Schools won't pay storm tab

ISAAC BABCOCK
The Voice

Some city officials are fuming after the Seminole County School Board voted to stop paying its stormwater bills.

The decision came during a School Board meeting Feb. 28, when the board voted to cease paying its bills to cities in the county. A week before, School Board Chairwoman Tina Calderone and Superintendent Bill Vogel placed a series of phone calls to mayors and city managers to notify them of the pending decision.

Despite a week's notice, the decision was a surprise, said Steven Henken, a city councilman in Oviedo, one of the affected cities. "All we got is 'We're not going to pay the stormwater fee anymore,'" Henken said.

The announcement came less than a week after the board announced it would not be closing two schools in the coming year, to the jubilation of local parents. But the board did not announce how it planned to cover all the budget gaps it needed to close.

Councilman Stephen Schenk said that the board is on the hook

Keeping city events alive

While not big moneymakers, Winter Springs and Oviedo events strengthen community, officials say

ALLISON OLCSEVAY
The Voice

Winter Springs is bringing back its annual Spring Family Festival this year in a new incarnation after a three-year hiatus.

The free event, once held in Central Winds Park, will now move to the Winter Springs Town Center and will feature live bands, local vendors, crafts and activities.

The city already sponsors three other seasonal events — the Celebration of Freedom on July 4, Hometown Harvest in October and Winter Wonderland in December.

"It's only natural to add a fourth event to add balance and to encourage residents to visit the Town Center," said Brian Dunigan, Winter Springs program and events coordinator.

In a tight economy it is difficult for smaller cities such as Winter Springs and Oviedo to keep their events on the budget, let alone add one back to the schedule.

Winter Springs has found its solution by turning to local sponsors for event funding, allowing them to expand their offerings while keeping their budget neutral.

"There is a lot of planning and careful thought put into these events," Dunigan said. "As a city we see the value to our residents."

Despite some setbacks along the way, such as having to cancel the Fourth of July celebration in 2008, Winter Springs has kept all their city-run events going throughout the recession.

The canceling of the Fourth of July event was a difficult choice for the City Commission City Manager Kevin Smith said.

"I wasn't in on the decision at the time," he said. "But I know it was really disappointing that they weren't able to make it happen."

"It was extremely important to bring it back because people just love the fireworks," Smith

The inaugural Spring Family Festival is at the Winter Springs Town Center from 5 to 9 p.m. on Saturday, March 10. The free event will feature live entertainment for the entire family and vendors. There will also be a kids' area with great games for kids of all ages.

said. "We've tried since then to make all of the events self-sustaining."

In order to do this, the city seeks out sponsors willing to fund the four events as a package, rather than individually. They also work with event vendors to get the best prices for things such as lighting, stages and sound equipment.

"Like anyone else on a budget, we are looking for the best prices," Smith said.

The Fourth of July event gets a budgetary boost by being the last event of the fiscal year as well.

"It helps if we can be up a little going into July 4. This way the excess funds [in the event budget] can go into this event," Dunigan said.

Other events that take place in Winter Springs, like the popular Central Florida Scottish Highland Games in January and the Winter Springs Festival of the Arts in October, are funded through outside organizers. They rent the facilities and pay the city for its police support for the duration of the events. In this way the city incurs no cost to host these weekend festivals.

Oviedo faces similar challenges

Like Winter Springs, Oviedo has also faced and overcome challenges to their community events calendar.

A few years ago, Oviedo had to give up its Oktoberfest event because it wasn't competing as well against other similar events.

"We replaced it with our Halloween Carnival of Screams, featuring a haunted house, and it's doing much better," Oviedo Recreation Superintendent David Burgoon said.

Oviedo is also working toward a self-sufficient event schedule where each event would pay for itself.

"All the events are in the budget, but we do rely on sponsors and donations," Burgoon said. "We don't get it all back but we got close this past Halloween; we got back 85 percent of our costs."

Other events rely heavily on donated services and equipment.

If you look to the skies over Oviedo in April you might see an unusual sight — marshmallows by the thousands falling from a helicopter gently circling above.

For the third year running, Oviedo has swapped the traditional Easter egg hunt for something a little different — The Marshmallow Drop is April 7 this year. Kids collect the softly falling, sugary blobs and trade them in for the real goods — candy baskets.

This event would not happen without the help of a donated helicopter to drop the fluffy stuff.

"We're still working on one for this year, if anybody wants to help out," Burgoon said.

Sometimes getting creative is what it takes to make these city traditions happen. By asking sponsors to donate their resources, communities such as Oviedo and Winter Springs are able to keep the good times rolling even if times are a little tight.

"It's hard to put a cost to these events — they make the community what it is," Burgoon said. "They bring the community together; it's part of our culture and history."

THIS WEEK in history

March 13, 1942 —

The United States Army begins training dogs for the new War Dog Program, or "K-9 Corps." Perhaps the most famous war dog was Rin Tin Tin, an abandoned puppy of German war dogs found in France in 1918 and taken to the United States, where he made his film debut in the 1922 silent film "The Man From Hell's River."

for about $70,000 per year in stormwater fees from Oviedo, which would not be paid. Deputy Superintendent George Kosmac said that number is closer to $32,000, and that the board could save $284,000 total annually between all the stormwater bills the board would stop paying.

Considering how rapidly the decision was made, Schenck said he was perplexed about how the board members reacted when informed of the city's displeasure with the sudden decision.

"All the sudden they're like 'Oh, you have a problem with that?'" Schenck said.

Partnership problems

Mayor Dominic Persampiere said that he was bothered that after the city had cut the school board a break on paying certain other fees, that it would expect the city to flip the bill for the stormwater.

"I don't appreciate the fact that we help them so much and they turn around and do this," Persampiere said. "When they needed a gym floor for Jackson Heights [Middle School] and were $40,000 short, we wrote a check."

But Kosmac contended that the school board helps cities through allowing them to use school facilities, and use school electricity and water, for their activities.

"What we try to do on our joint facilities is we try to work together on those, and offset their investment by not charging the city electricity for events they have there," Kosmac said. "You can imagine the air conditioners how expensive they are to run."

Sharing costs brings up another issue between the cities and the school board. Persampiere said that the school board refusing to pay its stormwater bill could have an impact on others.

"When you have a system that supports the well being of the community that they are a part of and contribute to, then they have to pay their fair share or else others end up paying more," Persampiere said. "We'd end up subsidizing what they have to pay."

Kosmac contend that the school board already manages most of its own stormwater, with nearly all of the county's schools having retention ponds for rainwater runoff.

"We've got ponds on all but two of our campuses," Kosmac said. "All 58 or 59 other campuses really have stormwater ponds already. We feel somewhat justified in not having to pay those."

Mayor questions motives

Winter Springs Mayor Charles Lacey said he disagrees.

"We've got six schools and the bus depot on our property, and there's significant runoff there," Lacey said. "When that water goes into the city's system, the city has to find a way to get that water into Lake Jesup."

Vogel met with the Oviedo City Council on March 5 to discuss how they would move forward. Lacey said he also plans to meet with the board in a few weeks.

If the situation goes to the courts, the board may have precedent to fall back on. A Jan. 18 Florida District Court ruling against the city of Key West allowed Florida Keys Community College to stop paying its stormwater bills legally. The majority of the state's 67 school boards do not pay stormwater fees. With the recent court ruling, Vogel said he did not think the Seminole County School Board should have to either.

Seminole County's school board says most of its facilities handle stormwater.

"When we got that ruling and saw what our budget situation was, we had school closings on the agenda, we had to look at this as a way of reducing our budget," Vogel said.

Lacey said that Key West's decision should have no bearing on how Seminole County's stormwater management is handled.

"We believe it's not comparable to our situation here," Lacey said. "Our situation is significantly different than what led to the decision in Key West."

Rebuilding a bridge

At the March 5 City Council meeting in Oviedo, Calderone and Vogel spoke with the council to try to build understanding about the situation that led to the School Board's decision.

Calderone said that she wished the board would have been able to give the city more notice.

"It would be great to be able to give you five years notice for certain things, but just as recently as two years ago, the state Legislature in the middle of the school year with zero notice cut our budget by $15 million, just because they can," Calderone said.

With strangled funding causing the board to cut back, Calderone said the board made the decision not to seek back pay from the cities because they understood that budgets are all tight.

"We chose to take the high road and not come after the city saying we want all the money back that we've been paying for these fees," she said.

Lacey said that regardless of the board's situation, Winter Springs would continue to bill the board. That's something Calderone said has precedent in Pinellas County already, but that the school board there is not obligated to pay it.

"We still intend to levy those fees," Lacey said. "We'll continue to send a bill every month whether the school intends to pay them or not."

Productivity food gardening

I am not jealous or in a competition with any of my gardening compatriots. In an occupation as rewarding as food gardening, the more the merrier. When a neophyte has glaring success entertaining a crop with which I struggle, my practiced tact kicks in to not blurt out axioms related to "beginner's luck". This lack of accumulated pests and diseases in a recently developed plot encourages the newbie to continue his endeavors, honing his skills for when troubles arrive. And after a short apprenticeship, the now-experienced gardener can teach me a trick or two.

Starting with Mel Bartholomew's book "Square Foot Gardening" and then graduating to John Jeavon's tome "How to Grow More Vegetables..." is the beacon of a maturing dedication. In the early stages, simply germinating seeds is enough to feed the soul when looking for any success.

Tom Carey
From my garden to yours

My original goal was to merely consume something from the garden on a daily basis. After a couple of growing seasons, expectations to assuage the rumbly tummy emanate from the household as attention is drawn away from other honey-do projects. Time to submit results more substantial than complimenting a bagged-salad mix with a few homegrown nasturtium (edible) flowers.

Productivity from the garden as a measure of quantity will ultimately be derived from available growing space cultivated over time. A family's farm of a single growing bed 4 feet on a side produces enough green beans for a couple of meals, to the exclusion of most other crops. And then the whole garden needs to be started over from scratch. Time to dig up the grass, dedicate a germination space, rededicate the irrigation system and free up hours in a hectic schedule. Linking the foursquare plots into a lengthy growing bed is what we're talking about. When enough plants are germinating, surviving, flowering and fruiting all at the same time, produce purchases at the grocery will become a memory of the past. Finally, a managed risk resulting in a return on our own investment!

Properly choosing crops, knowing that we have the luxury of spatial quantity, produces a quality all its own. Selecting to grow stalwart green scallion onions that produce year-round rations requires minimal space and they are universally consumed. Allow room for promised producers such as collard greens, kohlrabi, turnips and radishes to tender repetitive provisions. Harvest, repatriate the soil and customarily grow what will be eaten. Yes, plant those beans again and again. Once the routine of dependably feeding the family is achieved, you'll find an esteem unbeknownst to most that is almost as fulfilling as the food that we eat.

March brings farm-fresh fun

Between the CELERY Stalks By Janet Foley

March is here! Daylight saving time will arrive on the 11th of this month. Be aware, we don't want you to be late for church since it is a Sunday. One cannot sleep late that day, for there are too many activities going on in our community.

I was at the Oviedo Historical Society's Farmer's Market last Saturday, and boy is that the place to be. I think half of Oviedo was there. It is a great gathering for our community to get familiar with our Lawton house and its history, plus buying goodies and having a great socializing with your friends.

Taste the fruits of our labor

Did you get your ticket for the Oviedo Woman's Club's annual Tasting Luncheon, "Fruits of our Labor"? Well it is coming up from 11 to 1 p.m. on Wednesday, March 14, at their clubhouse, 414 King St., between the high school and the Methodist church. We will have tickets for sale $7 each and cookbooks at the door for $5. We still have lots of tickets left that can be purchased from any club member. The woman's club always has great food and fun; so we'll see you there.

Something new

Anyone interested in attending a tour of the Vietnam War Museum in Chuluota on Sunday, March 11, after the First United Methodist Church's 11 a.m. service may contact Liz Whitley at lnwhitley@cs.com or call 407-721-2055. A group of culinary students will prepare a salad, or hot dogs and hamburgers for a cost of $6-7. The proceeds will go to the War Museum.

St. Patrick's Day fun

On Saturday, March 17, the American Cancer Society Relay for Life's All Around Geneva Team will host St. Patrick's Day Kids Fun Day. There will be live music, crafts, food, a chicken poop lottery, bounce house, themed and donut eating contests from noon to 6 p.m. at the Jolly Gator Fish Camp, 4650 E. State Road 46, in Geneva. Some of the kids' fun activities will benefit the First United Methodist Church daycare for improvements to its facility. There will be chance drawings, 50/50 drawings and a small fee for activities. No charge for the bounce house. Do come on out and enjoy the festivities. For more information call, 407-402-3993 or email mconsolato@bellsouth.net.

Also on Saturday, March 17, the Ministry of the Forgotten Ones, will be hosting a St. Patrick's Day Dinner Dance from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Oviedo Memorial Building, 38 S. Central Ave. There will be games, a raffle, music and a dinner of corned beef, cabbage, desserts and beverages. Tickets cost $10 for adults and $6 for children. All proceeds will benefit the Shiloh Ranch. For more information, call the Vine Outreach Thrift Store at 407-221-2000 and please ask for Sami.

Community caring

We wonder if this will be the last cold snap of this season as last weekend's front plunged temperatures from 90 degrees into the 40s. Still the pale green, tender leaves and vibrant azaleas will not be denied. In fact, just this week I saw flocks of robins flitting around the Geneva Post Office.

Community finds bargains

I hope you enjoyed all the bargains last weekend in and around Geneva. Private homes, churches and the Geneva Historical and Genealogical Society sponsored community garage and yard sales that were full of great finds. We can't say enough about the helpfulness of the Scout troops with parking and unloading, and we were happy to help support the fundraising efforts for the Eagle Scout project - we loved those nut rolls and snickerdoodles! It was so nice to see families manning their booths, kids running about with painted faces and all the bustling activity on the front porch of the Community Center. We hope everyone had a great day and even returned home with some unexpected treasures.

Resilience from South to Midwest

Our prayers and thoughts go out to the communities from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes that were devastated by the line of tornadoes last week. Indiana Governor Mitch Daniels described the 'resilient spirit' of the residents of his state who began rebuilding even before FEMA arrived. We can barely understand the images of Henryville, Ind. where the small community was flattened, a school bus embedded in a cafe, vehicles and homes shredded and mangled, and houses lying in ruin. Pray for these communities and send whatever support you can as they bury their dead, heal their injuries, replant their fields and ultimately rebuild their lives.

Community cares for its own

Geneva's organizations and churches care for those in need in the community, whether they are official members of the brick and mortar organizations or not. It is what true ministry is all about.

Our churches provide spiritual strength and education through services and Sunday school, all types of daycare and activities for teens and seniors. They provide sustenance for the body and spirit. For example we love the Wednesday night suppers at the First United Methodist church of Geneva. These are fun get-togethers centered on homemade food that is only $5. You can sit and eat with folks or take it with you between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sometimes there's even a little music. Did you also know they hold a covered dish lunch the first Sunday of each month?

Make sure you pay a visit to the Thrift House & Boutique where you'll find clothes, home furnishings, jewelry, toys and so much more. Contact the church for more information at geneva-fumc@att.net or 407-349-9596. It's no wonder this church has been ministering for 125 years.

Plan to attend Spotlight Theatre in Geneva

Geneva is always looking for new traditions, and a few months ago we were fortunate to connect with the Spotlight Theatre during the holidays. Now we are so lucky to have them return this month with a fantastic new production of "The Boy Friend" from March 16-18, at the RHC.

Support local 4H

It's time for the Central Florida Fair and our local 4-H groups will be showcasing swine and livestock at 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday evenings, with an animal auction on Sunday night.

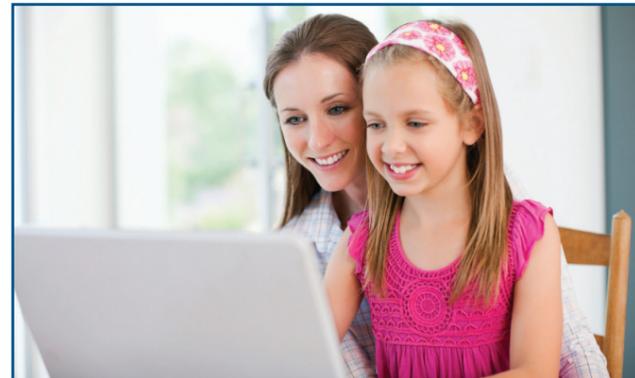

Remember we turn the clocks forward Saturday evening into Sunday morning, so there will be more light Sunday night. We understand that you should receive free general admission on Saturday if you wear a green sticker or badge that says "I Love 4-H". "A Nation's strength lies in the well-being of its people. The Social Security program plays an important part in providing for families, children and older persons in time of stress, but it cannot remain static. Changes in our population, in our working habits, and in our standard of living require constant revision."

- June 30, 1961
John F. Kennedy

Based on the current debt situation in the United States, many pre- and post-retirees have become concerned about their Social Security benefit. Receiving that continuous income stream is the foundation of a retirement income plan. To make sure that you maximize your Social Security benefit, it is important to know the answers to these questions.

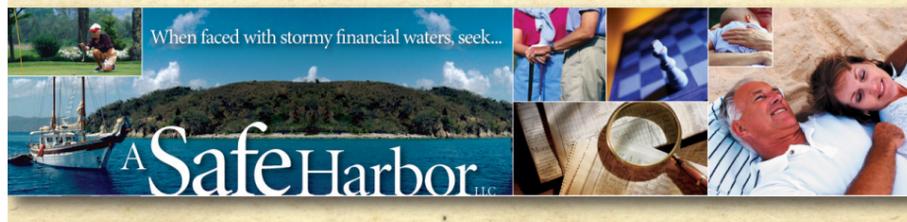

- How much Social Security am I going to receive?
- When should I start receiving my benefit?
- What are my spousal planning options?
- Is there an impact on my Social Security if I continue working during retirement?
- How is my Social Security benefit taxed?

A century of St. Luke's

ALLISON OLCSVAY
TheVoice

Just off the road in a swirl of dust from nearby construction, sits a one-room church, long outgrown by its congregation. All around are remnants of the past — stones and pillars marking the passing of time and family.

The bustling community of believers that make up St. Luke's Lutheran Church in Oviedo grew from that humble 25-seat chapel tucked under the oaks. On Sunday, March 11, they will celebrate their 100-year anniversary with a day of festivities.

Founded on "hard work and the faithful vision of its members," said Joshua Jones, the church's communications director. St. Luke's has grown to nearly a thousand members, and includes numerous outreach missions throughout the community.

Back in 1911, a group of Lutheran farmers from Ohio resolved to bring their families to Florida to create a better environment in which to raise their children.

By the end of the year, they had purchased 1200 acres near the village of Oviedo and made plans to relocate.

Shortly after their arrival, a group of men from the settlement met on March 17, 1912, and organized the church that would become St. Luke's.

They chose a site and together erected the simple clapboard building that still stands today. It was a place to come together, worship, marry and bury their dead, a place that would help shape the community over the years to come.

ST. LUKE'S

Despite having no full-time pastor for the first 22 years, members and visiting pastors kept the little flock together as a community grew around them.

Twice over the years, the congregation outgrew its home and so they built larger, more-modern facilities, but the members never forgot their heritage.

As the new buildings came into use, they found new purposes for the old, keeping them open as a functioning part of the church's history. The old brick sanctuary was even incorporated into the new sanctuary, built in 1993, keeping the original stained glass windows in place.

This sense of continuation is important in a church so deeply rooted in the community, church officials say.

A living history

Emma Chapman is living proof of that heritage.

Her great-great-grandfather, Andrew Duda, was one of the founding members of the church.

When St. Luke's started a school in the original church building in 1947, her grandfather, or "Poppa" as she knows him, was one of five in the first graduating class.

Her mom also attended the school.

Now, it's Emma's turn. She and many of her cousins currently attend St. Luke's, making them the fifth generation.

"It's great to go to school here, where I can learn about and talk about Jesus," she said. "I couldn't do that in other schools."

St. Luke's Lutheran School now has more than 700 students, 70 teachers and occupies a state-of-the-art school building on the church grounds.

It sounds like a lot for just a few dedicated families to have begun, but there is much more to the work this faith community has accomplished in the past 100 years.

In addition to the school, in 1948 St. Luke's added its Lutheran Haven, a home for orphans and the elderly, which still functions today as a retirement/assisted living community.

Within sight of Lutheran Haven, little ones play on the playground of the preschool center that has been part of the church since its early days.

This type of close-connectness between the generations seems integral to the well being of the church and the work that it does.

Working with local organizations such as HOPE Helps, The Christian Sharing Center, Share the Care and other outreach programs, helps the church to fulfill one of its core values, to "make Christ known throughout our community and the world."

One way the church does this is through the Shepherd's Hope

St. Luke's Lutheran Church of Oviedo 100th Anniversary Celebration kicks off at the church Sunday, March 11, with services at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m., followed by a full day of festivities that are open to the public.

At noon, the barbecue begins with free food from Bubbalou's. From noon to 3 p.m. there will be games and bounce houses for the kids, as well as local entertainment and presentations to seven local charities that St. Luke's partners with.

At 3 p.m. the church bell will ring 100 times accompanied by the school children singing "Happy Birthday." Then the real fun begins with cupcakes and ice cream for everyone.

Health Care facility, established on the campus in December 2002. Shepherd's Hope is a Central Florida nonprofit that provides health care services to the uninsured.

Including the St. Luke's location there are now nine centers throughout Central Florida.

"This is a wonderful partnership that really benefits the community," said Shari Vander Wiede, vice president of communications and development with Shepherd's Hope. "It's one we look forward to continuing for a long time."

That shouldn't be a problem for St. Luke's, whose long history has proven that the church is here to stay.

Lions, Huskies fall

Both teams' state championship runs cut short

The Voice

After hustling their way to the boys basketball state championship for the first time in team history, the Hagerty Huskies' Cinderella season finally came to an end at the Lakeland Center on March 3.

The Huskies (26-8) had spent the postseason shocking opponents on the regional and state ladders, trouncing Flagler Palm Coast in the first round, then squeaking by in three straight narrow victories to find their way into the state championship game against Hialeah Gardens (30-5).

Hialeah Gardens capitalized on rebounds and defense to hold back the Huskies while running away with the win, controlling the game throughout. For the Huskies, who finished the season ranked No. 17 in the state, a strong season fell just short, 63-46.

Lions lose

The Oviedo Lions (20-11) had also made a run of it, through a series of nail-biters that ended in scoring gaps of less than five points. Against Oak Ridge (20-11), the Lions had another close one on their hands.

A game that went back and forth ended up coming down to the final seconds and the final possession of the game as the Pioneers held on for a 62-61 win.

Knights go out in style

The Voice

It was a night full of cheers for A.J. Rompza and P.J. Gaynor. UCF's only two senior players made their final home game one worthy of taking a bow, as the Knights sank UAB 71-63 while simultaneously climbing into the fourth slot in Conference USA.

The win gave the Knights a narrow lead over UAB in the conference standings, enough to secure a bye in the first round of the C-USA championships.

For Rompza, the Knights' emotional leader over the course of the last three seasons, the win gave fans a final look at a stellar career on the court, collecting a double-double with 11 points and 10 assists, adding four rebounds, two steals and even a blocked shot in 38 minutes on the floor. Those two steals put the Knights' energetic guard in second place all-time for steals in UCF history.

For Gaynor, a spot on the starting lineup translated into six points — including a perfect performance from the free throw line — one rebound, one block and one turnover.

Early in the game the Knights may have been more perfect on offense than they had been all year, Keith Clanton scored 22 points in the Knights' final regular season game, which they won over UAB on March 3. Now UCF is postseason bound.

drilling shot after shot in a rain of 3-pointers that never touched the rim. Even under pressure, the Knights never buckled, with Rompza falling to the ground as he hit a seemingly impossible triple from the sideline, and Marcus Jordan getting a blind feed and turning it into an effortless three of his own.

That massive first half may have been the best shooting the Knights have seen all season, with 57.7 percent accuracy overall and 58.8 percent from 3-point land. Keith Clanton led the way, hitting seven of nine shots overall for 22 points, adding six rebounds. Marcus Jordan and Isaiah Sykes were both on their A-game, shooting 16 and 15 points respectively.

The game, and the ceremony behind it, may have been an emotional high point for Rompza, who had transitioned into a high-energy team leader early on, and had been a fan favorite for the entirety of his career on the floor. In a ceremony before the game, he was moved to tears by fans' applause.

Now he'll hope to move the Knights deep into the postseason, possibly starting with the team the Knights just defeated. The Knights (21-9, 10-6) will have to defeat either UAB (14-15, 9-7) or Tulane (15-15, 3-13) to move on to the next round of the C-USA championship.

They tip off in the quarterfinal round as the fourth seed, starting at 10 p.m. Thursday at press time in Memphis. With a win, they could be facing top seed Memphis in the next round.

THIS WEEK in political history

March 10, 1902 —

In the case of Edison v. American Mutoscope Company, the U.S. Court of Appeals rules that despite his claims, Thomas Edison did not invent the movie camera. The court did, however, admit that Edison invented the sprocket system that moved perforated film through the movie camera.

EMPLOYMENT

Ask Sandi

Sending the right signals

What message are you sending out to potential employers? Do you know?

You hear me say over and over again every contact matters. From the presentation of your resume to the acceptance of an offer, you are judged on what you say and do when you are job searching.

When people meet you, what is their impression? Are you warm and friendly? Do you chat with the receptionist and others around you while you wait for an interview?

Do you complain about your last employer when you interview?

Do you look the interviewer in the eye and shake their hand firmly? Do you say "what up" and give the fist bump? If you do, don't ever do it again... please.

Do you dress for an interview, a nightclub, or a day out at the mall? Do you polish your toenails if you wear open-toed shoes? Is it fresh or scraped off and cracked? Do you limit your interview answers to answering the question or do you go off on tangents? Do you ask questions at the end? Do you ask for the job and say thank you?

Why am I asking all of these questions? Because time and again, I get feedback from interviewers who share stories of what people did in the interviews or in other contact. The more you become aware of your behaviors and how people see you, the more you can fix things that may be sabotaging your chances of getting hired.

Do you have any stories of bad interviewers you would like to share? Please contact me at the information below.

Put a spring in your step this month with Walk MS: Orlando

With the coming of spring, we all look forward to enjoying the outdoors — the mild, but sunny weather, the aroma of blossoming flowers and green all around us.

Spring is also an opportune time to fine-tune our bodies after a sedentary winter and holiday feasting. What better way to get in shape and enjoy the new season than to participate in the plethora of outdoor charity walks available every spring to help those in our community who are in need?

One such walk is in our backyard — Walk MS: Orlando to benefit the Mid Florida Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis (MS) Society, is 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 10, at Lake Eola at Thornton Park. Walk MS is one of the National MS Society's signature fundraising events, drawing hundreds of thousands of participants each year to nearly 600 sites throughout the United States. The family-friendly event includes 1- and 2.34-mile routes and is open to anyone — families, teams or individuals.

Participants in Walk MS: Orlando help raise funds for close to 73,000 people lo-

When gearing up to participate in a walk, keep in mind these healthful tips from physical therapist, Patty Bobryk, at MS Comprehensive Care Center of Central Florida.

- Look for opportunities to be more active throughout your day. Take the stairs instead of the elevator. Park at the far end of the parking lot. Walk the dog. Small changes will add up.
- Drink plenty of water. Hydrate before, during and after your workout. A dehydrated body is unable to cool itself, which can cause heat exhaustion or heat stroke. It can also cause muscle fatigue. To get the most of your walk, stay well hydrated.
- Stretch before and after your walk. Stretching before you exercise warms up your body and helps prevent injuries. Slow walking or stretching after you walk allows your heart rate and blood pressure to return to pre-exercise levels.

cally who are affected by this chronic disease, offering support services including educational programs, self-help groups, research, medical equipment and more. MS attacks the central nervous system, which is made up of the brain, spinal cord and optic nerves.

Walk MS is our rallying point to help raise critical funds that support cutting-edge research and services to help people with MS move their lives forward.

The MS Society's call-to-action, "Join the Movement," is a reminder of the fact that MS robs people of the ability to move, disabling some and that action is needed to raise funds for research while improving the quality of life and independence of those living with MS.

Join the movement toward a world free of MS by making donations or participating in one of the Walk MS events or Bike MS: The Citrus Tour 2012.

There is no cost to register for Walk MS, although a minimum $20 donation is requested. Those who raise at least $125 receive a T-shirt. For details, visit Mid-FloridaMSWalks.org or call 407-478-8882, extension 28.

Young Voices

Here's what kids at the Oviedo Farmers Market said about their favorite birds.

I like the color of blue jays — I've seen them in the spring. It would be awesome to fly because I would see a nice view. There is a family of red-tail hawks that sits on the fence near us.

—Sierra B.
10 years old

I like falcons, hawks and eagles. Some of them live up north and they eat furry little animals. The eagle is our national bird. You could go anywhere you want if you could fly.

—Julian L.
9 years old

Eagles don't have many predators, and sometimes they have white heads. There's not much to block you when you fly. The condors live in California and they have really big wings.

—Evan K.
8 years old

I like the bald eagle — I've seen them and their nests on television and online. I've seen them at the Melbourne zoo. They eat fish. I'd like to fly and to sit high up in the trees.

—Anthony B.
8 years old

I like the red robins and the blue jays that I see in my neighborhood. They live in the trees in nests. It would be fun to fly because at night you could see all the pretty lights.

—Sofia L.
