WELCOME!

The Saint Barth Weekly is happy to be back for its third season. The Weekly is designed for you, to help you put your finger on the pulse of the local community. Featuring an English résumé of the top stories of our French newspaper “Le Journal de Saint Barth”, as well as original articles in English, the Saint-Barth Weekly is the only completely English-language newspaper on the island. It comes out every Friday from November through the end of July. Our most exciting news is that each Friday, The Weekly is also available on line at Saint-Barth Online (www.st-barths.com), the wonderful web site that our friends Laurence and Peter O’Keefe created in 1996. Thanks to them, you can now download every edition of the Saint-Barth Weekly, so that no matter where you are in the world, you can stay in contact with the island.

DESCENT AT CARL GUSTAV III AIRPORT

The only airstrip on the island shows a decrease in activity for 2005

With 159,505 passengers in 2005 (arrivals and departures) compared to 161,598 in 2004, the level of traffic fell below the benchmark of 160,000 passengers maintained in recent years. And this number is far from 1997, the record-breaking year that saw 202,443 passengers! The number of landings and take-offs for commercial flights also diminished last year. “The total billing for commercial companies that use the airport was less than last year,” notes Antoine Laplace, director of the airport. This refers to the three principal airlines (Air Caraïbes, Winair, and St Barth Commuter) that fly in and out of St Barth. “This decrease was seen over almost every month of the year,” adds Laplace.

Fewer Inter-Island Connections

A 25-year veteran at the airport, Laplace explains that there are several factors that have caused this decrease, which had already started last year: “First of all, more and more services are available to the residents of the island than there were years ago. This means that they don’t have to travel as much. In the past, local residents had to go to St Martin more often. Another suggested explanation is the increase in ferry transportation. Since 2004, the Rapid Explorer has added new competition to the Voyager and the Edge in terms of ferrying people back and forth between St Martin and Saint Barth, from their point of departure at Pointe Blanche, on the Dutch side of the island. The three ferry companies now have a total of seven daily round-trips to St Barth, with ticket prices substantially less than the airlines (who are obliged to add various taxes to the price of their flights). Jérôme Montoya of SBTT, the representative for Rapid Explorer in St Barth, doubts that the new maritime service has taken away from airline traffic. “I think we have captured new clients who did not necessarily travel here in the past, but do now since there are more options that are more practical,” he says.

Planes and boats: more options

Bruno Magras, founder and director of the airline, St. Barth Commuter, is of another opinion: that the arrival of Rapid Explorer resulted in a loss of passengers for the airlines. “On the flight from Grand Case, where the majority of the local passengers transit, we lost almost 6000 clients last year, and they clearly took another option,” he says. “And last year, the Port saw an increase of 17% in the number of passengers that arrived by ferry,” he added.

On the other hand, St Barth Commuter showed an increase of 3.32 % in the number of passengers between de Juliana Airport and St Barth, where most of the international clients transit. Also, the number of flights (departures and arrivals) increases as well (16%) thanks to the creation of a freight service in conjunction with the company, Assistair. The company with the most passengers remains Winair, with a total of 68,250 people in 2005, slightly less than the year before. Next comes Air Caraïbes: with 48,800 passengers, which includes an increase of 8% for the number of passengers (25,300) from Pointe-à-Pitre in Guadeloupe but a decrease of 9% (23,500 against 25,300 people) from Sint Maarten. As for the level of tourism on the island: it is difficult to say, as there are no official statistics. “But we will have those statistics in the future,” says the mayor, “as we will begin to collect a visitor tax from hotels and seasonal rentals.” In addition, those arriving at the port and the airport should fill out an entry form.

Concerning safety, the airport has a rotation of five firemen, two of which are on duty every day. Antoine Laplace notes that the security measures for passengers and baggage will be increased with the use of X-Ray machines as requested by the French civil aviation authority. These should be in place by the end of the year.

Saint Barth Shuttle: new bus service for the island

Small gray shuttle buses for eight passengers (plus a driver) belonging to the company, Margauxtine, which runs Saint-Barth Shuttle, started their runs around the island as of Monday, January 30. This new transportation service is intended primarily for clients at the island's hotels as well as residents on a more limited basis, as anyone who wants to get on the bus must already have a ticket or pass. The idea is to serve two tourist circuits that correspond to the routes most frequently used (see below) and drop off passengers wherever they wish to go, either along the established routes or to a requested stop. The pick up can be arranged by a telephone call, or by simply signaling to the driver to stop along the road.

"The idea to start a bus service came from certain hotels, restaurants, and businesses whose clients were upset by the traffic jams and difficulty in finding a parking spot," explains David Vander-Noot, who launched the project. "The bus service allows people to travel when they want and will both reduce the number of cars along the roads, and free up parking places."

Four vehicles —Volkswagen minibus LT35s— have been put into service along two routes: the first heads west from Gustavia toward Flamands and Anse des Cayes. The other three buses will mostly travel on an Eastern route, from Gustavia as far as Toiny. The buses run daily from 9:00am to 1:00am. A round-trip ticket costs 10 euros, with a pass (minimum three days) at 10 euros per day for unlimited rides. Tickets are available at hotel reception desks or Saint-Barth Services, as well as at certain restaurants and boutiques on the island. If the bus service is essentially intended for tourists, residents can also take advantage of it in a limited fashion, as there are 100 resident passes available at a price of 75 euros per month. These can only be purchased at the Saint Barth Shuttle offices at the Mangliers in Saint Jean. For additional information: 05 90 29 44 19.

The president of Cartier International Visits the Northern Islands

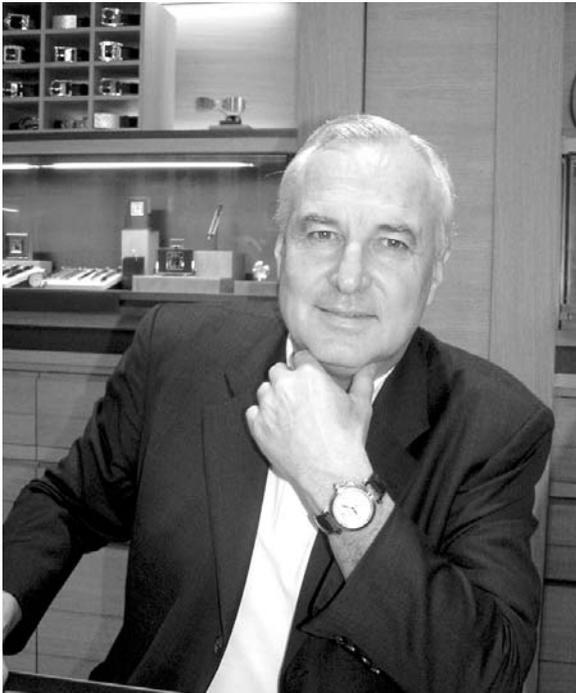

Exclusive interview exclusive: Bernard Fornas, president of Cartier International, stopped into the Cartier boutique in Saint Barth as part of a visit to the Caribbean region.

How many Cartier boutiques do you have in the Caribbean?

Bernard Fornas: A total of eight between St. Martin, St. Barth, St. Thomas, Nassau, Paradise Island, Grand Cayman, Aruba, and Cancun. Many of our clients vacation in the Caribbean. We should be available to them as they have more free time while traveling.

What is the reason for your trip to the region?

BF: I made it my goal to visit all of the Cartier boutiques in the world. This is the first time I have made a tour of all the boutiques in the region. This is important in order to have a global vision of our brand. In a few weeks, I will be in China, for a similar visit to the 14 Cartier stores that are there.

A former director of Baume & Mercier, Bernard Fornas is still part of the Richmond Group, and has been the president of Cartier International for almost four years.

Fourteen stores in China!

BF: Absolutely! Cartier is the top luxury brand found in China. We opened our first boutique there in 1992 and have accelerated the rhythm since 2000. Four or five additional Cartier boutiques will open there in 2006. We also have seven boutiques in Russia. Our next goal is India, which is an emerging market and taxes on luxury goods have been lowered. Seventy-five percent of all Indians have heard of Cartier, which has a strong reputation there since the days of the Maharajahs, who were among Cartier's earliest and most prestigious.

The fall of Communism seems to have been good for Cartier...

BF: In Russia, like in China, there is an unquenchable thirst for luxury goods. In all of these emerging markets, you have to be the first to establish a presence in order to get the best locations with enough space at a reasonable price. This philosophy has helped Cartier develop the exceptional world market it has today.

What is the secret of Cartier's success?

BF: Our response rate. Speed helps us work miracles. Cartier initiates new trends, and continually innovates. People copy us, but by the time they do, we have already moved on to something else, and the imitations are obsolete. At the same time, the company defends its values: creativity, quality, of course, boldness, a pioneering spirit, and solidarity. Our quickness to respond also allows us to vary our production rate, speeding up or slowing down, to meet the demands of the market.

OBITUARY: OLLE NYMAN

The mayor and municipal council are sad to report the death of Mr. Olle Nyman on Monday, January 30, 2006, in Sweden. Nyman was a great champion of the ongoing friendship between Saint Barth and Sweden, where he lived. He worked hard to help the population of Saint Barth rediscover its Swedish heritage, and present the Swedes with a look at their former possession. Monsieur Olle Nyman was an honorary citizen of Saint Barthélemy, a well-deserved honor, and he will be remembered for his efforts in favor of the island. To his family, his friends in Saint Barth, his friends in the association ASBAS, and all those who work toward maintaining the ties between our island and Sweden, we send our most sincere condolences and sympathy on this sad occasion.

FAREWELL BRUNO

Bruno Benedetti passed away on Tuesday, January 24 at 6:00am, in Martinique where he had been hospitalized since December. He is survived by his wife Tara, and his two young sons, Luca and Lance. Bruno, who was 48 years old, lived with his family in St. Barth for the past 12 years. Acclaimed as a chef, he was trained by some of the best addresses in France, including the prestigious restaurant, Lutetia in Paris, as well as the kitchens of Miramar in Biarritz that he ran for three years. In 1994, Bruno decided to come live and work in St. Barth, and proposed a new concept: a three-star Michelin experience at home. His idea was a winner and very successful in a short time. Guests in villas and aboard yachts were seduced by his intimate catering. Bruno also spent time in the United States as Tara is American. Le Journal de St Barth sends its condolences to all of Bruno's friends and family. A memorial ceremony will be held on Shell Beach, Friday, February 3, at sunset. Condolences and notes of sympathy can be sent via email to the following addresses: bb-chef@wanadoo.fr or stbarthschef@aol.com

De Bruyn Hospital Extension Planned Ground breaking in July

Left to right : Jo Félix, president of Fémur, Michel Questel of the Lions Club, deputy mayor Nicole Gréaux, Pierre Nuty, director of the hospitals in St. Barthélemy and St. Martin and Patrick Bordjel of the Rotary Club. The three associations that continually raise funds to help the hospital purchase equipment.

"The year 2006 is an important one for the Hospital De Bruyn," says Pierre Nuty, the director of the hospitals of St Martin and St Barth, who has announced that work on renovations and a new wing will begin as of July. This work is necessary for the local hospital whose activity increased by 34 % in 2005. The collaboration with the hospital in St Martin was solidified this year with the rotation of various specialists who come to St Barth every week.

Soon a retirement facility
A third doctor has also been on duty since September. "This allows the doctors to work in pairs," notes Nicole Gréaux, deputy mayor responsible for social welfare. Also, the post of head nurse was filled after the last person in the job left. The hospital has faced a lot of changes and new problems to deal with on a daily basis. Yet the staff has done an "exceptional job," notes Nuty and Gréaux. The other big news for 2006 is a project to build a structure with housing for senior citizens: a project that has met with approval by the board of directors. "The plans have to be drawn up, but the building will be built on land reserved by the hospital," indicated Nuty.

A brief overview:

The Hospital de Bruyn, in Gustavia, offers non-urgent treatment for the local population. In the case of emergency medical care, it is attached to the SAMU (emergency medical service) in Pointe-à-Pitre and the SMUR (mobile emergency and resuscitation service) in Saint Martin. The hospital has a staff of 32 people, and includes three doctors. There are 10 beds (three for surgery have been allotted but are not installed yet); there are also seven beds for long-term care that are primarily used too house senior citizens. The hospital was created in 1933, under the initiative of Father Irénée de Bruyn. It was ceded to the departmental diocese in 1970, and transformed into a public facility run by the municipality in 1991.

Pierre Kunz The Spirit of Challenge

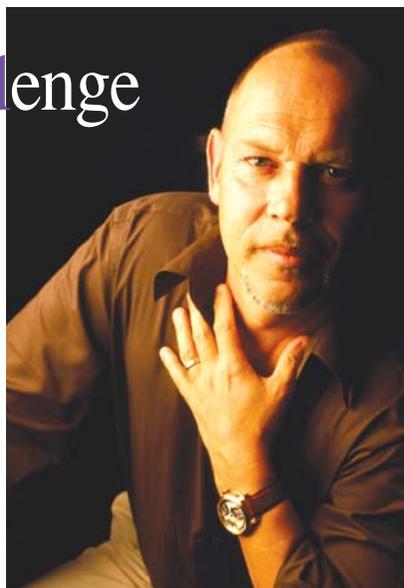

*Model B 002 STR
Triple second hand
retrograde watch*

Making a name for oneself in the often-impenetrable watchmaking industry is no simple task. Master watchmaker Pierre Kunz has not only succeeded in launching his own brand of complicated timepiece... he has even made it look easy. Born in Bern, Switzerland, in 1959, Pierre Kunz has been involved in the watch-making industry for more than twenty years. After completing his studies at the celebrated Vallée de Joux watch-making school, he worked for a number of years in the workshops of Victorin Piguet, where he constructed a variety of complicated movements from start to finish. Although he would later open his own business restoring antique clocks, it was not long before he returned to some of Switzerland's leading watch brands, his first love. Kunz was given the opportunity of a lifetime when Franck Muller offered him the chance to create his own models at the famous Watchland Park at Genthod, a location perpetually associated with creativity. Overlooking the shores of Lake Geneva, directly opposite Mont Blanc, Watchland is home to a host of master craftsmen and talented artisans dedicated to maintaining Switzerland's time-honored watch-making traditions. Taking a leaf from the major watchmakers' book, the Watchland Group is quickly becoming a mini-conglomerate of the high-quality horology brands.

For his second exposition at the World Expo of high-quality horology, Pierre

Pierre Kunz

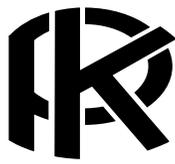

Kunz presented his triple second hand retrograde watch. An extraordinary timepiece of staggering mechanism, it offers a rare and dynamic way of telling time. Each third of the minute seems to activate the next and so on, indefinitely. The complexity comes from the movement of the three retrograde hands. Two function in a clockwise direction, and the third in the reverse direction, in such a way that each causes the other to move.
