Some criminal cases are unusual, humorous or just outright odd.

And there's no shortage of them on the Treasure Coast.

This column will highlight cases that often leave observers shaking their heads.

Manufacturing crime

A Port St. Lucie man's devious plan turned on him when he was arrested last week for making a false report.

The man, who was in his vehicle, encountered his apparently estranged girlfriend, who had apparently left a dress at his residence.

He spoke with her about patching up the relationship and giving her the dress back. He drove her to his residence and supposedly went inside to get the dress while she was waiting outside.

But instead of getting the dress, he called police to have her arrested for trespassing.

One must wonder how someone can be trespassing when the property owner invites him or her onto the property.

And police wondered that also. So instead of police arresting the woman, they arrested the man.

He admitted to police the whole plot was to get the woman arrested.

What plan will he come up with next? Give her money and then ask police to arrest her for theft?

Anti-superman?

Public input sought on parking lot plan

By Jessica Tuggle
jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

SEBASTIAN — Plans to build a parking lot next to the popular Riverview Park in Sebastian will be open for public discussion next Wednesday.

On Aug. 29 at 6 p.m. in the Sebastian City Council chambers, city staff and the contracted engineering firm, Infrastructure Engineers of Sebastian, will accept public comment, questions and suggestions about the parking lot property immediately north of Riverview Park.

The "CavCorp" parking lot, which is bordered on the west by a gas station and on the east by Indian River Drive, is being modified to provide additional boat trailer and car parking.

At previous meetings, staff outlined the improvement project must protect the oaks trees in the area, save the existing clock tower and have a good traffic flow.

The conceptual plan by the engineers has 60 extra-long parking spaces, appropriate for boat trailers, and 65 car-size parking spaces, plus five handicap-accessible. See PARKING, A4

VERO BEACH — This fall, children visiting McKee Botanical Garden will have more things to explore and discover about the garden thanks to a new backpack activity program.

To enhance the learning experience for children, McKee staff has been preparing, developing and testing new curriculum with activities that children can do while they are enjoying the beautiful garden year-round.

Kelly Susino, marketing director, said the backpack program has been trial-tested during the garden's summer program, Camp McKee, with much success. The target ages for the program are children from 5 to 11 years old.

The funding for the program comes from the William Bingham Foundation, said Mary Ruth

There will be five unique activities for children. Activity packets are given to children in backpacks outfitted to include binoculars, compass and a magnifying glass, among other things, she said.

One of the five activities has been dubbed, "Things With Wings." The curriculum encourages children to explore the garden and search for butterflies and other insects or birds.

"It will be really tailored to how you want to do it," Ms. Foley said.

Depending on the attention span of the child, and the amount of time a parent has to walk around the garden, the activities can be done in depth or a child can simply run around the garden looking through the Cause of fatal fire still unknown

VERO BEACH — Investigators are still on the case after a mobile home caught fire last week in Vero Beach, leaving a woman dead.

Lisa Hall, 34, died in her home on Aug. 13 as the structure went up in flames.

She is survived by three children, ranging in age from 5 to 18, none of whom were home at the time of the fire.

Assistant Fire Chief Brian Burkeen said the state fire marshal's office was leading the case, but there has been no evidence of foul play.

A memorial page has been designed in Ms. Hall's memory on Facebook, a popular social networking site.

Friends, co-workers, family and acquaintances posted their grief and sadness. See FIRE, A2 percent of the vote.

There is no Democrat challenger, so Sheriff Loar's second term is secure and will begin in January.

Another county constitutional officer, property appraiser David Nolte, was also victorious in his campaign for re-election, receiving 62 percent of the vote.

Mr. Nolte has served as property appraiser for the past 32 years and this is the first time in 16 years he was challenged. Thomas Dehn, a property appraiser by trade, was hopeful to unseat the incumbent and bring a fresh perspective to the office.

Tax collector Carole Jean Jordan won her primary race against fellow Republican Tom Lowther with 61 percent of the vote.

Ms. Jordan was selected to head the office by the Indian River County Republican committee after former tax collector-elect, Stan Mayfield, died before taking office.

She will face Barry Barnard, who is running under no party affiliation, in the November general election.

Leslie Swan was appointed supervisor of elections since the resignation of Kay Clem in 2010, but after the August primary, she can truly say the position is hers.

Ms. Swan beat challenger Sandi Harpring by the largest margin in any of the races, 70 percent to 30 percent.

County Commissioner Bob Solari will retain his seat on the commission for another four years after topping challengers Nick Thomas and Brian Heady with 56 percent of the vote.

The Republican nominee for the open seat on the commission was won by Tim Zorc, who beat out candidate Bea Gardner with 61 percent of the vote.

Gary Wheeler, who endorsed Mr. Zorc, is the outgoing commissioner for the same seat. Mr. Zorc will face Tony Donadio, an architect, in the general election.

Mr. Donadio is running under no party affiliation.

Sixty-six percent of voters approved a school district tax rate referendum that will take the place of two expiring taxes, a critical needs tax and a debt service tax from a 1990 bond referendum.

Taxpayers will pay 60 cents per $1,000 of assessed property value on top of the regular district tax.

The referendum will last four years.

movies, Superman is a force for good, going after bank robbers and other criminals.

But in Stuart, a man wearing a Superman undershirt and blue jeans was the criminal. Police say he robbed the Chase Bank at 2280 S.E. Federal Highway on Aug. 16 around noon.

He's described as being 5 feet 10 inches tall and was wearing a white hat with an oval-shaped legal.

Maybe the man will surrender realizing he misunderstood mission of Superman.

Anyone with information about the bank robbery should contact Detective Nick Briglia at (772) 287-1122.

Shoplifting before work

Shopping at a competitor while wearing your work uniform may not be the greatest idea. But an even worse idea is to shoplift at the competitor while wearing the work uniform.

An employee at a Wal-Mart in Sebastian reported a man wearing a Publix uniform handed a Wal-Mart employee an old receipt and then ran out without paying for toilet paper.

During the escape, the man hit a parked car.

Later, Sebastian police found the man at his job at Publix in Roseland and arrested him for shoplifting the toilet paper and leaving the scene of the accident.

Apparently, that he wore his Publix uniform during the shoplifting made it easier for police to find him.

Frank Hickson, consultant project manager, said his company is eager to receive comments from the public.
"We love to solicit public comment on the design. Some suggestions are not feasible, or are cost-restrictive, but we will take the comments," Mr. Hickson said.
Members of the public can fill out comment cards and ask questions at the meeting, he said. The cards can also be taken home and given to neighbors and their responses can be mailed in, Mr. Hickson said.
The comments will be taken under consideration and brought back to city council for a debriefing. If the designs are changed as a result of the public comment, the city council will be shown the changes.
Mr. Hickson said once the conceptual phase is completed and approved, they can begin work on the final design and hopefully have it completed in November, which would allow construction to begin in early 2013.

Association opens social respite program

For Hometown News
 NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Alzheimer & Parkinson Association of Indian River County added a new location for its Care for the Caregiver social respite program, at Roseland Community Center, 12973 Bay St., Roseland.

Care for the Caregiver is a three-pronged program designed to offer caregivers temporary relief as they face the overwhelming challenges presented to them on a daily basis.

The three respite formats include in-home, companion-level care, adult day care in collaboration with Senior Resource Association and a social respite group held at the Roseland Community Center and at the Alzheimer & Parkinson Association Activities Center, located at 2300 Fifth Ave., suite 150 in Vero Beach.

The social respite program is held five mornings a week in Vero Beach and on Monday mornings in Roseland.

Alzheimer & Parkinson Association is an independent, nonprofit organization that is 100 percent supported through generous donations derived from grants, events, individuals and businesses.

The program is funded through a grant from John's Island Community Service League and a local philanthropist.

The program, provided free of charge for county residents, is designed to provide a positive environment for clients affected by memory disorders and to provide caregivers a three-hour window of respite.

The nonprofit organization is currently seeking program participants and volunteers to assist with morning activities at the Roseland Community Center location.

"Since our financial support is limited we depend almost entirely on volunteers to provide this program free of charge. This is a wonderful volunteer opportunity because we have non-stop fun from the moment our clients arrive," said Peggy Cunn-ningham, executive director of Alzheimer & Parkinson Association.

"If you are looking to have fun for three hours, then this is the one for you."

Alzheimer & Parkinson Association of Indian River County is not an affiliate of a national organization

For more information about volunteer opportunities, making a donation to the program, enrollment, or about other programs available in the county, visit www.alzpark.com or call (772) 563-0505.

TREASURE COAST — Through the new National Preparedness Institute, Indian River State College is taking the lead in public service education with up-to-the-minute training and consulting services in the public service sectors of law enforcement, homeland security, fire, emergency management, legal assisting and human services.

The institute is based at the college's Treasure Coast public safety training complex in Fort Pierce, a 50-acre living laboratory that has engaged public safety professionals from around the nation and world in mock disasters, simulations and exercises using the latest methods and technologies to keep the public safe.

NPI has already secured training contracts with Ineos New Plant Bioenergy in Vero Beach, to conduct emergency response to ethanol fires and hazardous waste operations and emergency response training, a report-writing consulting contract with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and will play a lead role in the 2012 Great Florida Fire School, a five-day training school for firefighters throughout Florida.

Additional one-day training programs are also in the works with local agencies in an effort to strengthen the local first responder workforce.

"The transition to the National Preparedness Institute was a natural one; after five years of partnership with Workforce Florida, IRSC recognized that Homeland Security is a developing industry with unique needs," said Evan A. Berry, assistant dean of public service education.

"As the National Preparedness Institute, Indian River State College will continue to serve organizations and individuals alike as a clearinghouse for education, research and training."

Different browsers, same Internet

Ubiq•ui•tous pronunciation: \yü-bi-kw?-t?s) adjective: existing or being everywhere at the same time: constantly encountered: widespread.

If ever there was something worthy of being considered ubiquitous I would have to say that Internet Explorer certainly fits that description. You'll find a copy of Internet Explorer in one form or another on just about every pc out there and you may even find a copy on a Mac.

Ask many users what that "blue e" is on their desktop and more often than not you'll hear something such as, "Oh, that's my Internet" or "that's the Internet."

A slightly more seasoned computer user might reply with "that's Internet Explorer, my web browser."

OK, so the guy who said it was his web browser is right but what does it matter? What's the benefit of knowing the difference? I mean is it worth the time to even sort out?

For that I would have to say yeah, I think it's worth the time to understand the difference. You see, Internet Explorer really isn't the Internet any more than your living room window is "the outside." You could say you look through Internet Explorer and see out into the Internet similarly to the way you look through the window to see the outside.

Or, you could think of Internet Explorer as kind of like "TV" for the Internet only in Internet Explorer you go to different websites instead of different channels.

So, if Internet Explorer is just a tool that lets you see the Internet then it would stand to reason there are other programs that will let you do the same thing. And yes, there are other programs that do the same thing, lots of them.

There are actually a bunch of different web browsers out there with Internet Explorer holding the top spot and a program named Mozilla Firefox in the No. 2 slot.

Ask someone what that

COMPUTE THIS
SEAN MCCARTHY

Mozilla Firefox icon is and you may hear something like "Oh, that's my other Internet. it's not the same as the other one."

And in a way that's right. Firefox isn't the same as Internet Explorer like a Magnavox TV isn't the same as a Sanyo. But the Internet you look at with Firefox is the same Internet that you look at with Internet Explorer.

But (I know some of you are thinking) why then, if Firefox and Internet Explorer both are looking out at the same Internet, do I see something totally different when I launch Firefox than I do when I launch Internet Explorer?

The answer to that is simply the "start page" or "home page" for each program is probably set to different websites. That means you'll see different pages on start up. I know that can cause a ton of confusion so I always try to make sure both Firefox and Internet Explorer have their start pages set the same.

Changing the start page is similar in both programs and only requires a few steps.

In Internet Explorer, click the tools pull-down menu and then click Internet options. A smaller page should open with the general tab selected. The address you see in the home page field is the web page that is automatically called up when you launch Internet Explorer. This page can be set to any page you want just by typing the web address in this field. Make a note of the address that is in there and (or highlight the address and hit CTRL+C if you want to get fancy) then open Mozilla Firefox.

Firefox has similar controls so look for the tools pull-down menu and then click options. Click the "main" button and that should show you the start

Leaving the Treasure Coast

Well, Treasure Coast, I really, really tried but I've got to say goodbye or adios.

When I decided to open a branch of my business here in 2006, I really thought this would be a great place to live, work and raise my kids. But, unfortunately it's not.

Between the traffic, the city officials who make doing business a bureaucratic nightmare, or expect a "perk of the job" to get things done, the nasty old bigots with their white pointy hoods and Confederate flags, the lack of quality in the schools, though not the teachers who seem to be at the brunt of it, from the state, district and mediocre parents, who all seem to think their little darlings are all budding Einsteins, when really most, if they even graduate, will be lucky to find a job flipping burgers.

The poor choice of shops, restaurants, though I will make an exception for Bonefish Grill and Pueblo Viejo, and theaters, plus the general undercurrent of anger and mediocrity means I have to move.

The fact I'm making about 40 percent more with fewer employees than my main office out west, is neither here or there, it's a quality-of-life issue, something most people here are clueless about.

On the plus side, seven of my 10 employees and their families have decided to also move west, (which I am paying for). Nothing like treating your employees like human beings, eh? That's a novel concept here in "paradise."

So, all you bigots can rest easy for a while there will be 33 less legal Hispanic people in your grocery store lines, and even worse, some of them have to use food stamps. Oh the nerve of those taxpaying citizens. But don't forget to be on your guard all you bigots. I'm sure, in your minds, there are swarms of brown-skinned people massing at the borders wanting to take their place, lock and load Florida, lock and load!

So, next week as we head through the Panhandle and the Treasure Coast and Florida is a speck in the rear-view mirror, I can only hope that one day some of the nasty racists who make the Treasure Coast home will eventually find some love in their hearts for their fellow human beings of all races and colors.

If not, then hopefully, with the onset of global warming (though most of you are in denial) Florida will go the same way as the legendary city of Atlantis, though trust me no one in the future will either miss or even bother looking for Florida!

Problems with power surges

Been having power surges from FP&L for over a year and have called them several times to complain but to no avail.

Well had another one the other night and woke up to a fridge that did not work. Had a company come out and say that my computer board was fried. So I called FP&L again and it was sent to claims department. So they just called and said we see that it happened again, but sorry, it looks like an animal did it so we don't have to pay. How convenient.

Removal of freedoms?

Mr. Morgan has 100 percent correct. For many years, Washington has been subtly and clandestinely removing our freedoms.

Remember how the mid-west farmers were family men, not corporations and we didn't have salmonella nor e coli? Do the American people remember how Wall Street and the Federal Reserve Bank manipulated the economy to cause the farmers to go bankrupt?

Perhaps we should go back a few years to 1933 when George Bush's grandfather was a gang leader to overthrow the Roosevelt administration, including assassinating president Roosevelt if he didn't abdicate. The Bush gang members were American-born terrorists, Henry Ford, HJ Heinz, the Harrimans, Kuhn & Loeb, etc. The story is on YouTube.

In 1953 the U.S. also had the duly elected leader of Iran deposed and then installed the shah as the torturer. I wonder why Iran hates us and does not trust us?

Let's come up to President Kennedy's presidency. There was a proposal to load an airplane up with college students and fly it over Cuba and shoot it down. Now, this is extreme politics. Oh yes, President Kennedy refused to permit an act like this and the clique were mad. Another reason for Kennedy's assassination. So today we can expect anything from Washington to further their agenda for global order.

Yes, I do believe this government should never be permitted to interrogate or investigate itself. They recently gave Goldman Sachs a free bill of health yet, these people control much of the economy. Sept. 11 was a setup to war. It had to be a setup, but you can see how bloodthirsty and vicious the government can be when it, too, is run by a massive pack of sociopaths.

Yes let's have a full investigation of the Kennedy assassination and the entire Sept. 11, but this time with civilian assigned judges and investigators, before they have passed away or have been removed by the world's most powerful mafia.

Our government is at a crossroads. Either we depend on a top-down, all-powerful government or we go for an America which prospers and grows with sound money, low tax rates, limited government and fewer government regulations. Government versus freedom. We pray voters choose wisely.

Editor's note: To watch the YouTube video of the alleged plot to overthrow Roosevelt, go to www.youtube.com/watch?v=b_NDJYU4Ag. Operation Northwoods was the plan in question that was rejected by the Kennedy administration. Use "Operation Northwoods" as key search words for more information.

Photographers connect with Nicaraguan youth

We didn't know it when we woke, but the students of Empowerment International in Granada, Nicaragua, were going to show the volunteer photographers with The Giving Lens the hard realities between our contrasting life styles.

Having already completed our introduction and first photo walk with the students, now it was time to walk a mile in their shoes.

Empowerment International is not where the students get their schooling. EI is a successful program that works with parents and youth to instill the value of education, as well as find solutions to the roadblocks that may prevent the youth from attending school.

After lunch we visited the EI facility where students were being tutored in reading and writing by other students only a few years older.

Don't picture a building with heavy double doors that leads into an air-conditioned hallway decorated with student work that then connects you to banks of classrooms with neat rows of desks and polished floors.

This building was dimly lit except for the area by the skylight. Benches lined the walls with students sitting along the perimeter.

As I was taking photographs of the students I felt water dripping on my back and head. It must have been a leaky roof I thought. I looked up and realized the skylight was an opening in the ceiling and I was standing in a pit where the rain water was meant to drain.

The novelty of having it rain inside the building was absent to the students. They were focused. They were reading and the prideful smiles were genuine when they reached the end of their lessons successfully.

When we were preparing to leave for our last (and most emotionally lasting) part of our week we were introduced to Hobbes Ginsburg. (I know, I repeated his name in my head about three times, too).

Hobbes, 18, named for the iconic cartoon character from the comic strip Calvin & Hobbes, was a standout with his dyed blue hair, pierced lip, torn blue jeans and a Ramones 1974 concert T-shirt. Hobbes moved here with his parents from the United States several years earlier when they came to open a café. He spoke Spanish like a native and turned out to be an excellent conduit between The Giving Lens photographers and the students for the rest of the week.

I have been to the poorest sections of New York City, Fort Pierce, Stuart and Topeka, Kan. I have read "National Geographic." Nothing prepared me for the next two hours of our journey.

The students from Empowerment International come from a locale referred to as the barrios or the neighborhood for us north of the border.

We started walking down a single road with homes of several students on each side.

The homes would have never passed code here in the US.

The average home had a wall or two of cinderblock, another formed by pieces of wood nailed together with the remaining walls made a few pieces of tin or aluminum. Barbed wire lined most of the property borders and didn't stop the kids from running near it or resting on it as we paraded through their neighborhood.

Out of courtesy, we always asked permission, in our broken Spanish, to photograph them or their children as we walked through.

We photographed mothers with their children, kids playing marbles and those who came running out to pose for a photo.

Each time, we showed them the photos we took on the backs of the cameras. Although it is unlikely they would see those imagers again, they couldn't have been happier to be photographed.

As we walked through the barrio I kept looking for where it ended. I never saw it.

Our neighborhoods of low-income housing can last for several blocks, however this never seemed to end. We walked for nearly two hours until our return vehicle met us. There was so much more ahead but we left with a large part of the barrio unvisited.

That evening, the photographers got together. As we discussed the day we attempted to process what we just witnessed.

It was unanimous that the residents we met in the barrios of Granada were

Those few miles we walked were life changing with respect to how I view poverty home and abroad and how naive my own perceptions and interpretations were before witnessing it in the barrios of Granada, Nicaragua.

I came here to teach photography. The ratio of what I have learned to what I have taught is greatly imbalanced.

Home cooked food at affordable prices

Fran Forte and Phyllis Harris enjoy a friendly lunch at Pelican Diner in Sebastian. Pelican Diner has more than 150 affordable menu items for breakfast and lunch customers seven days a week.

SEBASTIAN — Even birdbrains know Pelican Diner in Sebastian is the place to go to fill up on homemade food that doesn't break the bank.

The three-year-old diner is a bustling place in and out of season, with regular customers coming in for their menu favorites and newbies trying them out daily.

The feel-good, family owned restaurant has more than 150 menu choices, said owner Greg Hepler.

A breakfast favorite is called The Nest, and is homemade corned beef hash with two poached eggs and cheese.

The Belgian waffles, served with various fruit toppings, are also winners on the breakfast list.

One waffle combination includes pecans and peaches, smelling and tasting like a homey Georgia morning.

Hearty dishes are available for lunch, including meatloaf, cheeseburgers, chipped beef, veggie burgers or country fried steak. Lighter fare includes egg, ham, chicken or tuna salad sandwiches, salads and soups.

One unusual, but satisfying, dish on the menu tastes like both breakfast and lunch.

The Monte Cristo is basically a club sandwich, stuffed with ham, turkey and Swiss cheese. The sandwich is then battered and deep-fried and served with a delicate dusting of powdered sugar and served with sweet raspberry jam or honey mustard.

The sweet jam accentuates the flavors of the ham and turkey, making the meal extraordinarily scrumptious.

Fran Forte and Phyllis Harris of Barefoot Bay often make the Pelican Diner their lunch stop and have tried nearly everything on the menu.

"Their lobster rolls are to die for," said Ms. Forte. "The servers are very friendly and the food is sensational. They also have very comfortable prices and even have coupons throughout the year to help their customers keep costs down," she said.

Summer hours are Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 7 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and dinner on Friday from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Regular hours are 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. all week and dinner on Friday from 4 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Pelican Diner is located at 13260 U.S. 1, Sebastian. For more information, call (772) 228-9600 or visit www.pelican diner.com.

Professional chalk art festival in works

Event to raise funds for medical needs

By Jessica Tuggle
jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — A chalk art festival is coming to Indian River County, but it won't be a casual sidewalk chalk party.

The Cultural Council of Indian River County is sending out a call for artists for the first professional chalk art festival in Indian River County, featuring Palm Beach-based chalk artist Jennifer Chaparro.

The chalk art festival is scheduled for Nov. 10 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Indian River Mall parking lot, said Steve Dorrance, executive director of the Treasure Coast Community Health Foundation.

Jennifer Chaparro, a professional chalk artist, creates a giant portrait for a festival along with other artists. In November, Ms. Chaparro will be the featured artist at the inaugural professional chalk art festival. The event will benefit the Treasure Coast Community Health Foundation and Sun Up ARC.

The pavement will be a colorful extravaganza with all sorts of designs and figures, original work, reproductions of master paintings and even 3-d designs, all raising money for two local nonprofit agencies, Sun Up ARC and Treasure Coast Community Health.

Ms. Chaparro began doing chalk art professionally in 2009 and has a background in graphic design.

She did her first chalk art with her daughters as a way to spend time together, but it began to blossom into something more. She started getting calls to participate in shows as a featured artist.

"The biggest thrill I get out of it is exposing people to art," Ms. Chaparro said.

Chalk art is an art form many people have never seen before and passers-by always ask if they can take pictures of the art, she said.

"I always say yes, because the more people that see it, the better," Ms. Chaparro said.

Ms. Chaparro usually works out a template and design before arriving to events. She alternates between original art, 3-d art and recreations of paintings by master artists.

She will be giving a workshop a few weeks before the festival to give participants tips and tricks on how to make a great design, but the date has not yet been confirmed.

Local artists, art students and professional chalk artists are invited to spend the day working on their art and can participate in a juried art show at the end, Mr. Dorrance said.

The art festival will raise funds for medical needs by Sun Up ARC and Treasure Coast Community Health, Mr. Dorrance said.

Sun Up ARC clients are individuals with mental and development disabilities who often have very unusual needs to receive basic medical and dental care, he said.

Some individuals have such severe needs that they require special oral sedation dental equipment, which is expensive. The Treasure Coast Community Health Foundation is a separate entity from Treasure Coast Community Health and handles the fundraising for the medical organization, Mr. Dorrance said.

Treasure Coast Community Health offers cost-effective and quality medical, dental and mental health care to non-insured and under-insured people in the community.

Eye care is also challenging for Sun Up ARC clients, because it also involves sitting still for an extended period of time, but new technology is available that can give prescription readings in three seconds, Mr. Dorrance said.

Optometrist Joyce Desrosiers said she would assist with patients referred to Sun Up ARC and Treasure Coast Community Health, which is a great boon, Mr. Dorrance said.

There are many charitable organizations in Indian River County, but it's not often two of them team up for a cause, he said.

"I hope that donors will see our cooperation and productivity for the community and really see where their money can help," Mr. Dorrance said.

For more information, call Mr. Dorrance at (772) 571-1982. Applications can be found at www.cultural-council.org/Chalk-Art-Festival-Application.html.

The program is suited for those interested in pursuing answers to the real challenges to the environment and wildlife.

What kind of world do we want to leave for future generations? Where can we learn more about what we can do to help preserve the natural environment?

Those interested in answering these questions and learning more about the science and techniques of wildlife conservation will benefit from this program, an adult education program developed by the University of Florida to promote awareness, understanding and respect for Florida's natural world.

The training will benefit anyone wanting to know more about Florida's environment, as well as those wishing to increase their knowledge for use in education programs as volunteers, employees or ecotourism guides.

The ELC has offered three core modules (freshwater uplands, coastal systems and upland habitats) since the inception of the program.

Most 200 people have completed at least one module and 75 have completed all three. These classes fill up quickly, so those interested should register soon.

Each module consists of 40 contact hours of classroom learning, field trips and practical experience. Tuition for each module is $225 and includes detailed course manuals and, upon completion, FMNP certificates, patches and pins denoting area of expertise.

Students who complete all three modules become Florida master naturalists, and will receive a plaque, pin and registration in the online master naturalist honor roll database. University credit toward a degree-seeking program is not provided.

Heather Stapleton, ELC education director and Sarah Rhodes-Ondi, ELC naturalist, teach the classes and incorporate various expert guest speakers.

Classes are offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Field excursions are on Saturdays. The next class begins on Sept. 11, and runs through Oct. 25. All registration must be done online at www.masternaturalist.ifas.ufl.edu/.

The Environmental Learning Center is located north of Vero Beach off County Road 510 at the western end of the Wabasso Bridge. Its campus includes exhibit areas, native plant gardens, picnic facilities, gift shop and visitor center.

ELC membership benefits, a list of its many field excursions, ecotours, including nature walks, canoe excursions, and boating adventures can be found at www.DiscoverELC.org.

Admission is $5 per person, children 12 and under free and ELC members receive free admission year-round. The first Saturday of every month is free to all.

For more information about the program, call (772) 589-5050.

TREASURE COAST — After a busy summer of practice and swim meets, the YMCA of the Treasure Coast's Wahos swim team competed in a championship swim meet and took first place.

The Wahos are part of the South Florida Recreational Swim League and have been competing throughout South Florida since 1994. This is their fourth year straight of winning the division title as a team, in addition to five years of first in girl's high point with a few other bronze and silvers mixed in the boy's category.

"The team is really focused on giving all kids the opportunity to compete and be part of a team, and it takes the entire team to win gold," said Itzou Shamli, Wahos head coach.

The YMCA of the Treasure Coast Wahos swim team is a year-round program with three competitive seasons each year.

The year-round program gives the opportunity for 30 to 40 swimmers each season to swim for a goal whether a personal goal or a team goal. Each season consists of daily practices, monthly meets and a seasonal championship meet.

To learn how to join the YMCA of the Treasure Coast Wahos, call (772) 286-4444, email estoecklin@ymcatreasurecoast.org or visit www.ymcatreasurecoast.org.
