JAY MEISEL

Some criminal cases are unusual, humorous or just outright odd.

And there's no shortage of them on the Treasure Coast.

This column will highlight cases that often leave observers shaking their heads.

Woman accused of misusing 911

Whether being harassed constitutes an emergency that would justify calling 911 may be determined on a case-by-case basis.

One local woman found out her case didn't fit that qualification when she repeatedly called 911 saying she was being harassed.

The person harassing her was a police officer issuing her a ticket for driving more than 10 miles per hour over the speed limit.

She also threatened to call the local CBS affiliate, News Channel 12.

Scheme to get cash fails

A man and a woman apparently tried to fish for some extra cash at a local Wal-Mart, but their scheme led them down the creek without a paddle.

A report states the man went into the store and switched some bar codes on some fishing poles so the poles would ring up cheaper. He bought the fishing poles that normally cost $212 for only $27.

Then he exited and gave one of the fishing poles to the woman who tried to get a full refund. But she was denied that because previously she had written bad checks at the store.

The pair was eventually arrested and sent to jail.

Waterfront in compliance; city to move forward

By Jessica Tuggle
jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

SEBASTIAN — The working waterfront project in Sebastian was under scrutiny by the state last month, but seems to be on track and moving forward, with city officials clarifying their vision on a management plan.

Sebastian City Council members were assured, with the closing of the restaurant at Fisherman's Landing, they were in compliance with the working waterfront grant stipulations by city manager Al Minner during the Oct. 26 meeting.

The Florida Department of Environmental Protection notified the city that a full-service restaurant and bar with live music in the Fisherman's Landing site, which was funded with a state grant, was not

Pharmacies add reporting to weekly routine

jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Local pharmacies have begun sending weekly reports of the controlled substances they dispense to a state drug database, fulfilling a new state mandate designed to crack down on "doctor shopping" and prescription drug abuse.

The database, the electronic-Florida online reporting of controlled substances evaluation, or E-FORCSE, will hold information about controlled substances categorized as schedule II, II and IV, including OxyContin, Percocet, Vicodin, Xanax and more.

By requiring the dispensing doctor's offices and pharmacies to report to whom they give the prescription drugs and how often, the state hopes it will be easier to identify drug abusers, whether it be a pain clinic operating illegally, or individuals getting multiple pre-

With more than 40 miles separating them, Renee Messina-Hazien and Tina Nicholson held candles last week and remembered the same tragic event in their lives.

Although they likely don't know each other, what they have in common is they both lost a son who died from an accidental prescription drug overdose.

"He was a very charismatic, loving, caring individual," Ms. Messina-Hazien said of her 23-year-old son, Adam, who died on April 18, 2010.

Ms. Nicholson's son died on June 30, 2008, after years of drug addiction.

"He told me he loved me the night before," she said. "I have never had the courage to drive down the street to see where he took his last breath."

Both Ms. Messina-Hazien and Ms. Nicholson attended Narcotics Overdose and Education vigils, respectively at Riverview Park in Sebastian and Midway Church of Christ in Fort Pierce.

The vigils were held to honor the memories of those who succumbed to addiction and to make people more aware of the problem.

At the Indian River County vigil, a wall contained photos of young people from around the nation who died from drug overdoses

Second escapee captured

By Jay Meisel
jmeisel@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — It may be weeks before an Indian River County jail escapee is returned, but authorities were elated that he's back behind bars, they said Saturday.

Warren County, Ohio, deputies arrested Rondell H. Reed, 52, the escapee, on Oct. 29 after a brief pursuit on Interstate-75, Indian River County Sheriff Deryl Loar said.

Mr. Reed received minor injuries after he crashed a vehicle he stole in Macon, Ga., at an entrance ramp, Sheriff Loar said.

Indian River County investigators traveled to Ohio over the weekend to question Mr. Reed.

Mr. Reed, who was facing trial on a charge of first-degree murder, escaped the morning of Oct. 24, along with Leviticus Taylor, 25, who was awaiting sentencing after being convicted of INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — The indefinite suspension of the Piper Aircraft light-jet program, a program the company had hoped would take flight in 2014, has kicked off a three-part, paced employee layoff schedule.

The number of employees let go on Oct. 26 was not available by press time, but two more sets of layoffs are expected to be completed before the end of the year, bringing the total amount of personnel laid off,

Addiction

Since 2005, 126 people have died in Indian River County of drug overdoses, officials said.

St. Lucie County has had the highest number of drug overdoses on the Treasure Coast with 45 in 2010 and 31 in 2011, said Lawrence Richardson, a St. Lucie County deputy, at the St. Lucie County vigil.

In 2010, seven Floridians died every day from drug overdoes and that number continues to rise, he said.

At the Indian River County vigil, Sebastian Police Chief Michelle Morris said the nation is in the midst of an epidemic of prescription drug abuse.

"This epidemic has affected families in all social circles," she said at the vigil.

It will take not only law enforcement efforts, but also the community banding together, to relieve the epidemic, she said.

Rich Piccininni, a special agent for the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, said Florida has been particularly affected by the epidemic, as the number of prescriptions for abused drugs is 10 times higher than any other state.

To help correct the problem, the state has established regional strike forces to go after prescription drug traffickers, he said.

Additionally, a prescription drug database has gone into effect, allowing access to information that will determine if someone is doctor shopping for drugs.

But while the battle to save lives continues, Ms. Messina-Hazien is left with only memories of her son.

She said he loved music and had graduated from Indian River State College with a degree in marketing. He accepted a job offer in south Florida, but died two weeks before he was going to start it, she said.

Ms. Messina-Hazien said she often thinks of him "putting his arms around me and saying, 'Mom, I love you.'"

He had joined a group of friends and apparently suffered an asthma attack after ingesting a prescription medicine, she said. But no one called for help for hours, she added.

Since then, Ms. Messina-Hazien said, she's been working in her son's memory to help prevent other parents from having to suffer the same tragedy in their lives and to save young people.

"Together we are making a difference to save lives," she told people at the vigil.

George Lynch, director of ministry at the Source in Vero Beach, an organization that helps the homeless and other people in need, said that by all rights, his name should have been on the wall.

As a young man growing up in St. Lucie County, he abused drugs.

Many members of his family did so and "I grew up believing that way was normal," he said.

Over the years, he knew of several young men who died prematurely from abusing prescription drugs, he said.

A mother of one of those young men one day confronted him and asked, '"Isn't my son's death enough?'" he recalled.

It wasn't at the time and he continued using drugs until one day he became a Christian, he said.

"I wish she was alive today to tell her, today it is enough," Mr. Lynch said.

scriptions and selling them on the street, said Edwin Perkins, owner and pharmacist of Perkins Pharmacy in Vero Beach.

It's also possible to identify shady doctors as well, by checking their licenses and seeing if they are practicing outside their specific field of medicine, he said.

"When you have a 40-year-old male come in with a prescription from a pediatrician or an obstetrician, that really raises a red flag," Mr. Perkins said.

"I think (the database) will help it get better at least. It's more paperwork, but it's a step in the right direction," he said.

The drug database was created with funding from private sources, federal grants and a nonprofit direct support organization.

State law prohibits use of funds provided by prescription drug manufacturers to implement the program.

Theresa Tolle, owner and chief pharmacist of Bay Street Pharmacy in Sebastian, said she was also very much in favor of the legislation and is glad to submit her reports to the database.

It will allow law enforcement to look at trends by doctors, pharmacies and patients, and crack down on doctor shopping, she said.

Physicians are not required to access the database before prescribing, but they will be encouraged to do so, according to a release from the state health department.

Ms. Tolle said in the recent past, her pharmacy had dozens of phone calls from people looking for her to fill their prescriptions, specifically oxycodone, including people from other states.

She recently attended an informational meeting given by the Brevard County Pharmacy Association that said thousands have already been searched for in the database and law enforcement is starting to take action.

Sgt. Thom Raulen of the Indian River County Sheriff's Office said his department has applied for access to the database system and expects to be approved within the week.

Ms. Tolle said several patients have come to her concerned about their privacy in light of the new reporting, but she said checks have been instituted to protect the privacy of individuals.

The database must meet with the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and department of health security requirements.

Currently, law enforcement can access the database to search for individuals they are investigating if they have a case number or a warrant, she said.

Neither pharmacists, doctors that dispense controlled substances or law enforcement, is given authority to do a general search on the data-acceptable under the terms of the grant and something needed to change.

The restaurant, leased by Debbie McManus, was closed Oct. 21 after she and her family decided they could not make changes to their restaurant business, make a profit and recoup their investment.

Mr. Minner told the city council he asked the Florida Department of Environmental Protection to send a note to indicate the city was now in compliance and let them know he would be sending them a revised city management plan with more specific language about what would be allowed in the facility as far as food service is concerned.

Mayor Jim Hill said when the restaurant first opened he visited and was shocked to see the size and scope of the restaurant, a far cry from the counter-service eatery that he had been told would be coming, and finding a fish tank in its place during the first week of September.

He said he made weekly visits to the site for months to see the progress, and never expected the restaurant that ended up opening there.

"The vision that we were sold from day one was not there," he said.

Mayor Hill said within five days of opening, the primary lessee, Bill Tiedge, and the facility managers, Fisherman's Landing Sebastian, Inc., were told by city staff that there were compliance issues. Ms. McManus said it was two and a half weeks before she was notified of a problem.

The actual leases were not reviewed by the Florida Communities Trust, another point of noncompliance, but Mr. Minner said they sent the information and have not had questions from the organization in return.

Ms. McManus said she was not made aware of what the city council expected in the eatery and feels the city should have said something before they opened.

Councilwoman Andrea Coy agreed the size and scope of the restaurant was a total surprise to her and she did not believe anyone from the city gave permission for the restaurant to be what it was.

"The city did not know it was happening. We've had to step up, take the blame and move on. And it's time to move on," Councilwoman Coy said.

Mayor Hill was of the opinion that the city behaved appropriately when they learned of the noncompliance issues, by going to the site managers, Fisherman's Landing Sebastian, and the primary lessee. To do anything else would be getting into the business of the co-op group, he said.

Vice Mayor Don Wright said he was extremely pleased to be in compliance and suggested no rushing into the next food service business lease.

"We don't want any more misunderstandings," he said.

Mr. Minner said there are some loose ends that need to be tied up and discussed, including the expected roles of the ancillary partners, or the current and future lessees, at Fisherman's Landing in Sebastian and the legal ramifications of the McManus family shutting down their restaurant and needing to walk away from their lease.

Just more than three years after Piper announced plans to build a jet, the program has been put on hold indefinitely. This photo is of the jet's debut on September 18, 2008.

including contracted employees, to 205.

In a press release, Piper Aircraft administration said the industry and market was not ready to sustain the company's light-jet program, Piper Altaire.

"Following an evaluation of Altaire development and light jet forecasts, we determined the best course of action for the company going forward is to indefinitely suspend the program, preserving intellectual property and progress to date," said Simon Caldecott, Piper interim president and CEO.

"Unfortunately and regrettably, this will have serious consequences for many talented Piper employees and for our Piper Altaire customers."

Piper officials said it would increase the number of engineering personnel to a different area, turboprop and piston-powered product lines, so not all of the engineers on the Altaire project will be let go.

The layoffs will bring the number of regular employees to about 700 individuals, the press release said.

That employment level number could trigger the return of some incentive dollars given to Piper by the state and county, but information on the amounts and requirements was not available at press time.

Piper is working with Workforce Solutions, a nonprofit corporation on the Research Coast, to put together a job fair to help the laid off employees connect with other companies in the aviation and aerospace industries all around the world, said Jackie Carlon, company spokeswoman.

She said other companies in the industry have been responsive and are eager to come to the job fair and are looking for engineers. The exact date of the job fair was unavailable at press time, but is expected to occur during the week of Nov. 7.

The company's decision to halt all projects related to the Piper Altaire program was a result of the poor market and economic conditions, even though the program was on schedule, on budget and meeting performance targets, Piper officials said.

Planned development costs had risen above the point that were recoverable under foreseeable light jet market projections. The company will not release the budget for the Altaire development program or expenditures to date, but will refund the deposits of Altaire position holders, or they can be applied toward other new Piper airplanes, a press release said.

The third quarter performance numbers for the company are expected to be released the week of Nov. 14, said Ms. Carlon.

"It's certainly disappointing to the team, but our core business is strong and remained focused on that," Ms. Carlon said.

Apparently, one local resident thought police officers are telepathic or have the ability to predict the future.

When the man wouldn't leave a motel, an employee called the police.

A responding police officer asked the man what he was doing and he replied, "I don't know, you tell me."

When asked if he was going to leave, the man replied, "I don't know, you tell me."

The man eventually said he was waiting for a woman to pick him up, but when asked her identity, he responded, "I don't know, you tell me."

Well, the police officer apparently told him instead that he was being arrested and going to jail.

Maybe you don't want him as your cellmate

Sometimes people trespass on property to steal televisions, jewelry, items that can be sold to a metals dealer and various other items.

A Fort Pierce man, however, told authorities he trespassed on a ranch to take stuff that is probably not at the top of an average thief's wish list.

He said he was getting cow manure to grow mushrooms.

the Tony-award winning Broadway musical, coupled with the dancers' performances should be the perfect match for the nonprofit's major fundraiser of the year, which happens to be full of masks.

The Evening of Hope masquerade gala will be held at Costa d'Este Resort in Vero Beach on Dec. 10 at 7 p.m.

The cost is $75 per person or $125 per couple, and includes live music, hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction.

This will be the fourth year the nonprofit has held the fundraiser and the first time it will be held at the famous resort owned by Gloria Estefan, said Verna Wright founder and executive director of Dasie Hope.

"It will be a masquerade gala, the first time we are doing that," she said.

"Every year it has been fantastic. Each time we have had more people come out," Ms. Wright said.

Last year, there were a little more than 120 people participating, but she hopes 200 will want to come out to support Dasie Hope this year.

Ms. Wright said they are still accepting donations for items to be included in the silent auction. Some of the items already collected are hotel stays, clothing and gift certificates to various local restaurants, she said.

Some of the masks given to the guests at the event will be created by the students at Dasie Hope, Ms. Wright said.

The center operates on a $300,000 annual budget and worked with 127 area children last year in various programs, including the dance class, throughout the school year and summer.

Among the other programs available are tutoring, college preparatory classes, mentoring, money management and baking.

"They really love the baking program, and it's the boys, believe it or not," Ms. Wright said with a laugh.

The boys, who are also part of the boy's mentoring program, are learning some life skills, which also includes learning their way around the kitchen, and they are enjoying it tremendously, she said.

"They are taking orders right now for lemon cake, chocolate cake and sweet potato pies. They are trying to raise money for a trip to Washington, D.C., in April," Ms. Wright said.

Another class Ms. Wright would love to offer is an etiquette, but right now, there isn't enough funding.

"They're not getting taught the proper etiquette and it's a big need. It's a life-survival skill program and would include personal health and hygiene," she said.

Arming Florida's consumers to fight ID theft

FLORIDA'S CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER
JEFF ATWATER

A recent headline read, "ID theft skyrocketing in South Florida; 'easier than robbing a bank' one crook claims."

Unfortunately, the article was right on target, and we are finding that this is a more widespread problem than most Floridians realize.

The key to combating this crime is to be aware and armed against scammers looking to score an easy payout.

In an effort to arm Florida's consumers with the tools they need to protect themselves from ID theft, my department has put together an ID theft presentation which can be found on our consumer services website at www.MyFloridaCFO.com/consumers. It provides tips and resources to help Floridians keep from becoming a statistic.

We are also pursuing every angle, through my Division of Insurance Fraud, to put the criminals who perpetrate these crimes behind bars.

In fact, our investigators recently cracked a case in which 115 individuals were found using one teenager's Social Security number to gain employment, and we have several other big cases in the works.

There are many ways your identity can be stolen, but it's important to know that it doesn't always involve a stranger. Crooks are stealing the identities of family members and even their own children.

Keep track of your credit report and check for unusual activity. Monitor checks being written against your bank account and notify your financial institution immediately if there is suspicious activity.

For more financial tips and consumer information, visit the Department of Financial Services' website at www.MyFloridaCFO.com or call (877) My-FL-CFO.

If you suspect insurance fraud, you could get a reward of up to $25,000 if the information you provide leads to an arrest and conviction in an insurance-fraud scheme.

Individuals who provide tips can remain anonymous. If you or someone you know has been the victim of insurance fraud, call our fraud hotline at (800) 378-0445.

Jeff Atwater is Florida's chief financial officer.

Callers are asked to refrain from making slanderous statements. Statements of fact will be checked for accuracy.

Question all charges

When reviewing my September AT&T statement, I found and questioned a small $3 (plus 26 cents tax) item, charged to my account. It was for a "three-way call," to what happened to be our family doctor's office telephone number, a routine call for an office appointment.

I explained to the customer service person it was not a three-way call. I have never had occasion to make a three-way call, much less, ever subscribed for three-way call service.

Without any explanation, I was told an offsetting credit to rectify the error would be made to my account immediately.

Here's a tip: always verify questionable charges, regardless how small they may seem to be.

High wages, low productivity

If you ever wonder why the federal government perpetually wants more money and why your taxes are always going up, look at government salaries.

In addition to lavish benefits and liberal pensions, the average salary for Washington bureaucrats is (hold on to your hat) $126,000 per year. The District of Columbia doesn't produce anything, except hot air, but is the richest area in the nation. Go figure.

Salaries too high

There's a report that the average salary for federal government employees is $126,000 per year, and if that is true, we taxpayers are sure a bunch of foolish rubes. They are supposed to be public servants, but who ever heard of a public servant, or any kind of servant, getting $126,000?

Schools need change

Even some Democrats are starting to realize that our public schools are failing our kids and that spending more money on a poor system is a waste.

In the inner cities, education, in terms of academics, violence and finances, is worse now than after several years of increased subsidies. Only half of the pupils meet state goals in reading and math, but the teachers' union remains locked into the same old procedures and techniques of the past and is adamantly opposed to changes.

No new stadium

Politicians are unwilling or unable to listen to their constituents.

The last three years have been tough for the average American, but very little has changed at our nation's capitol.

While we tighten our belts, politicians are considering a multi-million grant to subsidize a new football stadium for the Minnesota Vikings. Talk about wasteful and unnecessary spending!

There is a huge disconnect between Martin County and Washington, D.C.

Build bridge here

Figure this out. More than any other issue, politicians pontificate on the subject of jobs for the U.S. At the same time, they arranged for a huge bridge over the San Francisco Bay to be fabricated in China and shipped to California, costing us thousands of American jobs.

The $12 billion project was a magnificent opportunity to create good paying American jobs at a time of high unemployment. President Obama did nothing to save the situation. Opportunity lost.

Jail a solution?

I have a real solution for me and others who can't afford to pay for their house, buy food for the family, make car payments, pay for health insurance, etc. Lets commit a crime, go to prison and get the free best medical care, education, three meals a day, free housing, have your attorney's fees paid for by other people's tax dollars and complain about the horrible treatment we get, sue the state and win thousands to send to our families.

Rick Scott, I hope you're reading this. I'm fed up with the system that's in place now.

System is a joke

Here in Florida, people who violate domestic-violence related restraining orders are usually treated leniently by the courts. Those charged can often secure their freedom by posting a small amount, giving them little incentive to appear, as required. Lax treatment makes Florida's legal system a pathetic joke.

All talk, no action

We've heard a great deal of talk from our president about the need for more jobs for American workers; a great deal of talk but very little action.

It would be nice to hear about cutting back on government spending, something desperately needed during these hard times. All this talk by the president makes us wonder whether we're being jobbed, jobbed by our president.

IRC escapee caught after second encounter with Martin authorities

By Jay Meisel
jmeisel@hometownnewsol.com

STUART — It was a chance encounter that led to the arrest of an Indian River jail escape, who had been convicted of murder, a Martin County deputy said last week.

Detective Jacob Sirmans said he and Sgt. Michael Dougherty were headed to work on a Martin County case the evening of Oct. 24 when they saw a man walking down U.S. 1, Detective Sirmans recalled last week.

The man looked like Leviticus Uriah Taylor, 25, who had escaped that morning from the Indian River County jail, along with Rondell H. Reed, who was awaiting trial on a first-degree murder charge.

Earlier, Stuart Police stopped a car in which it is believed Mr. Taylor was a passenger, but let it go, as at that time, they had no information about the escape, said Officer Mike Pope, spokesman for the Stuart Police Department.

Mr. Taylor had been convicted of first-degree murder in the death of Nestor Perez of Vero Beach in 2009.

The man in Stuart walking down the street hours after the Stuart Police stop was wearing a horizontally striped shirt and matched the description of Mr. Taylor, Detective Sirmans said.

They got a closer look at the man "and at that point, we got out of our vehicle and conducted a field interview," Detective Sirmans said.

Although Mr. Taylor was apparently not lucky in having been spotted, he told the deputies his name was Lucky McIntosh, the detective said.

But after the deputies continued to compare the photo to him, Mr. Taylor admitted who he was and said, "Please, don't kill me."

Then, the deputies arrested him and gave custody of Mr. Taylor to the U.S. Marshal's Service, which returned him to Indian River County, Detective Sirmans said.

"It's incredibly rewarding to take a convicted murderer off the street," he said. "We take pride in keeping our community safe and this is a testament to that."

When Stuart Police stopped the car earlier, authorities believe that besides Mr. Taylor, Sadie Elizabeth Walker, 19, the girlfriend of Mr. Taylor and Angela L. Pike, 35, were also in the vehicle, with one of them being the driver.

They were subsequently arrested and charged with aiding Mr. Taylor in his escape.

Ms. Pike had told authorities they took Mr. Taylor to Martin County and let him off.

Authorities have said they believe that Mr. Taylor, during his time in Stuart, went to a theater and saw "Iron Man."

first-degree murder.

Martin County deputies arrested Mr. Taylor during the evening of Oct. 24 after they spotted him walking along U.S. 1.

But Mr. Reed proved to be the more elusive of the two.

He may have been headed to Richmond, Ind., where he had family, said Steven Stoll, an Indian River County detective. That was where he was captured and originally arrested on the murder charge.

Although Mr. Reed left a trail that was used to track him, Detective Stoll described him as being "very smart."

"Anybody is going to leave a trail behind," he said. "It's a matter of identifying that trail."

It's uncertain when Mr. Reed will be returned to Indian River County, Sheriff Loar said. That will depend on the extradition process, he added.

Indian River County authorities were on the trail of Mr. Reed for days. They said at a press conference on Friday they were certain he had stolen a pickup truck from a Sebastian business.

It was believed Mr. Reed made his way to Gifford and then trekked about 13 miles along railroad tracks to Sebastian. He broke into three vehicles at Sebastian Automobile, leaving blood on one, Sheriff Deryl Loar said.

The crime lab at Indian River State College completed DNA tests in hours, which normally take days, for results that proved the blood came from Mr. Reed, the sheriff said.

Authorities believe after the unsuccessful attempt to steal a car there, Mr. Reed spent several hours holed up in an empty house about 75 yards from Clark Water Supply in Sebastian, the sheriff said.

It's believed he saw a delivery truck driver at Clark Water get out of a truck, leaving the keys in the ignition, and then depart in another vehicle, Sheriff Loar said. That gave Mr. Reed the opportunity to steal the truck with the keys inside, Sheriff Loar said.

Mr. Reed got some lucky breaks, such as a couple of cameras were being replaced at the jail at the time of the escape, the sheriff said.

"His luck is running out," Sheriff Loar predicted.

It was less than 24 hours later that authorities captured Mr. Reed in Ohio.

The capture was apparently somewhat less dramatic than when Mr. Reed was arrested on the murder charge. During the pursuit, he shot at deputies, authorities said.

After his latest arrest, authorities found only a knife in the stolen vehicle he crashed, Sheriff Loar said.

Mr. Reed was accused of murdering James Malone, owner of Jim's Automotive. Mr. Taylor was convicted of murdering Nestor Perez of Vero Beach on Aug. 27, 2009.

Sheriff Loar thanked the media and the general public for assistance in capturing the two escapees.

Two women, Sadie Elizabeth Walker, 19, the girlfriend of Mr. Taylor, and Angela L. Pike, 35, have also been arrested and charged with aiding the escape of a prisoner.

SEBASTIAN — When the autumn winds begin to blow, it’s a sure sign the Sebastian Clambake Lagoon Festival is on its way.

Celebrating the Indian River Lagoon and the recreational, nutritious, beautiful aspects of it, visitors and residents alike can enjoy the festivities and taste different clam dishes this weekend in Riverview Park in Sebastian.

The Sebastian Clambake will run from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Nov. 4, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Nov. 5 and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Nov. 6. Admission is free, though tickets are sold for commemorative T-shirts and food.

Off-site parking will be available south of the park and in the vacant property next to Sherwin Williams, according to a press release.

A kids’ zone, classic car show, demonstrations by the Sebastian Police Department K-9 unit, the Sebastian River High School Sharks marching band, the Kashi School of Yoga and the Brevard Equestrian Center will also add to the festivities.

Anjani Cirillo, president of the Sebastian Clambake Foundation, the nonprofit organization that organizes the festival, said the profits from this year’s festival will go toward the Sebastian Soccer Association, HALO Animal Rescue, By the River senior housing and for the first time, the Economic Opportunities Council.

STAR SCOPES

James Tucker
Week of 11-4-2011

Aries-March 21-April 19
You always come through when the chips are down. Your fiery spirit always seems to pull you through life’s challenges unscathed. Being the first fire sign in the zodiac helps you get started first and then continue onto victory. You never quit until you reach your goal. It’s fun seeing what you plan to do next.

Taurus-April 20-May 20
Your life continues to move to higher levels. You are always searching for new challenges. Keep letting go of clutter and unneeded things around you to make room for the new. Do a fall cleaning and yard sale. Give unsold things to charity. This sets the universal wheels in motion to bring much new very soon.

Gemini-May 21-June 21
Affirm everyday that you are continually fed, protected and blessed by the unlimited good in the universe. Give thanks for the many wonderful friends who grace your life and bring so much love and joy. See the good in others and they see it in you. Live each day as if there is no tomorrow. This is the true meaning of life.

Cancer-June 22-July 22
You have the most beautiful, happy, positive attitude. It is contagious to others. When you are happy, others are happy. Your happy heart leads by example. You don’t ask of others what you won’t do first. You are so respected and loved. Keep psyched up and ready. More wonderful adventures are on the way.

Leo-July 23-Aug. 22
Being the middle fire sign has its advantages. The balance keeps you sharp and focused. Good ideas popping into your mind from the instincts gives much inspiration for action. The odds are in your favor for success. You are a winner. Listen to, trust and take action on this divine guidance and victory is assured.

Virgo-Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Venus this week gives you an emotional edge and boost. Take action on the idea you have been sitting on. It wants to grow and increase. People around you are in awe, saying, “How did you do all

Toy drive to take place through Dec. 8

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — The Youth Guidance annual toy drive is fast approaching and toys will be collected through Dec. 8 at the Youth Guidance office, 1028 20th Place, Vero Beach.

Local businesses, services clubs and churches will be able to help youngsters have a memorable holiday season by donating toys and gifts for this yearly event.

Everyone is invited to bring presents to the Youth Guidance office so that the children have an unforgettable day.

Organizations and individuals may also organize and host their own toy drive; Youth Guidance is looking for many drop-off sites for individuals to bring gifts.

A wide assortment of presents and toys are needed for boys and girls ages 5-18. Ideas include gift cards to retail stores, pre-paid cell phones, sports equipment, MP3 players and clothing (ages 13-16). Volunteers are also needed to man the Youth Guidance Toy Shop, a 'store' where Youth Guidance parents are able to pick out the donated gifts for their kids, on Dec. 9 and Dec. 12-15. Please help make a difference in the life of a child this holiday and get involved.

The primary purpose of Youth Guidance is to match each of its nearly 700 at-risk K-12 grade children with a volunteer mentor 21 years or older and keep youth engaged in positive educational, cultural and recreational year-round activities.

Mentors spend just a few hours a week with their mentee doing friendship-based activities that they both enjoy. The agency is actively seeking volunteers to serve as mentors, tutors, or periodic volunteers at ongoing activities for the unmatched children in the program, or to provide regular help in the office.

Those interested in participating in the Toy Drive may visit www.ircyouth.com or call (772) 770-5040.

Clammy

Fresh seafood booths, a boat show, dance contests, sand volleyball tournaments, vendor booths, live music, bounce houses and more will dot the landscape of the park all weekend long, providing fun for all ages.

This year's festival slogan is "I think, therefore I clam!" and the menu rightly reflects the clam as the centerpiece of the event.

Menu items include linguine with red and white clam sauce, peel and eat shrimp, clam chowder, fried fish and clam strips.

Hand-tossed, brick-oven pizza and sausage, pepper and onion sandwiches will also be available, along with cold draft beer and sodas.

"This is such a huge undertaking every year," said Ms. Cirillo.

"We have more than 500 volunteers over the weekend. We board members are there the whole time and when we see everyone having a good time, we have to pinch each other. It's awesome," she said.

The foundation grants funds to various north county charities and nonprofits, surpassing the $310,000 mark earlier this year.

Head Start in Wabasso will receive funds through the Economic Opportunities Council for a playground makeover, Ms. Cirillo said.

People often travel long distances to partake in the delicious food and fun activities at the Sebastian Clambake, she said.

Not too long ago, Ms. Cirillo said she received an email from a man in West Virginia looking for the date of the 2012 clambake so he could book his vacation ahead of time.

"And this is from West Virginia!" she said.

"The word is really getting out about the festival and we are really excited," Ms. Cirillo said.

Dancers, instructors for annual dancing event announced

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

VERO BEACH — In what is expected to be the best year yet, "Dancing with Vero's Stars" will take place on the evening of March 10, at The Waxlax Center at Saint Edward's School in Vero Beach.

At a meet-and-greet reception on Oct. 23 at the Coast de Este Beach Resort, star dancers, their instructors, Indian River County Healthy Start representatives, committee members, and friends and families gathered to hear the long anticipated pairing of partner announcement.

Co-chairs of the event, Brenda Lloyd and Joe Robinson, announced this year's participants. The star dancers and instructors will train for 20 hours over several months and gather community votes in advance of the evening on the official website, www.dancingwithverostars.com then later at the dance competition itself.

Each dollar raised will equate to a vote for the dancer.

Additionally, dancers are expected to raise a minimum $2,500 each to support the IRC Healthy Start Coalition.

All dancers will be judged on 50 percent money raised for Healthy Start Coalition and 50 percent based on their dancing skills.

While more event information unfolds over the months ahead, potential sponsors of the event may contact the Healthy Start Coalition at (772) 563-9118 or visit www.dancingwithverostars.com to purchase tickets or vote for their favorite dance candidate.

Golf's rules are not meant to be broken

GOLF
JAMES STAMMER

As much golf as I watch, I am constantly amazed at how often tour professionals are disqualified or penalized for breaking a simple rule that almost anyone, especially someone playing this game for a living, should know.

How many rules do we break over the course of a casual round? I thought about this on Saturday as I played with my son and a couple friends. As I paid close attention to myself and my partners, I found several. I sat down and condensed my list into a half-dozen United States Golf Association rules that someone in just about every group breaks during a round. At the risk of sounding like my father, I'd like to remind golfers that we are expected to know the rules and play by them.

No. 6: Rule 7-2: A player must not make a practice stroke during a round (a practice stroke is different than a practice swing).

How many of us hit a poor chip or miss a 2-foot par putt and try the shot again just to assure ourselves that we can make the shot? Penalize yourself two strokes in medal play or loss of hole in match.

No. 5: Rule 8-1: During a round, a player must not: (a) give advice to anyone in the competition playing on the course other than the player's partner; (b) ask for advice from anyone other than the player's partner or either of their caddies.

How often do we ask someone in our group what club they just hit? How about asking for a yardage or if they think you can hit the ball over a bunker or over the water? Sorry, we're not supposed to do that. Add another two shots or loss of the hole.

No. 4: Rule 4-4: The player must start a round with not more than 14 clubs. He/she is limited to the clubs thus selected for that round except if the player started with fewer than 14 clubs, the player may add any number of clubs provided the total number does not exceed 14.

If I had a nickel for every time I have played with an extra driver, hybrid or putter, I could afford a few extra gallons of gasoline. We all know this rule, but break it because we're "trying out a new club" or we borrow a club from someone in our group to hit a shot or try it out. Add two strokes for every hole played with more than 14 clubs, up to four strokes maximum. You lose every hole played, up to a maximum of two in match play.

No. 3: Rule 27-1: If a ball is lost or out-of-bounds, a player must play a ball, under penalty of one stroke, as nearly as possible to the spot from which the original ball was last played.

Many of us lose balls this way and simply drop one near the spot we feel it went into the woods or out-of-bounds. Usually it's done to avoid slowing play. No one wants to go back to the tee and excuse ourselves with the group waiting to hit just so we can correctly play our next shot. True, the rule may seem a little unfair, but the rule is what it is and in most competitions you will find yourself disqualified for failing to play your next shot properly. If you're not, it's a two-stroke penalty or loss of the hole.

No. 2: Rule 13-1: The ball must be played as it lies.

This is quite possibly the most broken rule of all. Many times over the course of a round, players will roll their ball out of a divot, onto a better patch of grass or set it up a little in the rough. We're not pros, why shouldn't we have a good lie? Chances are we won't take advantage of it and hit a good shot anyway. Penalize yourself two shots or loss of hole and move along.

Finally, the No. 1 rule broken on the golf course: Rule 1-3: Players must not agree to exclude the operation of any rule or to waive any penalty incurred.

As friendly as we are, we cannot agree that everyone gets a mulligan on the first tee, or a mulligan on each side. We cannot allow "give-me" putts or "do-overs." Not even if everyone agrees to it. If you do, head to the 19th hole and drown your sorrows, because you're all disqualified.

There you have it. Just a few things to think about the next time you're smacking that small, white sphere around. Then again, why shouldn't we have fun playing this game? After all, aren't rules meant to be broken?
