Asst. Secretary of the Navy for Installations and Environment, BJ Penn; VADM Robert T. Conway, Commander, Navy Installations Command; and VADM Michael K. Loose, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Fleet Readiness and Logistics, were on hand Monday to take part in a ribbon-cutting, officially opening the newly refurbished Gold Hill Towers Wing A.

The renovation included a total mechanical, electrical, plumbing, civil and fire safety overhaul in the building.

According to Rudy Sammons, Housing Director, the renovation involved the repair or replacement of all utility systems — electrical, plumbing, communications and fire protection — replacement of all windows and flooring, and renovation of all bathroom facilities. Room furniture has been entirely replaced.

Budgeting today's readiness, tomorrow's Fleet

By MC2(SW/AW) Chad A. Bricks, Navy News Service

The Department of the Navy (DON) submitted to the president its recommendation of $139.8 billion for fiscal year 2008, which became part of his budget request to Congress.

The Navy and Marine Corps also submitted two other requests to accompany FY08's baseline budget: $20 billion to fund the global war on terror in FY08 and $13.8 billion as an emergency supplemental to FY07's budget. The three separate budgets total nearly $174 billion.

"The Budget is framed and built around the guidance that the Secretary of the Navy, the Chief of Naval Operations, and the Commandant of the Marine Corps establish," said Rear Admiral Stan Bozin, Director of the Budget. "With that foundation we build a budget that is supportable and defensible to Congress."

Bozin said Navy leadership built the budget on four central pillars: to fight and win the Long War, to sustain current readiness, to build the fleet of the future, and to develop our future leaders.

"Twenty-eight percent of our funding is going toward our military personnel accounts, 28 percent roughly to our procurement accounts and 28 percent to our operations and maintenance accounts," Bozin said.

Bozin said the remaining 16 percent of the budget goes to research and development and military construction.

According to Navy leaders, the FY08 budget is designed to ensure continued success of the all-volunteer force, support joint capabilities and provide effective forces.

"I don't think there's any question about the strong support from Congress for our Sailors and Marines," Bozin said. "I think that's going to be reflected as the budget goes forward."

Sailors and Marines can also expect a 3 percent increase in basic pay and a basic allowance for housing (BAH).

"There's a strong commitment from the department to keep those out of pocket costs at zero," Bozin said.

Bozin also said this doesn't mean everyone will see the increase in BAH. The actual rate that Sailors and Marines can expect to see around the fleet will vary by the area in which they live.

The budget is also constructed to consider the Navy decreasing their forces by 9,200 in FY08 and the Marines to grow to an end strength of 202,000.

Gravely was a pioneer and trail-blazer

By MC1 Igo Wordu, Public Affairs Office

This article is one of a continuation of stories highlighting significant military African-American achievements in history, especially in the United States Navy. Information obtained from archives of Arlington National Cemetery, and Naval Historical Center.

Samuel Lee Gravely, Jr.'s service in the United States Navy adds to many other great Americans whose personal achievements blazed the trail for others to follow.

He became the first African-American to command a Navy ship when he assumed command of the USS Theodore E. Chandler (DD-717) on Jan. 31, 1961. He was also the first African-American to command an American warship under combat conditions, the USS Taussig DDG-746. He later commanded the USS Jouett DLG/CG 29.

Significantly, Gravely became the first African-American to rise to the rank of Vice Admiral on July 1, 1972, and was the first African-American to serve as a fleet commander, when he became Commander, U.S. 3rd Fleet.

Gravely was a native of Richmond, Va. He was a member of Alpha Phi Alpha at Virginia Union University, the first inter-collegiate Greek-letter fraternity established for African-Americans.

Following his time in college, he enlisted in the Naval Reserves on Sept. 15, 1942, and was trained as a Fireman Apprentice. In 1943, he participated in the Navy V-12 program, which was designed to select and train Naval officers. As part of this training, he attended the University of California in Los Angeles, Pre-Midshipman School in New Jersey, and Midshipmen School at Columbia University. On Dec. 14, 1944, Gravely successfully completed midshipman training, becoming the first African-American commissioned as an officer from the Navy Reserve Officer Training Course.

As a newly commissioned Ensign, his first assignment was to Camp Robert Smalls, Great Lakes, Ill., as the Assistant Battalion Commander for new recruits. He began his seagoing career as a sailor aboard the USS PC-1264, a submarine chaser that was one of only two World War II ships with a largely African-American crew.

In April 1946, he was released from active duty, but he remained in the Naval Reserve.

Recalled to active duty in 1949, his initial assignment was as a Navy recruiter, recruiting African-Americans in the Washington, D.C., area.

He went on to build a Navy career that lasted 38 years and included many distinguished accomplishments. His last tour of duty before retiring in August 1980, was as Director of the Defense Communications Agency in Washington, overseeing the communications network linking Washington with American and allies bases worldwide.

Gravely was highly decorated, with decorations including the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Meritorious Service Medal and Navy Commendation Medal.

Gravely died on Oct. 22, 2004, after suffering a stroke. He is buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

In his honor, the USS Gravely (DDG-107), and a street on the east side of Richmond, Va., are named after him.

Although the ribbon-cutting was held this week, there are still some last minute items that need to be completed. Residents are expected to start moving into the renovated wing by the end of March.

Local contractor, Islands Mechanical, is completing the work required in the design-bid-build project, which has taken nearly 13 months. It is only the first of several phases of what will eventually be an entire renovation of the Gold Hill Tower complex.

"The second phase, which is being performed on 'B' wing, commenced in January and is expected to be completed by February 2008," said Ronnie Chason, representing Islands Mechanical.

GTMO's food-service excellence recognized

Story by MC1 Robert Lamb, Public Affairs

Secretary of the Navy (SECNAV) Donald C. Winter recently announced the 2007 winners of the Captain Edward F. Ney Memorial Awards for Outstanding Food Service.

Finishing as the runner-up in the Overseas General Mess category was Navy Region Southeast's Naval Station Guantanamo Bay, second only to Navy Region Hawaii's Silver Dolphin Bistro.

"Attaining a 5-star accreditation was a great achievement by itself, but then competing for the Edward F. Ney award and receiving runner-up in the OCONUS ashore final selection category was an accomplishment that I'm very proud of," said CS1(SW) Greg Moreno, leading petty officer at Gold Hill Galley. "This accolade is a testament to all the hard work, long hours and superior level of cooperation that our Pentad employees share with our military and quality assurance Navy and Army inspector's, on a daily basis.

"It has been over 45 years since Naval Station Guantanamo Bay, Cuba has received a 5-star accreditation and Edward F. Ney award recognition for food-service excellence," he added.

"The Captain Edward F. Ney Awards recognizes one of the top quality of life issues for our Sailors across the globe," said CAPT David M. Fitzgerald, deputy commander, Navy Family Support, Naval Supply Systems Command. "We're proud of our 2007 winners. Their outstanding creativity, combined with presentation skills and their ability to serve delicious, healthy foods every day, is a tremendous achievement."

The Ney Memorial awards program is co-sponsored by SECNAV and IFSEA. IFSEA is a nonprofit food-service association dedicated to enhancing the professional image and growth of persons serving the food-service industry.

The awards encourage excellence in Navy food-service programs, with the objective of improving the quality of life for Navy personnel.

GTMO prepares to lather up at new car wash

By MC1 Robert Lamb, Public Affairs Officer

Rumors have been flying about what is being built by the consistently steady construction crew at the south side of the Downtown Lyceum. It is not a new Taco Bell or even a new indoor movie theatre, but a car wash.

For the past few months, in a joint venture between Burns and Roe and Dick Corp, a construction crew has been building a four-bay manual car wash, slated to open early this summer. The car wash facility will encompass 2,000 sq. feet including a 360-sq.-foot wash bay at a cost of $503, 000.

On-station organizations, which depend heavily on car-wash donations to raise funds for various projects, have been concerned that the new car-wash facility will be a huge blow to their weekly or monthly fund-raisers.

Not so! As soon as the command found out this concern, they were quick to respond.

"Once the new car wash is complete, it will be available to all base residents free of charge," said CDR Jeff Johnston, NAVSTA Public Works Officer. "It will also be the only place on the base authorized for car washing.

"We are still developing the operating procedures, and I have no doubt we'll have to tweak them once or twice once we're up and running, but the plan now is to allow organizations to reserve one of the wash bays to use for fund-raising car washes."

Each bay will be equipped with a nozzle and many options found in manual car wash in the states. One of the unique features of GTMO's car wash is that it will recycle all water used.

"The energy efficiency concept for the car wash is to re-process (clean) and reuse water as well as collect rainwater to be cleaned and used for the car wash," said LT Jon Higdon, Asst. Resident Officer in Charge of Construction. "In addition, energy efficient lighting will also be installed."

Base organizations, clubs and committees who have regularly scheduled car washes to raise money for their favorite activities no longer need to worry about losing their number one way to raise money, only the location has changed.

GTMO Fire Inspector promoted to Chief

You can call him Chief.

On Thursday, Feb. 1, Fire Inspector Andres Leal was promoted to the position of Training Chief for the Guantanamo Bay Fire Department.

Andy arrived in GTMO in June 2006, to fill the post of Fire Inspector, but he quickly realized the lack of a Training Officer was a source of concern within the Department. A Fire Training Officer coordinates and ensures all Firefighters are meeting monthly and annual training standards set by the Department of Defense.

Andy stepped up to the plate to fill the void, and in six short months had certified 75 firefighters. That's a 45 percent increase over the certification of Firefighters in all of 2005!

Andy's initiative and hard work were recognized with the promotion to Training Chief. His promotion was celebrated with a pinning ceremony at the Windjammer.

In that ceremony, Chief John Mabbitt and Andy's wife Dalia pinned the rank insignia of three crossed bugles on the collar of Andy's shirt, symbolizing his ascent to Fire Officer. Andy has been married to Dalia for 12 years, they have three children.

Helpful reading tips for parents:

- Give your child the opportunity to choose his/her own books for reading. If your child chooses a book that is too long to hold his/her attention, read some and skip some, discussing the pictures and illustrations and how they relate to the story.
- Read stories again and again. Children, especially young children, enjoy repetition, and it helps them become familiar with the way stories are organized.

These reading tips are presented by the School/Home/Community Partnership Committee at W.T. Sampson Schools.
