BCO Provides GTMO With Christmas Phone Booth

The Base Communications Office (BCO) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba is providing children a "Christmas phone booth," located at the Navy Exchange (NEX) atrium, throughout December.

The telephone provides a direct line to the "North Pole" for community members to leave a message requesting Christmas gifts from "Santa Clause."

"The phone booth connects to Santa's office, just pick up the phone and leave him a message of what you would like for this holiday season," said Charles Price BCO Telephone Technician. "During his breaks from checking his list of who is naughty or nice, he will listen to your message."

The 'Santa Hotline' telephone service is free and will be available during the holiday season.

"There were more than 800 calls placed to Santa last year," said Price. "We're keeping the tradition going because no matter where you are in the world, you can always reach Santa. The service helps GTMO's children get into the holiday spirit."

GTMO Reminded Of Distracted Driving Dangers

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Law enforcement officials at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba are reminding base residents of the installation's regulations prohibiting the use of cellular phones while driving on base.

Distracted driving increases the chance of being involved in an accident. In October, text messaging service became available to GTMO residents. Texting while driving is also against base regulations.

"According to Guantanamo Bay Motor Vehicle regulations (GBMVC Art 422A), driver use of a hand-held cellular phone in a moving vehicle is prohibited," said Master at Arms 1st Class Olga Olivo NS Guantanamo Bay Security Operations Leading Petty Officer. "Texting while driving is unauthorized. With distractions such as passengers, music and traffic, there are already more than enough influences to cause an accident. Adding texting into the picture only increases the risk."

According to President Obama's 2009 Executive Order on text messaging, every day, Federal employees drive Government-owned, Government-leased, or Government-rented vehicles (collectively, GOV) or privately-owned vehicles (POV) on official Government business, and some Federal employees use Government-supplied electronic devices to text or e-mail while driving.

The executive order states that Federal employees shall not engage in text messaging when driving GOVs, or when driving POVs while on official Government business, or when using electronic equipment supplied by the Government while driving.

A Federal Government-wide prohibition on the use of text messaging while driving on official business or while using Government-supplied equipment will help save lives, reduce injuries, and set an example for State and local governments, private employers, and individual drivers, according to the executive order.

"If you need to call or text when operating a vehicle, pull completely off the road in a safe area, turn on the hazard flasher lights and come to a complete stop," said Olivo. "If a motorist is found not in compliance with base regulations, consequences can include up to three points deducted from your driver's license privileges."

dedication to Karen Simon, GTMO's Child Development Center's director.

"I really wanted to appreciate her because she's a mom," Williams-Anderson said. "She puts her personal needs aside to help us go forward at the CYP."

Cheer Coaches and parent volunteers were presented with awards for their participation with the CYP children.

Mary Graves-Harwood received an award for such activities as participating in Parent Involvement Board meetings and supporting the CYP staff.

For spearheading the Teen Dance Group, Denise Winkler received an award. Juanita Shaw received her award for volunteering to coach many of the children's sports activities, including cheerleading. Michelle Nordman and Andrew Torre received their awards for their participation in supporting and decorating the CYP's holiday float.

Regina Peck was recognized with a Vote of Thanks for her participation in various CYP activities.

"We would hope the parents feel appreciated and enjoy watching their children as they showcase their talents," said Logan. "We want parents to feel comfortable and relaxed knowing that the Child and Youth Program cares tremendously about their children.

CYP Holds Parents Appreciation Dinner

Terence Peck

Public Affairs Officer

The Child and Youth Program held a Parents Appreciation Dinner at the Windjammer Ballroom Dec. 14. During the program, parents were treated to a dinner and dance performances by the Teen Center Dance Group and CYP Cheer Squads, Zebra and the Rocketts.

"The Child and Youth Program wanted to appreciate the parents in a special way, because we recognize that they have supported and entrusted their children who are their most prized possession into our care," said Rachel Logan, GTMO's Navy Child & Youth Programs. "We appreciate them for that."

In addition to the dances, Christmas songs were sang by Kaitlin Simon and Haley Causey; The Cheetahs, The Tigers and Kool Cats; and Logistics Specialist 3rd Class Marco Griffin, JTF GTMO.

Housing Residents Reminded To Complete Absence Form

Terence Peck

Public Affairs Officer

Many of GTMO housing residents will be leaving the installation to visit family and friends over the holiday season.

Before taking off for that holiday vacation, there are certain steps housing residents must take to ensure they are following the rules on vacating quarters for a period of time.

"All family housing assignment letters indicate the resident has received a copy of the "Occupancy Agreement for Navy Family Housing," said Rudy Sammons, GTMO's Housing Director.

The notification should be dated and include the dates of absence as well as an emergency point of contact. This guidance applies to family housing occupants only and not to bachelor housing occupants.

The occupancy agreement requires that housing residents complete an 'Absence from Quarters' form whenever they are going to be absent from their quarters for 72 hours or more. The form must be turned in to the housing office.

"This form provides both Housing and Security a point of contact for any issues that may arise during the sponsor's absence," said Sammons. "The form is available on the Naval Station's intranet, housing department link."

A copy of the form should also be provided to the person who will be watching over the house during the sponsor's absence, said Sammons.

"Completion of this form is for the protection of the residents," said Rudy. "Too many times, families have returned from leave only to find their house flooded.

Without the form, no one will be able to enter the home until the residents return.

"Many times a family will ask someone to house sit for them," Rudy said. "If that house sitter somehow gets locked out of the house, housing will not allow that person back into the house without the Absence from Quarters form."

The Absence from Quarters form can be found on the Naval Station's intranet under the Housing Department. For more information, call housing at 4172/4174.

GTMO's Explosive Safety Program Evaluated

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

The Safety department's Explosive Safety Program at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba was inspected by Naval Ordnance Safety and Security Activity (NOSSA), Dec. 10-17.

The bi-yearly review was conducted to review how the Safety department ensures the safe transportation, handling, storage and use of ammunition and explosives at the installation.

"The Explosive Safety Program consists of 13 sub-programs, including physical security," said Joseph Perfetto NS Guantanamo Bay Occupational Safety and Health Manager/Explosive Safety Officer. "The Explosive Safety Program falls under installations' Safety departments; however, all departments and commands that use or handle ammunition and explosives are part of the inspection."

Once the inspections are complete, installations and associated tenant department's Explosive Safety Programs receive either a grade of 'satisfactory' or 'unsatisfactory.'

NS Guantanamo Bay received a score of 'satisfactory' for the 2007, 2009, and 2011 Explosive Safety Program inspection according to Perfetto.

"The NOSSA inspection team informed the commanding officer during the inspection debrief that the explosive storage magazines (built between 1942 and 1945) were the cleanest and well maintained magazines they had seen," said Perfetto. "This inspection showcased the pride of NS Guantanamo's Weapons department, and photos of the magazines will be utilized as training aids on proper maintenance for other participating commands."

NOSSA consists of active duty military, reservists and civilian personnel who manage all aspects of the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps explosives safety and ordnance environmental programs.

NOSSA is located in Indian Head, Md. and has two detachments; one located in Norfolk, Va. and the other in San Diego, Ca. As the Chief of Naval Operations technical authority for Explosives Safety, NOSSA provides explosives safety oversight from concept development, production and deployment, to demilitarization.

SAFETY DEPARTMENT DID-YA-KNOW

The supply of readily available electrical outlets is inadequate in some buildings, especially older ones. To meet power supply needs, extension cords or surge protected power strips are often interconnected, or "daisy chained," to readily provide more outlets and/or to reach greater distances. Another common solution is to create a "mixed daisy chain," interconnecting extension cords and power strips. However, interconnecting these devices is a violation of Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations and the doing so can cause them to become overloaded, leading to their failure and a possible fire. Daisy chains and mixed daisy chains constitute some of the most common violations identified during health and safety inspections.

UNITED STATES NAVAL HOSPITAL DID-YA-KNOW

In a new initiative to better serve the local community, U.S. Naval Hospital Guantanamo Bay (USNH) has implemented an online program – RelayHealth – to help patients keep electronically connected to the Primary Care Clinic. The RelayHealth service is a web-based application and secure messaging platform that makes routine services much easier. Accessed via the internet, RelayHealth permits e, structured, reviewable communications between patients and the Primary Care Clinic. “RelayHealth, known locally as NH GTMO Online, allows our patients to send us a message at any time and count on it getting answered,” said CDR Bruce Deschere, MC, Director of Medical Services at USNH GTMO. “There is no more phone tag or lost messages about refills, results or questions. It uses a secure website.” Once registered, patients can request appointments and referrals, obtain test and laboratory results, request prescription renewals, and get email guidance from their medical team, all from the privacy of their own homes. In addition, the site allows individuals to create their personal health records, and access different types of health information. GTMO physicians and other healthcare professionals at the Primary Care Clinic use RelayHealth to coordinate referrals, triage patient messages, securely route messages to appropriate or covering providers, broadcast preventive reminders, and post lab results. It is easy to get started. All RelayHealth users must have a personal email address. Go to www.relayhealth.com or www.med.navy.mil/sites/gtmo/Pages/USNHGTMOOnline. `spxt` register. Once registered, use the secure sign-in to go directly to the user’s personal page and use the different links to get messages to the Primary Care team. Patients can also stop by the Primary Clinic front desk, or call the clinic at 7-2110, to get more information. RelayHealth 2-2-2 Patients who have already registered in RelayHealth like the ease of access the website provides. “Dear Doc,” said one user. “Thanks so much for my test result. I really do appreciate this medium in which we can communicate.” Another user said, “RelayHealth allows me to access my lab results, communicate with my physician in regards to non-urgent concerns, and obtain refills for my prescriptions on my own time. My physician normally consults me the same day and there is no more waiting at the pharmacy. RelayHealth also allows me to manage my health record. I appreciate the convenience.”

Commercialism, commercialism, buy this, or buy that the ads say. You need a gift for this and a housewarming present for that. Yes it is that time of the year again when the stores online and the loved ones around us are expected to buy things and celebrate a day off. Yet in my faith tradition, this season is about one thing really, that gift of a baby born in a manger who is the Son of God. We look at the prophecies according to Isaiah and see that on one day roughly two thousand years ago they were fulfilled. “For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace” Isaiah 9:6. It is my prayer that whatever you do this season, that you will take time and reflect on your life. Take time to see where you are spiritually being open for that presence of God to enter in. I trust that God’s ultimate gift will become real to you this day and that as you reflect on the significance of the birth of the long expected child and the mystery of his incarnation you will again see the wonder of God.

'Island Music' Singer/Songwriter Entertains Guantanamo

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba hosted singer/songwriter Scott Kirby, Dec. 16-17.

The artist performed at the installation's Tiki Bar providing the community with island-themed music and entertainment.

"Scott's music can be heard all over the world on Sirius Radio Margaritaville," said MWR Community Activities Director Amiee MacDonnell. "As part of MWR's holiday offerings, his band provided base residents an opportunity to unwind and enjoy the holiday season. The two performances were his gift to the GTMO community."

A native of Key West, Fl., Kirby toured more than 38 states nationwide before performing at Guantanamo Bay.

"Events like these are important for the community throughout the year," said MacDonnell. "Entertainment gives base residents an opportunity to relax and provide a bit of escape from the ordinary. Overall the event was successful and I heard attendees were please with the island style music."

Singer/Songwriter Scott Kirby entertains base residents at the Tiki Bar with his unique blend of "island" themed music, Dec. 16.
