Sandpipers Flock Back To School

Beach School
Classes Begin
August 20

Twenty-two kindergartners will officially become Pensacola Beach Elementary School Sandpipers when they arrive for the first day of school, August 20. Among the five-year-olds will be Lily Montgomery, center, and Lola Reeves, right. Neither are worried about the first day of school. They have bookbags packed and colorful new lunch boxes. Jennifer Neal, left, a veteran kindergarten teacher at the Beach School, has a curriculum full of tried-and-true lessons to add to her fun and new ways to instruct the eager rookies. To learn more, go to page 2.

Kindergartners Ready For First Day

Could it be true that all you ever needed to know you learned in kindergarten? If it is, the future of Pensacola Beach is in good shape. Twenty-two youngsters will begin their elementary education in Jennifer Neal's kindergarten class at Pensacola Beach Charter School on Monday, August 20. The bell rings at 7:45 a.m. signaling the beginning of the thirty-fifth year at the only school located on Pensacola Beach.

Pensacola Beach Elementary, which opened in 1978 as an Escambia County School, has operated as a charter school since July 2002. The school has one class per grade and continues to rank at the top of the state in standardized test scores and learning gains. The Beach School students, whose mascot is the Sandpiper, flock back to an idyllic campus where sugar white sands serve as their playground.

Kindergartners will arrive rested and eager to learn after they have had a good night's sleep thanks to their teacher's Magic Sprinkle Dust.

"That is something I give to their parents at Orientation," chuckled Neal, who is famous for her clever ideas. "Parents instruct the child to sprinkle it under their pillow knowing that they will awake refreshed and ready for the big day. No tossing and turning worrying about the first day of school."

Parents can learn everything they need to know about the Beach School at Orientation, Friday, August 17 at 10 a.m. The kindergartners do not attend this session, but older students are invited to attend in their prospective classroom.

School supplies can be delivered on Orientation Day. The lists are available online at www.pbcs.org.

Students will not have time to fret in the kindergarten class, according to Neal. The first day includes learning where to sit and where everything is located. The Beach School campus is not large, but Neal includes a Walk of Fame game where students visit each classroom following a map.

"We will tour the school, leaving a snack from their friends in kindergarten," commented Neal. "Our theme this week will be sharks, so we will wish everyone a 'fin-tastic' day!"

The day continues with writing, reading, physical education and computer class sandwiched around lunch time.

"I like math," said Lola Reeves, who is looking forward to entering kindergarten. "And, I have a new blue lunchbox with polka dots."

"You will love the Estimation Jar," encouraged her sister Jocelyn, who has been a Beach School student for four years. "It is really neat."

Neal embraces everything the beach has to offer and integrates it into her classroom. She refers to her students as "friends," and each day there is a new lifeguard in her class. The lifeguard has special tasks and gets to wear a t-shirt with the designation while he sits in the tall lifeguard chair.

"We learn to follow the rules, take turns, be friends, share and make good choices," said Neal. "Those are really important life lessons."

The classrooms at the Beach School are a blend of traditional and cutting edge. They have colorful bulletin boards and high tech Smart boards, which take the place of chalkboards. Each classroom is equipped with wireless internet access and teachers are issued iPads. It is the balance that keeps the students engaged, and interested in learning. The School maintains an "A" rating in the State of Florida. The days are fast paced, but the technology does not replace the dose of caring and encouragement that Beach School teachers dish out daily.

"You see the promise in each student, and then watch them grow as the year progresses," said Neal. "Before you know it, they graduate."

New students aren't the only fresh faces this year. The Beach School welcomes a new fourth grade teacher Erin Olsen. She joins a top notch teaching staff which includes Tara Turk, fifth grade; Sarah Farej, first grade; Debbie Campanella, second grade, and Joy McLaurine, third grade.

They are responsible for giving the students the firm foundation that carries them through to high school graduation. The students who live on the Beach are eligible to attend Gulf Breeze Middle and High Schools, which are located in Santa Rosa County. The Beach School shares the same calendar as the Gulf Breeze Schools.

Orientation for students at Gulf Breeze Middle is set for Friday, August 17. Eighth graders may visit the school from 8 to 9 a.m.; seventh graders, 9-10:30 a.m. and sixth graders and new students should drop in between noon and 2 p.m.

"Students will get their schedules, find out about the buses, buy PE uniforms, meet teachers and locate their classrooms," said Middle School Secretary Becky Grace.

Information about ordering a yearbook, school supplies and joining the PTO will also be available.

Gulf Breeze High invites seniors to get their lockers, schedules and parking passes from 8 a.m. until 1:15 p.m. Tuesday, August 7. Juniors should come to school Wednesday, August 8 and sophomores Thursday, August 9 from 8 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

Orientation for the Class of 2016 and students new to Gulf Breeze High School will be Friday, August 10 beginning at 8 a.m. Locker assignments, yearbook orders, t-shirt sales will be available until 9 a.m. School tours will take place from 9 to 11 a.m. Orientation includes informative discussions on high school success and a question-and-answer session. Students will receive their class schedules. Students and parents are reminded to bring their checkbooks or cash and any paperwork required.

And for those who drive on Via de Luna or Highway 98, please note that the 20 mile per hour speed limit in the school zones is strictly enforced. It's part of following the rules – something you should have learned in kindergarten.

Forever...Barefoot on the Beach

As a tribute to Jane Waters who passed away January 10, Island Times will continue to run some of Jane's favorite columns for your enjoyment

As long as I can remember, dogs have been a part of my life. I have had a Cocker Spaniel, French Poodle, Dachshund, Bull Dog, Springer Spaniel, Irish Setter and a few assorted mutts. I have also had a parakeet, a pony, a monkey, an alligator, tropical fish, a huge white rabbit, two bantam roosters, a gray squirrel, and numerous kittens. Each of these animals has etched some special niche in my heart, but none can be remembered in quite the same way as a pair of greyhounds named Duke and Duchess.

Actually, I inherited those two lithe, fawn colored creatures. They originally belonged to my brother who thought it would be neat to train them to race until he found out how much work it entailed. So, he gallantly turned them over to me, and I suddenly owned two giant pets. I hung on to their leashed for dear life as they galloped me down the street every day, and I would spend long hours brushing them, feeding them, and trying to keep their water buckets filled. I was allowed to keep the two monsters in the basement of our home until my dad discovered fleas in the pool table, and he evicted them to a warehouse area he owned. I walked there every day to care for the dogs and all went well for a while. Unfortunately, a green house was next to the warehouse and one night the dogs playfully ran across the top of it, breaking every single tiny window glass. After he paid the bill for getting rid of the fleas and replacing the greenhouse glass, my Dad tried to convince me that those dogs had to go. I pleaded with him to give them one more chance, so he took them to his sand pit which was a long way out in the country.

brown paper bags of food for the dogs with me - so, naturally, they thought all large paper bags contained food. Which isn't totally true.

Nails were delivered to the sand boat in large brown paper bags. Somehow, these bags of nails began to disappear during the night. No one ever tried to steal anything from the boat since the dogs spent the night there, so it wasn't a thief. The mystery continued until some busy body caught Duke and Duchess sniffing the nail bags, and disappointed that the bags did not contain a few choice morsels, they calmly dropped them over the side of the boat into thirty feet of water.

Well, after my Dad paid the farmer for all those chickens, I knew I would have to employ some kind of new strategy, so I asked if I could keep just one of the dogs, and bring him back to town if I de-fleaded him everyday - even every hour. I really begged. My Dad finally acquiesced.

Duchess went to a greyhound racing trainer and Duke stayed with me. He hardly ever left my side and we began to grow older together. When I was a freshman in high school, he came at the end of the day to meet me, and when my friends would reach out to touch him, he would jump away gracefully, like a huge gazelle. He was so shy that he would never allow anyone to pet him but me.

The busy body told my dad. Again, I had to make a dramatic plea to save my dogs, and arrangements were finally made to send them to my uncle's farm. I could ride my bike out there, so I was ecstatic that I no longer had to wait for the trucks. My uncle raised Dalmatians and race horses, and Duke and Duchess fit right into that animal kingdom until they found a nearby farm house with a pen full of chickens. They killed the chickens. All of them!

That summer, Duke came home one day and laid under a tree. He never got up again. All day long, I kept moving my beloved paralyzed dog from shady spot to shady spot. I sponged his long, beautiful face with cool, wet towels. Finally, my Mother called the vet. The news was all bad. Duke had been poisoned, and the vet took him away. My heart was broken...and even my Dad had a tear in his eye.

Trivia

PEOPLE

Everyone loves turtle trivia. Answers came from kids, sailors, sweethearts and smart folks; but no one topped the retired United States Army Colonel Mike Cook for speed and accuracy. The waterfront Beach resident knew that the leatherback was the largest species of turtle in the world. He made no comment about who the biggest beach barfly might be.

The Trivia Master who hobnobs with know-it-alls shared this documentation: The leatherback sea turtle is the largest species of turtle in the world and, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Marine Fisheries Service, it is also the largest living reptile. Leatherbacks can grow up to seven feet long and weigh more than one ton. According to National Geographic, the largest leatherback turtle ever found washed up on the coast of Wales in 1988. It was a male turtle that was 8.5 feet long and weighed 2,020 pounds.

Christy Sullivan said just knowing she was correct was prize enough for her and sent a special blessing to the turtles and their trivia fans. Lila Cox thought it might be a trick question, but was on target with her answer. Greg Christoff and Tim Pike both know their turtle trivia.

Ten-year-old Gulf Breeze Elementary School student Pier McMillan who had a harrowing experience while fishing knew it was leatherback. He helped save a hooked green turtle.

This question had people turning different colors. Walter Foster is green with envy over his wife's trivia t-shirt. Jersey Girl Gwen has been showing off her shirt. In an attempt to earn a shirt, husband Walter sent the correct answer, but way too late. Gwen is hiding her shirt from him.

Sitting red-faced at the Roundtable Lady Kim Schmitz who corrected her original answer of "leatherneck" to leatherback and blamed her spell check. Semper Fi Lady.

Sir Morrie, Gwen Foster and a host of others nominated the Galapagos Tortoise as the largest turtle. Sir Offshore

Who are these two beach kids?

Chuck Brower took the Trivia Master to the shores of Indonesia with his answer. "The Star Fish turtle from Indonesia is the largest in the world. They are called the starfish because the back looks like a star fruit. They can weigh up to 900 pounds."

Sorry, the TM is sticking with his NOAA know-it-alls.

Deep in the sand dunes of Mexico Beach, Chuck Steele conjures up a vision of a Woolly Mastadon Turtle which never roams south of Interstate 10; and, thus is no danger to his beach friends. The NOAA know-it-alls probably knew nothing of this hairy friend of Chuck's.

And, the glittery crown of the Queen of Wrong Answers remains untarnished. Joanne Brooks sends a Tale of a Turtle. "I believe that the largest turtle (not tortoise) is an Alligator Snapping Turtle. When we lived in town, our townhouse was on Carpenter's Creek. When some construction was done, a very large Alligator Snapping Turtle was disturbed. At that time it was estimated to be 100 years old. It was relocated to the Escambia River. They live in the mud and rarely move. They entice their food by sticking out their tongue which looks like a fishing lure on the end. Therefore, food!"

Keep us entertained, Queenie.

The Trivia Master posts a photo challenge in honor of the Beach kids who trek back to school this month. Can you identify these two beach residents? Hint: they are both Gulf Breeze High School students. Remember, it takes both names to win.

You could go to the head of the class wearing a new Island Times t-shirt!

Don't be a dunce; send your answer to islandtimes@bellsouth.net. Just like school, there are rules: include trivia in the subject line and your name and phone number with your answer. Deadline to enter is Tuesday, August 14.

BETTY ON BAYOU

Pensacola resident Betty Fowler, 84 years young, sends her best to the Beach Turtle brigade. She called Holiday Inn Express General Manager Beverly McCay to submit her baby turtle name and guess of the hatching date since she was not able to attend the Shower. She chose Myrtle as a name because her son "who is now grown" had a turtle as a child and they called it Myrtle. She chose August 9 at 9 p.m. as the hatch date and time. Good luck Betty and Myrtle.

GLAM GRANDMOTHER

Every student who passes through Gulf Breeze Middle School knows Becky Grace, the school's longtime secretary. She and husband Patrick are welcoming a new grandson, Declan, to the family. Declan has big brother Finian, who is now 16-months-old, to show him the ropes.

TUESDAY PAT

The Pensacola Beach Visitor's Information Center has a cast of volunteers who greet and assist the thousands of visitors who arrive in the lobby looking for directions, discussion, maps and good advice. Pat Cribb, who volunteers every Tuesday, had her very own visitors to show around last month. Her young nieces Lauren and Erica Stemler from Park City, Utah were on the beach.

NEW CLUBBERS

Two skippers are now part of the very active Beach Yacht Club. Debbie Belger, Membership chairman, announced that Bob Kelly, Pensacola, and John Farris from Niceville are the newest additions to the Club's fleet.

LOVE TO LOIS

The Sisters of the Beach are famous for their outpouring of love and support within their ranks. When they found out that Lois Jernigan needed their prayers, they shouted to the Heavens. And, they continue to send her lots of love for the days ahead.

GAL GRADUATES

Just when everyone else is heading back to school, Angeli McMillan has finished. She loved working in the hospitality industry, but she hopes to land a job in the fast paced medical world. She has completed her coursework and certification tests to be a Medical Coder. She is ready to put her new knowledge and skills to use.

Island Authority Committees Lower Fees, Monitor Tax Suit

Neighbors Must Resolve Dock Disagreement

Tim Jones' request to extend his dock one hundred feet into Santa Rosa Sound was tied up when neighbors voiced their concerns at the July 25 Santa Rosa Island Authority Architectural and Environmental Committee meeting. After hearing comments from two neighbors, their attorney and Environmental Scientist Jason Taylor, the committee asked the concerned parties to meet with staff to reach an agreement. Staff will bring the results back to the committee in August.

A request to move a dock, made by Greg Whibbs of Villa Sabine, met the same fate. The committee asked staff to attempt to mediate and bring the results to the next board meeting.

The Administrative Committee made it less costly for Island residents and businesses to have plans reviewed. SRIA Director of Developmental Services Paolo Ghio proposed a reduction in fees for those submitting signs or fence plans from $50 to $25. Businesses will be charged $200 for renovation and addition plans, half of the previous charge.

"We are not struggling for revenue," said Administrative Committee Member Ed Guernsey. "I think we should adopt this new fee structure as a way of giving back. We are able to do that right now."

The Committee unanimously approved the new fee schedule.

The Development and Leasing Committee keeps close tabs on the lease fee and property tax issue. Guernsey admitted that the topic is complicated and he continues to seek equitable ways to resolve the dilemma. He noted that although it makes sense to see how the Supreme Court will rule on the legality of taxing leaseholders, it is important to have a plan in place prior to the ruling.

"We don't want to wait until the Supreme Court decides before we make some sort of public stand about what we think should be done," said Guernsey. "We cannot control what the County does with the tax receipts, but we can make requests. It is incumbent on us to make sure those dollars are brought back to the beach for the purposes of making the unfair taxes more fair."

The SRIA recognized the importance of identifying the economic impact of the beach and continues to share that information in public meetings, on a local television series and with the media. The board will receive the results from a study prepared on the topic by the Haas Center.

"We need to educate the people about who we are, what we do and how we fund ourselves," said Guernsey.

"The Haas report will add to the validity of what you are saying," commented SRIA Chairman Dave Pavlock.

Beach resident and Board member Tammy Bohannon reminded the Committee that there are many new Island residents who are paying a substantial lease fee coupled with association dues and ad valorem taxes.

"The idea that the lease fee is a small amount no longer is accurate," said Bohannon. "There are many who are burdened with a heavy financial load."

The topic will remain on the Committee's agenda.

The Santa Rosa Island Authority dedicated a proclamation to honor some of the Island's oldest residents, the sea turtles. In the proclamation, which identified July 28 as Sea Turtle Awareness Day on Pensacola Beach, the board noted that the sea turtles have been nesting on the island for centuries prior to human's arrival. The economic and environmental impact of the conservation efforts should be recognized. The proclamation was to be presented at Pensacola Beach's first ever Sea Turtle Baby Shower.

The Full Board will meet

Wednesday, August 8 at 5 p.m. in the boardroom, #1 via de Luna. The meeting is open to the public.

Agendas are posted at www.sria-fla.com.

peas, porridge & a dry martini

by Kathi Lewis

This is a bit different from my usual column, but it is just too good to keep all to myself. It is a series of e-mails generated between several of my friends concerning the Sea Turtle Baby Shower. The Shower was originally planned for July 28 at the Holiday Inn Express on Ft. Pickens Road, but had to be rescheduled for the next weekend due to stormy weather. I'm still laughing, so I hope you enjoy it as much as I have.

From Peggy Henshall, July 28, 2012 @ 8:20 p.m.: Yep, George and I went to the Turtle Shower at the Hilton. Bob and Patrice met us there. I brought a present that I made for D.J. We never found the Turtle Shower. The people at the Hilton didn't know what we were talking about.

We ended up walking next door to the Holiday Inn, ran into Lindsey Stanley, and drank myself silly. That would mean two margaritas. We had a fabulous time. The weather was beautiful and we talked, laughed, and watched all of the people in the bar and on the beach. I saw a man with too much hair stuffed into too small a swimsuit and a large woman who looked like she was in her underwear.

From D.J. Zemenick, same day @ 9:09 p.m.: Oh my! I don't know where to start! LMBO

Although we had to postpone for weather, the event was at the Holiday Inn Express on Ft. Pickens Road, Peggy. So close, but yet so far away. Looking at the positive side, the Hilton (on Via de Luna) also begins with an "H". We should have just headed down your way and drowned the sorrows of our postponement at your private party.

I second your opinion about bathing suits. I saw an older, not physically fit gentleman while I was on the beach this morning during turtle patrol. While I applaud young Olympians who wear Speedos, I am definitely turned off by pudgy older men in ill-fitting Speedos.....especially when the speedo is a leopard print. UGH! (My note: Maybe he's planning to attend the Nauga Champagne Brunch?)

We don't know why Mother Nature wouldn't cooperate, but I know for sure that it will work out for the best.

Shelley Johnson, Sunday, at 12:18 a.m.: Glad we could be the impetus for your Turtle Cocktail Party at the Holiday Inn....and as long as the drinks were green, it's all good.

Paulette Provost, Sunday @ 1:17 p.m.: Actually there were two turtle cocktail parties going on. We were at Paradise dressed in our finest Turtle Shower attire, with turtle pins, rings and shirts, and we toasted our fine turtles with great ceremony! Turtle shower cocktail attendees included Kathi Lewis, Christine and Lonnie Hewerdine, Amy Depew, Paulette Provost, Deb Friedman, Little John, Sharon Mattair, Cathy Long and Renee Mack and other assorted folks that were at the lively beach bar!

Lila Cox - Sun. @ 8:36 p.m.: I have to tell you how much I enjoyed to Sea Turtle Baby Shower that wasn't yesterday. Those of us involved in the event were gathering up our stuff and talking to those who showed up. A lot of people asked me if I was D.J. (I lost count). She is a Rock Star with a great following. I am so proud. DJ has done such a great job with her blog, videos and photos helping us all learn more about this endangered species. (My note: Don't miss DJ's Turtle Trax on page 18 of this edition of IT.) She was as bubbly as a glass champagne.

I'm sorry we missed Peggy's party at the wrong location and the other girls at Paradise, but we had a cooler of beer after the shower. There is no place like Pensacola Beach.

Paulette Provost, Sunday @ 8:43 p.m.: Beautifully said Miss Lila! Rock on, DJ! And thanks to all of you who worked so hard on the cancelled Turtle Shower!

Deb Friedman, Sunday @ 8:58 p.m.: I think we have two rock stars - DJ and Lila! My prediction is this is just the beginning of another truly Island annual tradition. I'm proud and very Blessed to be a part of it.

Becky Shearman, Monday @ 7:28 a.m.: I am clapping for our Turtle Rock Stars!

DJ Zemenick, Monday 8:56 a.m.: What Lila said was very sweet. I just supplied photos and video. It was Lila, Beverly McCay and Shelley Johnson who did all the hard work. What I contribute just gives some emotional attachment to our cause. Those little turtles are just so darn cute.

Peggy Henshall, Monday @ 9:00 a.m.: Oh my, to add to all of the rest of DJ's attributes of charming, intelligent, eloquent; she is humble.

My note: Lord help me, I love these amazing women! And I'd like to say a huge "Thank You" to everyone who made the Sea Turtle Baby Shower such a talked about and spectacular event! I have to agree with Deb in believing this is just the start of another annual island tradition. I just can't see how y'all can top this next year. It still cracks me up just reading this whole conversation.

I know it's way past time to get down to the basis of my column and I've got a great recipe to share! Why this one? Someone just happened to leave a Bud Lite in my refrigerator and I don't drink it so I have to use it in a recipe! So, let's cook.....

Easy Beer Bread
2 Cups Self-Rising flour
2 ½ Tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 -12oz. can of room temperature beer (Bud lite works really well)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spray a loaf pan with cooking spray. Combine flour, sugar, salt and beer. Mix well then pour batter into loaf pan. Bake for 45 minutes, then brush the top with melted butter.

Enjoy, share and don't forget to laugh!

See ya in the kitchen.....

Jane's Summer Swim Party celebrants gather to toast the first day of August at a luncheon hosted by Jane Peaden in her eastern Santa Rosa Island location. Although there were a few very poor Michael Phelps imitations, the party received a gold medal from the following: (front row, L to R) Kathi Lewis, Danah Gibson, Paulette Provost, Jane Peaden, Lynn Cieutat, Peggy Black and her dog Olive, and Claudia Fisher. (Middle row, L to R): Amy Depew, Jayne Drees, Gwen Gibson and Charlotte Spencer. (Back row, L to R): Peggy Henshall, Judy L'Oignon, Christine Hewerdine and Bonnie McDonald. Beach resident Jackie Henderson coordinated the Beach Church's Vacation Bible School, which always includes a swim party and pizza lunch. This year was no different. Forty-four Bible Schoolers and almost as many adults, teenager helpers and lifeguards splashed in Santa Rosa Sound, north of the Church, July 27 until a thunderstorm made them run for cover.

Sizzling Summer Pace Continues Into Beach Shoulder Season Events

Pensacola Beach Chamber members shared the sweet successes of summer and optimism that the strong line-up of fall events will continue to make cash registers ring. Among the thirty business representatives who attended the July 31 monthly Chamber meeting at Days Inn, hoteliers and vacation rental agencies were reporting strong reservations through the end of October.

"We have been slammed all summer," said Marta Ray, Days Inn. "Our weekends are booked through fall."

There is no shortage of festivals and events for residents and guests. Beach Chamber Events Chairman Beverly Campbell updated the members with details of the Taste of the Beach, September 15-16 followed by the Art and Wine Festival, October 6-7.

"For the first time, we will host our wine tasting at our festival site," said Campbell. "We have kicked it up a notch for a higher quality guest experience. More performers, more artists, better wine."

The Art and Wine Festival will showcase performing artists, art vendors, a wine tasting tent and complimentary food selections. The wine tasting tickets are $15 per day, with the first 100 guests receiving a jute wine bag.

Chamber President Maureen LaMar noted that the Chamber membership has grown to 136 members as she welcomed new member Water Warrior, a paddleboarding company owned by Becky Harger and located at Pensacola Beach Marina.

Harger has recently received national recognition as the ACA instructor of the Month. Her class selection includes everything from beginners paddle boarding to an inner voyage experience.

"I am so grateful to the beach business community for sharing our information, telling visitors about us," said Harger. "It brings me so much joy to make people happy as they learn to paddleboard."

While paddleboarding is a new beach sport, miniature golf has been around the beach for decades. Kelly Eddins of Hampton Inn announced that the Tiki Island Golf and Games is a family friendly activity and the course has been refurbished.

Rick Gordon, Miracle Strip Corvette Club representative, said their local contingent included a round of miniature golf at a recent meeting. The Corvette Club will host their annual show September 15 in conjunction with the Chamber's Taste of the Beach.

"We believe that between 150 and 200 Corvettes will enter this year's show," said Gordon. "We have visitors arriving from across the nation."

Among the fall events is Pensacola Beach American Legion's Putt Putt fundraiser, October 20. The organizers have tee-signs available for $25 each. Donation forms are located at the Visitor's Center.

During the Roundtable discussion Nan Harper of Island Realty announced that her business is growing. She and her colleagues welcome Joni Grissom to the real estate office.

Pensacola Beach Advocate President Jim Cox updated the Chamber on the results of the PBA Master Plan survey noting that 630 responses were collected. Those results were forwarded to the Santa Rosa Island Authority Board, Escambia County Commissioner Grover Robinson, who represents the beach, and the County engineering staff. He encouraged business owners to communicate with the SRIA board.

"The SRIA is currently going through a process to identify which projects will take a priority and how to fund them," said Cox. "I suggest you contact the elected SRIA board member Dr. Thomas Campanella, or any SRIA board member to give them your input."

Cox reminded the group that the State Supreme Court will consider the taxation litigation although no time frame for rendering a decision has been set. Currently, businesses and residents are paying ad valorem taxes and lease fees, which is a heavy burden. The leaseholders sued the County taxing authorities for levying taxes on their leasehold property and improvements.

"We are in a wait-and-see situation," said Cox. "I would hope a decision would come before the end of the year."

Beachkeeper Lila Cox congratulated the island business community for their participation in Sea Turtle conservation. She shared a number of items that Gulf front hotels will display to educate guests about how to help the beach be more turtle-friendly.

The next Chamber meeting is Tuesday, August 28 at 8:30 a.m. at the Days Inn. Membership information is available at www.

PensacolaBeachChamber.com or by calling Maureen LaMar at 850-932-1500.

Beach resident John Fromularo of Wells Fargo Advisors, left, was sporting his classic fighter pilot tropical shirt and straw hat. John was awarded a prize for the person who hailed from farthest away. He was born in New York City. Bamboo Willie's Robert Gleim, right, was racking up the miles, too. He was born in Indiana. Gleim admitted he was raised in Georgia. ►

Dylan Blass can return to Gulf Breeze High School with a winning fishing story. His 4.63 pound Redfish and 2.22 pound Catfish made him the runner-up in the Junior Angler 11-16 group at the Pensacola Fishing Rodeo in those categories. The weigh in was at Flounder's on July 29. The avid fisherman works at Hot Spots.

Max Williams, right, brings his varied catch to the WeighMaster at the Pensacola Fishing Rodeo, July 29 at Flounder's Beach. Williams' Barracuda weighed 24.42 pounds which was good enough for third place. His fishing partner's Cuda took the top spot at 29.08 pounds. They brought Black Snapper, White Trout, Croakers and Pompano to the leaderboard, and took home a boatload of prizes.

The Lizard's Tongue

I think there should be a gold medal for all the people who love the Olympics and no place on the podium for NBC. Once again, for an event that is cherished by millions, it's been taken hostage by greed and the almighty dollar. I really have not appreciated NBC dictating to me when I can watch the medal rounds of certain events, including gymnastics and swimming. News flash: when someone waits four years for the most spectacular display of world competition-- which is an incredibly long time for a society built on instant gratification -- it is just not right to broadcast tape delayed events, including the Opening Ceremonies. I am just not sure what NBC was thinking.

I've read all the blogs and editorials. I even followed the tweet that landed the journalist Guy Adams twitterless. He tweeted NBC executive Gary Zenkel's corporate email address and was banned for publicly disclosing someone else's personal information. Adams has since been brought back into the nest of Twitter with Twitter's general counsel wishing they had the luxury of tape delayed decisions.

So what is NBC's excuse for not going live as the events unfolded?

Bottom line, a corporation reaching for the gold. I kept reading over and over that their corporate sponsors deserve the greatest audience share possible because of the hefty price tag on commercials and that meant airing the games during prime time.

Here's a thought. How about broadcasting the Olympics live with no commercial interruptions and a bottom scroll that says "the 30th Olympiad is being brought to you commercial free thanks in part to," and then list the sponsors. I would have had my television on all day from the first twang of the archer's bow (3 a.m. CST) to the last punch thrown by the super heavy boxers (5:30 p.m. CST). I would have made an effort to watch the sports live that I like and recorded others to watch at a more convenient time. Additionally, there would be no way I could skip over the sponsors' messages because they are embedded at the bottom of the screen.

Plus what is really prime time these days? And if it's so important, then why do Central and Mountain time zones have a different standard than Eastern and Pacific? Thanks to the internet, prime time is whatever you want it to be except if you would like to watch the Olympics live.

Now I know that NBC defended its decision and basically offered up its live streaming as the olive branch, but while trying to watch the Men's 100 Freestyle Finals, an event that lasted less than 50 seconds, 48.44 seconds to be exact, I couldn't even get a steady stream with my brand new system and high speed cable. American Nathan Adrian was probably already dressed and on the podium by the time I figured out he won. I ended up watching it again in prime time, but only under protest.

Not too long ago, NBC's slogan was Always With You. I guess after paying $1.2 billion for the American rights to these Olympic games, their current slogan of More Colorful really should be changed to Just Gold.

Until next time...

My Louisiana Love Premieres on Beach, Encore at Pensacola Museum

Pensacola Beach fans of My Louisiana Love, a film by local Monique Verdin along with Sharon Linezo Hong and Mark Krasnott, gave it rave reviews after its premier, July 31 at Paradise Bar and Grill.

"We were sitting near the soundfront stage, our eyes were glued to the screen," said Charlotte Spencer. "Oh my God, we laughed and we cried. It was so good."

According to the producers, the film traces a young woman's quest to find a place in her Native American community as it reels from decades of environmental degradation. Monique Verdin returns to southeast Louisiana to reunite with her Houma Indian family. Soon she sees that her people's traditional way of life is threatened by a cycle of manmade environmental crises. Hurricane Katrina and the BP oil leak are just the latest rounds in this century-old cycle that is forcing Monique's clan to adapt in new way. Monique must overcome the loss of her house, her father and her partner - and redefine the meaning of home.

If you missed the Beach showing, you can catch the film Thursday, August 9 at 6 p.m. at the Pensacola Museum of Art, 407 S. Jefferson St. The tickets are $5 for adults and $2 for students and active military. There is no charge to museum members. For more information, call 850-432-6247 or go to www.pensacolamuseumofart.org.

County Seeks Applicants For Vacant Adjustment Board Seat

The Escambia County Board of Adjustment (BOA) is looking for qualified residents to serve on the board in an "At Large" position. Anyone interested in serving on the BOA should forward a current resume to the Development Services Department, Attn: Karen Spitsbergen, 3363 West Park Place, Pensacola, Florida 32505. Financial disclosure and W-9 forms are required.

Established by the Board of County Commissioners, the BOA conducts any required quasi-judicial public hearings to grant, grant with conditions, or deny applications for variances, conditional uses, requests for final extension of development orders for site plan approval, requests for the temporary use of a mobile home as a guest residence due to medical hardship and appeals of administrative decisions filed by those persons aggrieved by interpretations or administration of these regulations.

Madison Howell from Cantonment took home the top prize at the Sandshaker's Blue and Gold Bikini Contest, July 21.

The Sandshaker hosts a Shaker Queen contest that culminates Sunday, September 16. The candidates gather votes at $1 each to be donated to charity. The Shaker Queen does not have to be a bikini-wearing model, just a good fund raiser, according to the rules.

TOP BEACH BAR

Florida Travel + Life magazine says they scoured the state looking for the best beach bar, and they choose PegLeg Pete's on Pensacola Beach ahead of a raft of bars from Destin to Key West. They said, "This old-school beach bar, with its sun-bleached exterior wood and license-plate-covered walls, is a maze of bars, dining rooms, tiki huts and playgrounds for kiddies."

Congrats to the Amberson family for this designation. It's a real feather in PegLeg Pete's pirate hat.

BYTES AND BITS

By Joe Stukey

Q: "What is the cost of a Windows 8 Upgrade?"

A: Windows 8 (Microsoft's next Windows Operating System) still hasn't been released, but Microsoft has hinted that it should be available for this holiday shopping season. Since it isn't released yet, we don't know the price. Typically, a shrink-wrapped copy of Windows is in the $100 range for the Home version and is in the $200 range for the Professional version.

When you purchase a new computer, Microsoft is now including an upgrade coupon so that you can buy Windows 8 for $14.99 when it is released. That offer expires in the early part of 2013. It appears that you can apply that upgrade to any of your computers, but you should first make sure that your computer meets the hardware requirements for Windows 8. Many of the computers from the Windows XP era will not meet those standards. After Windows 8 is released, new computers using Microsoft Windows will have Windows 8, instead of Windows 7, installed at the factory.

In addition to the new software, new hardware is being released to position Microsoft in the market for post-PC products. New products include redesigned keyboards and mice, in addition to new tablet devices. The Wedge mouse will be designed to operate on any surface. The Bluetooth mouse will allow users to scroll to the left/right and up/down with a touch of the finger. The Touch mouse will allow the user to zoom the screen and use "gesture" motions to move through options on the screen.

Special Projects Committee Envisions Future Of Island Infrastructure, Funding

The Special Projects Committee of the Santa Rosa Island Authority is setting a course for the future. Deciding what to do, when and how to pay for it were the topics of discussion at the July 25 meeting.

Chairman Fred Gant told the Committee that oil spill settlement money would be coming to Escambia County, and although the total is uncertain, it could be $113 million, $170 million or more.

In an effort to establish a plan the Escambia County Commissioners have decided to appoint a committee of diverse people representing both public and private sector interests. The committee will likely be made up of seven to nine delegates and will begin work this fall.

"The beach needs a spot on the Committee," said Gant. "Our staff and this Board need to find out how the money can be spent. When the time comes, it is important that we are ready to make a request."

Gant further commented that there are different stipends of money which will be dedicated to different types of projects.

Board Member Vernon Prather noted that with all the different pots of money that there will be many ideas about how the money should be spent. He noted that a great deal of money is sent from the Beach to the County, but an insignificant amount is allocated back to the beach.

"In order for the money to make it to Pensacola Beach, where the oil actually landed, we need to be very involved in this process," said Prather. "County will have paid staff, but the SRIA staff is busy operating this island. We may have to think outside the box and hire someone whose main job is to secure funding for the Island projects."

Board Member Tammy Bohannon concurred with hiring a consultant.

"When everyone is in charge, no one is in charge," she quipped. "It is prudent to put out an RFP to hire a consultant. Someone who can consolidate the information, build consensus and walk the halls at the County. We need someone who is accountable to us."

Chairman Dave Pavlock and elected Member Thomas

Campanella believe it is the job of the SRIA board, assisted by staff, to take on this task.

"It is our responsibility to come up with a list of projects, keep it on the minds of the Commissioners and let them know what's going on," said Pavlock. "We have a good rapport. We can tell our Commissioners how best to invest in the island's future."

Board Member Ed Guernsey felt the investment in a consultant was advisable. He noted that if you look for funding, you must be informed.

"We need someone who can pinpoint the money and how to get it," said Guernsey. "We need to look into this matter more carefully."

SRIA Executive Director Buck Lee, whose varied experience includes stints as a County Commissioner and owning a government consulting firm, told the Board that there is no room to house a new hire, so a consultant would have to work remotely. He requested the Board write up the parameters for this consultant and he would prepare an RFP.

After further discussion regarding the possibility of hiring a consultant, Campanella made a motion tasking Lee with preparation of a document describing the scope of the position. The motion passed unanimously.

Ed Guernsey shared a vision for Pensacola Beach that includes a smooth functioning transportation system with trolleys and ferries, and a waterfront Convention Center to bolster shoulder season commerce. He is in favor of moving the SRIA office to the land near the Fire Station, and using the waterfront parcel which is within walking distance to core area hotels as the area's premier convention center. Additionally, his list of priorities included a more pedestrian friendly beach with improved crosswalks and an iconic walkable boardwalk encircling the core area.

The pedestrian friendly ideas were also on Dave Pavlock's list along with upgrades to residential streets and Casino Beach parking lot, the removal of the sewer treatment plant and construction of a parking garage.

Vernon Prather asked the Committee to return to the list of unfunded projects included in the recently approved budget.

The Special Projects Committee will continue discussion of this item to refine, prioritize and seek funding for the improvement projects. The next meeting will be Wednesday, August 22 at 5 p.m. in the SRIA boardroom, #1 Via de Luna. The meetings are open to the public.

Meet The Blue Angel Pilots During August At Naval Aviation Museum

The Blue Angels will be in Pensacola with practices scheduled for August 8, 9, 10, 14, 15, 21, 22. The Blue Angels perform practice air shows over NAS Pensacola beginning at 8:30 a.m. The schedule is subject to change without notice due to weather conditions, flight operations or other unforeseen events.

Practice lasts for approximately 45 minutes and visitors are encouraged to visit the National Naval Aviation Museum following practice.

In addition, after the August 8, 15, and 22 practices, there will be an autograph session with the pilots inside the Museum. Admission to the Blue Angel practices and autograph session is free and open to the public. No reservations are needed.

The viewing area for the Blue Angels practice is located on the Museum Flight Line. Visitors should park in the Museum parking lot and watch for signs or parking attendants to direct visitors to viewing and parking locations, including special spaces for handicapped visitors. Bleachers are available for seating about 1,000 people. Visitors are encouraged to bring hats, lawn chairs and sunscreen.

Stay on top of the action with the Blue Angels mobile app now available to download from iTunes and Android Market. Proceeds support the Naval Aviation Museum Foundation and the U.S. Navy Blue Angels.

The National Naval Aviation Museum is open daily from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, visit www.NavalAviation-Museum.org.

Mostly NUTS

By Candace Segar

I just got back from a fabulous vacation. While I was on my trip, I started reading an excellent book entitled "No Time To Lose - A Life in Pursuit of Deadly Viruses," by Peter Piot. Dr. Piot is a clinical microbiologist and his first-hand account of chasing, isolating and eliminating (if possible) deadly bacterial viruses is a compelling read. Normally I try to be a little more upbeat in my writing, but this book coupled with several articles I read gives me reason to pause and think. What are we doing to ourselves as a species? Are we breeding ourselves out of existence?

The first set of articles addresses hunger, thirst and overcrowding. One article discussed building smarter cities with "hyper-efficient housing." The average apartment size would be 300 square feet. I personally don't want to live in a 300 square foot space.

Two more articles focused on food and seeds.

The startling fact was that banks are very much involved in global future markets. Why is that the case?

There were more articles on

Night Sky Provides Twinklers Performance Stage

The Escambia Amateur Astronomy Club offers a spectacular show courtesy of their volunteers and Mother Nature. The telescopes will be set up at Casino Beach, Friday and Saturday, August 24-25 at dusk, weather permitting.

"Members telescopes and binoculars will be set up for views of the Moon, planets and other celestial objects," said Dewey Barker, the club's publicity chairman. "We are also available to come to your church, organization or scout meeting. We love to show you what's up there."

For more information, contact Barker after 4 p.m. at 850-450-7767 or visit www.eaaa.net.

Every article was thoughtfully researched and written. They were all based on the Earth's population reaching 9 billion people in approximately 40 years.

This brings me back to my vacation. There were too many people. It was just bumper to bumper people and tempers did flare. My family and I did everything early in the morning to alleviate this problem and had a wonderful time as a result of careful planning.

However, this in no way takes care of the future problem with just day to day living as the population approaches the 9 billion mark. My solution is a simple one, albeit very controversial. The above mentioned articles discussed band-aid fixes. We have to get to the root cause and correct it. Limit population growth worldwide and educate, educate, educate.

High technology breeds better paying jobs. It requires a highly educated global work force. Productive people are usually happier, more content and have a sense of accomplishment in providing goods and services that are highly beneficial.

It is never fun to go to the root cause of any outstanding problem or disaster. But this is one root cause that needs to be addressed.

A local contingent of dignitaries, including Beach Realtor Nan Harper, visited Spain during July. Part of their mission was creating cross generational friendships. Mission accomplished! Here is Don Jose de Galvez, president of the Association of Bernardo de Galvez in Macharaviaya, with Abigail Weeks, descendent of the De La Rua family. Harper noted that Don Jose, who led the army in the re-enactment of the Battle of Pensacola, looks very much like his ancestor Bernardo de Galvez.

your horoscope for next week

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Relationships continue to thrive, but watch for any telltale signs of potential problems. Take needed action now to set things straight before they become troublesome later.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your powers of persuasion, backed up, of course, by your considerable expertise, help you establish your case even to the most dubious decision-makers in your workplace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might still be a bit reluctant to face up to some less-than-pleasant realities. But the sooner you accept the facts, the sooner you can set about making some needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Expect to make adjustments, even when things seem locked up and ready to go. But cheer up: At least one change could lead to something you've been hoping for.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The success of a recent project should do a lot to boost your self-confidence. You might want to start now to check out ways to make that long-deferred bigger and bolder move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Ease up on the pressure you might be putting on the new person in your life. It takes time for a budding relationship to blossom. Show more patience and understanding.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have lots of inner strength in reserve. Use some of it to resist intimidation from those who might try to impose on your good nature for their own reasons.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The good news is that your on-the-job status is improving. The one cautionary note, however, involves a personal situation you might have been ignoring for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Congratulations. Once again, your sharp Sagittarian "horse sense" helps you work through a complicated situation that would leave most people confused.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Plan on indulging yourself in some well-earned good times through much of the week. Then be prepared to face some thought-provoking issues by the 18th.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Positive factors continue to dominate following a recent change in both your professional and personal lives. Expect to make contact with someone from your past.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Workplace stability allows you to continue making progress on your projects. But don't ignore your personal life. Spend more quality time with those special folks.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the gift for making people feel special. Maybe because you know how special you are.

ECUA New Services Include Disposal Of The Big Stuff

The Emerald Coast Utilities Authority (ECUA) will provide all residential sanitation customers new and improved pick-up services.

The weekly bulky waste collection service includes pick-up of furniture and other household items that are too large to fit in the automated can for disposal. Gary Dean, ECUA Sanitation Collection manager says, "The unique feature of these improvements is customers will no longer have to call to schedule the pick-up. They will simply place their items at the curb, before 5:30 a.m., on their regular collection day. It's just that simple."

It's important to note, any materials remaining in the right-of-way on the regular collection day may be mistaken for a bulk waste item. Customers are reminded to not place items that are not intended for disposal in the collection area to avoid inadvertent pick-ups.

Bulky Waste Program Guidelines

Items accepted are: Furniture, such as: Couch, Mattress, Desk, Chairs, Dresser; Rugs and carpets; Vacuum Cleaners; Bicycles; Bags of Clothes; Grills; and Toilets.

For additional information call ECUA Customer Service at 476-0480, or visit www.ecua.fl.gov.

There's An App For That

A free app has been introduced by the Red Cross. "Hurricane" will allow you to monitor conditions in your area or where your loved ones are, prepare your family and home, find open shelters and let others know are safe even if the power is out.

Download the app in the iTunes or Google Play app stores.

TURTLE TRAX

By DJ Zemenick

The first sea turtle hatchlings of our 2012 season have finally emerged!

The big countdown to the first hatch began on July 19, the approximate "due date" for nests that were laid at the end of May. But, as we suspected, the amount of rain we received this summer appears to be slowing down the incubation process.

When nests near their hatch date, they are placed on high alert and monitored closely for sounds of tiny flippers digging their way to the surface. Anticipation increases among the patrollers each day. It was the fourth week of July when we began to hear sporadic scratching from nests in three of our four patrol areas, but it was frustrating when nests which were active during one check would be quiet as a beach mouse the next.

On July 27, it was PK5231 in the Johnson Beach area of Gulf Islands National Seashore

(Perdido Key) that claimed the distinction of emerging first this year. There were 101 loggerhead hatchlings which made their way into the Gulf of Mexico under the watchful eye of Sea Turtle Patrol volunteer Jay Bonanno, 65 days after the nest was laid.

Bonanno arrived at PK 5231 around 6:45 Friday evening with his daughter Sophia, an experienced nest sitter, and her friend, Jamie, who was new to the process. They were greeted by one tiny hatchling partially emerged from the nest and staring up at them. Jay quickly surveyed the area around the nest for hatchling tracks which would have alerted him if some had already exited. That would have necessitated a search to find them before they became victims of predators such as ghost crabs or sea gulls. Thankfully there were no visible tracks around the nest and no sign of predation, so they settled back to wait for hatchlings to emerge.

The exposed hatchling and others near the surface of PK5231 began to be pushed up by the ones underneath, yet they remained lethargic. Two finally exited the nest and headed into the Gulf around 7:30 p.m. The rest remained in the nest, some fully emerged and some with their heads peeping above the surface, for about 30 - 45 minutes with very little movement. At 8:10 p.m., they were energized enough for the grand push and there was a mass exodus of the hatchlings from the nest.

With so many hatchlings emerging at once and the fact that the nest was set back quite a distance from the Gulf, Jay became concerned about keeping track of the hatchlings, getting an accurate count, and most importantly making sure they made it safely into the Gulf. He made the decision to gather the hatchlings and put them in the turtle box with the bottom covered in sand from the nest. Once all the tiny loggerheads had emerged and been collected, they were taken within 50 feet of the Gulf and released 10 at a time.

Due to the bright moon and lack of light pollution in the area, there was no disorientation during the hatchlings' march to the water. By 9:10 p.m. all hatchlings had completed the first part of their journey and entered the Gulf of Mexico.

One last note for PK5231: In the twelve years Jay has been active with the sea turtle program, it was the earliest time of day any of his nests have ever emerged.

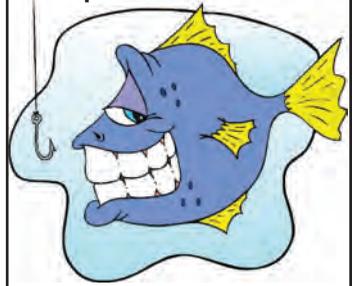

Until next time, Lights Out!

Garrett Chandler of Pensacola went flying down the waterslide with style at the Pensacola Beach Innerlight Grand Opening July 28. The young man will be in the sixth grade at East Hill Christian this fall.

There were activities all day long hosted at no charge for customers and friends who gathered at the Pensacola Beach Boulevard location. Innerlight owners also operate the Pensacola Beach Marina, home to some of the Beach's charter boat and dolphin cruise boats.

FISHING SISTERS!

Addison and Alyssa Wyatt of Pace were part of the kid's fishing fun at the Innerlight and Pensacola Beach Marina Grand Opening July 28. The girls were reeling in pin-fish and croakers with ease. Their brother, who completes the set of triplets, was busy on the waterslide. The three siblings will enter sixth grade this fall.

Innerlight and Pensacola Beach Marina had adult volunteers to teach the children how to bait, catch and enjoy fishing. The event was hosted at no charge, compliments of Innerlight.

Saltwater Rick appointed lady angler Terri McKamey to write his column this week.

Well, we're in the heat of summer now - hot, sultry days, always a chance of an afternoon storm. We're also in that time of year when you can catch almost anything.

Plenty of Amberjack and Grouper being caught offshore; still plenty of Red Snapper, too. Unfortunately, you've got to release those. Maybe we'll be have the Red Snapper season open back up in the fall. Guess we can count ourselves as lucky for the extra six days we got.

Get your King Mackerel fishing on at the Pier. The number to beat is 49.2 pounds. September 2 is just around the corner and that's when they'll be awarding the prize for top King.

Early morning and late afternoon is the time to be fishing. The grass flats will nab you Specs, Redfish and Flounder. Surf fishing, well, you can just about take your choice. Spanish and King Mackerel, Jacks, Ladyfish, Redfish, Flounder, Bluefish, Sharks and Pompano. This is how lucky we are to have such a diverse fishery.

For those of you with a net, I saw all kinds of huge schools of Mullet at Perdido Key the other morning. I have a great recipe for Smoked Mullet. Stop by and see me at the Dock and I'll share.

Don't forget to take precautions in this hot weather - plenty of water to stay hydrated and plenty of sunscreen.

A special shout out to the Lady Anglers. The Shaggy's Fishing Team won the Mississippi Big Game Fishing Club Ladies Tournament, July 19-22. Pensacola Beach's Laura Ladner tagged a blue marlin! She said, "It was an incredible experience."

They fished out of the Wharf in Orange Beach. It was the same weekend as the Pensacola Ladies tournament.

With less than 3 hours of fishing time left, the Shaggy's Ladies Fishing Team rallied to win Top Boat in the Mississippi Big Game Fishing Club Ladies Tournament. On board the "Cheeseburger," Jane Covington caught and released a White Marlin and Laura Ladner caught and released a Blue Marlin to win the tournament. The team won Tournament Champ, #2 Angler, #1 and #3 Wahoo.

Congratulations to the anglers Jane Covington Mattina, Camille Covington, Liz Covington, Laura Ladner and Taylor Easterling. And, to the guys who helped make it happen: Rimmer Covington, Ryan Easterling, Jacob Mattina and Ron Ladner.

The winning lady angler at the Pensacola Fishing Rodeo, July 28-29 was Meloney Byrd who brought a 50.34 pound King Mackerel to the scales at Flounder's. It won the Ladies division and earned second place among all the King Mackerel. Congrats, Meloney.

Long, lazy summer days - what are you waiting for? Grab a kid and go fishing!

Pensacola Fishing Rodeo Tournament Director Marc Cabassa prepares to announce the weight of a King Mackerel being calculated at Flounder's Beach, July 29. The event had something for everyone - anglers as young as five to seasoned fishermen bringing fifty pound Mackerel to the scales.

Pensacola's Hunter Powers, 5, weighed-in a Spanish Mackerel and a Ladyfish at the Pensacola Fishing Rodeo at Flounder's Beach, July 29. His Ladyfish earned second place in the ten and under Junior Angler division.
