City OKs senior room upgrades

A new pool table and a Wii game are among the amenities planned

By BOB McCLURE

SEMINOLE – City leaders are investing up to $20,000 in new furniture and entertainment with the hope of attracting more residents 50 and older to the senior adult area of the Seminole Recreation Center.

City Councilors voted unanimously May 11 to approve the expenditure for the purchase of a new pool table, lounge chairs and tables, card tables and chairs, a credenza and entertainment.

The 1,300-square-foot senior area, which is on the second floor of the north side of the recreation center, has been available for some time but attendance has been sparse.

"Director (Jim) Sheets and his staff have proposed making that area more attractive (to seniors)."

– City Manager Frank Edmunds

"We haven't had the attendance we would like," said City Manager Frank Edmunds. "Director (Jim) Sheets and his staff have proposed making that area more attractive (to seniors)."

"It sat kind of empty over the years," Sheets said. "It does get used for some card games and we have some folding tables."

Other than that, there hasn't been much to attract area seniors into the facility.

"We're going to have a quality pool table," Sheets said, "and on the other side of the room we'll have a quality card table."

Plans also call for the addition of a Wii electronic game.

"The first thing we want to get started is a Wii bowling league," Sheets said. "Maybe later we'll add additional games."

Sheets said he thought the new look will be a

He just knows it won't be at Seminole Vocational Education Center after June 30.

That's when the veteran Pinellas County educator will be ending a 39-year career with Pinellas County Schools following an 11-year stint at SVEC.

Fischer joined the state's Deferred Retirement Option Plan five years ago, which basically means he has to step down this year.

He is leaving the technical school with mixed emotions and wishes the condition of the school was a little better.

Donations are slow for Kids Appreciation Day

By BOB McCLURE

SEMINOLE – The economy has had an impact on many facets of life in Seminole over the past couple of years and an annual tradition for children is no exception.

Dr. Steve Nickse, director of the Seminole Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Kids Appreciation Day, is feeling a pinch and says the event may not be as successful this year unless donations pick up.

The 31st annual event, which is traditionally held on the last day of school for Seminole kids in kindergarten through fifth grade, is set Wednesday, June 9, 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., at Seminole City Park, 7464 Ridge Road. Admission is free.

In past years, the afternoon has included prize giveaways, entertainment, contests, food and much more.

"We have about 50 percent of the money to put on the event with a little less than a month to go," Nickse said last week. "The economy has restricted people as far as what they can do with their money but I always hope, since this is an event for children, that it will soften people up

Author: Mobster may have had role in Kennedy assassination

By TOM GERMOND

LARGO – The author of several books on organized crime said there's "a real possibility" that mobster Santo Trafficante Jr. was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Speaking to the Largo Area Historical Society May 10 at the Largo Cultural Center, Scott Deitche said in his second book, "The Silent Don," he lays out what he thinks is some "pretty interesting circumstantial evidence."

Trafficante, who was born in Tampa and was the son of Sicilian-born mobster Santo Trafficante Sr., was one of the last of the Mafia bosses in the United States. He allegedly controlled organized criminal operations in Florida and Cuba.

Deitche said he has been asked about the association between Trafficante and the Kennedy assassination.

"I don't think you are ever going to find a smoking gun as to exactly was there a conspiracy or was there not a conspiracy," he said.

He said Trafficante Jr. had a lot of interesting relationships with key CIA officials "as well as people that were implicated in attempting to kill the president" when he was here in Tampa shortly before he was killed in Dallas, he said.

"So there is a lot of real interesting circumstantial evidence that points to some kind of involvement by Trafficante," Deitche said, "either directly in the assassination or least in some of the relationships surrounding some of the key players in many conspiracy theories."

In 1959, Fidel Castro seized control of Cuba and kicked all the gangsters out. Trafficante Jr. was imprisoned in Havana in the summer and released after several weeks.

Trafficante was visited in prison by an employee and by a "gun runner and nightclub owner by the name of Jack Ruby," Deitche said.

"He was running guns to Castro on behalf of the Chicago mob," Deitche said.

Scott Deitche discusses mob activities in Tampa with the Largo Area Historical Society.

After Trafficante was released from prison in Cuba, the CIA asked him in Miami to kill Castro, Deitche said.

"They gave him $100,000 to kill Castro, which Trafficante promptly put in his back pocket and told them oh, 'we tried but couldn't do it' and walked away with $100,000. The CIA never pushed the issue," Deitche said.

Deitche said Trafficante was "very cagey and very paranoid but it served him well."

Though he was arrested several times on charges of bribery and running illegal lotteries in Ybor City, he never spent time in a jail in the United States.

Deitche said he met an agent who was trailing Trafficante and asked him why agents couldn't get him.

The agent said he was hard to tail, because Trafficante would drive 45 mph down the highway, Deitche said.

"So the only way to tail him was to go even slower. It was painfully obvious that he was being tailed," Deitche said.

In Miami, when Trafficante was being followed, a couple of times he would get in the agents' car "and have them drive him on errands," he said.

"It was a way to keep tabs on him," Deitche said.

In the late 1960s, the FBI was following Eddie Trascher, who was running a "very sophisticated high-stakes gambling ring out of the East Bay Country Club here in Largo."

"Eddie wasn't a gangster," he said. "Rather, he stole from the mob and casinos."

When he started operating in Clearwater and Largo, he was busted by the Pinellas County Sheriff's Office.

The FBI told Trascher that they were interested in Trafficante and the mob in Tampa. In Holiday, the FBI set up a gambling casino called "The King's Court" and hired Trascher and others to run it.

They lured Trafficante and other mobsters into the casino.

"At the end of the day, they netted dozens of mobsters from Milwaukee, from New York, from New Jersey and Chicago – and yet not Trafficante. "

They indicted Trafficante, but at that time he was a "frail old man," and they weren't able to get enough evidence to go after him.

Trafficante died in Houston in 1987, where he had heart surgery, ending his reign of organized crime in Tampa. Deitche's book, "Silent Don," is about Trafficante.

His father, Santo Trafficante Sr., was a powerful gangster in Tampa in the 1940s, Deitche said.

While other gangs were shooting at each other, Trafficante Sr. stepped back and "hid in the shadows," he said.

"So when things kind of calmed down in the mid 1940s, the Trafficante family was the dominant family in Tampa. Not only Tampa, the Trafficante family had ties to the New York Mafia,"

Aldi moves forward

County considers park fees

By SUZETTE PORTER

CLEARWATER – In the not-too-distant future, residents and visitors alike may have to pay to visit Pinellas County's parks, preserves and attractions.

Pinellas County commissioners discussed charging admission fees to some of its facilities during a May 11 work session that included a staff proposal on charging admission fees to Fort De Soto County Park, as well as the county's regional parks, preserves and special attractions, such as Heritage Village and the Florida Botanical Gardens.

According to Paul Cozzie, director of Pinellas County's Culture, Education and Leisure Department, more than 15 million people visit the county's parks, preserves and special attractions each year. He said entrance fees at county facilities could generate in excess of $3.5 million annually.

Staff proposed charging $8 a vehicle to enter Fort De Soto County Park and to offer a $75 annual pass. Bicyclists and pedestrians would still get in free. The plan called for using the Florida Department of Transportation tollbooth or constructing a new one.

For regional parks, preserves and special attractions, staff recommended an admission fee of $3 with an annual pass available for $75. This annual pass would be separate from the one proposed for Fort De Soto County Park.

The idea was to use pay and display collection stations located on pull out lanes and other convenient locations. Staff estimated the need for a one-time capital expense of $750,000 for equipment and $500,000 for modifications.

Cozzie's report was not well received, although some commissioners said there might be no choice but to follow staff's recommendation.

"Parks are not mandatory, so they're hit hard (in budget cuts) and will continue to be hit hard," Commissioner Susan Latvala said. "Anything we charge will help if we're going to maintain our parks which are one of our greatest assets."

Commissioner Calvin Harris said he would not support charging a park fee.

"Some people's only form of entertainment is to go to the park," he said. "Some people don't have a job. Now, it's not an expense to take the kids to the park to ride their bike or play on the playground."

Commissioner Neil Brickfield said $8 was "outrageous, and $5 is high. My preference is for there to be none."

Most agreed that $8 was too high, and some said the fee should be the same for all. Commissioners also opposed having two annual passes, saying there should only be one annual pass and $75 was too much.

Commissioner Nancy Bostock was concerned about inequities of charging per vehicle and not per person.

"It's a good deal when you have a carload," she said. "It's not a good deal when you're by yourself," she said.

County Administrator Bob LaSala said the proposed fees would not be enough to prevent big budget cuts to the parks.

"I don't want the board to be surprised when we bring forth the budget," he said.

The budget proposal includes closing the regional parks two days a week, as well as charging the fees, he said. The park closures would not apply to Fort De Soto County Park.

He said the plans call for continuing to open Brooker Creek, Weedon Island and Heritage Village as they are currently operated.

good thing for the community.

"We're going to make (the senior room) work well," he said. "We plan to gather input from our 50-plus residents."

The senior room will act as a temporary replacement for the proposed senior activities center that was planned two years ago at the site of the current Public Works office and garage at Seminole City Park.

Funding is in place for the senior center conversion but the lack of funding for its daily operation has prevented the project from going forward.

In other action, councilors:

• Passed ordinances on second reading to annex homes at 12983, 13014 and 13046 Estates Terrace South.

• Approved a revised position description for the city clerk. The changes are consistent with an ordinance passed Nov. 24 and approved by voters in March placing the responsibility to hire, evaluate and dismiss the city clerk with the city manager.

• Authorized Edmunds to execute an agreement with Bayfront Medical Center concerning the sharing of medical information by Seminole Fire Rescue personnel with BMC staff on trauma patients being transported to BMC.

Nickse said he needs about $1,300 more in contributions to make the event totally successful.

"We'll take anything – any size donation," he said. "Plus, we put the money back into the merchants of Seminole."

Nickse said he hopes to have six bicycles to give away, five or six electronic games, scooters and sports equipment, among other items.

"There aren't many things that have been around for 31 years, especially for kids," he said. "It's absolutely amazing and we want to keep this locomotive moving."

Nickse became involved with Kids Appreciation Day in 1982 when he dressed up as Mr. Peanut. He graduated from Seminole High School in 1987 and the University of Florida in 1991 before earning a chiropractic degree in 1995. He's been in practice in Seminole for the past 14 years.

Through it all he has been involved with Kids Appreciation Day in some manner and the director the last 10 years.

Jimmy Johnson, executive director of the chamber, said the event began in 1980 as a means to counter a minor drug problem that was developing at Seminole High School.

Johnson, fireman Ben Kramer, Yvonne Woods and Eva Jones organized the first event, which included activities for elementary, junior high and high school students.

"It started with a dance in the park for the high school kids but that didn't work," said Johnson. "Eventually, it evolved into just elementary kids."

The idea was to let children in Seminole know they were appreciated and supported by members of the business community. The rest is history. Last year more than 900 children attended the event.

"We took a negative and turned it into a positive," said Johnson. "Our tiny little problem with drugs went away."

Johnson said Seminole is probably the only city in Florida that offers such an event.

Nickse said it's one of the more fun things he participates in each year.

"It's just awful fun," he said. "It's a good time. To be up there (on stage awarding prizes) and see the expressions on the kids' faces is great,"

Persons interested in making contributions can do so at the chamber office, 8400 113th St. N. For additional information, call 392-3245.

By no fault of his own, the school enrollment at the facility has dropped from about 900 in 1999 to its current level of 300 students. Also, the number of programs has diminished from 11 to seven. Both were the result of budget cuts, Fischer said.

Still Fischer has plenty of solid memories from a career that began in 1971 at Seminole High School where he was the diversified cooperative training teacher and taught business education for 13 years.

Fischer, a Seminole High graduate, said those years still rank among his most fondest memories.

"It's very rewarding for me to find students I taught at Seminole High School many years later in successful careers," he said. "I'd say there have been about 2,000. I run into students all the time. The rewarding part of teaching is knowing you had an impact on their lives as they run their own businesses now."

His next stop was the same venue where he operated as principal of the adult education program and community school on the SHS campus.

Among his accomplishments was the start of a popular aerobics program that expanded from 25 students to 150 over a three-year span.

He also formulated a popular private investigator program that had no less than 30 students in each class with a waiting list.

The classes were held on the SVEC campus where adult classes in floral arranging, cabinet making and small gas engine repair thrived.

"At one point, we had the whole campus filled up at night," Fischer recalled.

However, budget issues again came into play and the classes ended.

Next for Fischer was an seven-year stint as principal at Lakewood Community School. Many of the classes were conducted in churches and civic centers because transportation for a lot of the residents was an issue.

Classes were offered in basic education, for those seeking GED certification; and vocational prep, such as CPR and patient care.

At Lakewood, life was much different than at Seminole.

The rate of high school dropouts was much higher.

"We had dropouts up to 82 years old that were trying to still get a high school diploma," Fischer said. "It was a very rewarding period for me."

He said his most rewarding memory at Lakewood involves a 32-year-old musician who never learned how to read.

"He had a child and wanted to be able to read to him," said Fischer. "So, he took that step, walked into the school and said his goal was to be able to read to his son. He did very well and was very successful."

Fischer said the community programs worked well because he tailored the programs at both sites to meet the needs of the community. That was done by going into the community and collecting data on needs, he said.

Since coming on board in 1999 at SVEC, Fischer has seen a number of positive results but the biggest highlight, without a doubt, he said, was the school's involvement with Catholic Charities and Pinellas Hope, building small casitas for the homeless camp.

The program began last year and continues. SVEC carpentry and electrical wiring students build the small buildings, which are later transported to Pinellas Hope. Catholic Charities pays for the materials. The transportation is donated by a local towing company.

"Catholic Charities and Pinellas Hope saw an opportunity for our kids to use their math skills and electrical wiring skills to build the casitas for the homeless," Fischer said. "It was so successful, we had kids coming here in the summer who wanted to participate."

He said it was particularly rewarding to see the students using skills SVEC instructors taught to help someone in the community.

"It was exciting as an administrator to be part of that project, which continues," Fischer said.

Plans are in the works for a school partnership with Worknet Pinellas and Junior Achievement of West Central Florida to provide funds that will pay students and teachers working on the casita project.

"It's tough leaving the school because of its potential and because of the impact it will have and continue to have on kids," Fischer said. "But leaving with this new partnership makes me feel very satisfied."

What lies ahead for SVEC remains to be seen, he said.

"It's been the victim of circumstances as related to circumstance. It hasn't reached its potential," said Fischer. "SVEC has so much potential to help students throughout Pinellas and I hope they continue to find resources to do so."

As for Fischer, he's not ready to fade into the sunset. He wants to continue working in some way, shape or form with youth, or even the school system in another capacity.

"My career is not over," he said. "I still have a drive and passion to provide input in a positive way through career education and impact lives in Pinellas County. If I can continue to make a contribution through another organization or agency to youth, then my career is not over."

Coast Guard rescues man near John's Pass

MADEIRA BEACH – The Coast Guard rescued a man from a 34-foot speed boat after it ran aground on Eleanor Island in John's Pass May 15 at 8:45 p.m.

Coast Guard officials from Sector St. Petersburg received a call from a good Samaritan reporting that a speed boat was traveling at high speed and went aground approximately 500 yards from John's Pass.

Crewmembers from Coast Guard Station Sand Key, Station St. Petersburg and Coast Guard Cutter Marlin immediately were launched to assist in the rescue.

Crewmembers from the Cutter Marlin recovered Morgan Domingue, 26, of St. Petersburg and safely transferred him to Don's Bait and Tackle boat ramp where emergency services were waiting.

Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission is investigating.

Plane crashes into house, all survive

CLEARWATER – A small plane crashed into a house at 305 Patricia Ave. the morning of May 16, although no one was killed.

Clearwater Fire and Rescue responded and saw fire coming from the attic, according to a Clearwater Public Safety press release. All six occupants of the home had escaped without injuries. Firefighters also checked the adjacent home for occupants and fire, but no one was home, and fire had not spread to that home.

The plane had just taken off from the Clearwater Airpark and appears to have hit two trees and the roof of the home before crashing in the back yard, the report said. The front end of the plane was separated from the body and located between the two homes, 305 and 311.

The plane, a Mirage Piper, was piloted by Ernesto Gonzalez, 48, who was staying with relatives in Clearwater. He sustained non-life-threatening injuries. Other passengers were Clearwater residents, Charles Uslander, 46, and Daisy Schneider, 16. Uslander was taken to Bayfront Medical Center as a trauma alert but was later downgraded to non-life-threatening injuries. Schneider sustained non-life-threatening injuries.

The occupants of the house included homeowners Mary-Lynn and Richard Cetroi, 36 and 45 as well as a 60-year-old woman, twin 9-year-old girls and a 7-year-old boy.

About 15 fire apparatus responded, including from Largo and Dunedin. The Red Cross helped assist the dislocated residents.

Seminole motorcyclist critically injured

PINELLAS PARK – A Seminole motorcyclist was critically inured on May 14 when he crashed with a car.

Philip Mains, 31, suffered extensive injuries and remains at Bayfront Medical Center in St. Petersburg.

Police said the accident occurred at about 9:45 p.m. when the vehicles collided at 66th Street and Park Boulevard. Mains was wearing a helmet, but was thrown more than 50 feet.

Man picks on wrong car, is apprehended by victim

PINELLAS PARK – A Clearwater man was arrested on May 11 after he was apprehended while allegedly burglarizing a car by his intended victim.

Eugenio R. Cortes, 25, was charged with burglary and possession of drug paraphernalia. He remains in the Pinellas County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Having a vision

Treasure Island commissioners showed foresight recently by giving their city manager authority to negotiate a contract with a consultant to help with the city's Vision Plan update.

Though a couple of commissioners questioned whether allocating $15,000 for the services is necessary, taking action was a positive step for the city, especially since the plan was last done in 1998. City officials hope to raise an additional $10,000 from the community for the process.

Vision planning is common among local governments. The process enables them to set goals based on meaningful discussions involving the community, rather than making decisions about large expenditures on a year to year basis. Long-term planning sends a clear message to key staff members what direction the commission wants to pursue for their city, such as when it comes to future development and infrastructure.

Collaborative Labs, which has been involved in 425 such jobs over the past 5 1/2 years, will assist a committee headed by former Mayor Mary Maloof in the process.

Seeing the big picture – that's what it's all about.

Pinellas Park officials are making plans to make improvements to a neighborhood off of Park Boulevard.

Hopes are that the area will be revitalized and that cottages and new structures will be used for affordable housing units and small businesses, such as crafts stores and bookshops.

Along those lines, city officials have set aside $200,000 for road improvements, new sidewalks, electrical and other work.

The cottages are located on the outskirts of what used to be the city's main business hub. They are near Park Station, the new P.J. McDevitt Historical Park and a housing project.

Over the years some of the cottages fell into disrepair. A few have been razed and others became rental units.

City officials have put a lot of energy into revitalizing the area. For example, a police officer went door-to-door to speak with owners and tenants.

It appears that the enthusiasm is growing. Many owners of buildings in the area are for redevelopment, realizing the benefits to their neighborhoods.

Any redevelopment strategy takes time to materialize, especially in a recession. But credit city officials for trying to make the most of an opportunity to redevelop an area that needs tender loving care.

Invest in clean energy

Editor:

Students like me who will be graduating soon know the reality of the current job market. The future of our economy depends on investing in clean and renewable energy, which is one of the world's fastest growing industries. We need to invest in technologies like wind, solar and energy efficiency if we want to see my generation and future generations succeed in a clean energy economy.

That's how we can create new clean energy jobs – up to 78,000 in Florida and 1.9 million nationwide. It's how we reduce dependence on foreign oil that threatens our national security. And it's how we reduce pollution so we can avoid catastrophic climate change that threatens our future.

The big oil companies and their lobbyists have spent decades fighting changes to the status quo. Now it's time to invest in clean energy, which will create jobs and help our planet at the same time. Our economy and our future deserve nothing less.

With hopes of a cleaner future.

None of their business

Editor:

Everyone is entitled to their opinion on this matter of prayer at the council meetings. Freedom of speech and religion are guarantees that we all cherish.

I do have an issue though that caught my attention in the article. There were speakers from Odessa, Tampa and St. Petersburg there that were protesting the prayers. I have a problem with that. This is my city. I live here, you don't. Go voice your opinions to your city council meetings. Why are we wasting council time on listening to speakers who don't even live in our city? Citizens of Pinellas Park should be the ones who should have a say at Pinellas Park City Council meetings. I am not going to Odessa to voice my opinion on any issue there. It is none of my business.

Let's have citizens of Pinellas Park voice there opinions and concerns with our City Council.

Consider freezing teachers' salaries

Editor:

In recent editions of the paper, a lot of space has been devoted to the subject of the need to cut the county budget. There has been talk of raising the assessment rate to help increase revenue. In these hard times, why don't we consider putting a freeze on teacher salaries, since they don't seem to like the idea of pay for performance.

Most people who work for a living get pay raises based on their performance and haven't seen a pay raise in the last few years due to the economy. Why should teachers be any different? And why should we keep increasing the pay of teachers who do nothing to earn the increase?

The schools eat up the biggest part of our budget. Don't get me wrong; we need good teachers. But we don't need just the type that want to be paid huge salaries just for showing up. Yes, we are upset about this. As everyone who pays taxes in Pinellas County should be.

God is the only governmental authority

Editor:

My ancestors came to this land in order to escape from the kind of intolerance toward public religious expression expressed by a few attendees toward prayer to almighty God at City Council meetings. We owe to God the breath we breathe since it is He that has made us and not we ourselves.

We are "one nation under God" for there is no governmental authority except from God, and the authorities that exist come from God. King Nebuchadnezzar once learned the hard way that "the most high rules in the kingdom of men. He gives it to whomever he will and sets over it the lowest of men."

When Pilate told Jesus Christ, "Do you not know I have the power to crucify you and power to release you," Jesus replied, "You could have no power at all against me unless it had been given you from above."

When a nation refuses to be governed by God's moral law, judgment follows.

"When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when a wicked man rules, the people groan" (Proverbs 29:2).

Let's all put righteous people in authority and pray for them in public and in private, "that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and reverence" (Timothy 2:2). If the day ever comes when we cannot publicly acknowledge God as the author of liberty and the Bible as our charter of liberty, we will have lost our liberty and become a slave state under godless tyrants.

Pushing, pulling, spinning

Driver's Seat

Bob Driver

Do you ever get the feeling that the world is trying to manipulate you? Push you in one direction? Pull you in another? Spin your mind? I'm sure you do.

So do I. It begins each morning when I sit down for breakfast. I turn on the TV set for the news, and immediately some guy is trying to sell me a vacuum cleaner, or a foaming tooth paste. The messages are, "Unless you buy our products, and soon, your rugs will smell like a gorilla cage and your teeth will fall out by next Tuesday." I defend myself by turning off the sound or the TV set. But what I really want is to stop being pushed around.

A few days ago I got an e-mail from a woman I'd never met or heard of. She addressed me as, "Hi, Bob" and told me she was sure I would want to support her causes. One of them was to get rid of the Pentagon's "don't ask, don't tell" policy regarding homosexuals in uniform. The other cause is full equality for gays, lesbians, transgenders, bisexuals and other persons who are sometimes discriminated against.

I wish her well. But I resisted reading her entire e-mail. Philosophically I'm for sexual equality and tolerance. But I somehow resented the woman's automatic assumption that I was in her camp. She blithely took it for granted that I would, or should, jump aboard her choo-choo train without hesitation.

Another example of push-pull is the standing ovation. Fifty years ago such ovations were rare. A speaker or performer had to be world-class before a crowd would jump to its feet to applaud. Today a standing ovation is almost routine. Everyone gets one, sometimes just for showing up. I feel stupid rising for some singer whose voice has all the magic of a rusty cowbell, but I do it anyhow. I dislike myself for not remaining seated and shouting "Sit down, you clods!"

I like animals. I have owned dogs and cats, and loved them. If I saw an advertisement that simply said, "Thousands of animals are being abused and mistreated. They need your help. Send money to us," I would reach for my checkbook. But when the TV ad shows these starving, beat-up, pitiful animals in all their misery, I have three reactions: I weep; then I resolve to go find an animal abuser and tear his heart out; and finally I calm down and realize my heart-strings and wallet are being strummed by a master propagandist who, for all we know, may drown kittens in his spare time.

The next six months will see an orgy of push-pull exercises. The conductors will be the political parties and their candidates. It's already started. Yesterday in the mail came a letter from the Democratic National Committee. It began "Dear Robert." The first-name approach is supposed to make me feel as if I'm an old buddy. Whatever happened to "Mr." and "Ms."?

The first paragraph said, "(President Obama) is looking to leaders such as you to provide…yadda, yadda…" Such blarney! Me a leader? I couldn't lead six starving men to a free chicken dinner. But the Democrats want me to think I could.

The rest of the letter is a survey asking my opinion on various issues. It asks me to rank in importance 13 specific issues such as dealing with Iran and lowering unemployment. But the list fails to include immigration reform and whether to disembowel or just shoot bankers and stockbrokers who lie. By omitting such vital matters from the survey, the Democrats are putting a spin on me. Nowhere in the survey is there a direct, meaty question such as, "Do you think the USA should pull its bloodied, bewildered behind out of the entire Mideast as soon as possible?" Selective omission is a major instrument of spin. Socrates said that, and I believe him.

The most notable recent example of bamboozlement I can point to is the May 10 issue of Time Magazine. It purports to list "The 100 Most Influential People in the World." At least half of them are persons you and I have never heard of, or been influenced by. The issue is a transparent fraud. It is an attempt to make us believe that Time is still a big-time, trustworthy news magazine. It's not. We must not let Time – or any other information source – push, pull or spin our thinking. To doubt is the first duty of a free mind.

Best pro baseball stadium?

Bob McClure

A few weeks ago, readers of Tampa Bay Newspapers received a special section listing the many "best of" categories in Pinellas County, as voted by our readers.

They ranged from the best antique alley to the best tattoo parlor.

But we forgot one category that should probably be discussed.

What's the best professional baseball venue in Pinellas County?

On that topic, most probably think first of Tropicana Field. But we have two others – Bright House Networks Field in Clearwater, home of the Florida State League's Clearwater Threshers, and Dunedin Stadium, home of the Dunedin Blue Jays.

All three have their selling points.

First, Tropicana Field.

For a domed baseball park, it's not too bad. While it's not the AT&T Park or Wrigley Field, it has its amenities. For example, the thought of sitting through a hot afternoon in August under the blazing sun isn't too appealing. So having a climate-controlled venue like the Trop is a major plus.

I know, I know. Baseball was never meant to be played indoors. But around here, if it isn't ... well, check out a Florida Marlins' home game where most fans are disguised as empty seats.

Other than no drink holders in the cheap seats, The Trop isn't too bad. There are plenty of amenities for kids and adults alike, as well as an ample number of concession stands, restrooms, escalators, a restaurant, a tank with stingrays and a retail store for souvenir stuff.

These are things fans have come to expect in Major League stadiums. So when we look at Bright House Networks Field and Dunedin Stadium, it's like comparing apples and oranges.

Minor league parks are never going to be as attractive or expansive as major league stadiums, but they have their level of ambiance that is attractive.

Take Dunedin Stadium, for example. Not a bad seat anywhere and fans can almost touch the players. Parking is free and the beer is cheap, especially on Thursday nights.

It's a stadium that is a typical spring training/Florida State League kind of ball park. It's small with reasonable ticket prices and comfortable seating.

Bright House Networks Field is another story. This place is a gem. True, there's no roof overhead but most of the Threshers' games are at night, which makes for a generally pleasant experience.

A down side? Forking out $2 to park. Why isn't it free?

But the rest about this well-designed minor league venue is nothing but good.

Once inside the gate, there are plenty of places to spend your money. There's a nifty team store and lots of tasty items to eat and drink at the concession stands.

Speaking of drinking, Bright House has something very unique to a minor league ball park.

If you haven't experienced the tiki bar in left field, you're missing one of the more popular watering holes in Clearwater – especially on Thursday nights when drinks go at a discounted rate.

It's not unusual for the number of fans at the tiki bar to outnumber those in the regular stands. It's clearly a Clearwater gathering place where many patrons have no clue what's going on down on the field past the second inning.

Kudos to the city of Clearwater and the Philadelphia Phillies for coming up with such an innovative concept.

So the best pro baseball stadium in Pinellas? I've got to go with The Trop. Just too many amenities and a pretty good baseball team plays there.

You can't fix stupid ... or can you?

This and That

Thomas Michalski

Ron White is my favorite stand-up comedian. Maybe it's because of his attitude. Perhaps it has something to do with his favorite line, "You can't fix stupid, folks."

Well, yeah, he's right, and I proved that recently by climbing up a rickety ladder to the attic ... and promptly fell eight feet to a cement garage floor where I lay in pain and scared that I'd really bought the farm.

I had no right to climb a teetering ladder without someone holding it. And balancing on the top step to grope around the attic really was stupid.

It's a horrific feeling when solid leaves for thin air. I slid out the attic like a bag of coal down a chute. I remember thinking, this is going to hurt.

It did.

It could have been worse. I landed in a space about three feet wide that was surrounded by my car and a work bench with an iron vice that could have easily splattered my brains all over the nearby Maytag.

Over the years I've managed to break arms, legs, toes, fingers and the most painful of all, ribs. I cracked a collar bone once after tumbling off a bicycle. I injured my back when I fell out of an Air Force cargo plane. OK, it was parked on the ground, but I still went through a belly door and into a truck bed.

I always survived. Sans the blue suit and cape, I perceived myself as the man of steel who could bounce back. So I never paid much attention to safety.

Then I learned the hard way, so to speak, that a body doesn't bounce on concrete. It actually hurts. A lot.

I didn't plan on going to the hospital that night. My wife threatened to squeeze the parts of me that pained if I didn't. Although I somehow landed on my head and back, my chest and internals felt like I went 15 rounds with Mike Tyson. So I had no choice and found myself at Bay Pines VA Hospital.

I've always found VA personnel, from clerks to surgeons, to be every bit as professional as those at any other major medical facility. Probably more so because their first priority is compassion and not if you're insured. A series of CAT scans and X-rays revealed no broken bones or concussion. The doctor warned that I would be in extreme pain for several days.

He was right. I was in excruciating pain for a week. The fall had caused internal problems like bruised organs. I'd taken the pain killers he prescribed for only the first two days because of a series of articles I recently wrote about the dangers of prescription pill abuse. I didn't want to turn into a junkie.

About the only good that came out of the accident was the loss of about five pounds. My wife didn't see any humor when I suggested that I could lose 10 more by diving off the roof. Well, yeah, that would be a bit drastic. And stupid.

The pain is now all but gone and I'm walking without a cane and sleep in reasonable comfort. I made some lifestyle decisions after reflecting on that period of intense pain. I decided to be more careful. And that means no skydiving, tight rope walking, mountain biking or skateboarding.

That means playing by the rules and being more attentive to potential dangers.

In other words I will do everything possible to fix stupid, even though Ron White says you can't.

Until next time ...

Ask Dr. Panzarella:
"Snap, Crackle, Pop"
It's not Your Cereal – It's Your Jaw

You have opened your mouth for your first bite of the morning and what do you hear but that familiar sound: Snap, Crackle, Pop – and it's not your cereal talking. If your jaw pops like that when you open your mouth, it may be amusing to those around you, but it certainly doesn't feel like fun to you. It hurts and usually it is accompanied by a nagging headache or upper body pain. You may have temporomandibular joint disorder or TMJ. TMJ is caused when your jaw (the jaw joint and surrounding tissues and muscles) is not in proper alignment.

Signs and Symptoms

A popping jaw is just one of the more obvious signs of TMJ. These symptoms may be attributed to a variety of causes making the TMJ diagnosis difficult. Such symptoms include recurring headaches; chronic pain in your face, neck or back; ringing in your ears and even tingling in your fingers.

In fact, the symptoms are so diverse, they may be attributed to stress, injury or illness. Patients often seek the help of many specialists, from family physicians to chiropractors. Some are even advised to undergo irreversible surgical procedures. But the pain is never fully resolved.

Neuromuscular Dentistry

We may have the gentle but effective solution you have been looking for. Here at About Smiles Dental, my staff and I have had years of training and experience in advanced neuromuscular dentistry to get your jaw in its proper alignment, relax your muscles and even make your smile look healthier and feel stronger, all done in a gentle, natural and non-invasive manner.

Neuromuscular dentistry is a non-surgical discipline used to diagnose and treat all kinds of trouble caused by malocclusion – including TMJ – through the gentle repositioning of the jaw. This repositioning can alleviate years of pain and discomfort. Some of my patients even claim they look younger after treatment!

To find out more about Neuromuscular dentistry or for a complimentary consultation visit us at 2260 West Bay Drive, Largo or call 727-586-1955. You are also welcome to visit aboutsmilesdental.com and read what our patients have to say about us.

Bring in this article within two weeks to receive our new patient special that includes an exam, needed X-rays, and regular cleaning for $49.

Consultant says social media will get even stronger

By BOB McCLURE

The message was clear and to the point May 13 to members of the Tampa Bay Beaches Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking before an audience of about 200 at the Hilton St. Petersburg Carillon Park, Duncan Wardle, the vice president of a creative think tank and consulting firm called Creative Inc., said social media is here to stay and is going to get even bigger.

Taking it a step further, Wardle said the world is currently in a communications revolution that compares in scope to the Industrial Revolution, which started in the late 18th century and extended into the 19th century.

"The rules have indeed changed," said Wardle, the former vice president of global public relations and social media for Disney Parks, during the chamber's annual Tourism Luncheon. "I think social media is here to stay and will continue to grow. I think the way children interact over the next two generations will complete the change."

He said the rapid ascension of social medium such as Facebook and Twitter, is evident in a number of areas. Among them:

• Social media has overtaken porn as the No. 1 attraction on the Web.

• If Facebook was a country, it would be the world's fourth largest.

• Eighty percent of Americans in the past month have watched a video on their phone.

• The first million Ipods sold in 18 months and the first million Ipads sold in 28 days.

"Everybody needs to move quickly (from a marketing standpoint) to get where this is going," Wardle said. "The game has changed a lot and it's going to change even more in the next two years."

He said the way for businesses to capitalize on the trend is to stay away from trying to grab the consumer's attention with such things as pop-ups online. Consumers, he said, should be engaged more online.

He pointed to Disney's "What Will You Celebrate?" campaign, which makes it possible for consumers to make plans around their own birthdays and family gatherings, as opposed to the traditional U.S. holidays.

Another example was Disney's "Submit Your Disney Dream Job Video" campaign that encourages job seekers to get a little creative video when going after a job at the theme park. This is in lieu of the conventional process of sending in a resume or filling out a traditional job application.

"This way, we're able to reach people that normally wouldn't relate with our brand," Wardle said.

He said the use of social media, such as Twitter or You Tube, could be used locally to demonstrate the lack of oil on the beaches by having children post videos online.

"Success will be gained by fully engaging the consumer," Wardle said. "It's about marketing engagement."

In other business, Clyde Smith, general manager of the Bilmar Beach Resort in Treasure Island, was named the chamber's Tourism Person of the Year.

D.T. Minich, executive director of the St. Petersburg/Clearwater Convention and Visitors Bureau, said the recent decision by the Republican National Committee to bring the 2012 Republican National Convention to Tampa would be like three Super Bowls for the area, from an economic impact status.

He said Tampa remains a strong contender for the 2014 Super Bowl.

County wants to spend money to save money

By SUZETTE PORTER

CLEARWATER – Pinellas County commissioners heard a number of cost-saving ideas during a May 11 work session.

The ideas were the result of work by members of cost-saving and revenue teams which are comprised of directors and other key staff. This same committee is responsible for a number of measures implemented in the current year designed to stretch taxpayer's dollars.

If commissioners approve all the ideas proposed for 2010, it would require one-time costs totaling more than $12 million. The annual savings could be as much as $1.7 million, according to a staff report.

County Administrator Bob LaSala told commissioners that staff was looking for approval to go forward with the projects and to consider them in next year's budget proposal.

Some ideas do not have a cost, such as consideration of a cell phone stipend, doing away with take-home cars, enforcing the idling policy for vehicles, consolidating mowing functions and re-evaluating requirements for uniforms and safety shoes.

The most expensive proposal was to spend $8.5 million on a centralized chiller for the air conditioning system. The total cost of the project is estimated at $10 million; however, a grant of $1.5 million is available.

Staff said having a centralized chiller could save $507,000 annually and provide cost avoidance and possible revenue opportunities.

Staff also proposed spending $2 million to switch to voice over Internet protocol and consolidation of the county's phone systems into one that served everyone, including the sheriff and constitutional officers. Switching to VOIP would save $770,000 a year, staff said.

Other cost-saving ideas that require a one-time spending include $1 million for water conservation at the jail; $850,000 for lighting retrofits and $93,000 for demand control ventilation.

Solar energy also was on the list with cost estimates of $150,000 per facility to save $10,500 a year. However, LaSala said there was some concern about the need for additional roof repairs. He said it was possible that it was not yet time to consider solar.

Hybrid cars also were not seen as a benefit for the county due to high costs to purchase and maintain versus the limited number of miles county employees typically travel.

Commissioner Neil Brickfield asked if the money to pay for the projects would come from the stabilization fund.

"It depends on if we get it," LaSala said.

The stabilization fund was implemented by LaSala when he recommended using a multi-year budgeting system. Departments are not only required to cut their budgets to balance the budget, they are also required to contribute to a stabilization fund – a policy not all departments agree is a good idea.

Last year, the county Sheriff's Office did not make its budget target and did not contribute to the fund. The 2010-11 budget proposed by Sheriff Jim Coats also does not include the total amount requested for the stabilization fund.

Budget Director John Woodruff said the county could have as much as $31 million if everyone makes their contribution to the stabilization fund and keeps their current budget to 97 percent for the current year.

He estimated $12 million could be available from carry over from the current year, plus another $12 million in savings and $7 million from the stabilization fund.

"This is a nice fund for projects that need one-time funding with no reoccurring costs," he said.

The consensus was to go ahead with all six projects that require one-time spending.

However, one commissioner was not pleased with the idea of spending money to save money.

"How can you call it one-time money when every year we have a big pot of money after we've cut everyone to the bone," said Commissioner Calvin Harris. "We've hurt others and it makes it look like they're funding our pet projects."

he said.

Underworld activities are said to have been prevalent in Tampa in the early part of the 20th century. The city had gambling halls, brothels and establishments where illegal activities, such as numbers games, were run.

Charlie Wall was known as "the dean of the underworld." In Ybor City he assembled a multiethnic crew of people and ran gambling and vice in Tampa in the early part of the 20th century, Deitche said.

"Official corruption became so bad in Tampa that Life Magazine in the 1930s called Tampa 'the hellhole of the Gulf coast,' " Deitche said.

From 1928 to 1959, there were over 30 unsolved gangland killings in Tampa that officials know about, he said.

People wouldn't just disappear, he said, the shootings often occurred during the middle of the day.

Since Trafficante Jr. died most of the organized crime in Tampa has been scattered. In the 1960s and 1970s, the FBI got more involved in organized crime. The most powerful tool was the RICO (Racketeer Influence and Corrupt Organizations) Act, "which enabled the federal government to go after entire organizations," Deitche said.

Deitche has written five books dealing in crime. Born and raised in New Jersey, Deitche said his mother loved gangster movies so he grew up watching them, raising his interest in mob activities.

Now the King of Far Far Away, Rumpelstiltskin (Walt Dohrn) lays down the law of the land for Shrek (Mike Myers) in DreamWorks Animation's "Shrek Forever After," releasing May 21 and distributed by Paramount Pictures.

Opening this week

Hollywood's top ogre returns to the big screen

By LEE CLARK ZUMPE

A number of new movie releases will hit theaters this week, including the following films opening in wide release:

'Shrek Forever After'

Genre: Family, animated and sequel

Cast: Mike Myers, Eddie Murphy, Cameron Diaz and Antonio Banderas

Director: Mike Mitchell

Rated: PG

After challenging an evil dragon, rescuing a beautiful princess and saving your in-laws' kingdom, what's an ogre to do?

Well, if you're Shrek, you suddenly wind up a domesticated family man. Instead of scaring villagers away like he used to, a reluctant Shrek now agrees to autograph pitchforks. What's happened to this ogre's roar? Longing for the days when he felt like a "real ogre," Shrek is duped into signing a pact with the smooth-talking dealmaker, Rumpelstiltskin. Shrek suddenly finds himself in a twisted, alternate version of Far Far Away, where ogres are hunted, Rumpelstiltskin is king and Shrek and Fiona have never met. Now, it's up to Shrek to undo all he's done in the hopes of saving his friends, restoring his world and reclaiming his one True Love.

"Shrek Forever After" – also known as "Shrek: the Final Chapter" – will be the last installment in the franchise.

'MacGruber'

Genre: Action and comedy

Cast: Will Forte, Kristen Wiig, Val Kilmer, Ryan Phillippe and Rhys Coiro

Director: Jorma Taccone

Rated: R

Only one American hero has earned the rank of Green Beret, Navy SEAL and Army Ranger. Just one operative has been awarded 16 purple hearts, three Congressional Medals of Honor and seven presidential medals of bravery. And only one guy is man enough to still sport a mullet.

In 2010, Will Forte brings Saturday Night Live's clueless soldier of fortune to the big screen in the action comedy "MacGruber."

In the 10 years since his fiancée was killed, special op MacGruber has sworn off a life of fighting crime with his bare hands. But when he learns that his country needs him to find a nuclear warhead that's been stolen by his sworn enemy, MacGruber figures he's the only one tough enough for the job.

Assembling an elite team of experts – Lt. Dixon Piper (Ryan Phillippe) and Vicki St. Elmo (Kristen Wiig) – MacGruber will navigate an army of assassins to hunt down the evil-doer and bring him to justice. His methods may be unorthodox and his crime scenes may get messy, but if you want the world saved right, you call in MacGruber.

The following will open in limited release.

'After the Cup: Sons of Sakhnin United'

Genre: Documentary and sports

Director: Christopher Browne and Alexander Browne

Not rated

There are over 1.4 million Arabs who are citizens of Israel, facing the challenge of living in a Jewish state while maintaining their Arabic heritage.

In Israel, soccer is king, and Bnei Sakhnin has become the first team from an Arab town to win the prestigious Israeli Cup – and represent Israel in European competition. Fielding Arab, Jewish and foreign-born players, owned by an Arab, and coached by a Jew, Bnei Sakhnin's success has begun to represent a symbol of coexistence, a potential bridge between Arabs and Jews in Israel.

But as Bnei Sakhnin begins its first season after their unexpected win, they know it may well be their first and last in the limelight. Underfunded, lacking experience, and with a rift brewing between the star player and the coach, they face unprecedented challenges – impossible expectations have come with their sudden success, and failure to live up to them will carry consequences both on and off the field. "After the Cup" tells the story of a soccer team that couldn't create a new Middle East, but showed the world what it could look like.

'Solitary Man'

Genre: Drama

Cast: Michael Douglas, Mary-Louise Parker, Susan Sarandon, Danny DeVito and Jenna Fischer

Director: Brian Koppelman and David Levien

Rated: R

A middle aged man struggles to recapture his sense of propriety when it's revealed that he once had an affair with his girlfriend's 18-year-old daughter.

Scott offers a brave new 'Robin Hood'

Reel Time

Lee Clark Zumpe

Looking for the embodiment of bravery?

Forget history's most celebrated archer: From a 21st century standpoint, Ridley Scott personifies courage far better than the subject of his new film, "Robin Hood." He alone had the guts to attempt to reinvent the legend of Sherwood Forest for the big screen following the less-than-perfect 1991 effort "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves" starring Kevin Costner.

In fact, the famous English folk hero – and outlaw – has been depicted in film and on television continually over the last century, starting with the 1912 silent film starring Robert Frazer. Over the years, Robin Hood has been portrayed by Douglas Fairbanks, Errol Flynn, Sean Connery, Patrick Bergin, Patrick Troughton (yes, the same actor who played the second incarnation of Doctor Who) Cary Elwes and Jonas Armstrong. In Disney's anthropomorphic version, Brian Bedford voices Robin Hood, a fox, while Roger Miller – as the rooster minstrel Alan-a-Dale – provides narration.

The point of the matter: Scott isn't exactly working with fresh material here. Fortunately, he doesn't tell the story audiences are expecting.

Scott's "Robin Hood" chronicles the life Robin Hood before he becomes an outlaw, providing an enthralling back-story to the legend.

The account opens as the army of England's Richard the Lionheart (Danny Huston) lays siege to a castle in France after the unsuccessful Third Crusade. After King Richard dies in battle, Robin Longstride (Russell Crowe) travels to Nottingham in order to fulfill an oath he made to a dying knight to return the slain man's sword to his father, Walter Loxley (Max Von Sydow). Walter, fearful Robert's widow will lose the family's lands to the king upon his death, asks Robin to impersonate his son.

Robin, of course, falls for the woman – Lady Marion (Cate Blanchett).

Meanwhile, the newly crowned King John (Oscar Isaac) is played as a pawn by Sir Godfrey (Mark Strong), an agent of the French king. His actions threaten to ignite a civil war which would leave the country undefended against invasion.

Scott's rendering of history is unquestionably revisionist, exalting a commoner-turned-fugitive into a catalyst for social change. While the circumstances may be a dramatic invention, though, the timing is relatively accurate. History's King John did, in fact, eventually bow to rebelling English barons and sign a critical legal charter, the Magna Carta, in 1215.

Inevitably, fans of epic historical adventure films will compare Scott's interpretation not only to previous films featuring the heroic outlaw, but to other genre blockbusters. While the new version of "Robin Hood" clearly surpasses its predecessors in cinematography, story-telling, meticulousness in attention to detail and excellence in acting, it fails to impart the emotional imprint of analogous films such as "Braveheart," "Gladiator" or even "Last of the Mohicans."

Neither of the film's primary antagonists is developed adequately enough to evoke much animosity from viewers. Likewise, the romance between Robin and Marion seems awkward and improbable at best. Finally, the transition of Robin from a self-serving utilitarian to an idealist isn't as convincing as it should be.

The failure of the key players to induce either sympathy or loathing is not the fault of the actors: The ensemble cast is outstanding. Particularly exceptional performances are given by von Sydow as Sir Walter Loxley and William Hurt as William Marshal, an interesting historical figure in his own right.

As far as the film's lack of passion, it is the script that misses the mark.

Ultimately, one does not need to become completely emotionally invested in the film's heroes and villains to thoroughly enjoy "Robin Hood." The film's many strengths compensate for its few flaws. Strong acting, muddy battlefield action and detailed period costumes and settings will satiate fans of the genre. Scott manages to take an innovative look at this renowned figure whose tale has been told time and time again.

A prequel to folklore, Scott's "Robin Hood" successfully broadens the legend.

Russell Crowe stars in "Robin Hood," the epic action-adventure about the legendary figure whose exploits have endured in popular mythology and ignited the imagination of those who share his spirit of adventure and righteousness.

Lecher named outstanding USF graduate

SEMINOLE – Alanna Lecher, a 2006 graduate of Seminole High School, has earned the Outstanding Graduate Award for the spring semester at the University of South Florida-St. Petersburg.

Lecher, who will be entering the doctorate program in earth and planetary sciences this fall at the University of California-Santa Cruz, won the award based on her work in and outside the classroom as a student, researcher and volunteer.

She graduated earlier this month with a degree in environmental science and policy from USF-St. Petersburg.

A member of the USFSP honors program, she was recognized on the dean's list and the chancellor's list. She also received a director's award and a Progress Energy Fellowship.

Lecher was also a leader in Student Government where she served two terms as senator of the College of Arts and Sciences and Senate president pro tempore.

She also was active in research, using radiochemistry to study the effect of effluent from the Mississippi River on the Gulf of Mexico dead zone. She also studied submarine groundwater discharge along the continental shelf off the West Coast of Florida and presented her findings at the American Chemical Society Meeting in Miniature.

For her honors thesis, she mathematically modeled groundwater discharge off the coast of Tampa Bay.

Her community service included tutoring U.S. Coast Guard service personnel taking college-level courses, working as a science ambassador at an elementary school and a judge for a middle school science fair.

She is the daughter of Emily and Marc Lecher.

Seminole student earns broadcasting recognition

SEMINOLE – Emily Boyer of Seminole, a student at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Ky., has been judged one of the best young broadcasters in the nation.

Emily Boyer

Boyer, a junior broadcasting and electronic media major, was first in a competition sponsored by Public Radio News Directors Inc., and will be honored at PRNDI's annual conference June 24-26 in Louisville as best newscaster in the student division.

PRNDI is a nonprofit professional association that exists to improve local news and information programming by serving public radio journalists. According to PRNDI, its annual competition attracts some of the best journalism generated by the nation's public radio newsrooms.

"If Emily was a college basketball team, then she just made the Final Four," said Charles Compton, news director at WEKU. "This opens all kinds of training and career opportunities for Emily. Plus, it's further evidence WEKU is both educating young broadcasters and serving the communities that rely on it."

Boyer, who attended Indian Rocks Christian School for 12 years, will now compete in an essay contest with student reporters who won in the contest's other categories. Three finalists will earn $500 scholarships and will be recognized at PRNDI's annual conference in Louisville.

Bauder science camp planned

SEMINOLE – The ninth annual Bauder Elementary School Science Camp is July 12-15, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the school.

The camp is for students currently in K-5th grade during the 2009-10 school year. Space is limited to 100 students, with 15-20 per class. Bauder teachers will be camp counselors.

Hands-on science activities studying earth, life and physical science, computer technology, arts and crafts, outdoor games and fun

Snack, group games and prizes will be provided daily.

The fee is $125. Proceeds will benefit the school's science lab and technology program. For details, call 547-7829.

Fundraising events set for Seminole High band

SEMINOLE – A number of events are set to benefit the fundraising efforts of the Seminole High School marching band to attend the 2010 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City.

They include:

• May 24 – Rita's Night! Ritas of Seminole at 13179 86th Ave.will donate a portion of sales that evening to the Band.

• May 31 – Village Inn Night, 13106 Walsingham Road. Mention the SHS Warhawk Band and a portion of your purchase will be donated to the Warhawk Band.

Visit seminolewarhawkband.com for more information and coupons.

Others promotions include: Crabby Bill's, 401 Gulf Blvd., Indian Rocks Beach, plans Spirit Days Sunday, June 6; Sunday, Aug. 15; and Sunday, Oct. 17. On these days the restaurant will donate 20 percent of dining receipts to the band if one person in a party wears a band spirit shirt.

Sea Tow launches radio check service

Sea Tow Tampa Bay is pleased to announce a first of its kind public service for the safety of boaters in the Tampa Bay area.

Boaters are now able to conduct 24/7 automated radio checks on VHF channel 27.

The service is unique in that it does not require the response of other boaters or watchstanders in order to work, nor does it require special equipment. This free service is available through Sea Tow's ongoing partnership with MariTEL.

To conduct an automated radio check, turn a VHF radio to channel 27, key the microphone, and ask for a radio check. The system will respond with an automated reply and replay the original radio transmission, letting the sender know exactly how well the radio is working.

Many boaters do radio checks on channel 16, the hailing and distress channel, which causes a serious safety issue and is a violation of the Communications Act. All too often serious distress calls to the Coast Guard are interrupted by radio checks or other non-essential transmissions.

By offering the automated radio check service, we hope to help reduce unnecessary traffic on channel 16 and to encourage safer boating through safer communications on the radio.

Gulf of Mexico Oil Spill Response.

What we're doing. How to get more information.

Since the tragic accident on the Transocean Deepwater Horizon rig first occurred, we have been committed to doing everything possible to stop the flow of oil at the seabed, collect the oil on the surface and keep it away from the shore.

BP has taken full responsibility for dealing with the spill. We are determined to do everything we can to minimize any impact. We will honor all legitimate claims.

This is an enormous team effort. More than 2,500 of our operational and technical personnel from around the world are working tirelessly in coordination with the U.S. Coast Guard and federal, state and local government agencies. We are also getting tremendous support from specialists across the industry to resolve an unprecedented set of technical issues.

On the seabed, we are using multiple technologies to reduce the flow of oil and ultimately stop it. On the surface, hundreds of boats of all sizes, including local fishing fleets, are working together to contain and collect the spill. More than 1.2 million feet of boom is already deployed.

Our efforts along the coast are being organized through 14 staging areas across Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida, coordinated by three command posts in Houma, Louisiana; Mobile, Alabama; and St. Petersburg, Florida.

But the greatest response of all is from the more than 10,000 people working with BP full-time or as volunteers. We are also grateful for the dedicated support of the federal, state, and local government officials and emergency responders. None of this would be possible without the tremendous commitment of these volunteers and officials.

We will continue to keep everyone fully informed about the events as they unfold. For current information on the spill and response plan, please use the following websites:

www.bp.com/gulfofmexicoresponse

For assistance or information, please call the following 24/7 hotlines:

To report oil on the shoreline: (866) 448-5816
To report impacted wildlife: (866) 557-1401
To make spill-related claims: (800) 440-0858

May fishing is getting hot

We are now halfway through the month and May is beginning to show why it is the best month of fishing for our local waters.

We are still behind a little on the fishing calendar, given the cold winter that we experienced this year, but that isn't such a bad thing either. Hopefully the best is yet to come!

Fish Tales
Capt. Tyson Wallerstein

So many species, so little time, from kingfish offshore to tarpon in the passes and redfish on the flats – an angler has almost too many options right now.

Kingfish would normally have started to thin out by now, but given the timing of the baitfish migration, they are very much still here.

Lots of small to medium sized fish can be caught from one to 10 miles offshore. Troll spoons behind planers in areas that you are seeing schools of bait, and diving birds. Live baiters can toss handfuls of live pilchards out behind the boat to get the action fired up.

Redfish have been cooperating pretty well in the back waters. Big summer high tides have started and the redfish are using them to their advantage. Mangrove shorelines with small oyster bars along them are attracting redfish.

Cast gold spoons parallel to the bushes and hold your rod so that you can run the spoon as close to the mangroves as possible without snagging up.

Tarpon are feeding on the outgoing tides at many of the area passes as well as the skyway bridge.

These fish can be seen rolling around the pilings. Cast either a big threadfin of a pass crab up-current and let it drift back naturally to the fish many times. This will keep the bail open so that you can feed line off the reel to help your bait stay drag-free.

Once the line starts to speed off the reel indicating a strike flip the bail back over and begin quickly reeling in until your line becomes tight and set the hook,

Let's not forget our toothy friends; shark fishing is in full swing right now. From the backwater to the beach a variety of sharks can be targeted. Use plenty of chum and fresh cut mackerel, ladyfish or jacks for bait.

Until next week – get bent!

Tyson Wallerstein can be reached at capt.tyson@hotmail.com. To get a fish photo in the paper, send the photo along with your name, when and where it was caught to editorial@TBNweekly.com or mail it to Tampa Bay Newspapers, 9911 Seminole Blvd., Seminole, FL 33772.

A productive day

From left, Rylan, Christian and Aydan Soto of Seminole show off their catch from a May 9 fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico with their parents. Each of the boys caught two kingfish and a few Spanish mackerel offshore near the shipping channel.

The Customers Have Spoken: You'll Get a Great Style at a Great Price at Attractions

The Popular Seminole Salon Puts the Focus on Professional Hair Styling

You don't have to be around Attractions Salon for very long before a client will offer an opinion. "I really love this place," said Becky of Seminole. "I never feel pressured here. Some places are so fast-paced and crowded. They try to push too many services other than hair and seem unfocused. It sometimes makes me feel very uncomfortable. Attractions just does great hair."

Joanne Reeves, owner of Attractions, explains it best. "We have found that most of our clients primarily come in for hair services and already have a favorite nail or skin technician that they are happy with," she said. "For that reason, we've eliminated other services and put the focus on what we do best, and that's professional hair cut, color and styling at prices that are extremely competitive. For example, our Redken color, cut & style is just $65 everyday, and Men's shampoo and cuts are only $15. We also have great pricing on the rest of our hair services, too."

At Attractions, they provide a non-competitive setting. "You'll find no independent contractors here," Joanne added. "Attractions has been in existence for over 17 years. Since purchasing the salon, I've made a lot of positive changes. Recently, we hired new, professional stylists who are not only Redken-trained, but they're employees of our company—so our clients never feel pressured when they come here. They can always choose the stylist they want, at a time that's convenient for them. We want them to feel comfortable."

Regular clients of Attractions know what Joanne means by comfortable. Not only are walk-ins and last-minute appointments welcomed, but many of the day spa "converts" (who have become regulars at Attractions) have learned that this salon makes their clients feel like family. "They always offer me a cold beverage or a new styling idea," said Kelly of Largo. "But what I really like is their great pricing and the fabulous color and styling work they do on my hair. The value here is incredible."

"We offer a new trend in Salons that is all about building a clientele that expects professional quality and expertise from their stylist at a price that's more affordable," said Joanne. "We would like to invite everyone to give us a try and see the difference our attention to hair makes. Bring us your hair and we'll make you a star—guys, too!"

Attractions is located at 10793 Park Blvd. in Seminole between Lifestyle's and Beef O' Brady's on the northwest corner of Park Blvd. and Seminole Blvd. They're open Tuesday through Friday from 9 AM to 8PM and Saturday 9 AM to 5PM. After hours appointments are accepted with advanced notice. For an appointment, call 393-1987.

Really, Capricorn. You've held back for far too long. The world is yours to conquer. A change in routine dramatically lightens the atmosphere at home.

April 20 – May 20

Follow your brain, not your heart, and do what's best for you. It won't be easy, but it must be done, Taurus. A book inspires you to break a bad habit.

Patience has never been one of your strong points, Scorpio, but now is not the time to leap into something new. You must wait until the right opportunity presents itself.
