Memorial Day messages from our leaders

From the Secretary of Defense:

On this Memorial Day, we again pause to remember and to honor those who dedicated their lives to the service of others.

From the first citizen-soldiers who stood fast to defend their homes at Lexington and Concord, to the soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines securing our liberty and our way of life today, our country has been truly blessed by those who stepped forward to say, "Send me."

Theirs is a noble calling that founded a nation, drove back the forces of fascism, communism and terrorism, and made historic advances in the cause of human freedom.

Their service strengthens our will to persevere through every challenge.

They remind us of what it

Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense

means to be an American.

So to all of those serving our country today, know that we are deeply grateful to you and to your families.

May God bless you. And may God bless our wonderful country.

From the Secretary of the Navy:

For more than two centuries, Americans have been called upon to defend the founding ideals of our democracy. On Memorial Day, a grateful nation undertakes its solemn duty to honor the proud patriots who sacrificed their lives in defense of our great nation.

Throughout our history, loyal citizens like yourselves, from every corner of America have willingly assumed the duty of military service. Time after time, in conflicts across the globe, we have proven that democracy is mightier than tyranny. Our fallen heroes lie in hallowed ground - everywhere they carried the torch of freedom to light the way of peace for mankind.

Today, sailors and marines continue to fight and bring hope in Iraq, Afghanistan and throughout the world. Your vital work is spreading the realm of freedom and advancing the cause of liberty. We are winning the war on terrorism through continued patience, resolve and

From the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff:

"That from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

These iconic words delivered by President Abraham

Lincoln at Gettysburg embody the true meaning of Memorial Day: to honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of freedom.

Each member of the Armed Forces swears an oath to support and defend the Constitution. The unspoken part of that oath is the willingness to lay down one's life to protect our liberties. Our freedom is not free, and the sacrifices of servicemen and women throughout history stand as constant, powerful reminders of the price.

President Lincoln said, "to truly honor these heroes, we must steadfastly resolve to continue their noble fight against all who would threaten our way of life."

On behalf of the Joint Chiefs and the men and women of the Armed Forces, I join all Americans in paying tribute to those who gave their lives in service to our country. We are eternally grateful for their selfless sacrifice, and honored to carry on their precious legacy.

determination. We will be victorious.

The noble sacrifices of those lost in this war will not be forgotten. By giving their lives in the cause of freedom, these heroes have protected and inspired all Americans. Remember them today - their commitment, patriotism and sacrifice.

As you continue to serve our nation, please take a moment to reflect on your accomplishment and legacy of service. I extend my sincere wishes for a safe Memorial Day. May God bless you and your families and thank you for your continued faithful and dedicated service to our country.

GTMO commemorates Memorial Day

By MC2(AW) Honey Nixon, Naval Station Public Affairs

With stark white graves lending a somber background to a flowing American flag at half-mast, servicemembers, their families, co-workers and friends, gathered at Cuzco Wells Cemetery, May 29, to commemorate Memorial Day.

Each grave was marked with a delicate flag of its country of origin, symbolizing the sacrifice, struggle, and dedication of those who gave their lives in pursuit of American liberties and ideals.

RDML Harry Harris Jr., Commander, Joint Task Force Guantanamo Bay; CAPT Mark Leary, Commander U.S. Naval Station Guantanamo Bay; and CAPT Ronald Sollock, Commanding Officer, U.S. Naval Hospital Guantanamo Bay; laid a wreath at the base of the flagpole after colors were rendered to honor the many who are laid to rest in the cemetery.

This symbolic gesture was followed by heartfelt speeches after an invocation by CDR Ronald Kawczynski, the base Chaplain.

RDML Harris called upon everyone present to adopt an inspired rather than somber perspective, while remembering those who have fallen in the name of freedom.

"While Memorial Day is traditionally a solemn day," said Harris, "in which we Americans honor our fellow citizens who have lost their lives on the fields of battle. On this beautiful day here in Guantanamo, we should not be saddened by the burdens of history, but rather rejoice in the blessings of history."

CAPT Leary paid homage to both these burdens and blessings with a brief history of the battle of Cuzco Wells, where five Marines died.

Leary reminded attendees that these men made the ultimate sacrifice to help maintain a legacy of freedom that still exists today.

"Memorial Day is about those men, the men who died here (Cuzco Wells), for freedom. It's about our grandfathers who lie sleeping on the battlefields of Europe. It's about our fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, who served and died defending us, and who continue to make that sacrifice everyday to bring the gift of freedom that we so cherish to people who have never known freedom before."

"And here we are today," continued Leary, "still holding a high ground on the edge of freedom. This is the ground they gave us. The ground they died to take. The well is still ours, and God willing, everyday, we will stand with courage by the well to honor the men who gave it to us, never relinquishing their dream of a free and peaceful world."

The closing of the ceremony included a 21-gun salute by a rifle team from Marine Corps Security Force Company the first Memorial Day was observed by liberated slaves at the historic racetrack in Charleston in 1865.

The site was a former Confederate prison camp, and mass grave for Union soldiers who had died while being held captive.

A parade by thousands of freed slaves and Union soldiers was followed by patriotic singing and a picnic, which might explain the Memorial Day traditions like barbecuing and festivals seen today.

Guantanamo Bay was just one of many installations around the world that commemorated the memories of those who have sacrificed through service, reminding everyone that the mission here owes credit, not to just past sacrifices, but to present ones as well, helping to maintain this legacy of freedom.

MWR offers new Jazzercise classes

By Teri Key, MWR Jazzercise Instructor

Three new Jazzercise dance-fitness classes will open at the Marine Hill Fitness Center starting June 5.

Jazzercise instructor, Teri Key, along with MWR Fitness Programs, have added the classes to accommodate new participants and to provide current participants with a greater choice of convenient class times.

A 60-minute regular Jazzercise class will take place at Marine Hill Fitness Center, Thursdays at 7 p.m. Additionally, and new to GTMO, there will also be two 30- to 45-minute Cardio-Quick classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6 a.m.

"I'm excited about the growth of Jazzercise locally and look forward to continued expansion," said Key. "Jazzercise offers a unique blend of fitness and jazz dance that GTMO residents have discovered is a lot of fun."

The new classes will make it easier for participants to enjoy a workout where and when it's convenient for them.

A few local participants give their own views about the rewards of Jazzercise.

"No one worries about what you're wearing, or even if you make a mistake. It's fun and it's a great stress release."

"I now see muscles I didn't even know existed!"

"One class, just one class and I was hooked."

The Jazzercise classes include a warm-up, high-energy aerobic routines, muscle-toning and cool-down stretch segments. Jazzercise combines elements of dance, resistance training, Pilates, yoga, kick-boxing and more to create programs for people of every age and fitness level.

Now celebrating its 37th year, Jazzercise, created by Judi Sheppard Missett, is the world's leading dance-fitness program.

With more than 6,300 instructors teaching 20,000 classes weekly worldwide, the comprehensive program, designed to enhance cardiovascular endurance, strength, and flexibility has helped millions of people of all ages and fitness levels reap the benefits of exercise and improve well-being.

Key has been an instructor in the GTMO area since January 2006.

Area divers bring issues to command attention

By MC1 Robert Lamb, Naval Station Public Affairs

A town hall meeting was held May 23, aimed at improving the communications that surround the diving community and other issues governing open water scuba diving by all personnel at U.S. Naval Station Guantanamo Bay.

Although there was not a huge turnout, several dozen people showed up at Locke Auditorium in Bulkeley Hall to share ideas and concerns, and hear from NAVSTA Commanding Officer, CAPT Mark Leary; the Staff Judge Advocate, LCDR Matt Beran; and Security/Force Protection Officer, LT Bob Thompson.

The main issues concerned enforcement of current regulations, rules governing area fisherman, and visitors and amateur divers who violate base recreation instructions. According to COMNAVBASE-GTMOINST 1711.1 (Scuba Diving at Naval Base Guantanamo Bay), everyone who enters the water (to snorkel, scuba dive or fish) should know what the rules and regulations are before going in/on the water.

Noncompliance with COMNAVBASEGTMOINST 1711.1 could result in administrative action including suspension of diving privileges and debarment, and/or disciplinary action for military members.

The instruction is a lawful order enforceable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ).

But there was another issue on the minds of many who came to the town hall meeting last Tuesday.

"We (scuba divers) feel that we're being looked at unfairly," said ABE1(SW) Mica Cochran, the main spokesman for the diving community during the meeting.

He said there is no consistency when it comes to operators at Port Control, there are few signs that warn divers and fisherman of the rules, and there seems to be a disparity between controls on regular fishermen and divers.

"There are signs all over the base - don't feed the iguanas, don't do this, don't do that - why can't we do it about this (sea life). Most of our wildlife here on the base are not walking around the base, they're under the water," said Cochran.

CAPT Leary admitted that there are some inconsistencies, and addressed the Port Control issue specifically.

"As far as Port Control, I know we're going through some growing pains," he said. "But we're improving our Personal Qualification Standards (PQS) for our watch standards. Some other issues need to be addressed, but I think we are improving," he added.

Virtual university comes to GTMO

By Michael Dell, Information Service Department

Virtual University Enterprise (VUE) provides free software to U.S. Military installations wishing to offer certification testing to Service Members, dependents, and contractors. Now, Guantanamo Bay residents will be able to enjoy the same benefits.

U.S. Naval Station Guantanamo Bay granted a license to establish the Information Technology Career Association (ITCA) on May 25.

The ITCA, which is scheduled for opening July 1, will run an all-volunteer Virtual University Enterprises (VUE) Testing Center at the Marine Hill training room. The center will be a computer-based testing center manned by ITCA members who will have completed a VUE proctoring course.

In addition to running the center, ITCA will enhance the social and professional relationship among local IT professionals. ITCA will act as a framework for bringing together communities of interest in topics such as networking, Microsoft training, open source, and PC gaming.

While primarily involved in providing IT certification testing, VUE will also offer certification exams in the fields of health care and medicine, human resources, academics, and financial services.

Certification exams will be available to everyone in the GTMO community, particularly to servicemembers. There are also a number of benefits available to servicemembers wishing to become certified. Learn more at <http://www.vue.com/military>.

Anyone wishing to take an exam with GTMO's VUE center will be able to schedule and pay for any exam online. The vendor, such as Microsoft, SUN, IBM, or Cisco, sets the fees for exams.

Proctors will work on a volunteer basis. A seating fee for non-ITCA members will be assessed to cover the costs of running the VUE center. The amount of those fees is not yet determined.

Once fully organized, ITCA will meet weekly in the Marine Hill facility on Saturdays.

Donations of computer equipment to help set-up the VUE center are welcome.

Questions regarding ITCA should be directed to: ITCAGTMO@gmail.com

Area divers bring concerns to leadership ...

The command element seemed to think there was some merit to the divers' concerns and reiterated several times that they would look into a particular matter.

Many of the scuba divers who were present felt that amateur divers or visitors who are only on the island for a short time are never made aware of the base instruction, and that the enforcement targets the avid recreational divers, specifically the 110 divers that belong to Reef Raiders Dive Club.

Divers who know the rules and regulations have the support of the command with regard to enforcing those rules and regulations.

Leary said it is the right and a responsibility of all residents assigned here to enforce the rules and to protect the natural wildlife at this unique location, whether they are a diver or a passerby.

"If you give us the opportunity to enforce it, we will," he said. He added that people who observe infractions of the rules should notify Base Security or Port Control.

Many of the avid divers feel that the unintentional illegal fishing that takes place here is being conducted by a small number of inexperienced divers, and the rod-and-reel fishermen.

The divers say that these people are not being held accountable for their illegal activities.

Some feel that the more experienced divers and long-time-resident divers of GTMO are being singled out when reports surface about out-of-season fishing.

"Never cut off an opportunity to report somebody," said Leary. "Start holding those individuals accountable. I can put up signs, and write instructions all day long, but you guys are the ones are in the water all the time," Leary remarked.

Another issue revolved around fishing licenses. The divers believe that rod-and-reel fishermen aren't held to the same regulations and rules as divers when it come to catching fish. Spear fisherman need to take a test, while line fisherman don't.

Is Base Security responsible for checking every cooler on the beach, or looking over every boat that comes back to the marina? Of course not.

Area fishermen must make every reasonable attempt to follow the restrictions provided by NAVSTA Environmental Department. It is up to the fisherman to know the rules, regardless if they use a spear or line.

Many of the questions that came up during the meeting were taken seriously by the command and will be staffed to the appropriate departments.

"I'm responsible, so to the best of my ability, I'm going to control it only as much as I have too," said Leary.

"If you feel that it's micro-managing, well, it's my authority and my responsibility. I want to make sure that there is safe recreation while there is diving on base, and I'm going to do that. If you think we're over-regulating, I'm open to suggestions in how we can better regulate you less closely, but maintain the same kind of control. I'm open to listen."

Editor's note: Over the next several weeks the Gazette will have space dedicated to informing the public about the restrictions and regulations that govern Outdoor Recreation and Wildlife Instruction (1710.1) and Scuba Diving at Naval Base GTMO (1710.10). The first of these is located just to the right of this article.

Columbia College now available on Navy ships

By Sarah Stillfield, Columbia College

Sailors aboard Navy vessels now have the opportunity to attend Columbia College classes without leaving the ship.

Through a partnership with Central Texas College in Killeen, Texas, Columbia College offers courses leading to a bachelor's degree in general/interdisciplinary studies as part of the Navy College Program for Afloat College Education (NCPACE).

As early as the 1970s, the Navy has provided sea-going sailors educational opportunities allowing them to continue their education through vocational skills courses and college degree programs while on assignment at sea.

The Navy covers the cost of course tuition, and students are responsible for the cost of textbooks and associated fees.

Columbia College identified 21 eight-week courses from its curriculum to offer through the NCPACE program. Enrollment in courses varies from 10 to 25 students.

"One in every four students at Columbia College is in the military or a military dependent," said Dr. Gerald Brouder, Columbia College president.

"In addition to our 16 campus on military bases and our Online Campus, the NCPACE program is one more way for the college to help military personnel earn college degrees."

NCPACE courses are led by qualified instructors who accompany the students onboard the ship.

All NCPACE instructors meet the same qualifications and academic requirements as required for Columbia College on-campus and online instructors. They have at least a master's degree and bring real-world experience to the classroom.

Fourteen students enrolled in the first Columbia College NCPACE course, History of the Modern U.S., offered in November 2005 aboard the USS Emory S. Land. Since that time, Columbia College has offered additional classes aboard the USS Ronald Reagan, USS John Paul Jones and the USS Cape St. George.

To date, 67 students have completed NCPACE courses through Columbia College.

Columbia College serves nearly 25,000 students each year at its Day Campus, Evening Campus, Online Campus, Graduate Studies Program and its more than 30 Nationwide Campuses.
