Q.C. Girls’ Careers Limited Needed

Specialist Teachers Urgently Required

In her report yesterday at the Queen's College Speech Day, Miss Joan Watson, who has taken over as Headmistress of the school, said that the recruitment of specialist teachers is of the utmost importance.

"We are currently facing a shortage of specialist teachers in certain subjects," Miss Watson said. "This situation is having an adverse effect on the quality of education being provided for our students. We need urgent action to fill these vacancies."

Miss Watson went on to say that the school had received applications from a number of qualified candidates, but that more were needed.

She added: "Specialist teachers are crucial to the success of our students. They bring knowledge and expertise that is essential for the development of our pupils."

Miss Watson concluded by encouraging all specialist teachers to consider applying for vacancies at Q.C. Girls’ Careers Limited.
