U.S. 4th Fleet on March 21 concluded a weeklong cyber security inspection by a team from U.S. Fleet Cyber Command, earning a passing score on its first attempt.

The inspection was a comprehensive, graded evaluation of all cyber security areas, including leadership engagement, physical security, administration, training and network configuration. U.S. 4th Fleet was recognized for excellent leadership engagement and received no deductions for culture or conduct.

Further, U.S. 4th Fleet leaders made a point of learning from the inspection team, said its officer in charge, Capt. Larry Flint.

“Visions of the future” was the theme as Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Adm. Jonathan Greenert held an “All Hands Call” at Naval Station Mayport March 18.

Before addressing local Sailors, Greenert proudly gave the oath to 16 petty officers who chose to be reenlisted by the CNO during the event. After swearing them in, the CNO greeted each of the Sailors and presented them with coins.

“First, I want to thank all the family members here today,” Greenert said. “I want to reassure that we will continue to support the Navy’s family programs.”

Several hundred gathered at Naval Station Mayport and dozens took to the microphone. Concerns included the increasing length of deployment, healthcare changes, housing assistance, opportunity for advancement and the new sexual assault prevention program. The main focus was around rumors of retirement changes stemming from the Department of Defense recommendations to the Military Compensation and Retirement Modernization Commission reviewing military retirement for Congress. The President established the commission to conduct a review of military compensation and retirement systems.

To Everything There Is A Season

second century, many Christians observed several days of fasting as part of that preparation. Over the next few centuries, perhaps in remembrance of Jesus' fasting for 40 days in the wilderness (Matthew 4:1-2), 40 days became the accepted length of the Lenten season. In the early centuries, the season before Easter was also the usual period of intense training for new Christians. During this period, the catechumens (those learning what it meant to be Christians) went through the final stages of preparation for baptism, which usually occurred at dawn on Easter Sunday.

In Western Christianity, Ash Wednesday marks the first day, or the start of the season of Lent, which begins 40 days prior to Easter. Lent is a time when many Christians prepare for Easter by observing a period of fasting, repentance, moderation and spiritual discipline. The purpose is to set aside time for reflection on Jesus Christ - his suffering and his sacrifice, his life, death, burial and resurrection. Although the customary forms of Lent do not appear in scripture, the spirit of Lent is biblically supported through repentance and mourning in ashes (2 Samuel 13:19; Esther 4:1; Job 2:8; Daniel 9:3; Matthew 11:21).

One of the primary reasons we celebrate non-sectarian special days such as birthdays, veterans/ memorial days, and wedding anniversaries is to set aside a period of time to give honor to people and to let them know we care. Likewise, Lent is a time to commemorate, reflect, give attention to, and recognize the sacrifice, life and work of Jesus Christ. Those of us who participate in some sort of spiritual discipline during the Lenten season ought not to think we are more spiritual than those who choose not to. Nonetheless, we should all understand that just as there are health benefits for physical exercise. There are also spiritual benefits for those who practice spiritual disciplines.

Whether you participate in Lent or not, the daily intake of God's Holy Word is essential to your spiritual well being. Scripture teaches and Christ confirmed that a person cannot live by bread alone (Matt. 4:4a). To this end, I leave you with this modern translation (Message Bible) of Romans 12:1-2:

"So here's what I want you to do, God helping you: Take your everyday, ordinary life—your sleeping, eating, going-to-work, and walking-around life—and place it before God as an offering. Embracing what God does for you is the best thing you can do for him. Don't become so well-adjusted to your culture that you fit into it without even thinking. Instead, fix your attention on God. You'll be changed from the inside out. Readily recognize what he wants from you, and quickly respond to it. Unlike the culture around you, always dragging you down to its level of immaturity, God brings the best out of you, develops well-formed maturity in you."

Now go back and Read this passage out loud. Think about the ideas and commands in this verse. Pray about what you hear God saying to you. Live out what you learn in your "every day, ordinary" life.

School Counselor Can Ease End-of-School Woes

from the beach. And they are both worrying about new schools.

Their school counselors can help. These counselors have unique qualifications and skills to address all students' academic, personal/social, and career development needs.

They are trained to advocate, mediate, coordinate, refer, lead and collaborate with teachers, administrators and parents to help students be successful. They provide services to military students in need through specialized groups, such as the Student2Student program which helps students deal with transitions.

Another important program at this time is the Military Family Life Counselor (MFLC) program which I have recently described in another article.

But right now these counselors along with the school's counselor may be the perfect response for those transition worries that so many of NS Mayport's students or soon to be NS Mayport's students are experiencing. Locally, the counselors are available at Finegan, Mayport, and Jax Beach Elementary Schools and Mayport Middle School. An MFLC is also available at NS Mayport's Youth Activity Center. You can also contact Dr. Mia Wilson at (904) 738-3657 or mia.wilson@healthnet.com.

Another resource for coping with transition stress is NS Mayport's Youth Sponsorship Program. Part of the Navy's Child and Youth Programs, Youth Sponsorship will connect your child or Teen to positive peer groups and social activities at their new duty station. To get your child connected to our Youth Sponsorship Program go to www.mayport-youthsponsorship@yahoo.com.

In approximately two weeks, the 3rd quarter report card will go home. If your child is struggling academically or behaviorally as a response to an impending transition or deployment, it may be time to connect with the school counselor or the MFLC.

Depending on the grade your child is in, whether he is in a special program, a magnet school, or on a special diploma track, now is the perfect time to determine what needs to happen and when. It is not too late to craft positive changes to be implemented for the rest of the school year.

Consider scheduling a conference to discuss your child's concerns about the upcoming move or deployment. As a parent, you know your child best. However, these counselors can offer options for dealing with concerns, including better ways to communicate with your child and with the child's teacher(s).

By sharing information with each other, you establish a helping relationship which can turn problems around. You will find that these counselors are excellent resources; however, they do not provide therapy or long-term counseling. Referrals to outside agencies may be initiated at the school.

But remember that parent-counselor collaboration may take some time to work. This collaboration requires tenacity because things don't always go perfectly at first. But when parents work with counselors, their children tend to have greater social adjustment.

They get along better with fellow students and teachers. They communicate more effectively, and believe it or not, sometimes they do their homework more willingly. By taking advantage of all these counselors have to offer, you can help your child finish this school year on a positive note.

Judy Cromartie is the School Liaison Officer for NS Mayport. If you have questions about this article or concerns about an educational issue impacting your child, she can be reached via email at Judith.cromartie@navy.mil or by phone at (904) 270-6289 X1305 [office] or (904) 993-5860 [cell]. Or you can schedule a meeting with her in her office in Building One.

All students can learn. However, a student who is troubled cannot learn as easily. Dealing with physical illness, divorce, abuse, or poverty, for example places students at-risk of educational failure and maybe dropping out of school.

Military students have the added social stressor of deployment: transitions, family relocations, and extended separations. Students and parents report mobility as the most challenging aspect of the military.

Most young people report the greatest stress is anticipation of the move and then the first month of the move. Add to that academic adjustment and peer acceptance throughout the first year of the move and a family may be left with a sense of little control over their environment.

NS Mayport is currently experiencing the movement of families onto and off of the base with homeport changes and PCSing moves. Students have begun to stress about leaving friends they have made this year to making new friends in a new school. Some of those students are here in Jacksonville looking to move to Austin, San Diego, and even to Japan.

Other students are in the Norfolk area wondering what it will be like to live 3 hours north of Disney World and blocks

Correction

In the March 19 edition of The Mirror, the second to the last paragraph of the article titled, "Team Effort to Conserve Energy at NS Mayport" indicates that an energy billing program has not happened yet at NS Mayport Base Housing.

Base Housing established the Resident Conservation Program

(RECP) in 2012 and introduced live billing in spring 2013.

The program involves charging residents if over, and reimburses if under, their long term goal with respect to energy consumption.

We apologize for any confusion this may have caused.

UF Midshipmen Visit NS Mayport

By Midshipman 3rd Class Adam Campbell
University of Florida NROTC

Midshipmen from the University of Florida Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) unit in Gainesville, Fla., traveled to Naval Station Mayport, March 14. While there, the group toured the Ticonderoga-class cruiser USS Vicksburg (CG 69) and was able to practice conning a ship in a full mission bridge simulator.

As part of the NROTC program, the midshipmen submit their preferences for which warfare community they would like to enter upon commissioning. This group of midshipmen was a mix of seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen who have expressed interest in being a surface warfare officer. The goal of this visit was to show the midshipmen an active duty warship, and related duties that surface warfare officers perform, so they can make a more informed decision.

While aboard Vicksburg, the midshipmen were shown various areas of the ship, including the bridge, combat information center (CIC), flight deck, and "officers' country," where officer staterooms are located. During the tour, Fire Control Officer, Lt. Derek Cribbs, and Weapons Officer, Lt. Doug Ivey, discussed the responsibilities, duties, and general life of a surface warfare officer. The midshipmen said the experience and advice provided to them by Cribbs and Ivey was invaluable, as they could potentially fill those same positions in just a few years.

While at the full mission bridge simulator, the midshipmen spoke with junior officers from the USS Somerset (LPD 25) who were finishing up a week of training in the simulator. The midshipmen watched as the officers ran through different scenarios, and some performed as helmsmen for the scenarios. After the officers from Somerset completed their training, retired Navy Capt. Earl Yerger and Chief Warrant Officer 4 Kevin King had the midshipmen each take the CONN, or control of a simulated cruiser, driving the ship through simulated smoke floats, a pyrotechnic device dropped from an aircraft that emits smoke while floating on top of the water. The midshipmen then gave the orders to move alongside an oiler for an underway replenishment.

"Not only touring the ship but getting to see the daily functions and preparations that go into getting underway was highly rewarding," said Midshipman 2nd Class Kaylan King, from Jacksonville, Fla., on how the day proved to be a very valuable experience.

Today the NROTC program is overseen by Rear Adm. Dee L. Mewbourne, commander, Naval Service Training Command (NSTC) headquartered at Naval Station Great Lakes, Ill. The NROTC program was established to develop midshipmen mentally, morally and physically and to imbue them with the highest ideals of duty, loyalty and Navy core values. Those ideals and values are the backbone of all NROTC midshipmen as they work toward becoming college graduates and commission as Navy and Marine Corps officers who possess a basic professional background, are motivated toward careers in the Naval service and have a potential for future development in mind and character so as to assume the highest responsibilities of command, citizenship and government. Mewbourne and his NSTC staff oversee 98 percent of initial officer and enlisted accessions training for the Navy.

This includes NROTC at more than 160 colleges and universities, Officer Training Command (OTC) on Naval Station Newport, R.I.; Recruit Training Command (RTC), the Navy's only boot camp, at Great Lakes, Ill.; and Navy Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps (NJROTC) and Navy National Defense Cadet Corps (NNDCC) citizenship development programs at more than 600 high schools worldwide. USS Simpson Returns Home

Story by USS Simpson Public Affairs

The guided-missile frigate USS Simpson (FFG 56), and embarked HSM-46 Detachment Eight, returned to her Naval Station Mayport, Fla. homeport March 20 after a six-month deployment to the 6th Fleet area of responsibility.

While deployed, the crew conducted more than 700 flight hours in support of regional and maritime security, more than 200 drills to increase overall preparedness and qualified more than 80 Sailors as Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialists (ESWS).

"I'm the luckiest CO on the waterfront. I am proud of my Sailors' accomplishments and humbled to be their Captain. I can't say enough about the resilience of this crew," said Cmdr. Christopher Follin, Simpson's Commanding Officer.

"These Sailors ensured we deployed ready for any tasking in all of our warfare areas. Their ability to maintain their equipment throughout the entire deployment provided the Operational Commander a reliable asset that was vital to our national security and diplomatic relations," Follin added.

Since her September departure, Simpson traveled more than 35,000 miles and made 10 port visits to eight different countries, providing the crew opportunities to strengthen regional ties through exercises and opportunities to experience Mediterranean culture.

"Over the past six months I have been honored to watch this crew perform daily to successfully complete the mission," said Command Senior Chief Terry Parker. "Attaining new pay grades, ESWS qualifications and experiencing new countries and their cultures were just some of the items that highlighted this deployment."

During two of the ship's port visits, numerous Sailors volunteered to help others through community relations events. Sailors made renovations to a shelter for domestic violence victims in Malta and participated in learning, sports, and grounds keeping activities at a school for disadvantaged girls in Morocco.

"Looking back on this deployment, knowing we were able to help a little bit is a great feeling," said Personal Specialist 1st Class Anthony Petry. "Even though time restraints limited how much we could get done, just seeing all the smiles on the faces of the people we helped made everything worth it; it was definitely a moment I'll always remember."

Simpson closed its deployment with a "tiger cruise" from Charleston, S.C. to Mayport, during which crewmembers' family and friends were able to experience firsthand, life aboard a Navy ship.

USS Philippine Sea Turns 25

From USS Philippine Sea (CG)
Public Affairs

The guided-missile cruiser USS Philippine Sea celebrated its 25th anniversary with a special birthday dinner on the mess decks, March, 23.

Commissioned in March, 1989, she is named for the Battle of the Philippine Sea during World War II and is the second ship to bear the name.

For one crew member, the Philippine Sea has become a very familiar place. Lt. Cmdr. Christopher Terzian, the ship's chief engineer, first came to the ship as an engineman 3rd class petty officer in 1996 and left four years later as a 1st class petty officer.

"This ship really molded my career," said Terzian. "This is where I decided to go all out in the Navy, give it everything I have and to try and become a limited duty officer (LDO). I couldn't wish for anywhere else to do my final sea tour."

Despite a quarter century of use, Philippine Sea is still as ready for action as the day she entered the Fleet.

"We take pride in the engineering world that we're what's called 'seven-up,'" said Chief Warrant Officer 4 Allan Layne, the ship's main propulsion assistant. "Meaning, all four main engines and all three gas-turbine engines are available and ready for tasking. Maximum power, 30 plus knots, whatever the commanding officer deems necessary."

"It's been a great pleasure and honor to serve on the Philippine Sea," said Layne, who will be retiring in the coming month. "The hard work by the young men and women aboard prove that this 25-year-old ship, can still sail with any of your newer model ships out there and be a formidable force."

Philippine Sea is currently on a scheduled deployment in the U.S. 5th Fleet area of responsibility.

Culinary Specialist 1st Class Eber Barraza, from El Paso, Texas, shows off a tray of French bread pizza right out of the oven aboard the guided-missile cruiser USS Philippine Sea (CG 58). Abraham Loe McNatt
USS Philippine Sea

Here's a riddle from the culinary specialists (CS) aboard the guided-missile cruiser USS Philippine Sea (CG 58):

What day falls between hamburger day and taco day?

The answer is just a Sailor away, because anyone who has ever served aboard a ship in the Navy will know right away.

Pizza Saturdays have become such a Navy institution that some Sailors will tally their time at sea, not by weeks or months, but by the number of pizza nights. The CS's of the Philippine Sea have taken this crusty tradition and turned the oven knob to 11.

In November, Philippine Sea started serving pizzas on fresh made French bread crusts.

"Pizzas have traditionally been served on Saturdays to give the crew something to look forward to during the week," said Chief Culinary Specialist Michael Vira, the ship's leading CS. "We just wanted to break the monotony of the same standard premade circle looking pizza."

The Navy uses a standard core menu that works on a rotation, said Vira. This helps the Navy keep hundreds of thousands of Sailors all over the world fed. It's a way of handling the logistics of shipping and storing food at sea and ensuring Sailors are getting the nutritional variety they need and want.

Making pizza on French bread is a win-win, said Vira. Since it's a twice-baked crust, the texture is a lot better. From the crew, they love it because it's a great quality product, and from the cooks, it's a lot easier for them to prepare. It gives the night bakers an opportunity to be a part of the pizza night meal, and the supply officer likes it because it takes up less storage space.

Only eight servings of traditional round pizza can fit on a baking sheet, but the same size sheet can fit 16 to 18 servings of French bread pizza, said Culinary Specialist 1st Class Prince Benton. Fewer trays mean less time and faster service.

The French bread gets made the night before – from scratch. There is no mistaking the olfactory bouquet of yeast, flour and shortening rising in the oven. That sweet twinge of sugar being broken down into carbon dioxide that makes people want to be nicer to strangers. Sailors would be clever to submit special requests to their chiefs while the aroma of baking bread is hanging in the air.

The next afternoon the loafs are cut in half, opened down the middle, topped with sauce, cheese and a variety of other toppings, then placed in the oven. Shortly thereafter, the hot crunchy melty slice of Heaven is slid out of the oven and directly onto the plate of a sweaty, tired and hungry (and sometimes grumpy) Sailor.

"Nothing out here is more important than good chow," said Seaman Jessica Moffit, who has been watch standing and working since the wee hours of the morning. "When you've had a bad day and you're coming through the chow line and you see French bread pizza, your day instantly gets 10 times better."

"We have a hard job; you've got to have the love for what you do," said Benton. "The best part about being a CS is being able to be creative and knowing that what we make is the foundation for our shipmates' day."

While there are no hints to what the Philippine Sea galley will come up with next, it's always looking for ways to give the crew something a little different while still staying within the Navy guidelines, said Vira.

Currently Philippine Sea is six pizza nights into its scheduled deployment to the U.S. 5th and 6th Fleet areas of responsibility.

USS Hué City Sailors Go To Savannah For St. Patrick's Day

From USS Hué City Public Affairs

More than 300 Sailors from USS Hué City (CG 66) joined thousands of party-goers in celebrating St. Patrick's Day in the city of Savannah, Georgia last Monday.

Roughly 300,000 visitors came to the city this year to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. Hué City's participation in the St. Patrick's Day festivities began even before the ship moored in Savannah. As the crew manned the rails during their transit up the Savannah River, military veterans presented a cannon salute from old Fort Jackson. That evening the ship hosted a party for the Savannah chapter of the Navy League and numerous dignitaries from the city. Savannah Mayor Edna Branch Jackson presented Hué City's Commanding Officer,

Capt. Wyatt Chidester, with a Key to the City and thanked the crew for its service to the country. To show his graciousness for Savannah's welcoming, Chidester in turn presented a framed

"The city of Savannah truly has shown the Southern hospitality it's known for by having us here," Chidester remarked.

Later in the weekend, several Hué City Sailors took part in the Jasper Green Ceremony, an event in which the Irish American Community of Savannah gathers in front of the city's monument of William Jasper to honor military veterans past and present. Sergeant William Jasper was a Revolutionary War hero and a son of Irish immigrants who lost his life during the British Siege of Savannah in 1779. While inclement weather pushed the ceremony indoors, the reception still was a resounding success and featured guest speakers from several branches of the United States Armed Forces and dignitaries from the Republic of Ireland itself.

"As an Irish American currently serving, the ceremony was especially moving for me," said Lt.j.g. Colin Ryan. "Some of the things I learned were astounding, too: 55 percent of all Medal of Honor recipients were of Irish heritage. It makes me very proud and humbled to realize in whose foot steps I am following."

To cap off the weekend, dozens of Hué City Sailors marched in the city's 190th Annual St. Patrick's Day Parade. The parade is one of the most prestigious of its kind in the country, and the parade organizers seemed thrilled to have HUÉ Sailors partake in the event. "The hospitality and appreciation for service members I saw during the parade was outstanding," claimed Damage Controlman 3rd Class (SW) Anthony Lacey, who marched in the parade. "It was a great experience!" Otherwise, the ship's crew spent their time exploring the city and taking in everything Savannah has to offer. "I took a river boat dinner cruise, and it was great!" said Electronics Technician 3rd Class (SW) Justin Freno. Added Chief Fire Controlman (SW) Cliff Milton, "This port was a lot of fun. Our crew really deserved to have the opportunity to come here during Savannah's most festive time of the year."

FFSC Classes Help Manage Navy Life

Learn How To 'Market Yourself'

From FFSC

The Mayport Fleet and Family Support Center is sponsoring a once-a-year presentation on transition here, on March 31, from 8:30-11 a.m. in Ocean Breeze Conference Center. The presentation entitled "Marketing Yourself for a Second Career" is offered by The Military Officers Association of America (MOAA), and is FREE to attendees.

All ranks may attend, though it is geared towards officers and senior NCOs. Spouses, civilians, and retirees are also welcome.

In the current environment The Transition Center at MOAA provides this presentation to teach the latest trends in transition to include resume writing, networking, use of LinkedIn, leveraging social media, and marketing yourself.

It also educates leaders in the transition process in order to coach and mentor their subordinate, especially during these times of force reductions, selective retirement boards, etc.

The presentation will be given by Colonel John D. Sims, USA (Ret), a deputy director at the Transition Center at MOAA's national headquarters in Alexandria, Virginia.

To RSVP for the seminar or for further information, contact the FFSC at 270-6600, x1701.

Enjoying Spring Break, Eighties Style

Lisa Smith Molinari
Military Spouse
Columnist

"Don't crush the groceries!" I yelled as my teenage son smashed the car top carrier lid closed. With everything for our family spring break trip packed, we piled into our salt-hazed minivan and hit the road.

I wondered if all this rigmarole was worth it for a few days of so-called vacation. I'd worked myself into a pre-trip frenzy, making lists, doing laundry, kenneling the dog, getting the oil changed, packing, double checking, and packing some more.

All that hassle just to spend military leave time stuffing ourselves like sardines into our minivan for eleven long hours. And once we get there, we'll be unpacking, making beds, cooking, cleaning and managing the kids just like we always do. Same work, different location.

Is Spring Break really worth all this hassle?

As we passed through the Naval Station Newport base gate and headed south, I recalled an easier time. It was 1986, and I used my new credit card to buy a Spring Break trip with my college roommates. I was broke, but all those Citibank sign up ads around campus promised a $1,000 credit limit, and all I had to do was pay a little bit off each month. "Wow, what a great deal!" I thought in my youthful ignorance.

After curling our bangs, my roommates and I boarded a bus, chartered by Sigma Epsilon Fraternity, headed from chilly Ohio to sunny Daytona Beach, Florida. The frat brothers thoughtfully included a six-pack of Little Kings Cream Ale in the trip package price, just in case the passengers got thirsty on the fourteen-hour ride south.

"Ohmigod," my roommate exclaimed halfway through Tennessee, "like, I totally can't find Lisa anywhere!" "No way!" "Way!" They didn't know that I'd crawled up in the overhead luggage compartment to sleep off those Little Kings.

On the day of our arrival, I promptly burned myself to a crisp laying out on the beach. Later at a Bud Light Belly Flop contest at the motel pool, I tried to hide the pain, sipping wine coolers with my roommates while dancing to "I'll stop the world and melt with you" - a la Molly Ringwald in "The Breakfast Club" -- in our stone washed denim and Wayfarers. We took note of one particular college boy moonwalking in checkered Vans, red Birdwell Beach Britches, and a blonde mullet. He was the kind of cool guy who probably drove a Camero.

The loudspeaker

blared as he climbed the high dive, "Next we have Mad [expletive deleted] Mike from University of Maryland!"

We cheered with the crowd, but in the end, his svelte torso was no match for the linebacker from Mississippi State with a gut tinged pink from multiple flawless flops.

By the time we boarded the bus for our return to Ohio a week later, I had sloughed off the first three layers of my skin, lost my Jellies shoes, survived on happy hour nachos, been totally ignored by Mad [expletive deleted] Mike, and maxed out my $1,000 credit limit, totally unaware that I would be paying off the debt for the next eight years.

And it was totally worth it.

There was something special about the Eighties. Was it the big hair? Orange Julius? Hackey Sacks? Mr. T? New Wave music? Shoulder pads? Hawaiian pizza? The Cosby Show? McDLTs? The Sprinkler Dance? Tri-color pasta salad? Parachute pants? Boom boxes? Frosted eye shadow? Deely-bobbers? Alf? Fried potato skins? A carefree state of mind?

Whatever it was, the Eighties was fun. A lot of fun.

"Honey," I asked my husband as we entered the New Jersey Turnpike, "find that Eighties radio station, would you?" The kids groaned, and began arguing over whether we were getting lunch at Wendy's or Chick-fil-A, but I leaned back in my seat, put on my sunglasses and said, "I think this might turn out to be our best Spring Break trip ever."

Like, totally.

TRICARE Service Centers 'Go Virtual'

From TRICARE

Walk-in service at TRICARE service centers in the United States is ending April 1.

TRICARE officials said the change reflects "the always growing number of TRICARE beneficiaries who most often now turn to a laptop or cell phone when they have questions about their health care."

TRICARE patients have a wide variety of secure, electronic customer service options available through the TRICARE website at <http://www.tricare.mil>, officials said. The "I want to ..." feature puts everything beneficiaries want to do online right on the web-

Walk-in service for TRICARE ends April 1. Beneficiaries can get 24/7 TRICARE benefit information at www.tricare.mil

"For many years now, TRICARE beneficiaries have been taking advantage of our convenient, 24/7 online customer service options," said Army Maj. Gen. (Dr.) Richard Thomas, director of the Defense Health Agency's health care operations directorate. "All of the services they received at their local [TRICARE service center] are available either online or through our toll-free call centers in the convenience of their own homes. We are committed to providing the highest level of support to all of our beneficiaries."

With the end of walk-in service on April 1, beneficiaries who want get personal assistance can call their regional health care contractor for enrollment and benefit help, officials said. All health care, pharmacy, dental and claims contact information is located at <http://www.tricare.mil/contactus>. Beneficiaries can get 24/7 TRICARE benefit information at the TRICARE website, and they can make enrollment, primary care manager and other changes at <http://www.tricare.mil/enrollment>.

Rather than driving to an installation service center, TRICARE beneficiaries can even combine high-tech with low-tech by downloading health care forms online and sending them through the mail, officials noted.

Pointing out that walk-in service is the most expensive customer-service option, officials said eliminating walk-in service at the centers will save the Defense Department an estimated $250 million over five years. The change does not affect TRICARE benefits or health care delivery, they emphasized.

ER or Urgent Care: Making The Decision

From TRICARE

When we're in pain or sick, we're anxious and it can be hard to think straight. We want relief as soon as possible. When a child is hurt or ill, the anxiety can be even greater. In those moments, it is can be hard to determine if you need to go to the emergency room, an emergency center, or if an urgent care center will do. It's important to make that distinction because making the wrong choice will cost both time and money.

Generally, if a condition is threatening to life, limb or eyesight, or causes the beneficiary to require relief from pain, it is considered an emergency and calls for a trip to the emergency room. TRICARE defines an emergency department as an organized, hospital-based facility available 24 hours a day providing emergency services to patients who need immediate medical attention. Emergency departments affiliated with a hospital are most likely TRICARE-authorized providers. Beneficiaries and their families will get the appropriate level of care and save money by having urgent care needs met in urgent care facilities.

Over the last two decades, over 9,000 urgent care centers have emerged across the country and this may lead to more urgent care facilities in an area than emergency rooms. However, beneficiaries who seek care at emergency centers need to ask if it is affiliated with a hospital-based emergency department. If it isn't, the beneficiary will need to make a decision about getting care elsewhere or being responsible for those facility charges.

Beneficiaries can check if a provider is TRICARE-authorized by calling their regional contractor. Contact information for regional contractors is available at www.tricare.mil/calculus. Learn more about emergency care under TRICARE at www.tricare.mil/emergency.

Tuition

TA where the program would pay 75 percent of tuition costs and 25 percent of that would be the responsibility of the Sailor.

"This is important to me because I want an educated Sailor, and I want you to leave with all the certifications you can, so you can get a good job when you leave the Navy and fall right into a career," said Greenert. "We've accelerated your life, as we like to say."

The CNO added that he is focusing on a way to ensure that Sailors using tuition assistance take courses that will benefit both the Navy and the Sailor and lead to a marketable degree in the civilian sector.

The split-pay proposal was designed primarily to improve the effectiveness of the program by increasing Sailors' investment in their education. Usage analysis of Tuition Assistance suggests that when Sailors weigh personal cost as a factor, course completion rates increase.

"Eventually, we may have to ask you to put a little skin in the game, as they say, but again I wanted FY15 to be at 100 percent," said Greenert.

TA was created after the switch from a draft military to an all-volunteer military. It provided an incentive for people to volunteer, and operated as a cost share program for more than 30 years.

In 2002, in response to retention and recruiting challenges, the TA reimbursement rate was increased from 75 percent to a full 100 percent.

The current tuition assistance policy pays up front the tuition and fees for course enrollments. There is an FY credit limit of 16 Semester Hours, 24 Quarter Hours, or 240 clock hours per individual per fiscal year. Payments for tuition/fees will not exceed:

- a. $250.00 per Semester Hour
- b. $166.67 per Quarter Hour
- c. $16.67 per Clock Hour

If you are considering taking courses, now is the best time to submit your TA application.

The Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) recently announced that the expenditure rate for TA funding is currently below normal levels. Usage is trending upward, and it's expected to increase to normal levels over the next few month, but currently, there's more funding available than usual at this time of the year.

you wear the uniform today, today's retirement system is your retirement system."

Pushing back on recent retirement articles, Greenert told Sailors in Mayport, "There is no plan today to change retirement."

Greenert said the rumors of retirement changes stem from the Department of Defense recommendations to the Military Compensation and Retirement Modernization Commission reviewing military retirement for Congress.

The President established the commission to conduct a review of military compensation and retirement systems. The commission is tasked to submit a report of its findings, along with its member's recommendations, by Feb. 1, 2015 to the President and Congress.

"Any retirement change that would take place is quite a ways down the road," said Greenert.

Mayport

"There is no plan today to change retirement," Greenert said. "If you wear the uniform today, today's retirement system is your retirement system."

Another question on many Sailors in attendance minds was the future of the tuition assistance program. Greenert put those worries to bed when he announced that the Tuition Assistance (TA) program will continue to pay 100 percent of Sailors' tuition and enrollment fees in fiscal year 15 (FY15). This decision modifies a proposal for FY15, which originally included a payment split for TA where the program would pay 75 percent of tuition costs and 25 percent of that would be the responsibility of the Sailor.

"This is important to me because I want an educated Sailor, and I want you to leave with all the certifications you can, so you can get a good job when you leave the Navy and fall right into a career," said Greenert. "We've accelerated your life, as we like to say."

Greenert continued by talking about the future of Mayport and the importance of the development of the Amphibious Ready Group. With USS New York (LPD-21) already homeported at naval Station Mayport and the other two ships, USS Iwo Jima (LHD-7) and USS Fort McHenry (LSD-45) slated to arrive as early later on this year... According to Greenert, the development of Mayport is important for the defense of the East Coast.

"This first phase of the ARG move to Mayport underscores the Navy's commitment to a strategic dispersal of assets; a

When asked about the possibility of a new retirement system, Greenert said "It's going to be a few years before we get one put together, studied, voted on and implemented."

An overhaul to military retirement is being considered to ensure fiscal sustainability for the Armed Forces as well as ensure quality of life for service members who choose to make the military a career.

Greenert said if there are changes, service members will have the option to transition to a new system but will still have the option to stay in the current retirement system they signed up under.

strategy that your congressman Crenshaw has long advocated on Capitol Hill," he said. "The strategic dispersal of aircraft carriers on the east coast is important. As for the home porting of an aircraft carrier at Naval Station Mayport, we still want to see that come to fruition, but we don't have the money right now. In the meantime, we're almost there to making sure the Mayport facilities are fully aircraft carrier capable."

In closing during a press conference following the All Hands Call, Greenert praised everyone who is a part of the Mayport family.

I want to thank everyone who is a part of what makes this base great," he said. "The community is great, they really embrace us, and this is what makes this such a popular place to be assigned to."

Elrod, HSL-60 Assume Escort Duty For 'Morning Glory' Tanker Ship

By Army Sgt. 1st Class Tyrone C. Marshall Jr.
American Forces Press Service

The U.S. Navy's USS Elrod, with embarked NS Mayport-based HSL-60 Detachment Two, relieved USS Stout of its escort duties for the Morning Glory tanker ship March 19, Army Col. Steven Warren, a Defense Department spokesman, told Pentagon reporters.

The Navy initially took control of the commercial tanker in international waters by request of the governments of Libya and Cyprus following its seizure earlier this month by three armed Libyans.

The Morning Glory, according to a DOD statement, is carrying cargo of oil owned by the Libyan government National Oil Company, and was illicitly obtained from the Libyan port of As-Sidra.

Warren said 34 sailors from the USS Elrod are aboard the Morning Glory and all USS Stout personnel have departed the ship.

"We're going to hand over the Morning Glory to Libyan naval authorities within the next day or two in international waters just outside of the territorial water line," he said.

Everything will be turned over to the government of Libya, Warren noted, including the three armed Libyans, the entire 21-member organic crew of the Morning Glory, the ship and all of its contents.

The change of escorts was for administrative reasons, Warren said. The USS Stout is assigned to the U.S. European Command area of operations, while the USS Elrod has the U.S. Africa Command area of operations.

The USS Elrod, an Oliver Hazard Perry-class frigate, is homeported in Norfolk, Va., and deployed Jan. 14 to the 6th Fleet area of operations.

Ensign Nicholas Wood from Warsw, Ind., takes a bearing during a passing exercise with the Albanian military aboard the Arleigh Burke-class guided-missile destroyer USS Roosevelt (DDG 80). Roosevelt is on a scheduled deployment supporting maritime security operations and theater security cooperation efforts in the U.S. 6th Fleet area of responsibility.

"They said, 'We've done our best, and we think we're ready, but don't pull any punches,' and we certainly didn't," Flint said.

The inspection team's report to the fleet included several recommendations for improvement, as well as praise for good work.

Before the inspection, U.S. 4th Fleet leaders conducted a critical self-assessment, Flint said. Determining that a computer system in their Maritime Operations Center was no longer needed, they eliminated it.

"Besides reducing your vulnerability footprint, it allowed your team to focus on what does matter to you: improving your information assurance posture and making it sustainable," he said.

Capt. Steve Shinego, the U.S. 4th Fleet chief of staff, accepted the inspection team's report.

"As you walked from building to building, I hope you found the same desire to do what was right – not just be inspection-ready," he said.

"The real goal is to learn what good habits and what good practices we should be using to safeguard ourselves against adversaries – so we're keeping Sailors and Marines safer downrange."

Passing the inspection was a win for U.S. 4th Fleet, but the right type of winner has humility and a desire for constant improvement, he said.

U.S. 4th Fleet's communications and information systems directorate is led by Cmdr. Bradley Maas, who expressed thanks to his Navy colleagues, including other fleet communications and information systems directors, and to his staff for their support.

Within the U.S. 4th Fleet directorate, "We really had to ramp it up," Maas said. "These guys did it, and I really can't say enough about that team."

He is especially proud of the members of his team achieving 100 percent completion of its Cyber Security Work Force training certification, Maas said.

"Those are difficult certifications to accomplish, especially with the mix of ratings we have in our shop," he said.

Among the missions of the Fort Meade, Md.-based U.S. Fleet Cyber Command is to direct, operate, maintain, secure and defend the Navy's portion of the global information grid. In 2011, it established the inspection program with the goal of minimizing vulnerabilities to attacks.
