

Phillippi receives Harris Fellowship

The Rotary Club of Immokalee presented Penny Phillippi with a Paul Harris Fellowship before the Immokalee football game at Gary Bates Stadium last Friday, Nov. 9.

In making the presentation, club President Richard Rice said that the founder of Rotary, Paul Harris, had always placed service above self as his priority, and that Service Above Self is the Rotary motto.

"In the five or six years I've known Ms. Phillippi, she has always exhibited the Service Above Self motto, even during some difficult and trying times, while carrying out her role as Executive Director of the Immokalee Community Redevelopment Authority (CRA)," Mr. Rice said.

In recognizing Mr. Harris' contributions to this worldwide organization, and in his honor, Rotary International created the Paul Harris Foundation, which

It's that special time of year – my favorite time of year. That time of year when kindness, goodwill, gratitude, and feelings of family and community warm our hearts. Take a moment to forget the lines we make for that perfect holiday gift, and the money we spend on things we don't really need. Let's focus instead on the gift of selfless generosity for the good of another – a gift that can take so many shapes and sizes, but should always be received with a sincere smile (and probably a hug or two). I have just the story to tell you to help us all remember how this gift is so important, especially when it impacts a young person's future.

You may recall the name Mariela Vega from an article published in this newspaper in September of last year. She was a senior at Immokalee High School at the time when she was selected as a recipient of the Sun Life Rising Star Award and a $5,000 scholarship to the college of her choice. It was quite the special occasion, complete with a surprise celebration at the school with Miami Dolphins players and cheerleaders. And boy did she deserve it. You see, Mariela's family migrated from Mexico seeking better opportunities in the U.S. Since then, her mother and father have sacrificed and worked long hours in agriculture fields to provide for Mariela and her three brothers. Her home was solely Spanish-speaking, making retention and understanding of what she learned in school quite challenging. But, Mariela rose up to the challenge. She took her family-taught values of hard work to heart and excelled in her academics with a pretty specific goal in mind – to become a surgeon and help children in third world countries born with facial deformities, such as cleft palates. And not only did she develop a drive to succeed in the classroom, but also a drive to give back to her community by selflessly volunteering with just about every philanthropic activity in Immokalee, including tutoring young children through the Guadeloupe Center's Tutor Corps Program. Actually, it was the Guadalupe Center who nominated Mariela for the Sun Life Rising Star Award. Here's where the selfless generosity of people really comes in. After the Rising Star Award presentation, the wife of former Miami Dolphins football coach Tony Sparano was so moved by Mariela, that the couple matched the Sun Life scholarship with an additional $5,000. Then, a local resident saw Mariela's story in the newspaper and offered to cover the remaining cost of her college and post-graduate education. Yep – that's an eight-year, fully covered scholarship all the way through medical school! Her dreams are being made possible by simple selfless generosity.

Mariela has now embarked on her college journey at Birmingham-Southern University in Alabama, majoring in Biology. And her words of gratitude say it all: "I've been blessed with such a great support system and am so appreciative for my mentors, Mrs. Sparano, Tutor Corps, and the family who provided me with the opportunity to attend Birmingham-Southern. It's great to have people that believe in you and your dreams."

Help Winn-Dixie help needy

Mr. David Dawson from our local Winn-Dixie, has requested help from the Immokalee Community. He is putting together about 30 Turkey Dinners for 30 needy families in Immokalee, and would like to know if any member, business or organization is interested in sponsoring the Turkey Dinner. For $35 you will be sponsoring a nice "Turkey Dinner" with four dinner sides to be provided to the families in a nice box. On the box, will be a logo or name of your business so that the families would know who provided the dinner for them. The dinners will be handed out on December 17.

If you say "yes" to the challenge please contact: David Dawson at Winn Dixie #751 in Immokalee 239-657-7666 or email him at Daviddawson.wd@icloud.com.

Also, the Winn-Dixie Hunger Relief program continue until Dec. 25. Winn-Dixie is asking its customers to help make a difference by donating any amount they choose at the point of checkout though easy-to-use tear pads/scan sheets found at the register or by purchasing specially-marked Winn-Dixie brand products, including water, coffee, diapers and condiments, whose manufacturers have generously donated to this program. All dollars raised by tear pads/scan sheets will go directly to local Feeding America-affiliated food banks, including the Harry Chapin Food Bank,

Pinecrest first graders plant garden

Pinecrest Elementary School (PCR) students in Immokalee are developing a green thumb – and healthy habits. Thanks to a grant from the Harry Chapin Foundation, PCR first grade students are at the helm of the school’s new Whole Kids Whole Foods Garden. Just before the Thanksgiving holiday, the school launched the garden with four containers in the shape of mini fish ponds. The garden has already begun growing with lettuce, tomato, rosemary, daisies and marigolds – all at the hands of first graders responsible for maintenance and harvest. The goal of the Whole Kids Whole Foods Garden is to instill habits of a healthy lifestyle for the young students.

Lipman installs greenhouses

Lipman, North America’s largest open field tomato grower, recently installed five acres of retractable roof Cravo greenhouses at its Naples farming facility.

“We are developing a sustainable, hybrid growing system to capture the best of both outdoor and protected agriculture. The retractable roof design makes it possible for our crops to grow under natural outdoor conditions, while protecting them from wind, cold, heat and rain,” said Gerry Odell, chief farming officer for Lipman. “All of which furthers our ability to provide fresh produce to customers 365 days a year.”

By protecting crops from harsh weather conditions, not only is the harvest season extended, but plant growth is also accelerated — which leads to a larger volume of quality tomatoes and vegetables.

“It’s the best of both growing methods — tomatoes have the cosmetic beauty of greenhouse-grown fruit ... with the firmness and taste of the open field,” added Odell.

WGPU: Women Who Make Southwest Florida

November 30, 2012... WGPU Public Media has announced that 21 women have been selected to be highlighted in its multi-platform project Makers: Women Who Make Southwest Florida. Inspired by the PBS national project makers.com, WGPU's project honors exceptional women residing in Southwest Florida who have left or are leaving a legacy in the arts, business, education, the environment, community-building and/or politics or through activism in social justice issues.

The nominees were rated on these criteria: leaving a legacy, building community, affecting lasting change, defying social norms, and serving as a "first" in her field.

To honor these extraordinary women, WGPU will produce video and audio portraits to air on WGPU TV, WGPU FM and at wgcu.org. WGPU will also feature written portraits in its member magazine, Expressions. WGPU will also produce a television documentary exploring how women have helped to shape our region. The documentary will air in spring 2013 on WGPU-HD in conjunction with the PBS Makers series highlighting trailblazing women

Use care when contributing to charities

Clearwater, FL - December is a critical fundraising month for charities. Many people make year-end gifts for tax reasons, or to extend the spirit of thanksgiving and generosity to those less fortunate. BBB Wise Giving Alliance offers a few DOs and DON'Ts when it comes to charity giving, both at holiday time and year-round.

DON'T succumb to high-pressure, emotional pitches. Giving on the spot is never necessary, no matter how hard a telemarketer or door-to-door solicitor pushes it. The charity that needs your money today will welcome it just as much tomorrow...after you've had time to do your homework.

DO check out the charity carefully. Make sure you feel comfortable with how your money will be spent. Don't just take the word of someone else; even good friends may not have fully researched the charities they endorse. Go to www.give.org to verify that a charity meets BBB Wise Giving Alliance's 20 Standards for Charity Accountability.

DON'T assume that only "low overhead" matters. How much money a charity spends on the actual cause - as compared to how much goes toward fundraising and administration - is an important factor, but it's not the whole story. A charity with impressive financial ratios could have other significant problems such as insufficient transparency, inadequate board activity and inaccurate appeals.

DO be sure it's the right charity. With so many charities in existence, their names can blur in a donor's mind and similar-sounding organizations are common. Many phony charities purposefully choose a name that sounds familiar. Be sure you know which charity you're supporting and that it's not a case of mistaken identity.

DON'T assume that the charity wants any item you donate. Worn out, unusable or unwanted donated goods cost charities millions of dollars each year because the organization has to bear the cost of tossing the unacceptable donation. If you have questions about an item's acceptability, call the charity and ask.

DO consider easy text-to-give options. The BBB Mobile Giving Foundation makes it easy to give smaller donations (usually $10) to charities they have selected and monitor, including those providing relief to victims of Hurricane Sandy. Go to www.mobilegiving.org to find out more.

Donors can check out BBB Wise Giving Alliance evaluations on nationally soliciting charities for free at www.give.org. Many BBBs also rate local and regional charities at www.bbb.org.
