INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — The Indian River County Commission assured their constituents they would be the ones making decisions about the county's INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — While the phrase, "out with the old, in with the new," is true with physical calendars, the memories of those days gone by will stay forever.

In no particular order, here are some of the top stories Hometown News reported in 2012.

David Gore execution

A death-row inmate who confessed to killing six women in Indian River County more than 30 years ago was executed in April.

David Alan Gore was sentenced to death for the rape and murder of a 17-year-old hitchhiker, Lynn Elliot, in July 1983. During an interview with Carl Elliot, her father, now in his mid-80s, Mr. Elliot said he never imagined he would wait so long for the execution, wondering at times if his daughter's murderer would

New shelter program designed to acclimate dogs to home life

By Jessica Tuggle
jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — A new option is available for individuals seeking to volunteer at the Humane Society of Vero Beach and Indian River County. And all it takes is some basic dog behavior knowledge and a good book.

For some people, curling up with a good book and some blankets is the perfect way to de-stress and relax, and it turns out, it is for some canines, as well.

The animal shelter is looking for volunteers to participate in the "Read and Relax" program, designed to reduce a dog's stress through increased human companionship. Teaching dogs to be calm and spend time being still while around people will be invaluable when trying to find them forever homes, shelter staff said.

"The old advice given to reduce canine stress was to exercise to exhaustion, that a tired dog is a happy dog," said Joy Szaz, the animal shelter's pet behavior assistant in a press release.

"Exercise is still important, but we know that most dogs enjoy being 'couch potatoes.' Since dogs, especially anxious dogs, usually feel most at ease spending quiet time with people, we need volunteers who are willing to just sit with them in a quiet area and simply read," she said.

The Humane Society operates because of donations and volunteers, said Janet Winikoff, education director.

Joy Szaz, pet behavior assistant for the Humane Society of Vero Beach and Indian River County reads with shelter dog Samantha as part of the 'Read and Relax' program. It's designed to teach dogs how to behave calmly and co-exist with their human companions without constantly begging for attention. Volunteers are needed to help with the program.

However, it does take some modicum of physical ability to do many of the volunteer tasks at the shelter. Reading however, is not one of them, Ms. Winikoff said.

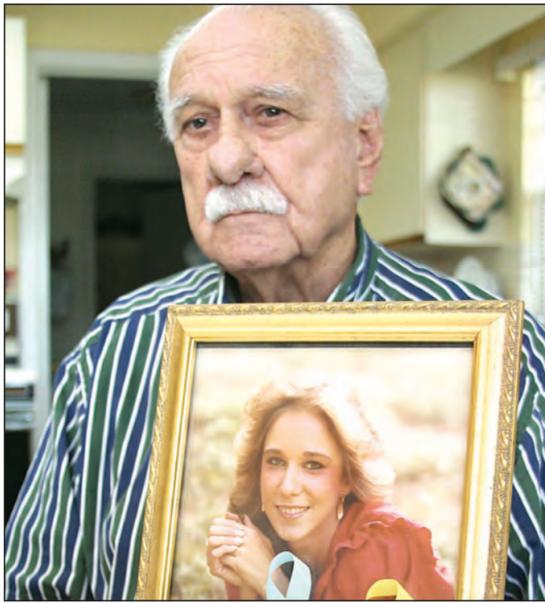

When she is at home with her own dog, Nala, she is not always playing tug-of-war or fetch, or outlive him. Lynn was the sixth woman Mr. Gore confessed to killing, and had she not been seen trying to escape by a witness, more women could possibly have fallen prey to Mr. Gore and his accomplice and cousin, Freddy Waterfield.

Mr. Gore's death warrant was originally signed in 1988, but it was stayed later that year. Subsequent appeals dragged out the process.

Vero Beach, FP&L negotiations proceed at full steam

Negotiations between the city of Vero Beach and Florida Power & Light for the sale of the city's electric utility continued to move forward.

The latest news is that in a split vote, Vero Beach City Council members requested the city attorney and city manager to draft language for a referendum to put the question of the sale to city residents, and a nonbinding straw poll for all electric utility ratepayers, inside and outside the city limits.

The referendum question, if approved by the city council, could appear in a March election.

Council members who voted for the referendum made clear they were not putting the question to ratepayers because they felt they had to get permission, but rather to once and for all learn if people wanted to sell or not.

Spiritual community figurehead dies

The spiritual leader of the Kashi Ashram in Sebastian, Ma Jaya Sati Bhagavati died on April 13 of pancreatic cancer.

Ma Jaya was a person who showed love, kindness and compassion to all people, friends and acquaintances said after her death.

Some of her local actions that will leave a long-lasting impression on the community include opening By The River, an affordable senior housing development in Sebastian. A sliding-pay scale helps seniors on a limited income afford housing, keep their independence and not need to live in nursing homes.

Four Chaplains monument completed

After more than three years of fundraising, a new monument was erected in Sebastian's Riverview Park.

The veteran's memorial section of the city park now has an 8-foot granite monument depicting four military chaplains who died during World War II when a German torpedo caused the vessel they were on to sink.

Vero Beach resident Ernie Heaton, one of the last living survivors of that tragedy, lived in Vero Beach and was a driving force behind its construction.

The four chaplains, all of different faiths, are known for giving up their life vests and staying onboard the quickly sinking ship, saving lives by their actions and inspiring others through their loud prayers.

Mr. Heaton said the monument was promoting interfaith actions. He lived to see its dedication in February and completion in May. He died of cancer in November.

Bridge renamed to honor Vero Beach's 'first lady'

Vero Beach's 17th Street Bridge was dedicated and renamed for a woman who has proven to be a leader in Indian River County for more than 40 years.

Alma Lee Loy, the first female Indian River County commissioner, a long-time business owner and a community leader, was humbled by the request to recognize her accomplishments by naming the bridge after her.

The bridge was one of the major projects she worked on as a commissioner, and opened in 1979.

Beach. Talks between Indian River County and Vero Beach about the location of the bus hub began earlier this year in response to concerns from residents living around the hub, in the Old Town neighborhood.

On numerous occasions residents of the neighborhood took to the podium at Vero Beach City Hall to voice their concerns about the traffic, trash and increased number of pedestrians walking on their streets.

Moving the hub and building coverings and bathrooms onto a city-owned property leased to the county had been part of the discussions, but when the city declined to be responsible for the landscaping and maintenance of the property once it was leased, the county decided to stop seeking a new place.

Phil Matson, metropolitan planning organization director, said the property in question, which is near the railroad tracks on 16th Street, is already maintained by the city, so such a term was unacceptable to the county.

Instead, the county will attempt to re-apply the grant they were going to use for the construction of the new hub toward outfitting the current hub site with pavilions and bathrooms, Mr. Matson said.

"We feel that the site is functioning very well," he said.

The main bus hub has been at its current location, the site of the old county administration center, since 2010.

Approximately $1.1 million in unspent impact fees and collected interest were refunded for some homeowners on the barrier island south of Beachland Boulevard earlier this year.

The refund was offered to current property owners of the qualifying properties after activists repeatedly spoke before the commission to bring to light the provisions on the impact fees say they must be returned if not used in six years.

Proponents of returning the impact fees also made it known that the process for collecting the fees was arduous and the commission voted to make the process easier and more transparent.

Proposal for temporary housing for homeless evolves

The homeless in Indian River County have advocates working diligently on a way to help them back on their feet and ideas on how to make that happen are coming closer to actual reality.

The latest news from the organizers of Camp Haven, a nonprofit group working to develop a temporary housing situation for qualified homeless individuals, is that a foreclosed motel could be their new home.

The old Citrus Motel on U.S. 1 near the Vero Beach Airport is the latest property being considered for the temporary housing site, after a tent camp proposal in south county did not appear feasible with readily available funds and expected fundraising efforts.

The change came soon after a leadership change in the nonprofit after its founder moved out of state.

City, police department sign three-year contract

After months of negotiations, the city of Vero Beach and the Vero Beach Police Department's union signed a three-year contract in October, avoiding an impasse.

The contract was hotly debated among residents because the city manager was proposing rank reductions that would have affected nine officers.

The final contract did not include rank reductions, but did include fewer holidays, a change to vacation and sick pay accumulation and an increase to the percentage officers must contribute to their pension funds.

The city manager proposed the rank reductions to help the city meet its shrinking budget.

'Pill mill' crackdown closes one Vero Beach clinic

A lengthy investigation on the Treasure Coast and other parts of Florida on drug trafficking and pain management clinics resulted in the closing of one Vero Beach clinic earlier this year.

Stuart Pain Management in Vero Beach, operated by Dr. Bruce Jay Kammerman of Palm City, was searched this summer by law enforcement after reports of suspicious activity since 2010.

Fourteen total arrests were made, including Dr. Kammerman, for prescribing millions of pills to people who didn't need them. The drug-trafficking organization included nine clinics from Pensacola to Miami.

not in favor of the county's participation in a 50-year, seven-county regional planning group known as Seven50, and a majority of the commission agreed.

The meeting room was packed with people, the majority of whom were not in favor of the planning group. Some audience members waved current and past American flags, including a bright yellow "Don't Tread on Me" flag, demonstrating their concerns that Seven50 would take away their way of life and community values and impose property restrictions and higher-density living in the name of efficiency.

For the past few months, the Treasure Coast and South Florida regional planning councils, with the financial backing of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the U.S. Department of Transportation and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, have been traveling to different locations in the Treasure Coast region to lay out a 50-year plan for seven counties in Southeast Florida.

The overall idea for the economic development project is called the Seven50 sustainable communities initiative and is self-described on its website as "a blueprint for growing a more prosperous, more desirable Southeast Florida during the next 50 years and beyond."

The two regional planning councils are joining together with Southeast Florida Regional Partnership, a collaboration of more than 200 public, private and civic stakeholders, to map out a strategy for high-quality lifestyles for the future.

Some members of the audience said they believed regional planning as touted by Seven50 was headed down a road that would throw away values Indian River County residents hold dear: home rule, low-density, small government and fiscal responsibility.

Other members scoffed at the idea that 50-year planning was even feasible as even business plans fluctuate constantly.

Also unsettling for residents was the fact that the decision makers were "faceless bureaucrats" and unelected people.

Kevin Foley, chairman of the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council and Marcela Cambor, director of the Seven50 project, were in attendance and addressed several concerns mentioned by the public.

Mr. Foley pointed out that elected officials, such as Commissioner Peter O'Bryan, were included in the Seven50 group, as well as well-regarded members of the community, including Indian River State College President Ed Massey, demonstrating the group was not "faceless."

He said right now the group is halfway through a three-year planning and researching stage and there is no obligation at the end of the three years to remain in the group. He requested the county stick around and make their views known to the group throughout the rest of the process, and if at the end there are things the county doesn't like, to withdraw then.

After the public comment on the issue, four commissioners voted to withdraw from the group, which was voluntary to begin with and required no cash investment.

Commissioner Peter O'Bryan was the only one to vote in favor of staying with the group at least through the end of the three-year planning period to see what it has to offer the county.

While the county as a governing body has removed itself from the Seven50 project, the cities of Sebastian, Vero Beach and Fellsmere and the Indian River County School District are still participants in the organization and will be involved in the planning, Mr. Foley said.

even scratching her head, sometimes it's just sitting on the couch together.

"Read and Relax' is about getting the dogs to calm down and relax and not feel anxious or constantly need attention," Ms. Winikoff.

While there is basic volunteer and dog behavior training, a volunteer can be one-on-one in a room, or in a kennel run with a dog to read.

While reading, the volunteer must be careful to not interact with the dog at all, no eye contact, no direct speaking to the animal, she said.

When dogs are more accustomed to being calm around people, it is much easier to help them find a home, and once they are in a home, it helps them acclimate faster to their new home environment, Ms. Winikoff said.

The next general volunteer orientation session will be held Jan. 5 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

"This new program gives more individuals the opportunity to have a positive impact on the lives of our dogs," Ms. Winikoff said.

Protect your computer with strong passwords

Strong password requirements (using upper and lower cases, at least one number and maybe a special character) cause a lot of frustration for computer users. There is however, a way to manage your passwords without sacrificing security for convenience and the best part is the solution is available for free.

Let's start at the beginning: the computer's login screen.

Whether you are running Windows, Mac, Linux or any of the other operating systems out there, when the system boots up it will look for a password. Now sure, I know what some of you are thinking, "I don't have to enter a password when my machine boots up so you must be wrong."

Well, that isn't entirely true, it's just that most machines will give the user the ability to either auto logon or not require a password at all at boot up. This is one of those instances where people will sacrifice security for convenience. People don't want to be bothered entering their password every time, so the system gets set up without it.

Sure it's convenient, but the problem is now anyone who sits in front of your machine and turns it on will be able to get in and have access to all your stuff.

Many people choose to go this route thinking that "Hey, I'm the only one who uses this machine so I don't need it asking for a password every time" but if we are talking about a laptop (which is portable) that can be a disaster waiting to happen if it ever gets lost or stolen.

If it's a desktop machine the argument seems a little more valid, but it won't protect you if there is a break in or some other unauthorized user gains access to your machine (either physically or gets in through the internet).

The fact of the matter is if your machine is connected to a network then there should be a password in place to protect your files.

COMPUTE THIS

The next area where people sacrifice security is in password strength.

Weak passwords may be easy to remember, but they are often short "dictionary" words that can be cracked in a matter of minutes by any of the available password cracking utilities that are out there.

Passwords such as "god," "monkey" or any other word found in the dictionary may be short and easy to remember but they are also the first things these password cracking utilities will try.

That's why many sites (and programs) will insist on including upper and lower cases, some numbers and even a special character or two.

"MonKey!387" is a hell of a lot harder for someone to crack than just the word "monkey." Sure, it may be a little more inconvenient but using a weak password will just give you a false sense of security.

The next shortcut people take is in using one password for everything. The reasoning is "well, I can't remember a different password for everything so I just use the same one everywhere I go and never have a problem."

I will be the first to admit, using the same password for the windows login, email, etc. is convenient, but a problem can arise if your password does get cracked. It's common practice for hackers (when they discover someone's user name and password) to try that same username and password pair everywhere.

Again, there are tools out there that will allow someone to enter a username and password and the program then goes and

Kudos to the editor

Kudos to Hometown News editor for keeping a sharp eye on the fabricated facts some people send to this newspaper column. Like the writer who used a right-wing satire column as a fact to accuse the president of proposing that war veterans pay for their own medical insurance to help reduce the budget deficit and then called the president's supporters "mesmerized and uneducated."

How well educated is this person unable to differentiate fact from satire? Or is he/she just practicing the FNN model to quote any statement against the president regardless of its source or validity, counting on its misinformed audience to propagate the deception?

Maybe he/she is just mesmerized by the other side. Thank you, Ms. Editor. Keep up the good work.
Editor's note: We think FNN stands for fuzzy neural network.

Responding to 'bunch of bigots'

Here we go again, lumping everybody together. Question to the writer: The "locals" who are "a bunch of bigots, racists, narrow-minded, backward-thinking people living in this town," do these description also fit the family with whom you spent Thanksgiving or didn't you realize that you included them in your invectives?

I have news for you, almost all of the above-classified people are transplants, relocated here from somewhere else within the past 20 years, brought their prejudices with them and infested the town.

Those who do not consider themselves indebted to the men/women who gave their lives for our freedom are most definitely in the minority. The vast majority of us who do appreciate their sacrifices and do wish you wouldn't lump us as you see fit. As it is said: "For as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Wake up, ditto heads

For all you ultra-right wingers, Rush Limbaugh ditto heads wake up and give President Obama credit for his part to stop illegal immigration in its tracks.

Reports are that more illegals are leaving the U.S., than are those entering. His economic policies that are leading us to a third world economy are working. In fact by 2016, if things continue, they will be chartering flights to return home.

Let's ignore the constitution and give him a third term! In fact, I suggest making him the permanent president and Florida/St. Lucie won't have to be the laughingstock of every election in the future.

Let's hear it for Obama and his new Banana Republic.

Wake up, America

Burning the flag, protesting at a soldier's funeral, prohibiting religious symbols and same sex marriage are all OK, but own a semi-automatic firearm and you are judged a criminal. We better wake up and look down the path Obama and his henchman are taking us.

Regarding assault weapons

With the recent tragedy, there is a lot of discussion about banning assault weapons. The definition of an assault weapon has changed over the years to fit the agenda of lawmakers, such as Sen. Dianne Feinstein.

An assault weapon initially was a weapon used primarily by the military, which had a selector switch, allowing the user to switch between semi and automatic fire. Semi-automatic fire is when one round is fired each time the trigger is pulled. When the switch is in the auto position, the rifle will continue to fire as long as the trigger is depressed.

The rifle used at the recent shooting was a semi-automatic rifle designed to look like a military assault rifle. Basically it is a clone. Several standard-looking rifles use the same round, the only difference is that the one used at the shooting was made to look like a military rifle.

This tragedy could have been prevented if a more aggressive mental health treatment program had been sought and that steps had been taken to secure firearms in the home.

Putting the blame on the firearm is an agenda to score political points, not a solution to the problem.

Ask for guidance

The first thing we should do as Americans, Americans of all faiths, is to pray to God for guidance about the tragedy in Connecticut. God help us if we take Him out of the equation. The last thing we need is another expensive government program framed by President Obama and a bunch of self-serving Washington politicians.

War on poverty

In launching his "War on Poverty," President Lyndon Johnson pledged it would make people self-sufficient.

Instead, people raised on government goodies are more dependent than ever before.

Welfare spending is at an all-time high. It's driving this nation toward bankruptcy.

Perhaps even worse, it's teaching recipients they can get something for nothing. It isn't helping them. It's teaching them they can do nothing.

College receives grant

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — Indian River State College has been awarded a grant to investigate the use of virtual reality to enhance teacher effectiveness and student achievement.

Ten sites across the country will participate in the national research project led by the University of Central Florida using TeachLivETM, a computer-simulated classroom using avatars replicating middle and high school students.

The grant includes $8,000 to IRSC provided by the University of Central Florida through the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation to assist with data analysis.

On the Treasure Coast, Indian River State College will work closely with 22 teachers from St. Lucie, Martin and Indian River counties to evaluate how TeachLive can be used to enhance teacher behaviors to support student learning.

The teachers have been observed by IRSC education faculty prior to using the multi-reality system and will be observed following sessions with the virtual reality program to determine changes in classroom management skills.

In addition to current teachers participating in the research project, college-level education students at IRSC also use the system to practice classroom management methods.

The TeachLive simulator allows teachers or teacher candidates to interact with real-time student avatars who exhibit the most challenging behaviors of middle-school students through a projection system.

The student avatars are controlled by "interactors," professionals trained in voice impersonations and developmentally appropriate behaviors, resulting in unscripted scenarios, including disruptions, giggling and non-speaking outbursts.

To create a realistic classroom environment, the students represent the five most common categories of behaviors common to middle school students as classified by psychologists: Sean. Always seeking affirmation (with a perpetually raised hand). Maria. Shying away from teachers and peers;

Cindy (CJ). Constantly testing authority.

Kevin. Looking for affirmation from other students, even if they misbehave.

Ed. Shy but willing.

"TeachLive provides a unique opportunity for teachers and education students to react to all types of classroom behavior, practice the best classroom management methods and positively impact student learning," said Marta Cronin, director of the IRSC School of Education.

IRSC offers bachelors in education degree programs in middle and high school math, middle-school science, high-school biology and exceptional student education.

Students gain a firm foundation in all aspects of teaching practice and complete students teaching at local schools during their senior year.

For more information, call (866) 792-4772 or visit www.irsc.edu.

ation company in 2008.

During a Dec. 18 meeting, county commissioners voted 3-2 to approve a new agreement that will allow the aircraft company to keep $2 million of the original $4 million granted in 2008 as the first payment of a $12 million benchmark-driven economic development incentive package.

The financial incentive package was offered to Piper to help retain the company and jobs in Vero Beach.

Piper could also keep the other $2 million moving forward if they meet certain levels of employment, specifically 600 employees through 2015.

County staff said there were three benchmarks given in the initial package, wages, capital investment and employment levels. Piper was able, even in a down economy, to meet and exceed the first two, but had to lay off workers, failing to meet the third criteria.

If the aircraft company does not meet the employment benchmark at the end of the next four calendar years, including 2012, it will be required to pay back the county $500,000 each year.

The county will not be required to hold the rest of the grant package, $8 million, for Piper either.

The state also joined in the effort to retain Piper and paid them $6.6 million with more promised if benchmarks similar to the county's were met. The state's agreement with Piper was also renegotiated, and $3.3 million is secure in Piper's coffers.

The state is requiring Piper retain 650 full-time employees through 2015 and if they do not, they will be required to repay 25 percent of the other $3.3 million each year, plus penalties.

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Thanks to the efforts of the Christians Clothing Children, a ministry of Christ by the Sea United Methodist Church, back-to-school clothing and supplies were provided to the school-age children at the Homeless Family Center.

This is the fourth year the

shopped for individual children.

Each CCC member was given a list of specific sizes needed, the child's favorite color and a special toy request.

The supplies were delivered to the excited and enthusiastic children at the center on Aug. 9.

Each child, ranging in age from 4 to 17, received a large personalized bin full of back-to-school essentials such as school pants, polo shirts, play outfits, pajamas, socks and underwear.

In addition, the children were given basic toiletry items such as deodorant, shampoo, a toothbrush, toothpaste, tissues and other personal hygiene articles.

The team also prepared and served dinner, all cooked with tender loving care for all the families at HFC.

The Rev. Cliff V. Melvin, pastor of Christ by the Sea and June Traylor, director of ministries, were on hand to help with presenting the bins to each child and serving dinner.

The Homeless Family Center is a nonprofit organization committed to changing lives one family at a time. The center, which is located at 720 Fourth St. in Vero Beach, is a partner agency of United Way, Treasure Coast Homeless Services Council and the Indian River County Children's Services Advisory Committee.

Commission Chairman Joe Flescher and Commissioner Bob Solari voted against the agreement, saying they were unsatisfied with the communications and Chairman Flescher said the original agreement had benchmarks and consequences for not meeting those benchmarks, also known as clawbacks, and he felt the original agreement needed to be followed and no break given for not meeting the employment benchmarks.

Audience with a queen from another lifetime

Storyteller marries humor, history with royal results

By Jessica Tuggle
jtuggle@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Story time with Cathryn Fairlee at The Emerson Center in Vero Beach won't be a time for picture books, friendly talking animals and sitting cross-legged on the floor.

Ms. Fairlee is a storyteller with more than 20 years of experience presenting spellbinding folk, historical and mythological tales to audiences around the globe. She will visit The Emerson Center on Jan. 4 at 5 p.m. to present "Queen Kateryn Parr Tells All."

The one-woman show will take the audience back in time and across the Atlantic Ocean to the end of the Tudor dynasty in England. There, Ms. Fairlee will share history, royal gossip and songs from the perspective of King Henry VIII's sixth and final queen.

Ms. Fairlee has been performing as a storyteller since 1982 and holds a master's degree in history with a thesis in Chinese storytelling. She is currently the editor of "Storytelling" magazine and teaches storytelling workshops, among other things.

When performing as "Queen Kateryn," Ms. Fairlee dresses in period clothing and incorporates accents to portray conversations with different characters, other than the queen.

Many hours of researching data available on the queen in history books and speaking with scholars went into preparing the presentation, including discovering how educated and clever she was, Ms. Fairlee said in an interview.

"She was kind, witty and educated. She was the first woman to have a book printed in England under her own name," Ms. Fairlee said.

She was responsible for getting then-princesses Mary and Elizabeth reinstated into the royal line of succession, directed a war against Scotland, tutored Queen Elizabeth, survived the king's anger and escaped beheading for heresy, Ms. Fairlee said.

Her presentation provides accurate history, but it's woven with humor and gossip from the perspective of the queen.

"History isn't about dates and places, it's about lives and the people that lived them," Ms. Fairlee said.

Cathryn Fairlee will present 'Queen Kateryn Parr Tells All' at The Emerson Center in Vero Beach on Jan. 4

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Healthy Families-IRC, a program of the Indian River County Healthy Start Coalition, held a Christmas party on Dec. 14 for participants of their program.

Healthy Families is a voluntary program that works with both pregnant women and families of newborns. Involvement in the program can last until the child is 5. The goal is to prevent child abuse through education and coordinated support to promote positive parent/child interaction and bonding.

The theme of the party was "The Polar Bear Express." Each child wore their favorite pajamas and enjoyed food and deserts. The children were entertained by storyteller Dena Scott who read the story of "The Polar Bear Express."

Decorations were donated by Lowe's. Face painter, Judy Sherako, produced beautiful creations on the children's faces and Santa Claus (board member Glen Tremml) arrived to meet with the children and pose for photos.

Gifts, donated by Toys for Tots, were distributed to the families and two bicycles donated by Teddy Floyd from the Indian River County Sheriff's Office were given away through drawings.

Sponsors of the event included: Vero Beach Woman's Club, Dr. Tremml, Dominos and Sam's Club.

Organizing the event were staff and volunteers including Keristan Hodge, Rosio Hurtado, Pam Miglino, Daisy Cano, Carmen Duhig, Toni McDaniel, Tomisha Lewis, Kayla Grant, Sue Carroll, Shirrecka Clemond, Dianna Ramos and Vickie Zamarripa.

Nonprofit launches respite program

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — The Alzheimer & Parkinson Association of Indian River County recently launched its "Care for the Caregiver" social respite program at Roseland Community Center on 12973 Bay St. in Sebastian.

The nonprofit organization is currently seeking program participants and volunteers to assist with Monday morning activities. Basic qualifications are to have a willingness to participate in fun activities and enjoy laughter.

The program, funded through a grant from John's Island Community Service League and a local philanthropist, is offered free of charge on Monday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon at the Roseland Community Center.

Designed to provide a positive environment for clients affected by memory disorders, the program also provides caregivers a three-hour window of relief from the care of loved ones. In addition to the Roseland location, the nonprofit organization also offers the program in Vero Beach and Gifford.

"Since our financial support is limited, we depend almost entirely on volunteers so that we can provide this program free of charge. This is a wonderful volunteer opportunity because we have non-stop fun from the moment our clients arrive," said Peggy Cunningham, executive director of Alzheimer & Parkinson Association.

"If you are looking to have fun for three hours, then this is the one for you."

The Alzheimer & Parkinson Association of Indian River County is an independent, nonprofit organization that is 100 percent supported through generous donations derived from grants, events, individuals and businesses.

Family to spend first Christmas in new house

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY — Noe and Virginia Gutierrez are excited about the coming holiday season. By Christmas, the young Habitat homebuyers will be in their very first, very own home in Habitat's Fellsmere neighborhood, Grace Meadows.

Ms. Gutierrez has lived in the north county community most of her life and her family is still there.

Mr. Gutierrez and his 5-year-old son, Noe Ezekiel, and Mrs. Gutierrez and her 10-year old daughter, Elizabeth Marron-Almanza, look forward to starting the New Year as a new, blended family. Adding to their joy will be the arrival of baby daughter, Galilea, due in January.

The Gutierrez's began their journey as Habitat homebuyers in February. They were familiar with Habitat through several of Mrs. Gutierrez's family members, who are Habitat homeowners living in Grace Grove.

Mrs. Gutierrez is eager for the chance to decorate her own place, choosing colors, furniture and décor.

"Elizabeth is so excited about having her own room," said Mrs. Gutierrez. "She has chosen posters already and has picked out her colors - fuchsia and black. It has been hard," she added. "We've been living with my mom, six of us sharing two rooms, for going on two years now."

Mr. Gutierrez works in the construction industry and looks forward to the start of his new life as a husband and dad in a place of their own. His parents, who live in Texas, will visit when Galilea is born.

By the time the dedication ceremony took place Dec. 15, the expectant mother found herself on doctor-instructed bed rest, as baby Galilea announced her eagerness to enter the world.

Accepting the key to their new home, and new life, Mr. Gutierrez and Elizabeth cut the ribbon and shared the day with friends, family and sponsors.

TREASURE COAST — The Florida Division of Emergency Management and Florida chapters of the American Red Cross will celebrate Severe Weather Awareness week Feb. 11-15.

This annual public awareness campaign provides an opportunity for teachers to educate students on the importance of being prepared in the event of severe weather.

Severe Weather Awareness week includes a poster contest for Florida's elementary school students and a video public service announcement contest for Florida's middle and high school students. This year, the poster contest will include seven winners selected from across the state. One winner each from middle and high school will be selected for the video PSA contest.

The poster contest is open to all elementary school students in Florida including private and charter schools and those enrolled in home-school programs. Posters should feature what severe weather in Florida means to the student. Poster submissions must be postmarked by Jan. 18 and sent to the Capitol Area Chapter of the Red Cross in Tallahassee. Winners for the contest will be announced Feb. 1. Details can be found at www.FloridaDisaster.org/s waw.

The video PSA contest is open to all Florida middle and high school students, including private and charter schools and those enrolled in home-school programs. Entries should be a 30-second public service announcement that incorporates a safety or preparedness message relating to the following "Know Your Zone" topics: flood zone, evacuation zone or storm-surge zone.

The winning video will be professionally re-produced for broadcast use by the Division of Emergency Management in its statewide public awareness campaign. Final digital videos should be submitted via the FDEM video portal at www.KidsGetAPlan.com. All entries must be uploaded by Jan. 18. Winning entries will be announced Feb. 1.

'Twelve Days of Christmas,' golf style

Merry Christmas! Happy Hanukkah! Happy Kwanzaa! Whatever your religious belief or absence thereof, I want to wish you and yours the very best this holiday season.

I love this time of year. It's a time for families and friends to be together a time for love and harmony.

As in many years past, we have friends, family, neighbors or even ourselves who will be celebrating this holiday season with a loved one serving overseas. Keep them in your thoughts and prayers, and set a seat aside at your table so that everyone who gathers with you will keep in mind the sacrifice these men and women are making for us.

Take the time to tell your loved ones how you feel about them. Take a moment to say hello to a stranger or make a new friend. Take a moment to give something back. We can all be heroes, even if all we give someone is a smile.

As tough as times are these days, there is still much to be thankful for. No matter how difficult things are, we still have each other. We still have our family, our friends and ourselves. If even for just a day, take a moment to think only of the wonderful gifts you have in life. Think of something or someone that makes you happy and hold that close.

At this time of year we all tend to be more human, more kind and more caring. My wish is that we would just keep and share this feeling for 12 months instead of only one.

With that said, I give you the "Twelve Days of Christmas," golf style.

On the first day of Christmas, Golf Santa gave to me, a one on an island par three.
