

Gburg Commits To Help Wounded

By Ensign
Kiley Provenzano

More than a decade of war in Iraq and Afghanistan has left tens of thousands of Americans with wounds - visible and invisible - that require long-term treatment and support. Across the nation, businesses, non-profits, and individuals have stepped up to serve these warriors and their families as they have served this country.

On June 21 at Naval Station Mayport, that support grew even stronger. Guided-missile cruiser USS Gettysburg's (CG 64) crew and their Family Readiness Group (FRG) launched a unique partnership with the USS Gettysburg Commanding Officer, Capt. Brad Cooper, Navy Wounded Warrior/Safe Harbor Southeastern regional Officer in Charge Lt. Chet Frith, and Family Readiness Group service team leader Stephanie Easley cut a yellow ribbon to symbolize the commitment between the crew and families of the guided-missile cruiser USS Gettysburg and Navy Wounded Warrior aboard the cruiser during a ceremony on June 21.

Southeast region's Navy Wounded Warrior-Safe Harbor office. "This is the first time a command has actively reached out to Navy Wounded Warrior-Safe Harbor here in the Jacksonville area. The program assists veterans who have suffered a catastrophic injury or illness," said Lt. Chet Frith, who leads Navy Wounded Warrior-Safe Harbor efforts in Navy Region Southeast.

Navy Wounded Warrior has recently helped families recover from what could easily be a life altering injury or illness. The program allows the service members and their families to focus on recovery. Lt. Frith's team supports 15 local families in the Jacksonville area and over 140 families within the southeastern region, providing non-medical care services for veterans or connecting them and their families with the services that will make their recovery easier.

After assembling more than 40 volunteers to assist one Sailor and his family in desperate need, the biggest message conveyed was that they were not alone, said Lt. Frith. "I told him to look outside at the people who came to help and that he didn't need to worry about his family. We've got it."

Providing that same relief, support and comfort will be exactly how this partnership flourishes. Gettysburg's crew is committed to the long-term support of Jacksonville-area veterans. While the ship is deployed, Gettysburg's Family Readiness Group will dedicate a portion of its volunteer efforts to assist the Navy Wounded Warrior program within Jacksonville and help the families of wounded veterans in the area.

"I'm looking forward to the opportunity to support Sailors, veterans and their families," said Stephanie Easley, Gettysburg FRG service team leader, "We just hope to do whatever we can to assist with absolutely anything they need us to do."

Gettysburg is assigned to Commander, Carrier Strike Group 10 and the Harry S. Truman Carrier Strike Group.

Clinic Works Around Furlough

By Tami Begasse
Naval Hospital Jacksonville Public Affairs Officer

Naval Hospital Jacksonville—its hospital and five branch health clinics (BHCs) in Albany, Jacksonville, Key West, Kings Bay and Mayport—will continue to support the health and well being of its patients throughout Florida and Georgia during the furlough of approximately 660 civilian employees. The furlough will not affect hours of operation at any location.

"Keeping Sailors and Marines—our nation's heroes—healthy and fit to fight continues to be our first priority," said Naval Hospital Jacksonville Commanding Officer Capt. Gayle Shaffer. "Like all of Navy Medicine, we will continue to meet our operational requirements in support of our warfighters and their families at our hospital and branch health clinics across the region."

Because it's critical that decreased staffing caused by the furloughs not compromise the ability to provide patients with high-quality care, some non-emergency, non-urgent care may be delayed or referred to the TRICARE network. Patients may also experience longer than usual wait times. Other cost-cutting measures already in place include limiting travel, delaying cosmetic facility renovations and non-critical equipment purchases, and eliminating civilian merit pay awards. Additionally, military staff will be redistributed and civilian staff furlough days will be staggered to align with patient care needs.

"People are our most important asset and we are extremely proud of and highly value the important contributions of our civilian workforce," Shaffer said. "It's most devastating to all of our civilian employees who are required to stay home in a non-pay status one day a week from July 8 through Sept. 21. It also affects our military staff who will be redistributed throughout our facilities to opti-

Navy Diver 1st Class John T. Hanson and Navy Diver 2nd Class Robert S. Klingaman, assigned to Southeast Regional Maintenance Center (SERMC), were awarded Bronze Star Medals on June 25 in Jacksonville, Fla.

The medals were awarded for meritorious service in connection with a highly sensitive special operation critical to the national defense of the United States while the Sailors were attached to Naval Special Warfare Group 3.

"I love serving my country and I have thoroughly enjoyed the experiences I've had in the Navy. To be recognized for my small contribution is greatly appreciated," said Hanson.

Commander of the Navy Regional Maintenance Command (CNRMC) Rear Adm. David J. Gale presented the awards to the Sailors.

"This was the first time in my career I've had the pleasure of presenting a Bronze Star and it was a real honor to be able to present this prestigious award to two Sailors now in the maintenance community and publicly acknowledge their outstanding service," said Gale.

Well, yes and no. This week the media is voraciously following the developing story of a superstar athlete being charged with murder.

Questions are being asked, "How can someone who has the life many of us dream of, jeopardize it?" It is not an uncommon story is it? We can all reflect other similar stories of the rich, the famous, living the outwardly idyllic lives suddenly turned upside down. In the story currently being played out in the media, the speculation has led to the belief that our superstar athlete was hanging with the wrong crowd; in fact, he may never have left the "wrong crowd" from his hometown. Perhaps he is where he is because of misguided loyalty to individuals of dubious character.

True or not, I don't know. But I do know that many a shipmate of mine has stood before the CO and his "green table" to answer for conduct that would not normally be associated with him/her. I do know that many careers of Navy Sailors have come to an end because of moments of bad judgment, poor influence, and selection of friends. Many a career has plunged in flames as a Sailor has endeavored to protect or maintain loyalty towards peers who have made poor ethical choices. More than a few Sailors have spent time in foreign brigs because they chose liberty partners poorly or failed to exercise courage and accountability under peer pressure. It may seem unfair but the truth is that society at large will judge us, right or wrong, by those we affiliate with.

I have no data, (perhaps some sociological experiment should be undertaken), but I suspect those that we largely regard as life success stories were careful in the selection of people they chose to surround themselves with. They were discerning with whom they gave their loyalty to and from whom they received loyalty. I can't speak for society at-large but I can speak from 15 years of experience as a Chaplain in the Navy. One piece of free advice for the next seaman recruit, if you want to be successful in this Navy and in this life, choose your friends very carefully. Be mindful of the sphere of influence you build around yourself and with whom you associate. And most definitely, be discerning to whom you offer your loyalty.

We celebrated the birthday of one of the most remarkable nations that has ever been blessed by God on the Fourth of July. For those of us that wear the uniform as well as our civilians who serve our Armed Forces, it is appropriate for us to honor and acknowledge the sacrifices that our brethren have made through the centuries for our country. We acknowledge and honor passionate loyalty to these United States. Names like Paul Revere, George Washington, and John Paul Jones easily come to mind. But as we explore this issue of loyalty, don't forget names like Manning, Snowden and Benedict Arnold; individuals who undoubtedly justified their actions and believed themselves loyal to something or someone.

As we engage in the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness, remember that to whom and what we offer our loyalty will play largely in your ability to find success.

A New School Year Is Just Around The Corner

problems this school year.

Here are some ideas, along with advice from Adele Brodtkin, Ph.D. (a senior child development consultant for Scholastic), on how to start the new school year with a positive attitude.

Getting Started

The feeling of starting a new school year could be lost on younger kids so Dr. Brodtkin recommends introducing the concept of goal-setting to upper elementary-age children (say grades 3 and up). "Start by talking about your own goals," she says. "What are you going to do? Share them with your child and explain why you have decided to make a change. Talk about the school year and how each summer is the perfect opportunity for a fresh start," says Dr. Brodtkin.

The next step is asking your child if he has any ideas or suggestions for changes that he thinks need to be made to be more successful this year. "You may be surprised at the motivation he displays," says Dr. Brodtkin. "Whatever his suggestion is, let him know that you think it's a worthwhile undertaking and that you'll help him see it through."

Encourage your child every step of the way. You can even ask other family members to come up with their own ideas for how they are going to make changes this year in school or at work.

The possibilities are endless. Your child can decide to...

...be more organized at home and at school!

...eat a healthy breakfast each morning before school! Or just eat breakfast!!

...get to bed at a reasonable time each night!

...not wait to the last minute to study for a test or finish a project!

...spend more time with the family!

Making a plan.

Is it really hard for your child to get out of bed and then be on time to school? If so, that might be a great place to start.

But this plan will have to include the night before. Setting a schedule to include time for dinner, homework, household responsibilities - like doing the dishes, TV time, and bedtime. When constructing your plan, think about the morning barriers. Do these include finding the homework, picking out that special outfit, eating breakfast? If so maybe scheduling a time and place to put the homework and to pick out the clothes will save time and aggravation in the morning.

Plan B
But as Captain Cochrane likes to say, "Everybody knows that the Plan never survives first contact with the enemy," So no worries - it is natural to have some false starts. So two suggestions: 1) practice before school starts and 2) be ready to go to that Plan B. With Plan B you know what to do when a few weeks into the new school year your child goes back to his old ways.

Tell your child that frequently plans have to be modified; it doesn't have to be "all or nothing." Plan B can include these motivating ideas:

* Sticking with the original plan, but "try, try it again."

* Modifying the plan and then trying it for a few weeks.

Make suggestions but don't be the architect of a new plan. Instead guide and offer assistance, but avoid angry confrontations! Making a plan can be a great learning expericate an already demanding move schedule, we also decided to visit various relatives, a few friends, and a couple colleges along the way. As such, we spent an inordinate number of hours together in our minivan while traveling up the East Coast.

"What's that smell?" I asked about a half hour into one particularly arduous leg of the trip. My keen olfactory nerves were picking up a repugnant aroma that might only be recreated by locking a jar of beet pickled eggs in the back seat of a 1974 Galaxie 500 over a long hot weekend in August.

The smell grew in strength, and soon our daughters were pinching their noses shut. We pulled over to locate the source of the odor. We searched for a carton of curdled milk in the trunk. We looked for a rancid tuna sub under the seats. We opened the glove box half expecting to find a dirty diaper. We looked to see if a stowaway squirrel was decomposing under the hood.

Finally, our noses guided us to the third row of seats, where our teenage son sat obliviously listening to his iPod, his huge flip-flopped feet tapping to the beat of the music.

Hovering my nostrils carefully over his hairy toe knuckles, I took a big sniff.

"Found it!" I yelled, and stumbled faintly back to the trunk to find a fresh pair of socks and some emergency talcum powder so we would all survive the rest of the trip.

But unappealing foot odor and toe jam become mere child's play a couple decades after raging teenage hormones quiet down. Forty something feet are a veritable Three Ringed Circus with cracked calloused heels, curled thickened nails, burgeoning bunions and their dwarfed sidekicks, "bunionettes."

Add a painful corn or two, and you've got a real freak show.

How does one go from playing "This Little Piggy" with smooth perfect baby toes to the knobby hardened feet of middle age? Let's face it: the Five Piggies are getting old. After 40 or 50 years of going to Market, The Big Toe Piggy has decided to take a detour and is now pointing in the wrong direction. The Piggies who stayed home and ate roast beef seem to be doing relatively well in their snug sedentary routine, but the Piggy who had none has collapsed onto his side from severe starvation. The short Piggy on the end isn't crying "Wee! Wee! Wee!" anymore. Apparently, years of anxiety have caused him to curl up into a fetal position, and he is now hiding under the adjacent toe.

Many forty-something folks make a vane attempt to stave off the aging of their feet, investing hundreds of dollars annually in pedicures, toe rings, polish and exfoliating marvels such as "The Pedi Egg," which doubles as a nifty parmesan cheese grater.

Unfortunately, nature has dictated that our feet get kinda ugly no matter what we do. So during the summer sandal months, please do keep your tootsies clean and trimmed, but don't get too carried away. After all, what's the sense in putting lipstick on your Piggies?

Probably not a good idea. But, we should realize that all military moves are a gamble, and the only thing we can be certain of is that the damned microwave cart will live to see another day.

Mayport Families Have A Blast

By Staff

Naval Station Mayport celebrated Independence Day early at the 2013 Freedom Fest on June 29 at Sea Gull Pavilion.

The Greater Mayport Chief Petty Officer Association sponsored this year's event with MWR and hosted an afternoon and evening of food, fun and fireworks.

Rides, games and water and dry slides were available to keep the family entertained while a beach obstacle course and races were set up in the "Sandbox" outside of Surfside Fitness.

Sponsors set up booths around the festivities for the adults while the kids enjoyed dancing to a DJ. Several families set up their seating on the beach to enjoy the weather and watch fireworks from a premium location.

Commissaries Plan for Monday Furloughs

By Kevin L. Robinson
Defense Commissary Agency

With furlough implementation underway, NS Mayport's commissary will close one day a week on Mondays. The closures will be for up to 11 days between July 8 and Sept. 30.

Closing commissaries on Mondays would be in addition to any day stores are routinely closed. The 148 stores that routinely close on Mondays would also close the next normal day of operation. Other than the furlough day, there are no other changes planned for store operation hours.

The announcement comes as DeCA follows Department of Defense protocols related to the automatic federal government budget reductions, known as sequestration, which began March 1. Like most DOD activities, DeCA is mandated by DOD to furlough its civil service employees.

Bronze

"Everyone plays a key role in any operation and I was honored to be able to contribute my service in this one. It was a highlight to have the award presented by a flag officer," said Klingaman.

The Bronze Star Medal

Furlough notices are scheduled to be delivered to DeCA employees between May 28 and June 5.

DeCA has 247 commissaries with more than 16,000 employees operating in 13 countries and two U.S. territories. Furloughs will impact all of DeCA's more than 14,000 U.S. civilian employees.

As sequestration continues, commissary customers can quickly find out about any changes to their local store's operating schedule by going to www.commissaries.com, clicking on the "Locations" tab, then "Alphabetical Listing," finding their store and clicking on "local store information."

Patrons are reminded that because sequestration is so fluid, DeCA's plan for this budget-cutting measure is subject to change.

DeCA decided on Monday closures after weighing the potential disruption to patrons and suppliers of having rolling furloughs, where closure dates would differ from store to store. Universal Monday closures are less disruptive to shoppers and the agency's industry partners -- vendors, suppliers and distributors -- who deliver products daily to commissaries.

In January, DOD released guidance to allow defense components to plan for potential budget cuts by reducing operating costs. In line with that direction, DeCA later executed the following budget-cutting measures:

- A hiring freeze on all outside hires;
- Cancellation of the agency's September Worldwide Case Lot Sales for all commissaries.
- Postponement of all Guard and Reserve on-site sales scheduled after July 8 until further notice.

Navy WWII POW Visits 4th Fleet Sailors

By MC1 Sean Allen
4th Fleet Public Affairs

Chief Boatswain Mate (Ret.) Bill Ingram, a World War II veteran and former Prisoner of War (POW) visited and talked with Sailors from U.S. 4th Fleet June 21.

Ingram enlisted in the Navy in June of 1941 at the age of 17. After completing boot camp, he was assigned to heavy cruiser USS Houston (CA-3). Ingram requested the Houston because his older brother was a Signal Man 2nd Class on board, but after arriving to the ship, Bill found out his brother had already transferred to the Philippines.

Shortly after Ingram arrived to the ship, Houston was operating in the Pacific Ocean and engaged in several battles with the Japanese Imperial Navy.

On February 28th 1942 the Battle of Sunda Strait began. A Japanese amphibious task force was preparing to invade Java, in the Dutch East Indies and a task force of American, Dutch, and Australian ships, including Houston were sent to intercept the Japanese force. In the early morning hours on March 1st, Houston was struck by three Japanese torpedoes, rolled over, with her Ensign still flying and sank. Of the 1,061 Sailors and Marines aboard the ship, 693 were lost. Three hundred sixty eight sailors, including Ingram, abandoned the ship into the Pacific Ocean.

"I was laying there with

Rear Adm. Sinclair Harris, Commander U.S. Naval Forces Southern Command/Commander U.S. 4th Fleet presents Chief Boatswain Mate (Ret.) Bill Ingram with a command coin. Ingram, a World War II Veteran and former Prisoner of War came to 4th Fleet to talk to Sailors about his experience.

a mattress over me, with all kinds of things falling on top of me. A Boatswain Mate First Class came running over saying "We have to get off the ship!" Ingram explained.

"I didn't have a life jacket, so he gave me a life ring and right before I jumped in the water he told me to swim as fast as I could away from the ship. The undertow from the ship sinking will bring you down, so I got in the water and swam as fast as I could," he said.

Growing up in Springfield, Illinois, Ingram's family was poor, despite not being able to afford swimming lessons, a gym teacher from the school he attended offered him free swimming lessons, training that very well may have saved his life that night.

Despite escaping from Houston, Ingram was still far from escaping danger. After spending close to a day in the water, a Japanese patrol boat picked him up. After being interrogated for information and realizing that he did not know anything, Ingram was thrown back into the ocean.

Once again Ingram found himself in the water, desperate. He spent another day in the water before being picked up by a civilian fishing vessel, which eventually took him and others from the Houston to Java. Not sure where to go, the group saw a building with a Red Cross flag on it and went there.

They received food and medical attention and clothing, but during the night, a group of Japanese soldiers came, and took Ingram and his shipmates as prisoners of war.

He left Java by ship to Burma, where for the next three years he and his fellow POW's spent building the Tai-Burma railroad. The Tai-Burma railroad, also known as the "Death Railway" was a 258 mile railway that connected Bangkok, Thailand to Burma. The railway was built by forced laborers, including over 60,000 Allied personnel. More than 16,000 of those personnel died as a result of the intense labor and lack of adequate food, water, and medical attention.

"It was very hard; I rate my survival to the way I made it through my up brining. We were poor, we did not have three meals a day, and when we did eat, beans and home-made bread was about all we had, I was use to not having much," Ingram said.

Ingram was still working on the railroad when World War II in the Pacific was declared over, but a few weeks prior had come down with dysentery and malaria, and remembers little about leaving Burma and returning to the United States.

"I was really out of it; I remember being in the camp, then the next thing I really remember, is being in New York City with some of the other guys from the prison camp. They told me we had left the camp in Burma, and flew back to the U.S. So I am sitting there in this bar, and the bartender starts talking to me, and I tell him I don't know how I got there and that I want to go home. I told him I was from Springfield, so he helped me get on a bus go home."

Shortly after Ingram was captured, he was able to send a post card home to his parents, informing them that he was a POW but was still alive. He hadn't been able to send any correspondence in over a year, so when he arrived home, his parents had no idea what had happened to him.

"My parents had moved after I left and I did not know that, so when I arrived home they were gone. So eventually I found the mailman, and found their new address. I thought it would be nice to surprise them, but when I knocked on the door my mom answered and she almost had a heart attack," he recounted.

Soon after arriving home, Ingram found out for the first time that his brother that had been on Houston had been a POW as well. His brother transferred from Houston to the Philippines, where eventually he was captured on island of Corregidor.

Even after the grueling ordeal of being a POW, Ingram decided to remain in the Navy and was promoted to the rank of Chief Petty Officer. He remained in the Navy until he retired in 1961. After he retired from the Navy, Ingram moved to Jacksonville, Fla. where he lives today.

"One of the Chief Petty Officer's jobs is to pass along Navy history and tradition to the sailors who are going to relieve us one day, Chiefs like Bill Ingram taking the time to come to our command and speak to our Sailors is a great example of passing along that tradition." Said U.S. 4th Fleet Command Master Chief David Tellez.

Bill Ingram is one of only 12 survivors from USS Houston according to the National World War II Museum.

Hué City Officer Shares Legacy of Service

By Lt.j.g. Anastasia Abid

USS Hué City Public Affairs

The warrior spirit is a trait the Navy tries to instill in its Sailors from the day they join the service. For one USS Hué City Officer inculcation with the warrior spirit came easy. With a family legacy of service to the Nation, she was born into it. Ensign Devan Gurecki joined the Golden Dragon crew of USS Hué City shortly after graduating from Officer Candidate School in October 2011. On board Hué City, she quickly qualified as a Surface Warfare Officer, a challenging and noteworthy milestone. A product of a family who has dedicated years to service, Gurecki has learned the true meaning of commitment and dedication from her family's rich, military history.

Both of Ensign Gurecki's grandfathers served in the military in hopes of giving back to their country in some small way. Her maternal grandfather, Kenneth Myron VanPatten, was denied enlistment from the Navy due to a shotgun injury that he received when he was 16. The Army, however, welcomed him with open arms in March of 1946. After completing airborne training, he was sent to Sendai, Japan and was assigned to the maintenance division where he packed and maintained parachutes. Serving during the time of the Occupational Forces, he is considered a World War II veteran. He left the Army in 1947 and was awarded the Asiatic Pacific Campaign medal and the Occupational and Good Conduct Medal for his service.

Her other grandfather, Virgil Pete Gurecki joined the Navy in 1942 and served until 1945. A Gunner's Mate (E-5), he served on four different ships throughout his time in the Navy. He was part of the North Africa invasion, the Sicily Invasion, and D-Day landings on Omaha beach to name a few. He was an eyewitness to many attacks on US ships and unfortunately, lost numerous friends during the war. He earned the Pacific Campaign medal and Good Conduct Medal.

Ensign Gurecki's growing appreciation for service did not stop with her grandfathers. Growing up, she remembers listening to her father's stories about the city of Hué and his experiences as a Marine in the heat of battle. And it seems as if his past would play a role in her future as she made the decision to become a part of the US Navy. Originally scheduled to be a part of the wardroom on the USS Philippine Sea, Ensign Gurecki was reassigned to the USS Hué City a week before she graduated from OCS. She knew the change in her orders would immediately impact her father and she was right. Upon telling her father that she would be reporting to Hué City instead of the Philippine Sea he stated he knew "it was meant to be" and later added he "didn't believe in coincidences."

Ensign Gurecki's father, Mike Gurecki, joined the Marines after high school and became a member of 1st battalion 5th marines with a military occupational specialty in heavy machine guns. His decision to enlist in the Marines as a young man forever changed his life and the lives of those around him.

He was immediately sent to Vietnam upon finishing school, resulting in life experiences that would mold him into the man he would become. Dropped in the middle of one of the most physically and emotionally demanding battles he was in for an experience of his life.

Mr. Gurecki often reflects on his time as a Marine stating, "the older I get the more I wonder how I made it out of their alive."

As a Marine during one of the fiercest battles of the Vietnam War, Mr. Gurecki can provide many insights to better understand the sacrifices made by the Americans and Vietnamese who fought and died there.

The city of Hué is located in central Vietnam and was the location of one of the fiercest battles of the Vietnam War.

Fewer than 2,500 men attacked and achieved victory over 10,000 enemy troops, liberating Hué from South Vietnam. The Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese launched an assault on South Vietnam, a battle lasting four weeks.

Naval ship fire support played a large role in the success and recapture of Hué. Mr. Gurecki remembers gear that wouldn't always work, but NSFS was "one of those things that just always worked." It inspired a degree of confidence in the Marines on the ground to continue the fight each day. During the battle, Mr. Gurecki was typically assigned as the guy who drove the "mule" with mounted .50 caliber guns on it. The mule was basically a four foot wide aluminum platform with .50 cal's set on a tripod on the platform and sandbags thrown on to secure it. He would walk or crawl behind it and steer it down the narrow streets of the French built city of Hué. Like many things in the Navy it was not used as designed and was instead a weapon conjured up to help defend themselves in the small fire fights they encountered. Through determination and an unmatched drive the Marines at Hué achieved victory even against the odds stacked against them.

Unique in that it is the only ship in the fleet named for a Vietnam battle, Hué City bears its name proudly, recognizing all the Sailors and Marines who valiantly gave their lives fighting in Vietnam in January of 1968. "For most of these men their parents are long gone, their brothers and sisters who mourned their loss have long since moved on with their lives, and for friends of their youth, they are distant fading memories," states Mike Gurecki. He continues, "Hué City is the last place on Earth where their memory lives on." Hué City is named for the men who gave their lives for the freedoms we enjoy.

Hué City and its crew do its best to keep their memory alive with regular memorials held onboard for its veterans. In fact, Hué City expects to organize another memorial relatively soon. The Memorial Ceremony celebrates the victory US Marines helped deliver in driving the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong from the city of Hué during the 1968 Tet Offensive.

The US Navy has undergone many changes throughout the years, but is members have stayed true to the course of service and dedication to the people of this fine nation. The fighting spirit of those Marines and Sailors who fought in the Battle of Hué is alive and strong in Hué City's crew today. As a part of the Hué City crew, Ensign Gurecki is reminded of the rich history that is her past and the dedication and devotion to a country that has done so much for its people that is a part of her future. It is not just a means to an end; it is keeping a long lineage of service intact. For those whose families grew up in the service there will always be a deeper meaning and a greater sense of pride when putting on the uniform and with Ensign Gurecki it is no different. Hué City sails onward, forever remembering the example those Sailors and Marines set in January of 1968.

Hué City is sailing alongside Dwight D. Eisenhower on their transit home after their second deployment to the 5th Fleet Area of Responsibility in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, maritime security operations and theater security cooperation efforts.

USS Hué City Takes 'Tigers' On Cruise

By MC3 Luis Fiallos
USS Hué City Public Affairs

Guided-missile cruiser USS Hué City (CG 66) began its end-of-deployment tiger cruise after arriving in Norfolk, Va. on July 1.

A tiger cruise allows a Sailor's friends and loved ones to go to sea and experience a day in the life of a U.S. Navy Sailor. Arriving at Naval Station Norfolk before transiting Norfolk to her homeport of Mayport, Hué City welcomed 85 guests, all eager to be reunited with their Sailor.

"Family and friends learn to appreciate what their Sailor does in their day-to-day routine and how it contributes to the greater mission of the Navy," said Senior Chief Operations Specialist Timothy Mollock, one of the coordinators of the tiger cruise.

Upon arrival to Hué City, each tiger received a Surface Warfare Specialist personnel qualification standard to work on while underway, and a schedule of events for the two-day cruise.

It took a lot of planning for the event to become a reality.

"After canvassing the crew and determining that they would enjoy inviting a tiger, we quickly began working on getting permission from the Navy to have a tiger cruise," said Mollock.

"We also organized travel arrangements for all the tigers, including a chartered bus from Mayport to Norfolk and providing transportation for tigers arriving by airplane and personal vehicles."

Activities over the next two days will include an air power demo with USS Dwight D. Eisenhower (CVN 69), a frocking ceremony for newly selected senior chief petty officers, a steel-beach picnic on the ship's flight deck, and two ice cream socials.

"I'm excited for my dad to be here with me," said Fire Controlman 2nd Class John Dempsey.

"He used to be in the Navy and I would like to show him how much things have changed since he was in. It'll also give us a chance to bond and catch up after being away for so long."

NS Mayport Reports On 2012 Water Quality

From PWD Mayport

The Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) Southeast, Public Works Department, NS Mayport, Florida

(PWD Mayport), is your water utility service provider. We are very pleased to provide you with this year's Annual Water Quality Report. We want to keep you informed about the excellent water and services we have delivered to you over the past year. Our goal is and has always been, to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. Our water source is three deep wells which draw from the Floridan Aquifer. Treatment of your water supply includes aeration for odor control, and disinfection through chlorination. In 2012, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection (FDEP) performed a Source Water Assessment on our system. This assessment was conducted to provide information about any potential sources of contamination in the vicinity of our wells. There are nine potential sources of contamination identified for this system with low to moderate susceptibility levels. The assessment results are available on the FDEP Source Water Assessment and Protection Program website at www.dep.state.fl.us/swapp.

NAVFAC Southeast, PWD Mayport, routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws and regulations. Except where indicated otherwise, this report is based on the results of our monitoring for the period January 1st to December 31st 2012. Data obtained before January 1, 2012, and presented in this report, are from the most recent testing done in accordance with the laws, rules, and regulations.

In the table below you may find unfamiliar terms and abbreviations. To help you better understand these terms we have provided the following definitions:

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfection Level (MRDL) - The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is a convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

Not Applicable (N/A) - No value limit or restriction has been applied to this particular parameter.

Non-Detects (ND) - indicates that the substance was not found by laboratory analysis.

Parts per billion (ppb) - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Parts per million (ppm) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

(A) Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife.

(B) Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.

(C) Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff, and residential uses.

(D) Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

(E) Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally-occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. NAVFAC Southeast, PWD Mayport, is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for residential uses.

All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Thank you for allowing us to continue providing your family with clean, quality water this year. In order to maintain a safe and dependable water supply we sometimes need to make improvements that will benefit all of our customers. These improvements are sometimes reflected as rate structure adjustments. Thank you for understanding.

For further information or questions concerning this report, please contact your PWD Mayport Utilities Branch, at (904) 270-3182. Additionally, Navy personnel who live off-base, or in private residences, can also contact PWD Mayport for general questions on water quality, or to determine who to contact for information on the water utility servicing your area.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immunocompromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers.

EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Supporting America's Heroes

The American Red Cross is expanding services to provide assistance and resources to veterans of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom to help support their transition into civilian life. Emergency needs that may warrant assistance may include medical and dental needs, rent assistance, utility payments, and food; access to referral services; or other assistance depending on need. Applicants for these funds must demonstrate financial hardship, and/or lack of other available resources due to participation in OEF or OIF. Eligible veterans include those of all services, the Reserve component and National Guard.

For more information, please contact a Red Cross Military Services caseworker at (904) 246-1395

Recycling

Recycling has come to the Greater Jacksonville Area USO. If you have any office paper, shredded paper, old magazines, and newspapers that you would like to donate, please bring it to either the Mayport or NAS JAX USO Center. This will be a great fundraiser for the USO so please help us fill the bins. Help support the troops with your unwanted paper!

United Through Reading program makes it possible to share in the enjoyment of reading to the children in your life, even while thousands of miles apart. The Mayport Center and NAS Center can record you reading a book to your children and send it to them after you have gone on deployment. It is a great way to make them smile on their special day even when you can not be there with them. Please contact your local USO center for more information.

There is a computer resource center available to all service members with email, Internet and word processing. Fax, copy and free notary service is also available.

Watch TV or a movie from the video library. Service members can also enjoy video games or use the sports equipment.

There is a full kitchen, showers, a quiet reading room and a meeting room available at the USO. The USO is available for meetings, support groups, receptions, parties and pre-deployment briefs. A TV, VCR and overhead projector are available for use.

For more information about activities or meeting availabilities, call 246-3481 or stop by the center at 2560 Mayport Road.
