us as the developer. We look forward to bringing this project to fruition."

Architect Bernard Zyscovich said, "You have a very visionary team."

He mentioned the city's culinary district and said, "Maybe we're an accelerant to what you have started."

"We're not dazzlers. We just do our job well," Zyscovich said.

He noted that the city's administrative functions would be on a top floor, above the parking structure.

Events and meetings could be held on the rooftop.

Zyscovich said he's very excited about the architecture. "It has more of an industrial feel with steel frames. We want it to be noteworthy and iconic."

Commissioner John Adornato said, "When we bought this land, there were questions about what we were doing. This is the implementation of a vision. This is the city putting its money where its mouth is. This is the next logical step to take in implementation of a vision on the books for a long time."

Commissioner Michael Carn thanked the development partners "for wrapping your arms around the vision. We waited a long time for this cohesion."

"Yes, we're taking a risk. I like risk. Hats off to the team, staff and commission," Carn said.

"The building is inspiring. This sets the stage for what we're looking for on the west side of Dixie," said Commissioner Matthew Sparks.

Sparks asked if a proposed occupancy date of 2021 is realistic.

Hebert responded, "We have a fortuitous wind at our backs. The economy is strong and favorable, and this developer is anxious to get started."

Vice Mayor Sara Guevrekian said she wanted to dispel some rumors and asked what the commission approved by awarding quotes and authorizing negotiations with Integra.

City Attorney DJ Doody said three components are yet to be approved. A purchase and sales agreement has to be okayed by ordinance. That may be on the commission agenda in July. Then a development agreement will be negotiated, and terms of a commercial lease are subject to commission approval.

Guevrekian said the two 68-foot high buildings are "cavernous" and "not my idea of a small town downtown."

"Everyone always wants more and more height. Sixty-eight feet tall is practically seven stories. I'm uncomfortable with that."

Noting that these are very small lots, she asked about setbacks and how much grass there would be. Alex Dambach, planning supervisor, said there will be a 12-foot buffer on the east and 10-foot buffers on the sides.

"There's fear of the unknown, and there's some risk involved. I think it's a worthy risk," said Mayor Tim Lonergan. "The vision has been there for 14-15 years."

The public can join the discussion of the proposed Oakland Park Square Tuesday, July 10, 8 a.m. at the Community Redevelopment Agency meeting at Jaco Pastorius Community Center, 1098 NE 40 Ct. For more information call 954-630-4251.

Parades, fireworks set to go

The July 4 celebration here starts with a parade at 10 a.m. and winds up with fireworks shot off the beach at 9 p.m.

The parade will mainly be along El Mar Drive between Pine and Hibiscus Avenues. The parade starts on Bougainvillea Drive behind Town Hall (4501 N. Ocean Drive), heads north to Pine Avenue, east to El Mar Drive and then south to Hibiscus Avenue, where it ends. The parade will feature Lady Liberty and Uncle Sam on stilts, as well as various police and fire department vehicles, residents on bikes and parade entries from local businesses.

This year's parade Grand Marshal is Bill Johansen, a Lauderdale-By-The-Sea resident who has volunteered more than 5,000 hours as the colonel in charge of the Town's Citizen Observer Patrol, a community law enforcement program run by the Broward Sheriff's Office. Johansen also did volunteer work with BSO's Posse Unit and parking enforcement programs.

"We could not think of a more deserving resident to lead the parade," said Lt. William Wesolowski, the executive officer with BSO in LBTS. "Bill's leadership has made the Lauderdale-By-The-Sea COP program one of the most successful in the county, and he is counted on as a valuable asset to the district."

Holiday festivities also include family activities in El Prado Park, 4500 El Mar Drive, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., including face painting, a waterslide, music, food, a clown and equipment demonstrations by the town's Volunteer Fire Department.

For more info, call the Town's Public Information Office at 954-640-4209.

Black Grouper on the dinner table

By Jim "Chiefy" Mathie

PELICAN WRITER

It's great to have fresh black grouper back on the dinner table. The grouper season reopened May 1 after a closure beginning January 1. This four-month break is mandated during the grouper spawning season, which gives the species time to regenerate. The State of Florida also has minimum size restrictions and bag limits usually based on scientific determinations for we are seeing and landing a lot of black grouper, which is a great tasting fish. A black grouper is challenging to land as they almost always are on the move.

The good news is locally

Deerfield Beach resident Kelly Johnson is an avid "spearo," and recently travelled to Naples to land a trophy black grouper. She was on an all-day dive charter, venturing some 80 miles off shore into the Gulf of Mexico. She landed a 73-pound beast in 135-feet of water.

As she descended, the black grouper swam into a cave along with a goliath grouper and many lion fish.

Locally, I recently took Megan Nichole Romine to a dive site called the Qualman Tugs off the Pompano Beach pier and she landed a nice 25-inch black grouper. This fish was around the wreck in 75-feet of water and Megan successfully landed it. The fish was on the move, but she did the reliable "See the Fish, Shoot the Fish" method of landing a nice grouper.

And the week prior to Megan's grouper, my buddy Wassim Samra landed another diving from my boat. This one was speared off Boca Raton on a ledge in 65-feet of water and ended up at a nice 30-inches.

This past weekend I even helped land a 45"-inch black grouper off Cudjoe Key in 70-feet of water. Diving was the president of the South Florida Spearfishing Club [www.spearfishing.org] Tom Campbell. He was looking in a small area of reef, and the grouper jumped into the hole right in front of him. Tom was able to find another opening and successfully place his spear into the fish's head.

However, it didn't incapaci-tate the fish and I assisted in getting the fish out of the hole and disabling it so we could get it to the boat.

The moral of these stories is black grouper is back on the dinner menu and it doesn't matter where in south Florida you are located. They do enjoy reef or wreck structure, but the depth and location vary.

It's time to get out your favorite grouper recipe to serve to family and friends.
