The 45th Space Wing launched successfully a United Launch Alliance-built Atlas V Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle from Space Launch Complex 41 at 5:35 p.m. (EDT) today.

The Atlas V rocket carried a U.S. government communications satellite into space.

"This launch helps to ensure that vital communications will continue to bolster our nation's capabilities and showcases why the 45th Space Wing is the world's premiere gateway to space," said Brig. Gen. Edward L. Bolton, Jr., 45th Space Wing commander.

"The 45th Space Wing is in the midst of a very busy launch season and during our Operational Readiness Inspection. We are looking forward to many more successful missions before the year's end," General Bolton said. "This is perhaps the cleanest countdown we've seen this year."

This mission was the 16th flight of an Atlas V rocket from here and the 15th launch overall this year on the Eastern Range.

"This launch was an outstanding achievement for the entire Atlas team," said Staff Sgt. Brad Tavares, Atlas V Mission Assurance Technician. "It makes me extremely proud to be a part of the success of this mission and I look forward to providing continued mission assurance for all future launches."

Autograph your work with excellence

By Brig. Gen.

Edward L. Bolton, Jr.

Commander, 45th Space Wing

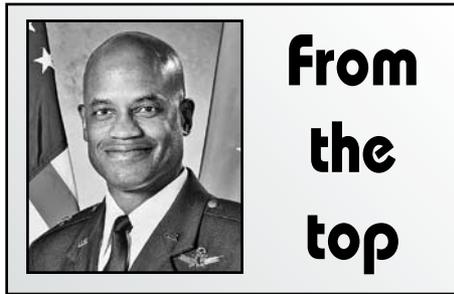

Well, you did it again. And you were flawless – again – as you supported the launch of the 16th flight of an Atlas rocket from the Cape Tuesday evening and the 15th overall launch just this year from the Eastern Range.

It's great to be the commander when I have folks like you I can count on to "do the right thing."

Every single day. Every single mission. Every single launch.

You never take a short cut, because you all understand the importance of what we do and why we do it.

And what makes this even more remarkable is that we are keeping this remarkable pace in the midst of an Operational Readiness Inspection (ORI) designed to test our capabilities all across the board.

Like I said at the ORI in-briefing, telling the inspectors about our world-class capabilities is not enough. We have to show them we know what to do and how to do it. Over the past few weeks, I think you have been doing a first-class job of that. As a matter of fact, I know you are.

But this inspection isn't a sprint ... it's a marathon. We are not done yet. Keep your spirits up; help one another. I want to hit the finish line of this ORI at the same speed as we started.

Also, let me remind all of you about the military customs and courtesies I want you to render when the music plays in the morning and the afternoon.

Rendering a salute or placing your hand over your heart is an honor. I mean that. An absolute honor. You can spare the time to remember those who served before us, and the tens of thousands who paid the ultimate price so that we can live in the greatest nation the world has ever seen.

It has often been said that "every job is a self-portrait of the person who does it. Autograph your work with excellence."

All I can say is your signature is the best I have ever seen and the envy of all in the space business and I can't thank you enough. Keep it up!

Leading in stressful times

By Lt. Col. Joseph J. Narrigan

Commander, 45th Medical Operations Squadron

I am confident in saying that leading is easier when all is going well. I am equally confident when I say that life is a contact sport so my first sentence won't get us very far.

Studies have shown leaders can prepare for their roles during stressful situations. Leaders, first and foremost, must have a solid understanding of and competence for the tasks at hand.

In high-stress situations leaders must have a sight picture that is as accurate as possible, be able to quickly think through decision trees, while proactively considering what's next.

As leaders we seldom have all the information we would like when making decisions, so it is better to make our decision(s) based on what is realistically obtainable rather than develop "paralysis by analysis." Make the best decisions possible and reflect at a later time. Not being able to think ahead and through many possible outcomes/scenarios can impair the mission through delayed decisions or outward signs of insecurity.

These outward signs can affect the morale by a breach in trust. Airmen know leaders are faced with difficult decisions but are willing to follow if trust is established.

Effective leaders must be able to weigh events and determine what truly matters and when it will matter, if at all. One cannot have their "hair on fire" all the time ... followers will lose the ability to know when an action or event is critically important.

Situational leadership requires flexibility. In many instances leaders can and, in my opinion, should be somewhat democratic in allowing subordinates to provide input into the decision making process. But, when required, leaders must be able to switch into an authoritative mode and give clear unwavering guidance.

No matter the situation, people need to know and trust their leaders care. Leaders must have a vulnerable humanistic facet that conveys appreciation for the feelings and sacrifices of others. It is empathy, not uncontrolled emotions, that cements a leader and followers for a common good.

My challenge: Critically think through what matters, and mentally prepare in easy times for the stressful times to come.

ID Card Equipment Upgrades: Short-term delays expected

By Chris Kraus
45th Force Support Squadron

Whether you are active duty, Guard, Reserve, a DoD civilian employee, contractor, retired military or a dependent, acquiring a new ID or CAC card is part of military life. Depending on the number of folks ahead of you in line, the process can be fast and painless – or frustrating if you experience a long wait.

The wait will definitely be longer the week of Sept. 22-25. That's because upgrades will be made to the equipment used to make those cards.

"If possible, we highly encourage folks to avoid getting a card during that time frame," said Master Sgt. Linda Humphrey, NCOIC of the 45th Force Support Squadron's Military Personnel Section, Customer Support Element. "We've got five machines that make the cards. Each one can make a card in 20 minutes. That's 15 cards an hour. During the upgrade, we expect that number to drop significantly. On Sept. 22, the contractor performing the upgrades will immediately take three of our machines off-line. Those machines will be upgraded first. After they are upgraded they will go back on-line, and then the two remaining machines will be upgraded. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause."

That inconvenience can be avoided if you act fast. If you require a card during the upgrade, or any time for that matter, you can schedule an appointment by calling 321-494-6144/6147 about 20 days prior to the expiration date on your card.

With a staff of just eight, the Customer Support Element not only provides ID and CAC card services, but is also responsible for in-processing new arrivals, managing the base's leave, BAS, and SGLI programs, and issues passports.

They are the only facility in the area that does this. Factor in that Florida has one of the largest military retiree populations in the U.S., and you can get an idea as to why the office is so busy.

Besides scheduling an appointment, there are other things you can do to speed up the process. Bring proper identification. At least two forms of ID (one has to be a photo ID - your old ID or CAC card is acceptable) are required. Voter registration cards, Social Security cards and passports are other acceptable forms of identification.

If you are a

Service with a smile. Customer Support Apprentice, Amn Jesslynn Earle, of the 45th Force Support Squadron's Military Personnel Section, Customer Support Element, issues an ID card to another satisfied customer. The Customer Support Element will receive upgrades to the equipment used to make ID and CAC cards Sept. 22 - 25. Patrons are advised that they may experience a delay in service during this time frame.

dependent, you need to get a new card every four years because of possible changes in your status. Your sponsor must be present to sign a DD Form 1172, or you must have a power of attorney.

Also, be aware of the priority system.

Active duty personnel in uniform have priority, followed by DoD civilians, contractors, and then all others. The office is open Mon. - Fri., 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Anyone still waiting at closing time will be served.

"Sometimes that means our staff is working until 6 p.m.," Sgt. Humphrey said. "But we don't mind, we'll do what it takes to get the job done and provide excellent service to our customers."

Lighten up!

The Chaplain Candidate Experience

By 2nd Lt.
Scott Conner

There are certain events that can greatly change your life. For me, it was Sept. 11, 2001. This day of infamy marked the beginning of my new career path. It opened my view of chaplain ministry and its place in the military.

This epiphany began at a prayer service following the terrorist attacks. I was a senior at Baptist Bible College studying for pastoral ministry. Retired Air Force Chaplain John Murdoch was the guest speaker of the day. He shared his experience about the chaplain ministry and asked us to consider it vocationally.

This clarified a hunger within me to serve God and country. I talked later with Chaplain Murdoch about the specific requirements to become a military chaplain. He indicated I needed a Master of Divinity degree, an ecclesiastical endorsement and denominational ordination. Soon after, I started seminary.

During my first seminary year I was introduced to the Chaplain Candidate Program. This program gives basic exposure to chaplain ministry experience while attending seminary. It also affords tuition assistance to help offset seminary costs. Upon entry I was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Chaplain Candidate Program by the endorsement of my denomination – the General Regular Baptists Churches

Commissioned Officer Training was my next step. It involved five weeks of intense

Air Force orientation and indoctrination. Afterwards, I reported to Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio for my first summer 30-day tour. Here I was able to observe Chaplains in action while getting some basic chaplain experience myself. My first invocation is still crystal clear in my mind.

My second summer tour was at Tyndall AFB, FL, home of the mighty F-22. This enlarged my life-long love for aircraft.

Upon completing seminary I traveled to West Palm Beach where I now live serving the West Pines Baptist Church as their Pastor of Community Outreach. But today I'm writing from a Patrick AFB chapel desk as a chaplain candidate. I'm still awaiting ordination with the hopes of soon wearing the cross on my uniform and being reappointed as a Reserve IMA Chaplain in the USAF.

For me it all started with a national terror that led to a prayer service where I received words of guidance from a military chaplain. And here I am now, ready to serve.

Don't miss a single down; get there early and grab your favorite seats.

Getting hungry? Don't worry. A bar-food menu and cash bar will be available throughout the afternoon, or you can enjoy a complimentary buffet during half-time.

Admission to all "Frenzy Football" games is free for all Air Force Club members, their spouses, and immediate family members under 18 years of age. Eligible nonmembers and guests must pay a $10.00 entertainment fee at the door, according to Johnnie Rivera, club manager.

regular season. Doors open at noon.

The Tides has 10 42" LCD televisions strategically placed around the club to ensure you and your friends get to root for your favorite team – every single week.

If you think the chances of you winning a free trip to a NFL game and plenty of free prizes and cash are sitting somewhere between "slim-and-none," think again. For four consecutive years – count 'em – Tides' "Football Frenzy" patrons have won two tickets to either the Super Bowl, the Pro Bowl or regular-season NFL games.

Not only that, there are many weekly door prizes to win each and every week beginning Sunday at the Tides during the next 17 weeks of the Senior Master Sgt. Jake Pillow, formerly assigned to the 45th Launch Group and now assigned to Minot Air Force Base, enjoys Super Bowl XLIV with his wife, Michelle, between the Steelers and Cardinals last February. They won two free tickets and got to experience the entire Super Bowl experience for free. For four consecutive years – count 'em – Tides' "Football Frenzy" patrons have won two tickets for either the Super Bowl, the Pro Bowl and regular-season NFL games.

"NFL Football season at the Tides was always something we looked forward to," said Senior Master Sgt. Jake Pillow, a former 45th Launch Group Airman now stationed at Minot Air Force Base. Sgt. Minot won two tickets to last year's Super Bowl.

"From the kickoff tailgate parties, to the spread Johnnie always puts out, to the weekly prizes; the Tides on Sunday during NFL season was always a class-act and a definite benefit of my club membership," he said.

"The experience my wife and I had as one of the Super Bowl winners last year was truly awesome. We were treated like royalty from the time we arrived at our rooms, chauffeured to diners, pregame parties and then finally the game, until we departed. It's something we will never forget.

Of course, to have a chance to win you have to be a member. Go see Mr. Rivera at the Tides and sign up.

"This is an awesome program for club members. They get free food, the chance at lots of door prizes, and the opportunity to view all NFL games at one location," said Mr. Rivera. "This can also be a great team-building event for units all over the 45th Space Wing. Make it a family event and get to know one another in the friendliest setting you will find anywhere on the Space Coast," he said.

"Membership pays," he said. "And don't forget to wear your team's colors."

Free MOAA Membership

The national Military Officers Association of America (MOAA) is offering a free one-year membership to Active Duty, National Guard, and Reserve Officers. The membership covers the remainder of 2009 and all of 2010. There is a small fee for retired officers who would like to join. Representatives from the MOAA Cape Canaveral Chapter will be available at the Base Exchange this weekend, Sept. 12 -13, to answer questions.

Munitions Inventory

The PLSSC Munitions Section will be conducting their semiannual 100 percent stockpile inventory of base stock munitions, account FV2520, from Sept. 20 - 21. To minimize transactions against the account during the inventory, only valid emergency requests submitted in writing and approved by a Group Commander or equivalent will be processed. Please contact our munitions personnel at 494-4313/6311 if you have any questions.

Legal Office changes

Due to the ORI, legal assistance will be limited to active duty personnel only until Sept. 21. The legal office will be open for notary and powers of attorney services. The legal office will resume full legal assistance schedule starting Sept. 22. Please call the legal office at 494-7357 if you have any questions.

Tuition Assistance

All tuition assistance for military personnel & 45SW civilians FY09 must be submitted by Sept. 18. Requests submitted after this date will not be approved. Tuition assistance for military personnel will be available after Oct. 1 when the new fiscal year begins. For additional information, please contact Ms. Kathy Farris at 494-2938.

“Aerobathon”

The Patrick AFB and CCAFS Fitness Centers will hold an “Aerobathon” on their designated running tracks through Sept. 30. The goal is for each unit to log as many aerobic activity hours as possible during the month. Participants take part in any of the group exercises and/or fitness improvement classes, or complete a minimum of 30 minutes on any indoor cardio machine. Participants may also swim or run outdoors. Commander’s Cup Points will be awarded!

What is the Diazepam auto injector for?

- Amn. Sliders

Dear Amn. Sliders:
Diazepam (CANA) is used to control seizures after nerve agent exposure. The CANA is required for use only for symptomatic exposure to a chemical warfare nerve agent in conjunction with the use of the three Mark 1s. CANA should be administered by a buddy.

Review the Airman's Manual, section 5 page 146, 147 and page 12 in the critical information checklist (located in the back side of the Manual) for additional information on when and how to the use of the CANA and the Mark 1 kits.
