United States Army Vessel (USAV MG) Winfield Scott (LT-805) ports Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba to assist in the transfer of a decommissioned single-hull fuel barge to NS Mayport, Florida. The barge no longer meets environmental requirements for use, as all Navy fuel barges are now double-hulled. The movement of the barge highlighted joint ties between the U.S. Army and Navy.

ARMY Tugboat Assists GTMO Port Ops With Barge Transfer

United States Army Vessel (USAV MG) Winfield Scott (LT-805) ported Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Dec. 4-6.

The Large Tug Class tugboat was in port to transfer a decommissioned single-hull fuel barge to NS Mayport, Florida, at no cost to the military.

"This visit highlights the joint ties between the United States Army and Navy," said NS Guantanamo Bay Port Operations Officer Lt. Thomas Ware. "The movement of the fuel barge by Winfield Scott provides a cost savings of over $500,000 to the government, as well removes a barge that would certainly become an environmental hazard, and possibly a navigational hazard downrange."

Efforts to return the barge to the U.S. for disposition have been ongoing since 1999. The barge was stricken from the naval record per environmental law in March, 2008.

"The barge is a single hulled fuel barge and, as such, no longer meets the requirements for use," said Ware. "All Navy fuel barges are now double-hulled for safety reasons."

Sailing from Fort Eustis, Virginia, Winfield Scott's 25-man crew prepared the fuel barge for transfer as part of their 14-day deployment.

"This is a no-cost move that provides my soldiers with training on ocean towing, and saves the Navy a large sum of money," said Vessel Master Army Chief Warrant Officer (CWO4) Joseph Helmsderfer. "We are the only active duty '800-series' tug in the Army that is running at all times, and this opportunity provided a chance for Army and Navy personnel to work together and receive some valuable training."

Public Works Urges Holiday Energy Conservation

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Base officials at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, are reminding base residents on the importance of energy conservation throughout the month of December.

NS Guantanamo Bay's Public Works Department emphasize that the community remain energy conscious when exterior decorating during the holiday season, as the installation produces all electricity used on base.

"Most people decorate their homes to show their holiday spirit, but after 9 p.m. there really aren't many people out and about on the installation to "enjoy" the lights," said Public Works Officer Cdr. Anthony Conley. "Any lights left on after 9 p.m. are merely consuming more energy and costing the government more money."

Conley advises that residents should consider buying miniature lights (which use about 70 percent less energy than larger bulbs) when decorating the exterior of their homes.

"Christmas bulbs average between five and 10 watts of consumption per bulb," said Conley. "During 2010, the naval station consumed an additional 875,000 kilowatts between November and December, resulting in an additional $265,000 in energy costs. Placing lights on a timer, with the preferred lighting time being 5 p.m. – 8 p.m., provides another opportunity to save energy."

Conley said housing residents should also look to minimize the number of exterior ornamentation used when decorating for the holidays.

"There are numerous ways to conserve energy during the holidays," said Conley. "Looking for opportunities to save energy around the home is an important part of the holiday season."

VITA Program Offers Volunteer Opportunities

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program (VITA) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, will hold a preliminary volunteer meeting the final week of January.

NS Guantanamo Bay Navy Legal Service Office (NLSO) representatives will meet with base residents to discuss volunteer service opportunities and how they may assist with tax preparation during the upcoming tax season.

"We are looking for dependable, flexible, and mature volunteers that understand the importance of confidentiality when dealing with personal information," said NLSO Legalman 2nd Class Miranda Fuller. "We are seeking individuals who can work at least two shifts per week, as we'll begin providing services once the volunteers are certified."

The VITA program provides Sailors, retirees and their dependents the ability to receive aid with their taxes, and to have their returns prepared for free by Internal Revenue Service (IRS) trained volunteers.

"VITA volunteers will receive training and assistance from me and other personnel who will be attending the IRS's tax training in January," said Fuller. "Volunteers will be required to pass the basic, intermediate, advanced and military IRS certification tests online. The training we provide will assist the volunteers in receiving those certifications."

The NLSO and Joint Task Force (JTF) Legal Assistance Office will continue tax assistance service until April 15, 2012.

To learn more about VITA volunteer opportunities, email miranda.fuller@usnbgtno.navy.mil, or call x4692.

Legal Consequences And Health Risks Regarding Synthetic THC and Synthetic Stimulants, “Spice” and “Bath Salts”

LT Jesse Adams

Region Legal Service Office Southeast

Over the past few years, synthetic THC (the hallucinogenic chemical in marijuana) known as “Spice,” “K2,” and “Blaze”, as well as the synthetic stimulants commonly called “bath salts” or “plant food,” have seen increased use by service members. On Oct. 21, 2011, the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) placed the synthetic stimulants in “bath salts” and “plant food” onto the same list of banned substances as heroin and marijuana. This means that the same federal criminal penalties that apply to use of heroin and marijuana will now apply to use of “bath salts” and similar drugs. The DEA took the same action for the synthetic THC in “Spice” and similar drugs on 1 Mar. 1, 2011. DEA noted that these actions are “necessary to avoid an imminent hazard to the public safety.”

While the federal government only recently banned these substances, they have been banned by the Navy since 2005. Use or possession of these substances by Navy personnel is forbidden and could possibly subject a Sailor to non-judicial punishment (NJP), administrative separation, or court-martial under UCMJ Art. 112a or UCMJ Art. 92 (for violation of OPNAVINST 5350.4D, SECNAVINST 5300.28E and/or NAVADMIN 108/10). However, in addition to the possible severe legal consequences, individual Sailors and Navy leadership should understand the harmful and potentially deadly effects of using these drugs.

The DEA states that they have received an increasing number of reports from poison control centers, hospitals and law enforcement organizations citing examples of individuals using synthetic THC and experiencing serious side effects such as convulsions, anxiety attacks, dangerously elevated heart rates, increased blood pressure, vomiting, and disorientation. The reported side effects of bath salts include agitation, paranoia, high blood pressure, hallucinations, chest pain, suicidality, and psychosis.

Sailors should be aware that ingesting these synthetic drugs can lead to bad reactions and deadly results. The manufacturers of these banned substances actually label many of these substances as “not fit for human consumption.” For example, police in West Virginia recently arrested a man after they found him dressed in women’s clothing, standing with his pants down over a blood-soaked goat that he allegedly stole and killed. He blamed his bizarre behavior on the use of bath salts. Additionally, Reuters News Agency reported claims from the European Union that mephedrone, a chemical often found in bath salts, was directly linked to the deaths of two people and is possibly tied to the deaths of 37 more. There are many more such stories.

Very few scientific studies have been done on these synthetic drugs, so the immediate and long term effects on the body and human brain are mostly unknown. The few studies that have been done on JWH-018, the compound generally found in Spice, indicate that it is more potent and efficacious than THC. This means that lower concentrations of JWH-018 can have a greater and higher maximal psychological effect on the brain than that of THC. In short, the greater potency of the synthetic substances means there is a much greater risk of overdose.

Adding to their dangerous nature is the lack of quality control in their manufacture. Most of the products sold are simply plant matter soaked in the synthetic compounds in a non-uniform manner, so it’s impossible for the Sailor to know how much of the synthetic drug he or she is actually ingesting. That also greatly increases the risk of overdose.

The bottom line point that Sailors need to understand that there are enormous consequences to using these synthetic drugs – and that they go beyond legal, disciplinary, or career consequences. It is important for Sailors to know the risks they take when putting these chemicals in their bodies, and the potentially disastrous long-term effects it may have on their lives.

Holiday Parade 2011

GTMO MWR Hosts Annual Holiday Tradition

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, hosted the 2011 holiday parade, Dec. 3.

The annual celebration showcased over 30 decorated floats, commencing the Christmas season at the installation.

"This event is important for the community to feel a sense of togetherness," said MWR Community Activities Director Amiee MacDonnell. "This is such a rich tradition at GTMO, and this year's spectacle is our way of kicking-off the holiday season for base residents."

Community members were treated to festive float designs from NS Guantanamo Bay's W.T. Sampson schools, Child and Youth Programs, United States Naval Hospital, Fire Department, and many other participants.

"This year's parade illuminated the streets of GTMO, as we attempted to get everyone into the holiday spirit," said MacDonnell. "The support and participation we received from the community truly made this a memorable experience."

At the conclusion of the parade, base residents were treated to performances from W.T. Sampson's cheerleaders, choir, and dance teams, as well as a concert from featured Grammy-nominated Country recording artists, Emerson Drive.

Community members view over 30 decorative floats during MWR's 2011 holiday parade at the Downtown Lyceum, Dec. 3. The annual holiday parade commences the holiday season at GTMO.

The barge is scheduled to transfer to the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) Disposition Services (formerly known as the Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service) which oversees the reuse, transfer, donation, sale or disposal of excess government property.

"We have a close working relationship with the Navy," said Helmsderfer. "We strive to provide a valuable asset as a military ocean-going tugboat, vice commercial services, as we support missions at all different levels. What we do is somewhat of a lost art in the military. As towing and salvage professionals, we are the only military resource that provides this service. We are the tug guys."

Housing Tenants Reminded Of Responsibilities During Absence

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Housing officials at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, are reminding residents of their responsibilities as they prepare for travel throughout the month of December.

For holiday vacation planning purposes, NS Guantanamo Bay's Housing Office is highlighting occupant requirements prior to leaving their quarters.

"Per Commander, Navy Installations Command (CNIC) occupants are required to notify Housing in writing when absent longer than seven days, unless otherwise stated in local regulations," said NS Guantanamo Bay Housing Office Director Rudy Sammons. "The notification should be dated and include the dates of absence as well as an emergency point of contact. This guidance applies to family housing occupants only and not to bachelor housing occupants."

According to Sammons, all family housing assignment letters indicate the resident has received a copy of the "Occupancy Agreement for Navy Family Housing," which states that residents shall report to the Housing Office and complete an 'Absence-From-Quarters' form whenever extended absences are anticipated to exceed 72 hours.

"Many times a family will ask someone to "house-sit" for them," said Sammons. "If that individual somehow gets locked out of the house, Housing will not allow that person back into the residence without the Absence-From-Quarters form."

The Absence-From-Quarters form also serve as a tracking tool, in the event of a required muster during a natural disaster event.

"This form provides both Housing and the Security Department a point of contact for any issues that may arise during the sponsor's absence," said Sammons. "Too many times, families have returned from leave only to find their homes flooded or other damage from natural causes. Completion of this form is for the protection of the resident."

For more information on the Absence-From-Quarters form, search the NAVSTA intranet/Housing Department link, or call x4432.

Chaplain's Corner

Chaplain Tung Tran

NS Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Chapel Services

A chaplain is one who provides religious ministry to people of his or her own faith, facilitates for religious exercise of other faiths, cares for all, and give advisement to commanding officers.

Why do I want to be a Navy chaplain? My desire to serve in the military comes from different directions. It comes from my admiration of brave men and women who serve and sacrifice for their country and fellow men. It comes from the heroism of chaplains who gave their lives to protect and save those who serve in wars, among them, the four chaplains who sacrificed themselves in the waters of Europe during World War II, Fr. Vincent Capodanno, during the Vietnam conflict. And I have a number of friends who have either served in the military or are still on active duty or who have been chaplains in the military. And all of them have spoken highly of their experience and adventures in their service.

Why the Navy? I want to serve in the Navy as a way of saying thanks to the United States, those who gave their lives in Vietnam, and all who have served in the military. This is a way of serving God and showing gratitude to God by loving and serving His people. I want to share the joys and struggles of the men and women in the uniform, their families, and those who work with them. I want to show my solidarity with them. I want to be a part of the force that cultivates and defends freedom in the U.S. and around the world, a force that builds bridges, friendships, and understanding through humanitarian missions.

As a chaplain I want to remind people of their dignity of a being free people and to encourage them to be good, strong and heroic leaders as well as faithful followers. I am happy to be a member of TEAM GTMO. I am here to do my share in the GTMO mission and with everyone involved in that mission.

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, presented Country music group Emerson Drive, Dec. 3.

The Grammy-nominated act performed at the Downtown Lyceum as part of the installation's annual holiday parade and Christmas celebration.

"What a great way to kick off the holiday season," said MWR Community Activities Director Amiee MacDonnell.

"Events like these are important to give the community a way to start the holidays in an enjoyable way for everyone."

Emerson Drive entertained the community with their recent singles, "Moments" and "Fall Into Me," before inviting children in the audience on-stage to sing along with classic Christmas songs.

"We chose a country act for the holiday performance based on customer feedback from our last entertainment survey," said MacDonnell. "Emerson Drive appealed to all audiences and this was a truly special holiday performance."
