A wall of red shirts makes its way through a crowd of 97 airmen preparing to board an aircraft and make the journey over the Atlantic Ocean bound for the Middle East.

The Red Shirt Brigade, a group of volunteers from the Army and Air Force Exchange Service and members of the Fort Walton Beach Chamber of Commerce Military Affairs Committee, including Mike Anderson, Fort Walton Beach mayor, all showed up Dec. 18 to show their support for the men and women deploying to Iraq.

A "hoorah" interrupted the silent pause during a speech by Col. Bruce McClintock, 96th Air Base Wing commander, from one of the visitors standing on the side of the seated airmen in the crowded auditorium. The colonel spoke about the contributions of the airmen deploying and the appreciation he had for their duty. The mayor followed the colonel's words with a message for the airmen: "We appreciate what you do. Stay safe."

"We represent a small portion of the nation that appreciates what you do," said Anderson. "This is just a snapshot of the appreciation we have for the troops."

Christine Cook and her son, of the Red Shirt Brigade, were among the visitors to show their support handing out care packages with decks of playing cards, 10-minute phone cards and coupon books.

"I'm proud of them," said 7-year-old Samuel Cook. "I bet they are really brave in the military."

Rachel Jackson, of Valparaiso wasn't able to muster a lot of excitement about the holidays this recession year. According to the 27-year-old wife and mother, the financial outlook is downright discouraging.

"This year I've been feeling really hopeless," said Rachel. "We've had car issues, loans and consolidated payments. It seems like we've always struggled financially, but this year seems extra tough."

The year has been so difficult for the Jackson family that they had to accept financial help from another couple through their church.

Rachel's family is just one of many feeling the pinch of the struggling U.S. economy this season.

According to Capt. John Edmonds, commanding officer of the Salvation Army branch serving Okaloosa and Walton counties, there has been an increase of 20 percent in the number of families serviced by the charity.

"We helped 360 families this year, and barely over 300 last year," Edmonds said. "We've handed out food boxes, and coats donated by the United Way. We had a company give us MREs, and we handed

ATM card skimmer targets area residents

Device records card number; camera shoots PIN

When Beverly Flynt tried to use her ATM card Dec. 18 at Bank of America in Bluewater Bay, the machine's screen told her she had exceeded her daily withdrawal limit.

Problem was, she hadn't used the card since Dec. 7.

After Flynt, of Lake Pippin, reported the problem to the bank, she was told thieves had drained $1,800 from her account by two $900 ATM withdrawals in Jacksonville Dec. 18.

Another customer of the branch also lost $1,800.

The Bluewater branch is one of three Bank of America offices in Okaloosa County reporting thefts from customer accounts by thieves using automated teller machine "card skimmers," illegal high-tech devices mounted on ATMs to steal card information and PINs.

Also reporting card skimming thefts were Bank of America branches in Fort Walton Beach and Shalimar.

Another bank, Peoples National Bank, headquartered in Niceville, also reported thefts, although bank officials would not confirm whether it was a skimming crime.

People's National detected the fraud within a day or two and quickly decided to cancel all customers' ATM cards and give them new ones, said Debbie Dye, chairman of the bank. She said about 2,000 customers were affected.

Dye said the bank was able to limit its losses to about $2,000.

The bank replaced any money fraudulently taken from customers' accounts, Dye said.

Michele Nicholson, sheriff's spokeswoman, said at least three dozen citizens have had money stolen out of their bank accounts as a result of the Fort Walton Beach scam alone. That number is expected to grow. She said losses at the three Bank of America branches were in the tens of thousands of dollars.

Lt. Randy Sallee said Niceville police received about half a dozen complaints from Bank of America customers who lost money due to

Public school enrollment numbers still dwindling

By Stacie Morgan
Staff Writer

School enrollment in Okaloosa County has declined steadily in the last four years—from a high of 31,059 in 2005 down to this year's number of 29,123, a difference of 1,860 students.

Alexis Tibbetts, superintendent of schools, said the decline cannot be blamed on one cause.

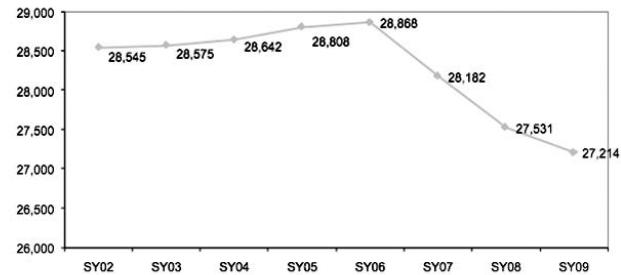

"There's no one pat definition for it," she said. "And it's not just our county; the entire state of Florida's enrollment numbers are declining."

Tibbetts said the downturn could be attributed to a combination of "hurricanes, housing and insurance rates and an aging population." She explained that though school enrollment numbers may be down that's not necessarily the case for county population.

"People continue to move here," she said, "but statistics are showing our area is increasingly becoming a retirement location."

Melissa Neal, associate director of the Haas Center for Business Research, attested to

2002 – 2009 Enrollment Okaloosa County School District

Okaloosa County School District dren. We're getting less working-class families with children."

The population of Okaloosa County seems to be shifting to the north, said Tibbetts, where home and property prices are more affordable and plentiful. This is evidenced by the school district's figures showing declining enrollment in the Niceville and Fort Walton Beach areas, and an increase for Crestview schools.

Enrollments in Crestview have been increasing since 2002—from 6,203 to this year's 7,136. But Niceville's numbers declined, from 6,809 to 6,560, as did Fort Walton Beach numbers, from 11,971 to this year's 10,304.

Enrollment numbers in Okaloosa County are also directly affected by military personnel coming and going from Hurlburt Field and Eglin Air Force Base.

According to information from the Haas Center an estimated 401 school-age children with military parents will leave Okaloosa County by the end of next year, mostly due to the 33rd Fighter Wing drawdown. More children will begin coming into the area in 2010 but not in larger numbers until 2011, due to the beddown of the F-35 Joint Strike Fighters as well as the Army's 7th Special Forces.

An Eglin Air Force base spokesperson said they do not track dependent numbers but said approximately 1,280 military personnel will be filtering out of the area, through next summer, due to the drawdown.

Hiring deadline for civilians cut to 45 days

AF Personnel Center

To increase the efficiency in filling civilian vacancies, effective New Year's Day, selecting officials will have 45 days instead of 90 to choose the best-qualified candidate.

"We continue to refine the civilian hiring process where we can to speed up the hiring action," said Maj. Gen. K.C. McClain, Air Force Personnel Center commander.

Under current policy, managers have 90 days to make a selection once they receive a list of candidates. The 90-day rule was put in place in June 2007 to ease the transition into the National Security Personnel System. A review of policy showed managers were more comfortable with the system and could make the decision in 45 days or less.

County makes evacuation return easier

By Mike Griffith

Correspondent

Returning to the Twin Cities area after a hurricane, flood, or other disaster should not be as difficult as it has in the past, said Okaloosa Sheriff's Office spokesman Mike Coup during the Dec. 18 meeting of the Okaloosa County Emergency Management Committee.

Coup said the Sheriff's Office has learned some important lessons during previous hurricanes such as Opal, Dennis and Ivan, about how to maintain public order and safety.

ty while still allowing evacuees to return to their homes and businesses as quickly as possible after a disaster.

In the past, Coup said, the prevailing philosophy was to restrict access to damaged areas until initial recovery actions such as search and rescue and restoration of electric power and other utilities was well under way or complete.

However, he said, that proved impractical, and the current policy is to allow residents and business employees who live and work in damaged areas to return as soon as it is physically safe for them to do so, while still maintaining order and controlling entry to some areas by using entry checkpoints.

For public safety officials,

Coup said, the county is issuing ID badges to such people as public safety workers and members of Community Emergency Response Teams (CERT), so they will not be delayed at checkpoints as they attempt to do their jobs.

Coup said the Sheriff's officers of guard units, but the complete word has not always filtered down to individual guardsmen helping to secure damaged areas.

Coup said another aid to communication is the new radio equipment recently issued to county officials, which allows them access to more radio channels than in the past.

"Now, all agencies can talk to each other on the same radio," he said, which speeds messages and helps prevent misunderstandings.

Restricting access will be done only for those areas most seriously damaged, said Coup. For example, he said, areas along the Gulf of Mexico coastline, which are subject to the most severe

The current policy is to allow residents and business employees who live and work in damaged areas to return as soon as it is physically safe for them to do so.

Office has also learned how to better coordinate plans and policies with the National Guard. In the past, he said, county officials have communicated such things to command-money in the defrauded customers' accounts.

Britney Sheehan, a spokesman for Bank of America, said that under bank policy, customers stung by card-skimming thieves are not responsible for any unauthorized activity in their accounts—as long as they report any suspicious or fraudulent activity within a "reasonable" time, usually within 30 to 60 days.

Sheehan said the best protection for bank customers is to diligently monitor account activity and notify the bank immediately if they detect any fraudulent or suspicious activity.

The bank declined to divulge how many customers were victimized, nor would it say how much money was stolen.

Wolfe said he got his money back Dec. 18 and was testing his new ATM card the next day.

fraudulent ATM withdrawals.

On Dec. 16, sheriff's deputies went to the Bluewater Bay branch of Bank of America after an ATM repair technician reported signs of tampering consistent with a card skimmer having been attached to machine. The skimmer was gone, but marks remained.

According to documents cited by the Sheriff's Office, here's how ATM skimmers work:

"The equipment used to capture your ATM card number and PIN is cleverly disguised to look like normal ATM equipment. A 'skimmer' is mounted to the front of the normal ATM card slot that reads the ATM card number and transmits it to the criminals sitting in a nearby car."

"At the same time, a wireless camera is disguised to look like a leaflet holder and is mounted in a position to view ATM PIN entries."

"The thieves copy the cards and use the PIN numbers to withdraw thousands from many accounts in a very short time directly from the bank ATM."

Such devices have also been used on gasoline pumps.

In the Fort Walton Beach Bank of America ATM incident, sheriff's investigators say the thieves apparently put a card reader on the teller machine overnight and removed it before the bank opened.

Another victim of the Bluewater Bay bank scam, Shuey Wolfe, gave an indication of the sophistication and scope of the skimming scheme. Wolfe, of Bluewater Bay, said he last used the Bluewater ATM machine Dec. 6. Investigators told him his bank card information—his stolen PIN number—was "tested" by thieves in Texas Dec. 16, probably to confirm that the stolen PIN number would work. The actual ATM cash withdrawals were made a short time later when thieves made a total of six cash withdrawals from three different Jacksonville ATM machines Dec. 16-17.

The fraudulent withdrawals, which ranged from $100 to $700, totaled $1,800, Wolfe said. Bank of America called Wolfe's home as soon as it noticed the suspicious activity, but he wasn't home.

Nicholson said Bank of America is replacing the stolen storm surge, may be closed for some time after a storm, but the Niceville/Valparaiso area is less likely to suffer such damage and will probably be open immediately after a storm.

Coup and Okaloosa County Public Safety Director Dino Villani said the best way to determine when it is safe and permissible to return will be by checking the county Web sites, okaloosaf.com, or co.okaloosa.fl.us. The Web site will contain maps and other information showing which neighborhoods are closed or open, where utilities have been restored, and where gasoline, ice, food, and other supplies are available, along with other useful information. If people cannot access the Internet while evacuated, they can also phone 651-7150 for information.

those out. And then there were the 800 children helped through the Angel Tree program."

The Jackson family, consisting of Cameron, 24, a petty officer second class studying at the Navy Explosive Ordnance Disposal school, Rachel, Faith, 6, Hailee, 6 months, and their dog, Snickers, spent last Christmas in Texas with Rachel's parents, with whom they were living.

"We've always had a financial plan" said Rachel, who works part-time at Wee School, a day care associated with First Baptist Church, Niceville. "But something big and unforeseen always comes along."

According to the financial counseling office of Eglin Air Force Base, 455 military members came in for counseling in 2008. Some 721 clients received assistance from the Air Force Aid association, said Eglin public affairs.

"It's really humbling to receive money from your church," Rachel said. "It's hard to believe that people care that much—that they can care enough to give money to someone they might not even know. We wouldn't have been able to get a Christmas tree if we hadn't received money from church."

Though Cameron is grateful for the help from an anonymous donor, arranged by First Baptist Church, he said accepting money was hard on his pride. "It makes me feel really crappy," he said with blunt honesty. "It makes me feel like I'm not doing my job as a provider," though he was quick to say that no one has implied any such a thing. "This is the first time anyone has ever given us money."

While Rachel and Cameron

have tried not to let their daughter Faith know the extent of their financial woes, the 6-year-old is nonetheless aware that Mom and Dad appear anxious.

"She knows we don't have the money for a lot of things," said Rachel. "I have to tell her all the time that we can't get this or we can't get that. She's heard Cameron and I discussing things, and there have been many times she runs to her room and comes back out with her bank. 'Here Mommy. You can have the money in my piggy bank,' she says. So she knows things aren't right."

"I knew things were getting tough," said Cameron, "but until I had to actually work with the numbers I don't think I realized how high the price of food had gotten or how much we were spending on gas, or repairs or electricity. I used to get irritated when Rachel would say we didn't have enough for something."

Said Rachel, "Sometimes I feel like I can't take it anymore. But when it gets like that, something comes along—like these people who were looking specifically for a military family to help—and you get blessed at a moment when you least expect it."

Tax volunteers needed

By 1st Lt. Hugh Dubose

Judge Advocate Center

Tax volunteers are needed to ensure the Team Eglin Tax Center can provide free tax services to the Eglin military community. The tax center completes and e-files tax returns free of charge for all active duty military personnel, reservists, National Guard members, civil service employees, retired members and military dependents.

Volunteering at the Team Eglin Tax Center is a great opportunity for you to provide a valuable service to the military community. Any active duty military member, reservist, National Guard member, civil service employee, retired member or military dependent with access to the base may be a tax volunteer.

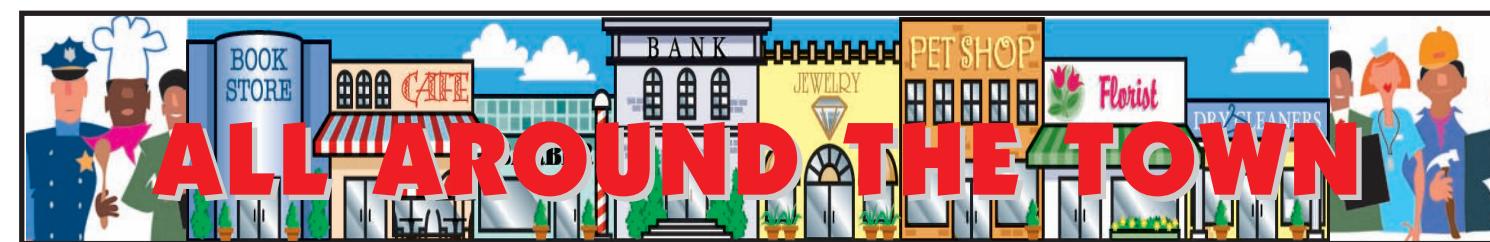

Tax center volunteers receive instruction and training, as well as all certification materials necessary to prepare tax returns. There are five two-day classes available, with the first training starting Jan. 5. Volunteers will be accepted through Jan. 13 for the last training class, which will be conducted Jan. 15-16.

The tax center also needs volunteers to manage the reception desk. These volunteers are critical for the smooth operation of the tax center. This job requires no previous experience or formal training. Duties include making appointments, checking in clients, and filing. Volunteers for this position will be accepted at any time.

Tax center shifts are four hours long, once a week, Jan. 20 to April 15. Last year, Team Eglin volunteers prepared nearly 3,000 returns, saving our members nearly $500,000 in filing fees and $4.6 million in refunds.

To volunteer or for more information, e-mail Susan Reaves at susan.reaves@eglin.af.mil.

show its support in any way it could. The security forces airmen preparing to deploy with the holiday season right around the corner welcomed the farewell opportunity since their families could not be there.

"We think it's an honor to come out and see the troops off," said Cook. "Security forces calls us every other week, bless their hearts."

Master Sgt. Shane Murray, 36th Security Forces Squadron, Anderson AFB, Guam, appreciates the outward show of appreciation during events like this. He thinks the airmen deserve to know that they are appreciated.

"It's very cool," he said. "These guys put in a lot of hard work to deploy."

The work begins at the training sites before they deploy. Not all the airmen attended the Air Force Materiel Command sponsored training Brave Defender, though they all went through similar types of training that prepares security forces members for success in the field.

The training at Eglin, conducted by 96th Ground Combat Training Squadron, provides combat skills for AFMC and Air Force Special Operations Command security forces airmen. When they arrive, trainees split up into five distinctive tracks: headquarters, leadership, force protection technology, communications specialist and designated marksman.

"This course is designed to give security forces the decision-making tools and up-to-date techniques needed to succeed in a fluid, fast-paced combat environment," said Tech. Sgt. Howard Stahl, 96th GCTS.

Once each airman has gone through the necessary training in the classroom and field, he applies what he learned in a joint exercise. The field training exercise tests students' courage in an austere environment.

"Training is training," said Airman 1st Class Stephen Hanks, Offutt AFB, Neb. "It prepares us for some of the things we are up against."

To provide realism, the exercise covers the entire area of operation. This requires students to look beyond the tactical base perimeter and factor in the entire battle space.

They must prepare, manage, equip and support missions that range from convoys to reconnaissance and combat patrols. After four days of leading the battle, the headquarters students supervise the tear-down and pack-up of weapons and equipment as the entire student body prepares to graduate.

It's the training that prepares them to take on the challenges of the deployed environment. In the hours before they begin their journey, they appreciate the outpour of support from people not involved with the military. When they get home, they will most likely meet the same outpour of appreciation from an appreciative nation.

Correction

The submitted story in the Dec. 19-26 Flyer on traffic violations on Eglin contained several errors.

The base "zero tolerance" policy does not mandate a minimum seven-day driving privilege suspension for any traffic ticket. Illegally parking in a handicap space or using a cellular telephone without a hands-free device while operating a motor vehicle results in a 3-point violation.
