Sadsad Named Chamber Man of the Year

By Jay Cope, NAS Whiting Field Public Affairs

For the first time in at least the past 15 years, the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce has named an active duty service member as their Man of the Year. The award annually recognizes a male who stood out from all others as having had a major impact on the community and county either during this year or through sustained efforts over time.

Capt. Enrique "Rick" Sadsad, commanding officer Naval Air Station Whiting Field, received the award during the January chamber of commerce meeting. The recognition came as a complete surprise to Sadsad who had no idea he was even nominated. He thought his only role in the evening was to welcome all the members to the event.

"Half way through the introduction speech, my wife turned to me and asked 'Is he talking about you?'" said Sadsad. "All I could say was 'I don't know. I think so.' Quite frankly, it was humbling and a little embarrassing since I know other people have done so much."

However, there was little doubt in the minds of the chamber that he was eminently worthy of the recognition.

The Man of the Year recipient is based on nominations submitted by the members of the organization through nomination forms sent out in late October. Sadsad received several nominations, and according to former chamber of commerce president, Larry Strain, the award was well deserved.

"This year was one of the most competitive I can remember, and we had a lot of deserving folks," he said. "It is an honor to be able to recognize Capt. Sadsad. He has made a tremendous impact in a very short period of time."

Strain said he believes that the

Continuation Board Allows Navy to Retain Top Performers

From Navy Personnel Command Public Affairs

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (NNS) -- The Chief of Naval Personnel (CNP) announced the establishment of senior enlisted continuation boards Jan. 24 as a means to help shape the force.

"In an effort to stabilize and shape the force, ensure continued advancement opportunity, and retain our top performers, a continuation board for enlisted Sailors with over 20 years of active service will be held for active and FTS (full time support). The board will be focused on retaining our top performers serving in our most demanding billets while also ensuring continued advancement opportunity," said Vice Adm. Mark Ferguson, CNP.

The annual board, along with several other force-shaping measures, has been introduced as the Navy strives to meet its congressionally mandated end strength of 329,000 active duty Sailors.

"Our intention is to stabilize our personnel end strength at 329,000 from our current level of 331,000," said Ferguson.

According to the message, the fiscal year (FY) 2010 E7-E9 Senior Enlisted Continuation Board convenes Sept. 21 at Navy Personnel Command. Members not selected for continuation will transfer to the fleet reserve or retire no later than June 30, 2010.

The board will review the records of active-duty and FTS E7 through E9 personnel with

Speed Reading

If you are a flight student, or anyone else desiring to improve your reading skills, the speed reading program at the FFSC can help you learn how specialized eye movement exercises and other techniques can dramatically increase your reading rate. The program will target both speed and comprehension skills. You can check out the CD at the front desk and utilize the program in our computer room.

Ten Steps to a Federal Job.

Attend this class in order to learn how to prepare the best application possible. You will learn how to read an announcement, analyze core competencies for language, analyze vacancy listings for keywords, and how to apply for jobs. Class will be held at the FFSC conference room. For more information, contact a Work and Family Life Specialist at 623-7177.

How to Survive the Holidays Financially

It's that time of year when stores display holiday decorations, increase their inventory, and gear up to convince you to spend money. This training will provide the class with information, tools, and ideas necessary to develop a holiday spending plan. Class will be held in the FFSC conference room. For more information, contact a Work and Family Life Specialist at 623-7177.

Time Management

At the end of the day, do you ask yourself "where did the day go?" and feel like you have accomplished very little on your list of "things to do?" The information provided will empower you with tools that will help you make the most of your busy and demanding days. Class will be held at the FFSC conference room. For more information, contact a Work and Family Life Specialist at 623-7177.

Smooth Move

The goal of this training module is to provide relocating service members and their families, due to reassignment or transition within the Continental United States (CONUS), with a systematic and simplified process for ensuring a smooth move. By consolidating key information and resources, an excellent forum is established that allows participants to receive professional information and receive immediate responses to their specific concerns. For more information, call 623-7177.

Red Knights Relate to Fellow Red Raiders

By Maj. Jared Graham, VT-3

Recruiting trips where student pilots and instructors relate their experiences and careers to Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) units are fairly common. However, what isn't common is to have these officers return to their alma maters.

That was the case recently for three Red Knights who revisited their Red Raider roots to meet cadets from Texas Tech University. Training Squadron-THREE (VT-3) sent two instructors and two students, only one of whom was not a Texas Tech graduate, to Lubbock, to explain military opportunities to the cadets as part of the Dept. of Defense's Cockpits to Classrooms initiative.

The alumni were able to relate to the cadets' questions having sat in those same seats just a few years ago. Many of the questions directed to the student pilots dealt with the difficulty of the program. When one cadet asked, "How much do you study?" a student pilot responded bluntly.

"My NATOPS is my pillow," said 2nd Lt. Aaron Borszich, referring to the flight training manual.

Other questions pertained to military family life, and 2nd Lt. Mary Vendt explained honestly that it is hard.

"It is difficult sometimes, but you do the best you can...the needs of the military come first."

Along the way the each of the SMA's completed six of their final flights in the T-34, gaining valuable experience, flying in areas unfamiliar to those used to the confines of the Santa Rosa and Escambia county area's airspace.

USS Green Bay Comes to Life in California

By Mass Communication Specialist 1st Class Jose Lopez, Jr., Naval Reserve Fleet Public Affairs Center San Diego

LONG BEACH, Calif. (NNS) -- Sailors assigned to USS Green Bay (LPD 20) brought their ship to life during a commissioning ceremony Jan. 24 in the port of Long Beach, Calif.

The Navy commissioned the fourth amphibious transport dock ship of the San Antonio-class to honor the first settlement in Wisconsin.

"I have never known a city with such a legendary spirit, sense of community and purpose as Green Bay embodies," said Rear Adm. Michael Shatynski, vice commander, Naval Surface Forces. "All of the qualities that I identify in your great city, I identify in the Navy-Marine Corps team."

Rose Magnus, wife of Gen. Robert Magnus, former assistant commandant of the Marine Corps and ship's sponsor uttered the famous words of a commissioning ceremony, "Man your ship and bring her to life."

U. S. Navy file photo of USS Green Bay (LPD 20).

The crew answered the call. Within a few minutes the men and women of USS Green Bay lined the rails of the new ship while the call to battle stations rang. A pair of Marine Corps CH-53 Sea Stallions performed a fly-by over the ship.

"This is a thin line," said Deputy Defense Secretary Gordon England, about Green Bay's future role in world affairs. "But, it is a thick wall of defense to the lives which we bring freedom."

"Just as a great generation answered the call seven years ago," added England, "so do the Sailors of Green Bay answer that call today. We believe in freedom for all people, and we back our words with deeds."

Green Bay is a multi-task ship in the amphibious Navy that will perform the mission of four previous classes of ships. With its modern capabilities Green Bay will be a key factor in littoral combat operations which call for the projection of sea power deep inland; part of the Chief of Naval Operations' Maritime Strategy for the 21st Century.

Green Bay will accommodate the Marine Corps' "mobility triad," an attack strategy that involves advanced amphibious assault vehicles, landing craft air cushion and the vertical/short takeoff and landing tactical aircraft MV-22 Osprey.

Green Bay is the second ship to bear the name of Wisconsin's largest city. The first was the patrol gunboat USS Green Bay (PG 101), which served from 1969 to 1977.

Navy Expands PTS to “Second-term” Sailors

By Navy Personnel Command Public Affairs

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (NNS) -- The Chief of Naval Personnel announced plans Jan. 20, to expand the Navy’s Perform to Serve (PTS) program from first-term Sailors, to all E-6 and below with 10 years or less of service.

“The Perform to Serve program is a vital element of our Navy’s total force strategy providing an opportunity to keep our best and brightest Sailors in order to meet future fleet and manpower requirements,” said Vice Adm. Mark Ferguson, Chief of Naval Personnel. “The program that empowers our Sailors to perform to serve is now being expanded to include both Zone A and Zone B Sailors.”

PTS is a centralized reservation system that helps the Navy manage reenlistments of Sailors with less than six years of service, or Zone A. While most Sailors are permitted to reenlist in their current rate, Sailors in overmanned ratings may be offered reenlistment in an undermanned rating and Sailors with a poor performance history may not be granted permission to reenlist. According to NAVADMIN 017/09 PTS will expand Feb. 1 to include Zone B, which is Sailors with six to 10 years of service.

Additionally, beginning Feb. 1 all Sailors with an approved PTS application must sign a page 13 within 30 days of message receipt to accept or decline their PTS reservation.

According to statistics from the Center for Career Development, in 2008 almost 90 percent of Sailors who applied for PTS remained in their current rating.

Controlling the number of Sailors in specific ratings provides better advancement opportunities for Sailors, while helping the Navy manage manpower requirements.

“When we started PTS in 2003, there were a lot of Sailors whose promotion opportunities were severely degraded because their rating was overmanned. PTS has helped the Navy to balance its ratings and where there is more balance, there are better promotion opportunities,” said Senior Chief Personnel Specialist Ron Miller, PTS Branch, Enlisted Community Management Branch, Navy Personnel Command.

Sailors should consult their career counselors about 15 months before their end of active obligated service (EAOS) to fill out the paperwork to have the command submit a PTS application, regardless of their intentions to re-enlist.

Sailors should read NAVADMIN 017/09 available at the NPC Website for complete details.

For more information regarding the submission process, application format or other PTS issues, please visit the NPC website or contact NPC’s Customer Service Center by calling 1-866-U-ASK-NPC (1-866-827-5672).

at least 20 years of active service and three years time-in-rate as of Sept. 1.

Exemptions to the FY-10 Senior Enlisted Continuation Board include Sailors with approved fleet Reserve/retirement dates effective on or before June 30, 2010, those with high-year tenure dates on or before June 30, 2010, frocked personnel, those selected for advancement in FY-10 boards, personnel selected for command senior chief/master chief programs from the FY-10 board, personnel with orders to or serving in the first two years of an overseas or DoD area tours at the time of the board convening date, and Safe Harbor participants. Additionally, personnel holding a nuclear, SEAL (special warfare boat operator, special warfare operator), explosive ordnance disposal technician or diver enlisted classification code, plus fleet, force and command master chiefs are exempt from the board.

Each eligible member is responsible for ensuring their record is correct and up to date with latest evaluations, awards and other appropriate information. Candidates may communicate with the continuation board by submitting a board package. Selection board packages provide candidates the opportunity to submit any missing documents from the sections of their records that are viewed by the continuation boards. Packages must be post marked not later than Aug. 17, 2009. Packages submitted to the E7 through E9 advancement selection boards will not be presented to the continuation board. Further guidance on submitting a board package can be found in the NAVADMIN.

Commanding officers with personnel not selected for continuation will be notified so they may personally and confidentially notify the members.

Board Prep Is Easier

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (NNS) -- A new program announced by Navy Personnel Command (NPC) Jan. 14 makes reviewing records and preparing for selection boards easier by providing online access to their official military personnel file (OMPF).

Web Enabled Record Review (WERR), announced in NAVADMIN 011/09, allows Sailors to review documents in their OMPF, which are the same documents reviewed by selection board members when considering candidates for officer advancement, selection for chief, senior chief and master chief, and other selection boards.

“There’s no substitute for empowering Sailors with the benefits of personalized access to their official military personnel file,” said Jim Lauder milk, head, Military Personnel Records Management and Policy at NPC.

Sailors can now access their WERR through Bupers on Line (BOL) at <https://www.bol.navy.mil>. All active duty and selected Reserve personnel with a BOL account and a CAC-enabled computer with appropriate certificates can now view their OMPF online by selecting the WERR option on the BOL main menu page. This application also allows Sailors to download and print service-record documents for personal and professional use.
