Special Duty Pay Rates Change

From Navy Personnel Command Public Affairs

A Navy message released Nov. 22 announced revisions in special duty assignment pay (SDAP). NAVADMIN 356/11 lists updated SDAP levels for active-duty and Reserve component full-time support and qualified selected Reserve Sailors on active duty. Increases to existing SDAP levels are effective immediately and reductions are effective 60 days from release of NAVADMIN 356/11.

Sailors whose SDAP will be eliminated will receive half of their previous SDAP entitlement for 12 months, or until the Sailor completes the tour, whichever comes first. The SDAP program is an incentive pay ranging from $75 to $450 a month used to entice qualified Sailors to serve in designated billets that are considered extremely difficult or entail arduous duty. Program levels change to reflect the current environment associated with each billet and to sustain adequate manning levels.

In order to qualify for SDAP, Sailors must be assigned to and working in a valid billet on the Command Manpower Authorization Listing. This billet must be authorized by the Bureau of Naval Personnel as a special duty assignment billet. Commands holding SDAP billets are required to complete an annual recertification. NAVADMIN 356/11 supersedes previously released SDAP rates.

More than 25,000 Sailors currently receive SDAP. Sailors can read OPNAVINST 1160.6 and talk with their command career counselor to learn more about SDAP.

The raccoons exhibited signs of rabies, but were disposed of before tests could be completed.

As a precaution, pet owners should use caution with their animals and be certain that each has received current rabies immunization shots from a licensed veterinarian.

According to The Humane Society, raccoons are one of four wild animals (along with the fox, skunk, and bat) considered primary carriers of the rabies virus in the United States. If you see a raccoon in your yard during the day, don't panic—it's perfectly normal for raccoons to be active throughout the day. Key in on the behavior of the raccoon before calling for assistance. Look for:

- Staggering gait.
- An animal oblivious to noise or nearby movement.
- Erratic wandering.
- Discharge from eyes or mouth; watery-looking face.

If you find a raccoon exhibiting any of these signs call 219-2178.

New Captain For Carney

From USS Carney

Sailors assembled on the flight deck just after morning colors aboard guided-missile destroyer USS Carney (DDG 64) on Nov. 23 to participate in the time-honored tradition of a change of command ceremony. The ceremony was held pier side during a port visit to Manama, Bahrain.

Cmdr. Richard Field was relieved by Cmdr. Marc Boran as commanding officer of USS Carney (DDG 64).

Capt. Edward Cashman, Commodore of Destroyer Squadron 50, was the special guest for the ceremony. Cashman gave Cdr. Field the Meritorious Service Medal for his exceptional performance and dedication to duties as the commanding officer of USS Carney (DDG 64).

After 15 months of command, Field reflected on the many accomplishments of Carney as an integral player in NATO's complex and demanding anti-piracy mission. He spoke of Carney's new NATO nickname, "police-men of the IRTC," with great pride and honor in his voice. He emphasized that Carney is "a very special ship with a special crew, with camaraderie like no other destroyer in the fleet." Carney's Sailors were proud to honor their outgoing Captain and welcome the new Captain in this special ceremony.

Field will report to OPNAV in Arlington, Va., for his next assignment.

Boran left his most recent post at Personnel Command in Millington to assume command of Carney. Boran expressed his appreciation for a thorough turnover and such a warm welcome when he arrived to the ship. He also expressed his enthusiasm about leading the sailors of USS Carney.

"I am privileged to be able to accept command of Carney and to be able to lead this team of hard working professional sailors through the many challenges that lay ahead," said Boran.

Carney is currently deployed as part of the Standing NATO Maritime Group, participating in Operation Ocean Shield in the Fifth Fleet area of responsibility.

Florida Bright Futures Online Application Opens Today

Judy Cromartie
School Liaison Officer

For students anticipating graduation in June 2012, today marks the first day they can go online to complete the application for the Bright Futures Scholarships and other state loans and grants. Go to www.FloridaStudentFinancialAid.org, select "State Grants, Scholarships & Applications" and then select "Apply Here." The completion of the Initial Student Florida Financial Aid Application gives the Florida Department of Education permission to evaluate the student's high school transcript and test scores for eligibility for state scholarships and grants.

KNOWING THE ROPES

General eligibility requirements include the following:

- Be a Florida resident and a U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen.

- Pursue an undergraduate degree at an eligible Florida postsecondary institution.

- Begin using the scholarship funds within three years of high school graduation (Unless enlist directly in the military after high school graduation. Then the three-year period begins upon date of separation from active duty.).

- Have not been found guilty or have pled not contest to a felony charge.

- Be enrolled for at least six non-remedial semester credit hours.

A major change to this year's process is the submission of a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). This is now a REQUIREMENT for Bright Futures eligibility. Up until now, the FAFSA was required for any federal financial aid, including Pell Grants, Perkins and Stafford loans, and work-study. Florida has now joined several states and many school financial aid programs which require the FAFSA.

The online Florida Financial Aid Application is a self-reported document. The student can use his transcript from last June to complete the application. All information will be verified when the district uploads his first semester grades and courses in January of 2012. However, families sometimes need additional help when completing a FAFSA for the first time.

To get help with the in's and out's of completing the FAFSA, plan to attend the Parent Program on Financial Aid, scheduled for January 26th in the new CDC (off Assisi), Building 2287 from 6:00 pm - 8:00 pm. The speaker Clarence Richardson is a retired US Navy Lt. Commander and enrollment specialist for FSCJ. He is the area expert on all aspects of financial aid. Andrea Reese, Military OneSource consultant, will present the military side of financial aid, and I will provide additional information on the available Florida Financial Aid Application.

In the meantime, go online to www.FloridaStudentFinancialAid.org for additional information on the Bright Futures Application. Starting with the 2011-2012 high school graduates, more community service hours will be required for the scholarships. Learn how to create a PIN (Personal Identification Number) online. This year the state will not be sending acceptance letters by mail so it is important for students to know how to check the status of their application and award online.

Funding for the scholarship does not begin until the fall term following high school graduation. Scholarship recipients are not eligible for funding during the summer term immediately following high school graduation. The academic year begins in the fall and ends in the summer. Summer disbursements are only made if funds are available. You can check the website each year for summer funding information.

Thanksgiving Reminds Us To Be Grateful

Lt. Karen Rector
Surface Force Ministry
Center

1Chronicles 16:34 Oh, give thanks to the LORD, for He is good! For His mercy endures forever.

It's that time of year again, time for the holidays. We begin with Thanksgiving, followed by Christmas, then a new year when we make a resolution, which is usually followed by the breaking of our resolution. But let's begin with Thanksgiving.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

As a kid I loved Thanksgiving, probably because we got out of school early and it meant that Christmas was just around the corner, but I also loved the fact that all of my mother's brothers and sisters and about 20 first cousins would gather for a night of laughter, games and feasting. Oh yeah, us kids would also draw names for our Christmas gathering.

Throughout the years, the Thanksgiving and Christmas gatherings don't happen as often as they did when I was a kid. All the cousins have grown up and have families of their own, some have moved away, a few family members have passed away, but we still try and gather everyone we can from time to time. And, we all still have our wonderful memories of those holiday's past and for that I am truly Thankful.

What are you thankful for this holiday season?

Many may feel there is nothing to be thankful for. There is no doubt that times seem to be much more difficult right now, but that doesn't mean there aren't still things to be grateful for.

I am grateful for such wonderful memories of family gatherings. I am thankful that I get to gather with family and friends this Thanksgiving for the first time in four years.

I am thankful that God has allowed me to work in a career where I can help people who are going through a tough time. I am thankful for the people in my life, past, present, and future that God has blessed and will bless me with knowing.

I am thankful for those difficult times in life, because I learned that God never left me and always blessed me through my adversities.

What are you thankful for?

If you are struggling this holiday season keep this quote in mind, "Can you see the holiness in those things you take for granted - a paved road or a washing machine? If you concentrate on finding what is good in every situation, you will discover that your life will suddenly be filled with gratitude, a feeling that nurtures the soul."

- Rabbi Harold Kushner
May God bless you and keep you, and may you always have a thankful heart.

Reading Lists Promote Personal, Professional Growth

By Donna Miles

American Forces Press Service

Legend has it that Alexander the Great slept with a copy of The Iliad, Homer's epic tale set during the Trojan War, under his pillow.

Almost 2,500 years later, professional reading remains an important part of the military culture. Every service, most professional military schools and an increasing number of geographic and combatant commands offer up reading programs and reading lists as part of their professional development efforts.

In fact, many have multiple reading lists, aimed at different groups within the military at different ranks and stages of their careers.

Navy Adm. James G. Stavridis, commander of U.S. European Command and NATO's supreme allied commander for Europe, recently took this initiative to a new level with an online video encouraging all of his command to check out the Eucom reading list.

The list is divided into sections with books about different phases of European history, culture and languages, as well as works of literary fiction that provide insight into European culture.

"This reading list is your gateway to really understanding the sea in which you swim when you are part of U.S. European Command," Stavridis said in his video. "I would say, if you want to help us be stronger together, spend a little time on the U.S. European Command reading list."

Stavridis, a voracious reader who majored in English at the U.S. Naval Academy, is a trailblazer in using a video to emphasize the importance of off-duty professional reading. And by encouraging all members of his command to participate -- not just senior officers and non-commissioned officers -- he's part of a growing chorus of military leaders who promote reading as a route to professional and personal growth.

The Army chief of staff's professional reading list, for example, consists of titles that provoke critical thinking about professional soldiering and the role of land power. It also encourages analysis of the past to provide a better understanding of today's Army and the future of the profession of arms.

Army Gen. Martin E. Dempsey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, shared his own recommended reading list while he served as the Army chief of staff.

Dempsey always has been a soldier-scholar, earning a master's degree in English at Duke University and teaching English at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

So it's not surprising that, in addition to volumes on the art of warfare and specific military engagements, he encouraged Army leaders to read books that provide insight into broader issues such as geopolitics and globalization.

Similarly, the chief of naval operations' reading list includes history, fiction, inspirational and patriotic titles, as well as classics on military strategy and theory. According to the Navy Professional Reading Program website, selected volumes are designed to provide readers a deeper understanding and appreciation for naval heritage, the profession of arms and the complex modern world in which they operate.

The Air Force chief of staff reading list consists of 14 books divided into three categories: leadership, strategic context and military heritage. Titles are selected to inform readers about Air Force history, analyze ongoing conflicts and their relevancy to the future, inspire readers with success stories and provide lessons learned from conflicts.

In the same vein, the Marine Corps commandant's reading list is developed to enrich readers' knowledge and understanding of war. As of July 8, every Marine is required to read "First to Fight: An Insider View of the U.S. Marine Corps," by retired Marine Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak. In addition, by regulation, every Marine is required to read "a minimum of one book per grade per year."

A new reading list, called the Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps Library, includes 54 titles selected to capture the Corps' history, culture and evolution.

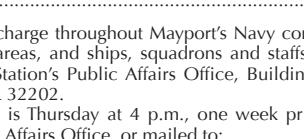

The list, developed by Sgt. Maj. of the Marine Corps Michael Barrett in cooperation with the Marine Corps

Association, includes almost two dozen books on Marine Corps Commandant Gen. James F. Amos' professional reading list. But it also features books about professionalism, sacrifice and camaraderie in the face of challenge throughout history.

Among myriad other reading lists is the Joint Forces Staff College commandant's list, with recommended books on joint and multinational operations past and present and volumes on leadership and command.

New Online Portal For DoD Beneficiaries

By Cheryl Pellerin

American Forces Press Service

A range of information about Defense Department benefits information and eligibility is now available online, the director of the Defense Manpower Data Center said yesterday.

Two new online efforts - milConnect and eCorrespondence - give beneficiaries 24/7 access to personnel information; the ability to update information related to health, education and other benefits; and e-mail notifications about changes in benefits, Mary Dixon told American Forces Press Service.

"At the Defense Manpower Data Center, one of our many responsibilities is to be the interface with beneficiaries, especially on benefits and eligibility for benefits," Dixon said.

MilConnect, available online and through a mobile application for the Android smart phone, was known for a year as the mydodbenefits website.

The revamped mil-

Connect site is available online, around-the-clock,

to all DOD beneficiaries and their spouses and children age 18 or older.

Users can sign on in several ways, Dixon said.

Anyone who has a common access card,

a Defense Finance and

Accounting Services

myPay account logon, or

a DOD Self-Service or DS

logon can sign in on the MilConnect website, or apply at the site for a DS logon.

MilConnect information comes from the Defense Enrollment

Eligibility System called

DEERS. Eligible users are active duty, National Guard and Reserve members; and military retirees, spouses and eligible family members age 18 and older.

Sponsors can view

information about all dependents listed in

DEERS but eligible dependents can see only their own information,

unless accommodations are made for spouse, legal guardian or caregiver access.

Beneficiaries who use

milConnect, Dixon said, can update DEERS contact information, manage health care enrollments, locate the nearest military ID card issuing facility, view personnel information, transfer education benefits to eligible family members, view group life insurance information, and manage other information.

Army National Guard, Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard can update civilian employment information.

The mobile application works today on Android phones, but Dixon said her center is in the process of making MilConnect available for iPhones and other smart phones and mobile devices.

The smart phone app lets users find sites for the Real-time Automated Personnel Identification System called RAPIDS, where military members receive new ID cards, military treatment facilities, and contact information for Tricare regional offices.

Related to milConnect, Dixon said, is an initiative called eCorrespondence that will use e-mail notifications of changes in benefits rather than postal service letters for active-duty service members and National Guard and Reserve service members on periods of active duty.

E-mail notifications will be sent to the e-mail address associated with a service member's common access card, Dixon said.

Beginning this month, service members will receive e-mail notifications of a change in Tricare primary-care manager, of potential eligibility changes when a child turns 21 or 23, and of the ability to view or print a Tricare enrollment card and welcome letter

after enrollment into a Tricare medical or dental program.

The e-mail notifications will refer service members to the milConnect web portal.

Service members will be able to check Tricare eligibility and information through the MilConnect portal, whether or not they receive an e-mail notification.

Dixon said service members also can opt out of the e-mail notifications.

"We're hoping to continue to expand both the things that we let you know by e-mail ... and to expand to other kinds of benefits changes and to additional populations," she said, including retirees.

"It's a little bit hard with retirees because we don't necessarily know their e-mail addresses," she added. "But that's something they can enter into the system on milConnect."

Vicksburg Families Spend Day At Sea

By Paige Gnann

The Mirror editor

Friends and families of USS Vicksburg (CG 69) got the opportunity to experience a day in the life of their Sailor while underway with the ship during a Friends and Family Day Cruise on Nov. 18.

The ship sailed approximately 40 miles off the coast of Mayport to give guests a chance to watch the Close-in Weapons System (CIWS) and the 5-inch guns. It also gave guests a chance to see how their Sailors cope in all kinds of weather.

It's not all blue skies and calm waves during a day at sea and that held true for the Family Day Cruise. With six to eight-foot waves rocking the cruiser, families got a chance to experience one of the harder parts of being a Sailor.

"I think this is a great opportunity for the friends and family of Vicksburg Sailors," said Barbara Bartley, wife of Lt. Joe Bartley. "They get to see the ship and see what their spouse or significant other - or their kids - to see what they do every day. It's great. I think it's important to support your family."

The day was filled with activities such as a tour of the main areas of the ship, including the bridge. There was a Visit, Board, Search and Seizure (VBSS) and Damage

Farragut Spotlighted On Veterans' Day Special

Veterans' Day is a day that our country honors those who have served in our military; many different companies and individuals have gone out of their way to honor current and former service members. USS Farragut and her officers and Sailors were showcased by HLN (formerly CNN Headline News) over Veterans' Day weekend. The production crew and HLN "Morning Express" host Robin Meade visited the ship about a month ago to bring attention to life aboard a Navy destroyer to be televised in their "Salute to Troops: Stories of Courage" special.

"I couldn't believe how genuinely nice she was; she asked me where I was from and thanked me for the job we do, and gave me a big hug!" exclaimed Sonar Technician 3rd Class Sarah Gladstone, who was also interviewed for a "shout out" to her husband, who is currently deployed overseas.

HSL-42, SBR Perform Sub PAXFER

By Lt. Jennifer Holsclaw and Lt. Julia Peterson

HSL-42

HSL-42 Det One "Yellow Bellied Sliders," currently deployed with the USS Samuel B. Roberts (FFG 58), recently had the opportunity to help out a fellow Sailor.

While flying surface surveillance coordination, Proud Warrior 431 was called on to conduct a personnel transfer for humanitarian reasons. Having previously conducted several passenger transfers and medical evacuations during the deployment, the crew dismissed the idea of a routine event when they were informed the transfer would be from a submarine. USS Georgia (SSGN 729) requested assistance in the transfer of a Sailor who urgently needed to return home to his family.

USS Georgia was unable to leave their station, so USS Samuel B. Roberts immediately began to close Georgia's position at best speed. After calculating time and distance to the submarine, it was decided that the transfer would take place the following morning in lieu of a night transfer. The crew reviewed submarine transfer procedures and prepared themselves to execute this unique mission. After conducting a thorough preflight brief, Proud Warrior 431 launched just after sunrise and headed toward USS Georgia.

The combination of winds and sea state were not ideal for the transfer. The course that gave the submarine the most stable deck required a downwind recovery from the starboard sail plane. The preferred recovery from the missile deck would have required a compromise between a headwind component for the helicopter and bow seas for the submarine. Unfortunately, waves crashing over the bow and the missile deck were cause for concern for the Sailors who were required to be on deck. After close coordination, the submarine maneuvered to place the winds directly off the bow, providing a more stable deck while also providing a headwind component for the helicopter.

The helicopter set up for the approach at approximately one-half mile and 200 feet. Proud Warrior 431 established a 30-foot steady hover, conned into position by the senior aircrewman, Chief Air Warfare Rescue Scott Wade. On deck below the helicopter were the Transfer Petty Officer and the passenger. Three other safety observers were on deck, next to the Dry Dock Shelter (DDS) just aft of the sail.

Once in position, the junior aircrewman, Air Warfare Rescue Airman Robert Dukes, was lowered to the deck of USS Georgia. Upon arrival on deck, Dukes attached a seabag to the rescue hoist and stayed on deck to give the passenger a safety brief for the upcoming return to the "Sammy B." Dukes connected himself to the hoist, and then the passenger to himself, and both were lifted off deck. Once safely inside the cabin, Proud Warrior 431 was cleared for forward flight and departed to conduct an uneventful landing on "Sammy B."

USS Samuel B. Roberts Visits Israel

By Lt.j.g. K. Matthew Wall

USS Samuel B. Roberts PAO

USS Samuel B. Roberts visited the Northern Israeli city of Haifa, Nov. 15 -18, to enjoy a few days of liberty after their November 14 Suez Canal transit, which marked the fifth month point of their deployment.

The crew took advantage of many opportunities to tour not only Haifa, but the ancient cities of Jerusalem and Nazareth. The ship's Morale, Welfare and Recreation offered two days of guided tours to the historic cities for an experience of a lifetime.

Information Systems Technician 2nd Class (SW) Ryan Etheridge, Lt. Mark Berglund, Israeli Police Officer, Cryptologic Technician Technical 2nd Class Alex Griffin, Sonar Technician Surface 2nd Class Justin Salem, and Fire Controlman 3rd Class Gregory Hand pose outside the Western Wall in Jerusalem, Israel.

It was a chance to walk and see the Old City and childhood home of Jesus.

Haifa afforded the crew many chances to experience Israel within walking distance. From the pier Sailors could walk to the historic district of the German Colony and unwind with a nice meal or drink.

"It was nice just to get out and see some sights and eat some food," said Petty Officer Marcus Ellis, "despite the raining weather we endured I was still able to enjoy the city in relaxation."

In Jerusalem, Sailors toured Temple Mount, Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Western Wall, the Garden of Gethsemane and the Mount of Olives.

Lt.j.g. Wesley Kuehlthau said of the trip, "The sight from the Mount of Olives at dusk was pretty overwhelming. The entire city was illuminated to make an awesome sunset panoramic picture."

Petty Officer Second Class Ryan Bagtas expressed how moving his walk was through the Church of the Holy Sepulchre saying, "Just to walk in the footsteps of Jesus Christ was a surreal event."

Sailors also visited Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee about an hour east of Haifa.

When asked about the tour to the Biblical locations Chief Petty Officer Jeffrey Matus said, "The tour to Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee was amazing. To visit places where Jesus first held mass at the Synagogue of Peter and the journey to the River Jordan where Jesus was baptized were truly humbling."

He also said, "The experience at the Sea of Galilee was indescribable."

Exam Readiness Reviews Offer Chiefs Unique Insights

By Ed Barker

Naval Education and Training Command Public Affairs

Active duty Navy chiefs (E7 to E9) interested in shaping the future of the fleet should mark their calendars for the 2012 Advancement Examination Readiness Reviews (AERRs) announced Nov. 21 in Naval Administrative Message (NAADMIN) 352-11.

AERR participants serve as fleet subject matter experts (FSMEs) for their respective ratings and review and develop E4 - E7 rating advancement exams. The two-week reviews are held throughout the year with each specific rating being reviewed about every two years. The reviews are held at the Naval Education and Training Professional Development Technology Center (NETPDT) at Saufley Field in Pensacola, Fla. Participants receive temporary additional duty (TAD) orders from their parent command, paid for by NETPDT.

"We use fleet subject matter experts (FSMEs) and draw from commands throughout the fleet including the schoolhouses and learning centers to ensure the test bank questions reflect the latest technology and techniques," said Tom Updike, enlisted exam team leader at the Navy Advancement Center.

The chiefs that have participated know they're helping to develop 21st century leaders and have given us feedback that their participation has been an invaluable experience."

Senior Chief Yeoman (AW/SCW/FMF) Julie Long, Administration department leading chief petty officer for the Blue Angels, volunteered for an upcoming AERR that takes place right after Thanksgiving.

"I saw the NAVADMIN announcing the exam reviews, and since we just finished our show season, it fit my timeline perfectly," said Long. "I knew it would be great for my own professional development and will help me be a better counselor. Seeing how the exam development process works and how the questions are chosen will give me the insight to recommend good study habits and research methods for my Sailors."

Nominations must be endorsed by the commanding officer or officer in charge, as well as the command master chief, senior chief or chief of the boat for submission to NETPDT. Six nominees will be selected for each rating scheduled during the AERR. NETPDT will coordinate with respective rating learning centers and community sponsors to select the best nominees. Selections of FSMEs for the AERRs will be made 45 days prior to each review and selectees will be notified by NETPDT via e-mail.

"The knowledge that our fleet experts bring to the reviews provides the relevance required to construct an exam that identifies a Sailor with the right skills to select for advancement," said Master Chief Electrician's Mate (SS) Jeromie Cook, NETPDT command master chief. AERRs give chiefs a direct and tangible input toward shaping their community - participants have a say in who their replacement will be."

Additional information, including the latest AERR schedule and application details can be found in NAVADMIN 352-11.
