

NASCAR drivers make pit stop at GTMO

Story by MC1 Robert Lamb, Public Affairs Office

NASCAR stock car racing fans are everywhere, including Guantanamo Bay. Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, and other residents of Guantanamo Bay watched Joe Nemechek post a ninth-place finish at Saturday night's Bank of America 500 Nextel Cup race on television. Nemechek has scored three consecutive top-10 finishes at Lowe's Motor Speedway in North Carolina, and it was his best finish of this season.

Just hours after the race concluded, Nemechek, whose Cup team is sponsored by the U.S. Army, his mother Martha and Ashton Lewis Jr., driver of a Busch Series team sponsored by the Marines, flew to GTMO in a private jet-plane to take part in the NEX Customer Appreciation Day celebration, visiting with servicemembers and residents.

"Joe is very enthusiastic about visiting troops," said Martha Nemechek.

After volunteering to come to GTMO, Nemechek said, "One thing I've learned driving the Army car is that troops, no matter where they're stationed, they follow NASCAR."

The military is represented by more than one car in the Nextel Cup and Busch series. In an effort to have more than one service represented during the visit, Nemechek brought along Lewis, the Team Marines driver, who has been one of the top competitors in the this year's series, and finished eighth in the 2004 NASCAR Busch Series point championship.

Representatives from Goodyear Tires, and an editor and photographer from NASCAR Scene, a weekly publication, also visited the station to give away racing memorabilia and to spread the word that NASCAR supports servicemembers and their families for the sacrifices they make in the war on terrorism.

"This has been a neat trip," said

Nemechek. "How many people get to go to Guantanamo Bay, the only base that's on communist soil? That's pretty cool, and I got to land my own plane here. That's just incredible, a once-in-a-lifetime deal."

Shortly after arriving in GTMO, the drivers headed over to the Camp America and visited with NASCAR fans at the Seaside Galley, visited the Northeast Gate, and had their photos taken with Marines at Marine Corps Security Force Company headquarters.

"I've met a lot of great Soldiers (and Sailors) here. This place is a vital part of our security," said Nemechek. "The only thing I knew about Guantanamo Bay was from what I had seen in movies. When you see it for real, it's beautiful — to go out and see the Northeast Gate and the fence that separates Communist Cuba from GTMO, and look across the way and there are Cuban military folks up on their posts looking back at you. I've learned a lot about GTMO today,"

After touring the station, and signing a few autographs along the way, the two drivers arrived at MWR's 'Checkered Flag Raceway' for Joe's and Ashton's final race of the weekend. MAC(SW) Michael McClinton, NAVSTA Security Operations Chief, was the lucky driver to be chosen to go head to head with the two professional drivers.

Military Commissions Act will bring justice

By Jim Garamone, American Forces Press Service

President Bush signed into law an act he said will bring justice to terrorists who attacked America on Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Bush signed the Military Commissions Act of 2006 into law during a White House ceremony.

The act will allow the Central Intelligence Agency to continue gathering information that will save American lives, the president said, and it sends a clear message to those who threaten it.

"This nation is patient and decent and fair, and we will never back down from the threats to our freedom," he said. "We are as determined today as we were on the morning of Sept. 12, 2001. We will meet our obligation to protect our people, and no matter how long it takes, justice will be done."

The new law establishes the procedures military commissions will use in trying unlawful enemy combatants engaged in hostilities against the United States. Al Qaeda and Taliban operatives fall into the definition of unlawful enemy combatants.

The act lays out exactly how

President George W. Bush signs the Military Commissions Act of 2006 during a White House ceremony Oct. 17. The act enables the President to establish military commissions.

the military commissions are convened, and what procedural safeguards must be in place.

These include a presumption of innocence, proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, the right of the accused to represent himself, and inadmissibility of statements obtained through torture. In addition, the law provides for a right to call and cross-examine witnesses, lawyer/client privilege, no presumption of guilt from remaining silent, and representation by a military defense counsel. "These military commissions are lawful, they are fair, and they are necessary," Bush said.

The act will allow the commissions to try those accused with masterminding the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks in the United States, the attack on the USS Cole in a Yemeni harbor in 2000 and bombings of U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania in 1998.

"With our actions, we will send a clear message to those who kill Americans: We will find you and we will bring you to justice," the president said.

DoD officials said motions under the new bill may be heard as early as January. Trials probably will not start much before the summer, officials said.

The majority of the 440 detainees held at the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base detainee facility in Cuba will not face military commissions. Only detainees who will be charged with law-of-war violations and other grave offenses – about 75, officials estimated – will be subject to the commissions.

"With this bill, America reaffirms our determination to win the war on terror. The passage of time will not dull our memory or sap our nerve. We will fight this war with confidence and with clear purpose. We will protect our country and our people," said Bush.

Military commissions have a long history in the United States. The colonies used military commissions during the Revolutionary War. The U.S. military used them during the Civil War and during World War II.

A 'taste of home' comes to GTMO

Story by MC2(AW) Honey Nixon, Public Affairs Office

'Fresh' was the word, Oct. 11, as the NEX/Commissary unveiled its new Deli/Bakery to Guantanamo Bay residents. Offering a variety of fresh sliced meats, cheeses and breads, the deli bakery is ready to deliver a 'taste of home' to its customers.

"Our theme, and goal from the start of this project, was to bring a taste of home to residents here," said Courtney Jackson, Commissary store manager. "I grew up in the military overseas, and I know some of the things people do without. So, it was important for us to be able to give that taste of 'Hometown, USA'."

Jackson and her team of deli workers accomplished that goal.

"One thing I always look forward when I go home is fresh bread, sliced deli meat and cheeses," said MA3 Joyce Delong. "So, it's really great they have this here now."

"I am ecstatic with the turnout," said Jackson. "I couldn't be happier. The feedback I have already gotten is great. People keep telling us it's just like going to a state-side supermarket."

"It's wonderful to have a fresh option of meats and cheeses," said Michael Youberg, who picked up some baby Swiss cheese, various meats, and some bread to make his specialty breakfast dish. "Now, I can make my homemade French toast," he grinned.

NAVSTA leadership, NEX and Commissary workers, cut loaves of fresh bread, officially opening the new NEX Bakery/Deli on Oct.11.

The deli/bakery workers worked through the night, some without sleep, to ensure there was plenty of bread to sell.

"I absolutely couldn't have done it without my associates," added Jackson.

The deli/bakery is another GTMO morale booster for the community and developed relatively quickly.

"We submitted the proposal in April to management, and it took six months, from proposal to finish," said Jackson. "It really helped that Capt. Leary (NAVSTA commanding officer) was behind us 100 percent."

The Deli/Bakery is still a work in progress, and the NEX team isn't finished yet.

"We are looking at expanding the deli," said Jackson, "possibly adding rotisserie chicken and more variety to the products. By the end of the month we will have 28 varieties of bread, and 21 different meats. We have much more in the works."

People, Cutter, Mission — Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of GTMO toured the USCG Cutter Diligence on Thursday, Oct. 12, when it pulled into the station for stores and fuel. The tour of the cutter coincided with the local premier of the movie 'Guardian.' The cutter has two Alco 251CE 16 cylinder turbo diesel engines; displaces 1109 tons; is 210 feet long, with a beam of 34 feet. The cutter is homeported in Wilmington, N.C.

From the desk of the NLSO SE Introducing the Legal Assistance Corner

By LT Stacey Leonard, Officer In Charge NLSO SE DET GTMO/JTF/GTMO Legal Assistance

Welcome to the first edition of the Legal Assistance Corner. Each month, the Legal Assistance Office will be publishing a column, both in the Gazette and the Wire, designed to provide guidance to personnel stationed in Guantanamo Bay on a variety of legal issues they may encounter.

Our first edition addresses the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) – formerly known as the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act. This act provides safeguards for the servicemember in civil matters (as opposed to criminal matters) when military duties interfere with normal civilian legal proceedings.

While on active duty, servicemembers are protected from negative action in areas where the member's service may interfere with his ability to meet civilian obligations.

Even though you may have heard of this act before, most people are not fully aware of all the tremendous benefits it gives to military members and their dependents.

The most commonly known benefit is the 6 percent interest rate limitation on pre-service debts. Servicemembers with credit card debt, an auto loan, school loan, or basically any kind of loan (including mortgages) with an interest rate higher than 6 percent, under the Act, are entitled to have their interest rate reduced to 6 percent. Personnel must have acquired the debt obligation prior to coming on active duty and if asked, must be able to demonstrate that their military service has "materially affected" their ability to pay the debt.

In order to benefit from this protection, personnel simply need to notify the creditor that they are on active duty and provide them with a copy of their orders. Upon receiving this information, the creditor will lower the interest rate to the statutory 6 percent and the overall principal balance owed will be based upon this new rate. All amounts previously based on a higher interest rate must be forgiven.

The SCRA also allows for a stay or postponement of court proceedings against servicemembers.

If you are being sued or are involved as a party in any kind of court proceeding and cannot attend the court proceeding due to your military obligations, the SCRA gives you an automatic stay for a period of not less than 90 days.

A stay can be used to stop the action or put it on hold during any phase in the case. The court may stay the action on its own motion and shall stay the action upon application by the servicemember.

To stop the case, the court needs a letter from the servicemember and their commanding officer stating that current military duty prevents their appearance and they are not authorized military leave at this time.

Some of the other great benefits include; protection against default judgments, protection from eviction, termination of pre-service residential leases, termination of leases during military service, temporary relief from paying mortgages, and termination of auto leases during military service.

As you can see, the SCRA can be a big help to military members while they're deployed. The United States Supreme Court has declared that the Act must read with "an eye friendly to those who dropped their affairs to answer their country's call."

If you think you may qualify for protection under the Act, stop by the legal assistance office or make an appointment to discuss your case with an attorney.

Story provided by Southeast Public Affairs

The U.S. Navy is in the process of reorganizing its public affairs and photo communities. Although this reorganization will dramatically increase support to fleet operations and fleet commanders, photo services traditionally provided by installation photo labs will no longer be available.

All commands throughout the Navy are authorized and encouraged to purchase digital cameras to photograph local command activities that will no longer be available through public affairs offices or disestablished photo labs, such as reenlistments, retirements, changes of command, awards ceremonies, roster boards and passport photos.

Safety and investigative photography will still be provided.

The new PACEN Detachments will maintain studio photography capabilities and still provide CO, XO, CMC, SOY portraits and special program photographic requirements.

The Fleet Imaging Center (photo lab) located aboard NAS Jacksonville is transitioning to a Fleet Public Affairs Center Detachment (PACEN Dets.) and relocate to Naval Station Mayport (building 2038) before the end of the year.

PACEN Detachments will be permanently located at various overseas and CONUS stations, including Naval Station Mayport, providing immediate and comprehensive coverage at critical fleet installations. Dets will focus on the production and distribution of news material and visual information relevant to fleet activities in those respective regions.

Locally, the photo services previously provided by the base photo lab in Bldg. 760 will no longer be available. At the present time there is no PACEN Det scheduled for Guantanamo Bay. For more information contact the station Public Affairs Office at 4502 or 4520.

GTMO commemorates Fire Prevention Week

Story by MC1 Igo Wordu, Naval Station Public Affairs Office

The Guantanamo Bay Fire Department joined the rest of the country in recognition of this year's Fire Prevention week. "Prevent Cooking Fires: Watch What You Heat" that's the message of this year's Fire Prevention Week.

The Fire department conducted a series of events including exhibitions at the elementary school and the Navy Exchange.

Fire Prevention Chief, Michael Doran said the week-long events is an opportunity to turn GTMO residents' awareness to fire safety and prevention.

"Fire Prevention week gives the fire department another opportunity to reach out to our residents and show them fire safety tips," said Doran. "It is also an opportunity for us to help our community to develope plans in case of fire emergency."

"From Oct. 8-14, we'll be spreading the word that more fires start in the kitchen than in any other part of the home, and teaching families and kids how to keep cooking fires from starting in the first place," said Doran.

According to the National Fire Prevention Association, between 1999-2002, there were 114,000 reported home fires associated with cooking equipment on average per year, resulting in an annual 290 deaths and 4,380 injuries. Unattended cooking is the leading cause of home cooking fires. Three in 10 reported home fires start in the kitchen — more than any other place in the home. Two out of three reported home cooking fires start with the range or stove. Electric ranges or stoves have a higher risk of fires, injuries and property damage, compared to gas ranges or stoves, but gas ranges or stoves have a higher risk of fire deaths.

The history of National Fire Prevention Week

The history of National Fire Prevention Week has its roots in the Great Chicago Fire, which occurred on Oct. 8, 1871. This tragic conflagration killed some 300 people, left 100,000 homeless and destroyed more than 17,000 structures.

The origin of the fire has generated speculation since its occurrence, with the fact and fiction becoming blurred over the years. One popular legend has it that Mrs O'Leary was milking her cow when the animal kicked over a lamp, setting the O'Leary barn on fire and starting the spectacular blaze. However the massive fire began, it swiftly took its toll, burning more than 2,000 acres in 27 hours.

The city of Chicago quickly rebuilt, however, and within a couple of years residents began celebrating their successful restoration to memorialize the anniversary of the fire with festivities.

Sampson Elementary School present a poster, complete with letters written by the students in her class, to the Guantanamo Bay Fire Department on Oct. 17. The students wanted to thank the men in the Fire Department for their assistance during Fire Prevention Week. Assistant Fire Chief Leal and Fireman Belle took the class through a small training session where they learned about the different pieces of fire equipment used when fighting a fire. The big treat for the class was being allowed to get on the Fire Truck and go through the fire cab. As the firemen were leaving the elementary school, they sounded the siren and the fire alert horn for the children.

NEX Customer Appreciation Day, a little something for everyone

By MC1 Robert Lamb, MC1 Igo Wordu, and MC2(AW) Honey Nixon, Naval Station Public Affairs Office

The fifth annual Guantanamo Bay Navy Exchange Customer Appreciation Day celebration offered residents more than just a great shopping spree. This year there were performances and events involving a very diverse group of artists and athletes.

There was music, magic, comedy and heart-felt stories of courage, determination and success all rolled into one long weekend. Along with $12,000 in hourly free give-aways, there were rest and relaxation grand prizes that had soldiers eager to pack their bags.

Pvt. Joshua Clark, 189 MP Co., won a trip to Las Vegas; Sgt. Ryan Miller, 189th Co., 2nd Platoon, won a vacation in South Beach, Fla.; Daniel Stokes won a vacation trip to Disney World in Orlando, Fla.; and Spc. Brian Roche, won a trip to London, England.

Perhaps the biggest draw for the NEX Customer Appreciation Day were the prizes, but most anticipated prize was the drawing for the Harley Davidson motorcycle, which went to Spc. Sammy Roman, with the 189th Co.

"I actually came out here to buy a mountain bike," laughed Roman, "but I didn't find one, so I figured I would stick around for this (raffle drawing)."

Roman walked shyly up to the stage to claim his prize, unsure if the bike was truly his.

"I told the guy in front of me," "What was that name they called?" Roman said. "I figured it was really me, but I walked up to the stage kind of slow, because I didn't want to look dumb in case it wasn't."

Roman has some safety classes to sign-up for now that he won the motorcycle.

"I have no motorcycle license," he laughed. "So I guess I will get one now. I was in the Marine Corps for four years, and I never saw anything like this."

"Overall, I though it was an excellent event, I though the community responded tremendously, most people on base came out and enjoyed some aspect of it, Whether it was the sales, t-shirts, the magic show, autograph sessions or the prizes. It was a great community event," said Kitty Case, NEX Store Manager. "I believe people that have experienced a Customer Appreciation Day before weren't disappointed and for those who have never participated in one, weren't disappointed either. The base residents were in awe of what was going on. The feedback from the community was overwhelming. The way everybody participated made it what it was meant to be."

The grand prize drawings weren't the only events that brought smiles to individual winners' faces. Throughout the day, the NEX gave away smaller prizes such as Ipods, digital cameras, and NEX gift cards in varying amounts.

Stephen Doherty won a $1,000 NEX gift card, and plans to put it to good use.

"All this money is going to be spent on equipment for my boat," said Doherty. "I think it's awesome. Winning is always good, but then again I'm a pretty lucky guy," he laughs. "I was definitely excited."

GTMO residents also got the chance to meet and greet some inspiring athletes from the Olympics, Paralympics, and other top athletic events from around the world. Their success stories were the kind that made the young dream, and the old envious.

The military athletes included U.S. Navy Cryptologic Tech-force, when entertainers arrive in GTMO. This weekend was no exception. Famed rapper/hip-hop artist, Percy Millar, a.k.a. 'Master P' and his son Percy Romeo Miller, Jr., a.k.a. 'Lil Romeo,' helped kick-off this year's NEX Customer Appreciation Day with a concert held at the Downtown Lyceum.

The lyceum was packed with fans, mostly teenagers, who came out to see one of their favorite artists perform. The New Orleans native thanked the crowd, saying it was an honor for him and his son to visit and perform for service members and their families in GTMO.

"I feel that I am doing my part in supporting the troop for all the sacrifices they make in order to defend this country," said 'Master P.'

The artists signed autographs and took pictures with fans at the end of the concert. They also held an autograph-signing session at the NEX the following day.

"Up until last year, GTMO was the only base to hold a Customer Appreciation Day. This year Naples, Italy, copied what happened here, said Case-in the South, I've always watched NASCAR racing, and still do to this day," said McClinton. "I thought the race was wonderful. This was a chance of a lifetime, to say that I raced against, and was winning against, two NASCAR drivers, for just a few laps."

It wasn't the 1.5-mile oval track near Charlotte and it wasn't racing at 180 miles an hour, but the thrill and the competition was all the drivers needed. They all strapped into their seats, and the race began. McClinton lead the first couple of laps as Joe and Ashton got familiar with the handling of the cars.

"I thought I did well, however they started to gang up on me. They started drafting with each other and that's how Joe and Ashton got pass me," added McClinton.

"It's amazing how things can change so quickly," said Nemechek. "One minute you're running in mid pack and the next minute you're back on the lead lap, running fourth."

He was referring to how he finished Saturday night's race, but maybe it's better advice for Chief McClinton for the next time he thinks he can race with the big boys.

The American way

By NDC(DSW) Jose Castilla III, 2006 CFC-O Community/Area Project Officer

It's that time of year again when Uncle Sam comes to us as Federal Employees and asks for our charitable donations.

I'm excited to serve a second year as GTMO's Combined Federal Campaign - Community/Area Project Officer. Over the course of the last 12 months, I've become intimately familiar with the special sense of community most, if not all, of us share as GTMO residents.

I sincerely enjoy waving to no less than four friends almost each and every time I motor down Sherman Ave.

A friend of mine, who once worked "behind the wire", and is now deployed on the USS Stennis, told me the other day; no less than 20 people have approached her to share GTMO stories. It's obvious; the GTMO bond endures - even thousands of miles from here, on a flat top, somewhere in the big blue sea.

Last year, I oriented the campaign around a central theme of "No Man is an Island," borrowed from the writings of English Poet John Donne. This year, and given the state of politics we're currently immersed in, I feel strongly about an "American Way" theme.

I know many of us have taken pause of late to ponder what it means to be a citizen of the United States and examine our own definition of "American Way." Many of us are torn between defending the fundamental freedoms and human rights we cherish so deeply and protecting our families from terrorism. It's not an easy path to divine.

Giving to charity, however, is an easy choice to make. We, as U.S citizens, have a proud history of helping those in need. There's nothing closer to our near-innate sense of "The American Way" than giving to those less fortunate or helping a cause we hold dear to our hearts.

So, I ask each one of you, who'll be handed a pledge card this year, to not only give generously, but also capitalize on the opportunity to reflect on what "The American Way" means to you. For how else can we prevail against those who attack it, unless we strengthen it every day in our words and our deeds?

New Jazzercise class open, onsite childcare available

Story provided by Teri Key, MWR Fitness Instructor

A new Jazzercise dance-fitness class opened in GTMO, beginning Oct. 10. Jazzercise instructor Teri Key has added the class to accommodate new participants and to provide current participants with a greater choice of convenient class times.

The new class will take place at Youth Center Gym from 5:30 - 6:30 p.m., and on-site childcare will be provided for ages infant and up, $1.50 per child.

"I'm excited about the growth of Jazzercise locally," said Key. "Jazzercise offers a unique blend of fitness and jazz dance that GTMO residents, both men and women, have discovered is a lot of fun."

The new class will just make it easier for participants to enjoy a workout where and when it's convenient for them. Plus, providing onsite childcare has been a longtime request of local residents.

Now, there is almost no excuse for not coming out and giving 100 percent to your exercise routine.

The 60-minute Jazzercise class includes a warm-up, high-energy aerobic routines, muscle-toning and cool-down stretch segment. Jazzercise combines elements of dance, resistance training, Pilates, yoga, kick-boxing and more to create programs for people of every age and fitness level. Alternative formats include Cardio Quick, offered Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:00-6:45 a.m. at the Marine Hill Fitness Center and Junior Jazzer-cise, a free children's class available at the Youth Center to all GTMO youth ages 5-12 years on Tuesdays from 3:30-4:30p.m.

Now celebrating its 37th year, Jazzercise, created by Judi Sheppard Missett, is the world's leading dance-fitness program.

With more than 6,300 instructors teaching 20,000 classes weekly worldwide, the comprehensive program, designed to enhance cardiovascular endurance, strength, and flexibility has helped millions of people of all ages and fitness levels reap the benefits of exercise and improve well-being.

Teri Key has been an instructor in the GTMO area for the past year. For more class information, call 77017 or email at Jazzforme@hotmail.com.

Public notice of JCAHO Survey

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) and the Navy Medical Inspector General (MEDINSGEN) will conduct a joint accreditation survey of U.S. Naval Hospital Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, from Oct. 24 - 26, 2006.

The purpose of this survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission and United States Navy standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which, accreditation should be awarded to the organization.

Patients and staff members may contact a JCAHO surveyor during this survey and request a public information interview. They will be located on the second deck of the hospital in the PI Conference Room (Room H297C) and can be contacted by dialing 72267. You may contact JCAHO prior to the survey by dialing 1-800-994-6610. Concerns may also be brought to the attention of the MEDINSGEN by calling the MEDINSGEN Hotline at 1-800-637-6175, DSN 295-9010 or via e-mail at medig-hotline@us.med.navy.mil.
