Numerous celebrations planned for Fourth

Tribute bands, a parade, watermelon, music and a fly-over in the missing man formation are part of the many activities planned to celebrate the nation's birthday.

Events planned at the downtown square and at the Circle Square Commons are set for July 3.

The Red, White and Blues Festival runs from 6 to 9 p.m. on Ocala's downtown square July 3.

A crowd of about 75 people gathered at the new Publix to wait for the new store to open last Thursday. Ken Tindall, front right, wanted to be first inside the new store and he was. He got there at 5 a.m. to earn the honor. He explained that he's retired and doesn't have anything to do.

Bob Schloss didn't get around to the task of trimming up the century plant as his wife had suggested a couple of months back.

The couple is glad he didn't.

"Like a good husband, I forgot," he explains.

Louise had suggested her husband of 18 years trim up the spiny looking plant when a stalk started growing from the center about two months ago.

Realizing that the stalk was growing quickly, the couple decided to let nature run its course and wait to see what happens. It turns out their century plant was blooming.

Although not visible to passers-by of their Ocala Palms home because it is in the backyard the bloom is close to 25 feet towering above nearby homes and trees.

The base of the plant itself is nearly as tall as the Schlosses are.

Bob has wanted to measure the height of the plant by measuring the shadow cast on the ground. His timing hasn't been right so far though and he hasn't been outside at a time when he can see the complete shadow.

The Schlosses moved to Ocala Palms four years ago even though they don't golf. Their home backs up to the golf course. Golfers at the eighth hole - or at least they think it is the eighth

The sloping backyard of Bob and Louise Schloss keep passers-by from seeing the 25-foot tall century plant blooming. It was planted in 1998.

Plethora of learning opportunities

Fifty percent of the classes offered by the Master the Possibilities program this summer haven't been offered before.

The summer schedule for July, August and September lists 178 learning opportunities, said Dan Dowd, director of the lifetime learning program at On Top of the World. Even though classes are offered in the educational building at On Top of the World classes aren't only limited to OTOW residents.

Classes are open to the public too. The general public usually pays an extra $5 surcharge.

But for some people, with classes such as Sudoku explained, the $5 could be well worth it.

Other classes offer the opportunity to learn where to hike and all about recreational kayaking. There's the chance to learn how to oil paint snowy roads in addition to full curriculum of art classes. For those concerned about their dreams, an overview is offered on interpreting dreams.

Those intrigued with Bonsai may want to take the two-sessions class on Bonsai for beginners, a new class. The plant is included for $25 for

When Who Wants To Be A Millionaire? began its run hosted by Regis Philbin in 1999, I was single, working two jobs; and though I was teaching night classes at a local college in northwest Georgia, I enjoyed the program as often as possible with my octogenarian parents who enjoyed game shows as much as I did.

We had been watching Jeopardy and Wheel of Fortune together for many years, but this new program really was our favorite. Nearly every time we watched the program, one of my parents would say, "Priscilla, you really should try out for that program. You know lots of those answers." I pointed out those knowing answers while watching at home was not the same thing as being able to answer under pressure. However, they both persisted and were still encouraging me until they passed away 4 years ago within 5 months of each other. Needless to say, I still miss them.

About a month ago, I was watching the newer morning "Millionaire" program hosted by Meredith Vieira when the announcement was made that auditions were being held. One could go online and get information. I did find the information and entered online. Amazingly, the next day I received an e-mail that I had an appointment scheduled for June 10

Ocala, there's free ice cream and watermelon until it's all gone. Little Elvis will perform during the event. Also on stage will be blues band, Keith Caton and the Accelerators.

There's a celebration planned at the Circle Square Commons Town Square too.

The July 3 event is planned as a salute to the Armed Forces from 5 to 10 p.m.

The Swing Sisters will offer music of the 40's and Norman Lee, a local favorite will bring his own brand of music to the stage during the evening.

Four T-6 aircrafts will fly over the event at around 7 p.m. and on one approach will fly the Missing Man Formation.

The wearing of red, white and blue is encouraged. Craft and food vendors will be on hand.

The town square is located at 8409 S.W. 80th St. Ocala.

Also on July 3, but not touted as a Fourth of July celebration, is Dunnellon's First Saturday event.

From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. vendors will set up in Dunnellon's historic district to showcase their wares - from flea market items to antiques, fresh produce to crafts, food and jewelry.

New vendors keep the event ever changing but old favorites have committed to make the event a year round affair, organizers of the monthly event said.

For the price of admission to Silver Springs on July 4, there are three concerts and fireworks on tap. An admission special now in affect gives adults one free ticket with the purchase of an adult ticket.

The concerts start at 3 p.m. with Second Helping. Second Helping is a tribute band

The learning possibilities also include 25 classes focusing on health. Those classes and programs are led in July by doctors and practitioners.

Local history and current events programs are also scheduled in the Master of Possibilities schedule. So is a film series and book club meetings.

And there are many computers classes to choose from too.

Popularity of the on-going learning program continues to grow and an estimated 17,000 people are expected to take at least one class this year, Dowd said, suggesting summer is a perfect time to take classes.

"It's harder to find something to do this time of year," he said adding the fact that all classrooms are air-conditioned.

Check on line at mastertheopportunities.com to find out if there's a class that piques your interest. Follow the "class schedule" link to see the complete listings. Registration for the classes is also available on line.

Printed copies of the schedule is available after July 1 at the Master the Possibilities building, Circle Square Commons, On Top of the World, 8409 S.W. 80th St. Ocala.

at 5:45 p.m. at the ABC studios in New York City. I was shocked actually, but I put the idea in the back of my mind because I was headed to Atlanta, Georgia, for my granddaughter's graduation the next day.

As all of us grandparents know, there is not much that would come ahead of a special day for our grandchildren, so I only casually mentioned it to my family later that weekend. I was surprised by their reactions as they unanimously encouraged me to "Go for it!" as they said. "It will be fun and who knows what might happen," was what my husband had said since I got the e-mail.

So we did. My husband arranged reservations and we headed to the Big Apple which I had only visited once some 45 years ago when I went to the World's Fair in 1965. We decided to make the most of a 4-day visit by attending two Broadway plays (Promises, Promises and Lend Me A Tenor), a comedy club (Comic Strip Live), and two tapings (Live With Regis and Kelly and The Late Show with David Letterman).

The most fun of all, however, was the time at the ABC studio when I, along with about 150 other people, were ushered into a large room filled with tables outfitted with pencils and scantron sheets. Sealed envelopes with bold numbers were distributed and we were given instructions about the 30 questions to be answered in

Couple renews vows on 50th anniversary

June – the month of weddings

Paul and Marlene Cigrand were married June 25, 1960 in North Versailles, Penn. Last Saturday, their sons, Christopher and Eric, had a 50th anniversary party for them. However, before the party, Paul and Marlene renewed their wedding vows at the Queen of Peace church. They were joined by family and friends as Father Patrick O'Doherty performed the renewal ceremony. Among those attending were Paul's brother, Richard from Pennsylvania, and his sister, Sister Patricia, who is a nun in the order of Apostles of the Sacred Heart in Connecticut. They were also present when Paul and Marlene were married.

The Cigrands were blessed with two sons, Chris and Eric. Chris and Cindy have added to their blessings with two grandchildren, Nicholas and Sarah. Paul and Marlene are transplants from Pittsburgh. They moved to Quail Meadow from South Carolina in 1998. The dinner at Stone Creek was excellent. During the evening many stories were told about Paul and Marlene (all in fun, of course). Paul is often seen in the neighborhood walking his dog, Penny – or it may be Penny walking Paul. Marlene enjoys line dancing – she conducts classes at the clubhouse. They both do a lot of volunteer work – Marlene volunteers at the Hospice Thrift Store one day a week and has done this for over 8 years. Paul is a blood donor and has donated over 11 gallons of platelets. In their spare time they enjoy cruising. Happy 50th Anniversary, Paul and Marlene! We wish you many more.

According to the calendar, June 21 was the first day of summer. Summer actually began at 7:28 a.m. on that day. Remember all those cold days we had last winter? We're making up for it now. Even with the calendar showing that it's June, I was shopping in Hobby Lobby last week and they were putting out Christmas decorations! Don't you think it's just a bit early for that?

If you are interested in going to the Hard Rock in Tampa, there is a bus trip on July 8. The bus leaves from the "old" Publix parking lot at 8 a.m. Reservations are required. Call JETTSETTERS at 401-1850 for information.

They didn't purchase the century plant themselves but inherited it when they purchased their home from Sam and Marilyn Knisely four years ago.

In the 18 years they've been married, they lived in St. Augustine and then 11 years in North Carolina until doctors suggested a warmer climate would be better for Louise. They tried Naples for three months before deciding it was too busy. Then they moved to Ft. Myers until Hurricane Charlie came along.

They looked into the Ocala area because when it came to evacuating it was suggested they try the Ocala area or South Georgia. They chose Ocala.

Both retired from phone companies – she from Mississippi Bell and he from New Jersey Bell.

He, a Korean War veteran, was already retired when they met. He was at a "Loners on Wheels" rally for widowed motor home owners in Oklahoma when it was suggested he should go to Mississippi to a similar rally.

He went and at that rally he met Louise.

They started talking and realized they had some things in common. They stayed in touch.

About a month later, he called her from his home in St. Augustine and said he needed to deliver a television to his son in Ohio and could he stop by. She agreed to see him in her home state of Mississippi.

They visited the highlights of the area and got to know each other better while working around Louise's work schedule.

During the visit, he suggested she go with him to Ohio. She used work as an excuse. He countered by suggesting she quit her job and they get married.

Although she had 32 years with Mississippi Bell, Louise was planning to work a couple more years but she asked about retiring anyway.

Once they realized she was serious about retiring it was arranged that she could fully retire, due to days she had coming to her, in two-and-a-half days.

After working her last-half day, which amounted to a party and saying goodbye to her co-worker, they married that afternoon at the state park where they met.

Today, they still travel to family reunions for her family in Mississippi and his in New York, enjoying boating on the St. John's River out of Astor. He's learned to eat fried catfish and she's learned to eat pasta dishes.

When not on the motor home they stay busy at church and with a Korean veterans group and admiring their century plant.

Priscilla and husband Phil enjoyed eating their way through NYC.

the 10 minute time limit. The young lady in charge warned us that few people passed the test the first time, and she encouraged us to come back if it turned out that we did not "make the cut."

So ...the test began and I was surprised to see how many of the 30 questions that I knew. As the test progressed, the questions became more challenging, however, so I used some logic as best I could.

Honestly, I was very concerned when the short list of those moving on was called out. Using the numbers on our test packet, the lady called out the 8 who would go to the next level. The first seven people were ecstatic, and Yes!.. my number 125 was the last number called out. With my heart in my throat, I accepted the congratulations of the others at my table, none of whom were called, and then went to another area where we filled out some paperwork and waited to be interviewed.

My interview was with a very professional young man whose name is Kwame, who made me feel very comfortable. When he asked me would I be as enthusiastic on TV as in private, I told him that with me, it is almost always enthusiasm. I cannot "fake" anything ...I am just myself ...like it or not. He said, "Well, I like it!" and he then gave me a release form to sign and sent me on to another interviewer, Caitlin, who put me on camera and "auditioned" me that way. She put me so at ease that I almost forgot that the camera was running. We had a nice conversation during which she asked me what I would do if I won money.

I think my answer caught her off guard as I explained that though my husband and I have been married almost four years, our combined families of 53 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren have never been able to gather at the same time. She said, "Oh, you would want a big family reunion?" I laughed and responded, "Actually, more of a family union since it has not happened before!" Well, she must have liked that response because she laughed and said that she hoped that could happen.

As Caitlin walked with me to the outside doors, she said that I would be receiving a card in two to three weeks letting me know about the contestant pool and whether I will be a part of it. As we hugged and I left, I felt exhilarated by the fun of the whole process.

I realized it would have been hard to explain to my grandchildren if I had not passed that first test since I am always encouraging them in their educations. For 40 years their grandma "pushed" high school juniors to "stretch" their brains and become well-rounded, educated people. Thank goodness, I did "pass" the first three steps. I will wait for ABC to contact me and meanwhile plan that "Family Union Gathering" I plan to host in FFV's clubhouse.

That exclamation, "Go For It!" is not lost on others here in Fairfield Village. On Father's Day, Dan Ford surprised his wife, Linda, with a dress-up night on the town including a limo ride to celebrate their anniversary. After a lovely dinner at Harry's On the Square in Ocala, and their romantic drive home, there was still some time left with the limo. Dan encouraged Linda to call several of her friends and use the time to "Go For It" with the girls. They drove around waving to all who saw them and having a wonderful time ...just another example that Fairfield Village is a lively place filled with lovely people.

FULL MOUTH RECONSTRUCTION

In some cases, patients' teeth may be so decayed, injured/fractured, or worn/eroded that they may require extensive treatment known as "full mouth reconstruction." Also known as "full mouth restoration" and "full mouth rehabilitation," this rebuilding/restoring process typically involves every tooth in both the upper and lower jaws. The process begins with a thorough examination and evaluation of the patient's teeth, gums, and occlusion (bite). It continues with an assessment of the color, shape, size, and proportion of the teeth with respect to how they relate to the gums, lips, mouth, side profile, and face. Then, after taking x-rays, impressions, and photographs, the dentist (in conjunction with specialists, if necessary) can recommend procedures and techniques for totally restoring the teeth.

Our commitment to patient care translates into specialized care for each patient. Every person we treat has a unique dentition and oral health condition, so we take pride in designing customized treatment plans. At the office of MARK E. HAMPTON, D.D.S., we want you to receive the highest quality, complete, and affordable dental care. We keep abreast of all new procedures, and we would like to increase public awareness of the importance of preventive oral health care. We're located at 11902 Illinois Street, Dunnellon, where our aim is to provide individual attention and care to every patient so that we can learn about his or her special needs.

Call 352-489-5071 to schedule an appointment. We're "Dedicated to Excellent Dentistry."

P.S. Full mouth restoration can include procedures such as crown lengthening; gum recontouring; jaw surgery; permanent restorations (crowns, bridges, inlays/onlays, veneers, and implants); and orthodontics.

Stone Creek

Which way out of the Maze Garden?

Patricia Gizzi

Recently, members of the Garden Club of Stone Creek went on a field trip to the maze garden of College of Central Florida. This garden was initiated in 2003 with the help of students, community volunteers and the Florida Nursery and Landscape Association. To learn more about planning a tour, you can contact Professor Du Mond at 352-854-2322, extension 1351.

This garden is an outdoor classroom for students taking horticulture courses at the college. It was created so students could see plant specimens in close proximity. Students could use what they learn to apply to real applications in the garden.

According to Professor Du Mond who gave the introduction to the residents of Stone Creek, "The garden consists of ten species of turf; five varieties of St. Augustine, three varieties of Bermuda, two varieties of Zoysia, Centipede. It really helps the students see the difference in the grass. Before the maze garden I would have had to go all over Ocala to show them the varieties."

Visitors to the garden can follow a path that weaves through the garden. A variety of colors makes for pleasing contrasts between the tree and plants for maximum visual impact. Shade for the areas is provided by crape myrtle trees.

A water pond, donated by the CCF President Charles Dassance, brings a delightful babbling brook sound to the garden. Du Mond accepts all donations and he will find a use for the donation in the garden.

The garden is located on the northwest end of the Ocala campus. It is open to the public Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Community Development Committee of the Garden Club of Stone Creek, chaired by Linda Fiorella has been working on many community projects. At the July 1 meeting, they will present their ideas to the club for approval. The committee has decided to continue with their outreach program of 'Be a Santa to a Senior'. Peggy Haworth, community director of SC has asked the club to do holiday decorations. The committee is working on many ideas for the club and the community. If you are interested in gardening or want to know more about gardening, go to the portal and join this interesting club. Dues are only $4 for the year.

Some patriotic reflections for the Fourth of July

James Snyder

The Fourth of July is upon us and nobody enjoys a party more than Yours Truly. I will offer any excuse to break into some kind of a party mode. The slightest hint of refreshments and I have my "these-boots-were-made-for-walking" footwear on and I am ready to go. I especially like birthday parties, when it is somebody else's birthday, that is. I have found when it is my birthday party too many people want to congratulate me on another milestone in my life that I do not get a chance to enjoy the delectable refreshments. Smiling and stuffing the face do not go together. But a patriotic party is something altogether different. It is the birthday of our country and it is hard to imagine anybody celebrating too much on this anniversary. Over 230 years ago, give or take, this country came into being. And what a country it has been. Do we have problems? The only people without problems are those resting quite peacefully at Boot Hill. If there is life, there are problems. Our country has been of such a nature that no problem has been too big to solve. We are a nation of problem solvers. Henceforth, we need problem makers in order to prove what great problem solvers we are. If we had no problems in our country today nobody would know just how great we really are at solving problems. I do not get upset with all the problems floating around in our country today. I know any problem is a temporary inconvenience and that in the long run, good usually wins out. As I was thinking about this year's Fourth of July celebration, I began to reflect on all of the good in our country. If you want to see any good in this country, you first have to turn off the television newscasts, lay aside the daily newspaper and turn off your radio and then go take a stroll in the park where real life takes place. I know the news media has to do their job, but do they have to do it so well? For example, if there is some social burp somewhere in our country (especially if it is some celebrity) the news media from all over the country goes to that spot and for the next week there is 24/7 coverage of that little burp. After three days of constant news coverage, it is not hard to conclude that the entire world is going to that really hot place in a handbasket. For every negative story in the news today, there are 99 unreported incidences of peace and goodwill toward men. Maybe it is a good thing that only bad stories catch the headlines. Maybe that is an indication that in reality bad is the exception and good is the norm. Well, one can dream can't he? In spite of all the dissing of America, there are plenty of things to celebrate this coming Fourth of July. I was at the supermarket picking up an item on my way home the other day and as I was waiting to pay the bill, I happened to look at one of my dollar bills. Right in the middle of that dollar bill in plain sight were the words, "In God We Trust." I chuckled to myself. Every time someone uses a dollar bill in this country, they are giving tribute to the awesome fact that this country was built upon trust in God. And not just any God, but the Judeo-Christian God of the Holy Bible. One of my favorite sports is baseball. Just before any game the entire stadium stands and sings, The Star-Spangled Banner. In the middle of that song there is a phrase that goes, "And this be our motto: 'In God is our trust!'"

Our founding fathers took for granted something that this generation has long ago forgotten. Everything in this country is built upon God. Not some generic god, but the God of the Bible. To disavow that is to misunderstand what the founding of this country was all about. I often hear people crying out in defense of their ignorance, "Separation of church and state." That is about as possible as separating the hydrogen out of the air we breathe. It can be done but it leaves us with something we cannot breathe and exist. Then, every time we look at the American flag, we are reminded of the "Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag." A little phrase in that pledge says, "One nation under God." Again, the God referred to is the God of the Bible. For those who are trying to get away from God they have an impossible task on their hands. Every time they use an American dollar, they are acknowledging our trust in God as a nation. Every time they go to a baseball game and sing The Star-Spangled Banner, they are singing about their trust in God.

Even atheists in this country have to start with God in order to define who he or she is. If I did not believe in God, I would not spend all my time and energy and resources fighting against something that I do not believe exists.

But as I celebrate the Fourth of July, I will pause and give thanks to God for America and I probably will sing, "America! America! God shed his grace on thee."
