Carrabelle buys historic Moore House

By Lois Swoboda
Times Staff Writer

Amid controversy, the Carrabelle city commission voted unanimously last month to purchase the Moore House as an anchor to the historic district.

On Nov. 3, commissioners approved a contract to buy the 400 Marine Street home from owner James St. Clair Sr. for $200,000. The contract was signed by City Administrator Courtney Millender on Oct. 26, a week prior, contingent on an appraisal of the property.

In this case, flipping a house proved to be a good way to make a profit. On Oct. 12, St. Clair bought the house from Centennial Bank for $90,000.

The city's appraisal, prepared by Paul Hyatt of Northridge Appraisal, and received by Millender Nov. 17, valued the property at $218,000.

When the commissioners approved the purchase, the only available valuation of the property was an assessment of $366,000 from the Property Appraiser Doris Pendleton's office.

The purchase will be funded by proceeds from Carrabelle's Community Redevelopment Area (CRA). Under the CRA program, the value of real property in a district, in this case Carrabelle's waterfront and adjacent properties, is determined on a fixed date and becomes the "frozen tax base." The increase in total taxable property value between that base year and year two is called "the increment," with tax revenue deposited into the CRA's trust fund for use in redevelop-

Santa Claus arrived to a cheering crowd in Apalachicola Friday afternoon, and businesses reported excellent sales as the Christmas season formally got underway.

Santa was his usual jovial self when he arrived, but this year he had a new ride.

For many years, the old elf has arrived aboard the "Buddy's Boys" shrimp boat from Ward and Sons. But this year, Kevin Martina carried him to the eager crowd in Riverside Park aboard the "Irish Town II."

Anita Grove, director of the Apalachicola Bay Chamber of Commerce, said, based on the count of candy canes distributed to kiddies, about 400 youngsters perched on Santa's knee this year. Grove said this was about the same as last year.

The line was long but moved briskly, with Santa's visit lovingly arranged by volunteer Tom Loughridge.

The ladies of the Philaco Woman's Club were on hand to serve hot dogs, pastry and cocoa. As in the past, Pam Nobles' students beguiled the crowd with their annual dance performance.

In what is becoming a new tradition, both the city-owned Raney House and the state-owned Orman House were beautifully decorated and open late for tours, with costumed docents serving up wassail, wine and pastries.

City weighs poles fight

By Lois Swoboda
Times Staff Writer

Members of the Apalachicola city commission continued discussions Tuesday on whether to fight Progress Energy's plans to construct new transmission lines through downtown.

At an executive session in the city commission chambers, all five commissioners met with City Attorney Pat Floyd and Tom Daly, president of the Apalachicola Area Historical Society. The Society has championed the fight against the poles, which activists say will permanently detract from the historic and aesthetic character of the city and will detract tourism.

Fernandina Beach attorney Arthur "Buddy" Jacobs, who has been working on behalf of the historical society, said Tuesday that the group had not filed for an injunction to have the courts put a stop to the ongoing construction project. Jacobs, who was not present for Tuesday's executive session, said he was disappointed that Progress Energy Community Relations Manager Bobby Pickels had conveyed in a Nov. 22 letter to Apalachicola Mayor

Apalachicola to gain new pediatrician

By David Adlerstein
Times City Editor

Apalachicola will get its first pediatrician next month, a veteran physician from Dothan, Ala. He will work for the Sacred Heart Medical Group out of a downtown site the group is buying.

Dr. Robert A. Head is expected to begin seeing patients on Tuesday, Jan. 17, in the former GTeom building, at the corner of Avenue E and 4th Street.

"We're very excited to be able to provide pediatric services to Franklin County," said Paulina Pendarvis, physician and volunteer advocate for Sacred Heart Hospital on the Gulf. "It's nice to find a niche that needs to be filled."

Building owner Harry Arnold said a purchase agreement for the building is in the works, pending city approval of a plan to allow for the new owners to pave a portion of the alley to better facilitate traffic in and out of the site. Arnold said the new owners also plan to add three windows and an exit door to the brick building, which long served as the city's telephone company office.

DR. ROBERT HEAD

City Administrator Betty Taylor Webb said the city's engineer is reviewing plans to pave 120 feet of the alleyway between 4th and 5th streets. She said approval will likely be granted, provided a pervious material is used for paving and there are no adverse effects on adjoining property owners.

Head, who received a bachelor's degree from the University of Loyola in New Orleans in 1969, earned his medical degree in 1973 from the University of Mississippi. He completed his pediatric internship and residency at the University of Alabama School of Medicine, The Children's Hospital of Alabama, in 1976. # Bikers boost county Toy Project

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

After participating in the annual toy run for motorcyclists Nov. 19, Tony and Aimee Sapp, at right, Scott Overstreet and Al and Heidi London, at left, took time to visit the Three Servicemen Detail in Apalachicola. The Sapps, Overstreet and the Londons were among several dozen bikers who made the trip from Carrabelle to the botanical garden in Apalachicola to support the Franklin County Toy Project. Each participant donated $10 or a toy. The group was greeted by Toy Project volunteers who provided them with a fried chicken picnic. Jay Abbott and Clarice Powell organized this year's toy run. Beth Brinkley is the person coordinating the toy project.

a fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics, Head moved to Dothan in July 1976 to establish Southeastern Pediatric Associates.

Pendarvis said Head owns a home on St. George Island, and will oversee an office open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. She said the practice's owner, Sacred Heart Medical Group, is in the process of hiring an advanced registered nurse practitioner or a physician assistant for the office.

She also noted the medical group is considering an application to become certified as a Rural Health Clinic, a federal designation designed to improve access to primary care in underserved rural areas. Such clinics qualify for higher reimbursements from Medicare and Medicaid and are required to use a team approach of physicians and midlevel practitioners such as nurse practitioners, physician assistants and certified nurse midwives to provide services. Rules would require the clinic to be staffed at least 50 percent of the time with a midlevel practitioner and to provide outpatient primary care services and basic laboratory services.

decorated the houses and provided refreshments for an antebellum Christmas celebration," said Ranger Mike Kinnett.

Kinnett said around 200 people toured the house and botanical garden. The garden paths were lit up for the event and bedecked with red velvet and greenery.

This year, Orman House had some unexpected guests. Several descendants of the Orman family arrived bearing information and gifts.

Arlene Delleur, daughter of Iona Mary Andrews, who lived in the house until the 1990s, brought several antique ornaments for the Christmas tree along with pictures and an archive tracking the clan back to Switzerland in the 1500s. She cautioned Kinnett to take good care of the artifacts. "Spiritual powers run in our family," she told him. "I could make you uncomfortable."

Arlene's brother Paul Andrews also visited. Margaret Wadsmund, granddaughter of Iona Mary Andrews and daughter of Mary Iona Grubbs, the family historian, also brought pictures including an aerial photograph of Apalachicola, circa 1950 and a large photo of the "Second annual dinner of the collectors of customs of the U.S., 1914." Kinnett said he is trying to put together a collection of current family pictures as well as compile a family tree.

As always, Black Friday was a boon to downtown merchants. Amy Friedman, owner of the Green Door, said she had record sales.

A Big "Thank You" from the Camp Gordon Johnston WWII Museum

The "Salute to Veterans" Golf Tournament held at the St. Joseph Bay Golf Club was a fantastic experience for us. The hospitality and camaraderie shown by all the staff, players and veterans made us keenly aware how lucky and proud we are to be located in this area.

The Friday Silent Auction, the opening ceremony on Saturday with the color guard and talk by General Simmons, The tournament itself and following dinner were beyond our expectations. We especially wish to express our appreciation to the staff and Mrs. Van Treese for her expert handling of the Friday event.

A new column, devoted to veterans

By Williams Scott and Charles Elliott
Special to the Times

Welcome to the Veterans' Corner, a new recurring feature courtesy of the Apalachicola Times. This place is provided so that we of the Franklin County Veteran's Service Office can reach out and inform veterans and their families of current policy and upcoming changes to veteran's benefits.

The Veterans Service office came to be because Florida statutes established that counties can establish an office for the purpose to "aid and assist ... the veterans, male and female, who have served in the Armed Forces of the United States ... and their dependents, in presenting claims for and securing such compensation, hospitalization... and other benefits or privileges to which said veterans... are or may become entitled under any federal or state law or regulation by reason of their service in the Armed Forces of the United States" (FL Statutes - Title XX Veterans Section 292.05).

What we can do for you and your family is assist in navigating the rocks and shoals of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs policies and procedures. We are trained in the claims process and have the time and resources to assist you or your family in filing claims for benefits.

Future columns will inform you of specific benefits available to veterans and their families.

The Franklin Counties Veterans Service Office is located on the first floor, Room 103, of the Franklin County courthouse. We can be reached at 653-8096 Monday through Wednesday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Thursday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. On Thursday morning we are in Lanark Village and Carrabelle.

LETTER

Register now to vote in primary

I am sure you will recall that I have been active in the Franklin County Republican Committee for a number of years. As a result of my involvement with Republican activities, I receive a lot of telephone calls from local citizens.

Most recent calls concern the Republican Presidential Preference Primary Election to be held on Tuesday, Jan. 31, 2012, and specifically, how the caller can participate in this election. I advise my callers that they must be registered as a Republican to vote in this most important election and they must be registered as a Republican before Tuesday, Jan. 3, 2012.

I think most will agree that whomever the Republicans select will be the next President of the U.S. So, if one has a favorite Republican candidate and would like to see their candidate advance to the general election, be registered as a Republican before Jan. 3, 2012.

Thank you for sharing this information with your readers.

Sincerely,
Willie Norred

Christmas 2011: Birth of a new tradition

Editor's note: The following article has been circulating widely on the Internet, although there does not seem to be any one author to whom it can be attributed. It was brought to our attention by Pam Brownell, the county's director of emergency management. We offer it as food for thought this holiday season.

As the holidays approach, the giant Asian factories are kicking into high gear to provide Americans with monstrous piles of cheaply produced goods — merchandise that has been produced at the expense of American labor. This year will be different. This year Americans will give the gift of genuine concern for other Americans. There is no longer any excuse that, at gift giving time, nothing can be found that is produced by American hands.

It's time to think outside the box. Who says a gift needs to fit in a shirt box, wrapped in Chinese produced wrapping paper?

Everyone — yes, everyone — gets their hair cut. How about gift certificates from your local American hair salon or barber?

Gym membership? It's appropriate for all ages who are thinking about some health improvement.

Who wouldn't appreciate getting their car detailed? Small, American-owned detail shops and car washes would love to sell you a gift certificate or a book of gift certificates.

Are you one of those extravagant givers who think nothing of plunking down their Benjamins on a Chinese made flat-screen? Perhaps that grateful gift receiver would like his driveway sealed, or lawn mowed for the summer, or driveway plowed all winter, or games at the local golf course.

There are a bazillion owner-run restaurants, all offering gift certificates. If your intended isn't the fancy eatery sort, what about a half-dozen breakfasts at the local breakfast joint.

Remember, this isn't about big national chains — this is about supporting your hometown Americans with their financial lives on the line to keep their doors open.

How many people couldn't use an oil change for their car, truck or motorcycle, done at a shop run by the American working man?

Thinking about a heartfelt gift for mom? Mom would love the services of a local cleaning lady for a day.

My computer could use a tune-up, and I know I can find some young guy who is struggling to get his repair business up and running.

OK, you were looking for something more personal. Local crafts people spin their own wool and knit them into scarves. They make jewelry, and pottery and beautiful wooden boxes.

Plan your holiday outings at local, owner-operated restaurants and leave your server a nice tip. And, how about going out to see a play or concert at your hometown theatre? Musicians need love too, so find a venue showcasing local bands.

Honestly, do you really need to buy another 10,000 Chinese lights for the house? When you buy a $5 string of light, about 50 cents stays in the community. If you have those kinds of bucks to burn, leave the mailman, trash guy or babysitter a nice BIG tip.

You see, Christmas is no longer about draining American pockets so that China can build another glittering city. Christmas is now about caring about US, encouraging American small businesses to keep plugging away to follow their dreams. And, when we care about other Americans, we care about our communities, and the benefits come back to us in ways we couldn't imagine. This is the new American Christmas. Spread the Christmas cheer here.

Escape with four popular crime novelists

Some authors just catch my eye as the librarian. Well, that's not really true. Both of these authors, Richard Hawke and John Hart, were recommended by patrons, but they do show up on the same shelf in the adult fiction.

Richard Hawke's "Speak of the Devil" has been in the library for a few years, and has been joined by "Cold Day in Hell" and "House of Secrets." The first two feature a savvy, irreverent Fritz Malone, who falls into that beloved protagonist category of "noir P.I. and decent guy," according to Susan Isaacs, another New York City-based novelist (the library has eight of her books). Violence and suspense are the well-delivered fare.

These books sound very close to little-known but patron-popular author, Peter Spiegelman, whose books "Black Maps" and "Death's Little Helper" were great additions to the collection in years past. Spiegelman is reasonably unknown, but was recommended, and the books donated, by an avid reader from St. George Island. He has a new release, "Thick as Thieves," which I highly recommend. It just shows you don't have to read Lee Child or Michael Connelly exclusively.

Hawke's third and newest book is about a U.S. senator who gets in a little trouble — dead girl, ruined political career, the usual. In this political season, this might be a good read.

John Hart is the author of three bestsellers, "The King of Lies," "Down River" and "The Last Child." Hart is the only

THE LIBRARY
Cathy Greene

author to win the best novel Edgar Award for consecutive novels. A Southerner, Hart is geographically and culturally different from Hawke. "The King of Lies" takes place in a small, moneyed Southern town, where the patriarch is found murdered and the family secrets begin to surface.

"Down River," winner of a 2008 Edgar, takes place in Rowan County, North Carolina. Adam, having been hounded out of the only home he's ever known, returns to a town that does not welcome him back. Murders and complex characters create a very enjoyable read. This sounds like another Deep South author, Ace Atkins (the library has seven of his, including his new book "The Ranger").

In "The Last Child," 13-year-old Johnny experiences the disappearance of his twin sister, Alyssa. His search for her takes him to the dark side of town. No one else believes that Alyssa is still alive, but Johnny is certain she is.

Hart has been compared to Scott Turow (the library has 11 of his books) and Raymond Chandler (the library recently purchased two volumes of his best known writings).

These four authors, Hawke, Hart, Spiegelman and Atkins offer escapes to the big city or the country town, depending on your mood. Come by and check them out.

Florida diploma program honors veterans

Special to the Times

Florida veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War, who joined the military before completing high school, can obtain their high school diploma thanks to the Florida Veteran Diploma Program, sponsored by the Florida Department of Education in partnership with the Florida Department of Veterans' Affairs.

"As our nation pays homage to past and current members of the military, I am proud that we can recognize our distinguished military veterans by granting them a high school diploma," said Education Commissioner Gerard Robinson. "Our veterans have sacrificed so much for our freedoms, and this is but a small token of appreciation for their courage and sacrifice at a time when our country needed them."

"Florida is the most veteran-friendly state in the nation," said Mike Prendergast, executive director of the Florida Department of Veterans' Affairs. "As we honor Florida's more than 1.6 million veterans on Veterans Day, we salute the Department of Education for remembering the sacrifices of our wartime veterans through this worthwhile program."

Veterans who were honorably discharged, are current residents of Florida, were inducted into military service prior to completing graduation requirements and meet the additional criteria below are eligible for their high school diploma:

- World War II veterans must have started high school between 1937 and 1946, been scheduled to graduate from high school between 1941 and 1950 and were inducted into military service between Sept. 16, 1940, and Dec. 31, 1946.

- Korean Conflict veterans must have started high school between 1946 and 1950, scheduled to graduate from high school between 1950 and 1954 and were inducted into military service between June 27, 1950, and Jan. 31, 1955

- Vietnam War veterans must have been inducted into military service during the Vietnam Era between Feb. 28, 1961, through May 7, 1975.

The Departments of Education and Veterans' Affairs are available to assist veterans through the application process to obtain their diploma. ## All I want for Christmas ...

The Apalachicola and Carrabelle Times would like to extend a warm invitation to all elementary school children and their families to start working on "Letters to Santa," to be collected the week of Dec. 12-16 and published in our Dec. 22 issue. This need not be a required school assignment, although we welcome the assistance of teachers and staff. What we are looking for are letters from children, young and hopeful, who believe in Santa and want to express their feelings. Gifts are nice, but most importantly, what can Santa Claus do to make life wonderful next year for you and your family?

Any questions? Call us at 653-8868. A mailbox is at the Times office, 129 Commerce Street, to drop off your letters. Merry Christmas!

opment projects within the CRA district.

Carrabelle's CRA was created in 1992 and, in the past, has been used to build a dock and pavilion on Marine St. and landscape along U.S. Highway 98.

In a report distributed at the city's Nov. 3 meeting, Tamara Allen, organizer of the Carrabelle Waterfront Partnership, called the house the city's most historically significant structure and an important anchor for the historic district.

The hill the Moore House sits on is an ancient sand dune and was the site of the Seminole Fort, part of the Forbes Purchase made long before Florida became a state in 1845, Allen wrote.

The original house was first deeded in 1851 and the property was site of Carrabelle's only documented Civil War battle. The current house was built around 1900 and, according to Allen, is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. Her report said the house was later used as a signal tower by the National Weather Service and by the Coast Guard to fly weather flags to alert the population.

Because of its historical significance, Carrabelle has long hoped to purchase the property, which is mentioned in the city's 2008 vision and implementation plan.

At the Nov. 3 meeting, Allen said she and other volunteers would work diligently to acquire grants to renovate the house if the city purchased it.

Commissioner Cal Allen said the house was a potential source of revenue and could become a venue for weddings and small conferences. He envisioned it surrounded by a botanical garden and walking paths.

Although she later voted in favor of the purchase, Commissioner Brenda La Paz criticized the plan to buy the property, saying Seacrest Realty, Centennial Bank and St. Clair had worked together to sell the house to the city at an inflated price.

"It's scandalous and it's outrageous that the city of Carrabelle and this commission have been manipulated and pressured with time constraints by Centennial Bank, Seacrest Realty and Mr. St. Clair," she said. "Centennial Bank representatives have been aware for some time that the city of Carrabelle has been interested in this property."

La Paz pointed out that St. Clair owns the building leased by Janalyn Dowden for the Seacrest Realty's offices. She said that within a week of St. Clair's purchase, a representative of Seacrest Realty "began to pressure the city and commissioners into an overnight purchase of Moore House."

The contract for purchase specified the city had 21 days to inspect the house and approve the purchase. The commissioners met on day eight of this period.

"I think we should be allowed a little more time to investigate grant availability as well as private donations," La Paz said.

City Attorney Dan Hartman said since the city had a contract to buy the house, refusal to approve the purchase would be the equivalent of making a counteroffer.

David Butler, chairman of the city's economic development council, urged commissioners to approve the purchase. "If we let the contract expire at the 21 days, I would fully expect Mr. St. Clair to sell the property to the best and highest bidder," he said.

Commissioner Charlotte Schneider said she was first to learn St. Clair had bought the Moore House, and then approached him to ask what his plans were for it. He told her he intended to renovate it and live there. Schneider said she then asked St. Clair if he would consider selling the property to the city because of its historical significance, and said she did not believe St. Clair bought the property with the intent of reselling it.

At the Nov. 3 meeting, Mark Rocha, a home inspector, told commissioners the house had been vandalized and was in need of numerous repairs, including fixing holes in the roof and repairing cut wiring. He said it probably contained lead paint, that the windows and doors would need custom-made 7-foot replacements and the outside stairs leading to the house were unstable and dangerous.

On the positive side, Rocha said he found no active termite infestations, and interior damage was limited.

Not everyone at the meeting thought purchasing Moore House was a wise investment. Former City Commissioner Gathana Parmenas said completing renovations would be expensive.

"I'm no expert, but it looks to me like you will need $30,000 to $40,000 just to make it safe enough to keep boarded up," she said. "I don't know of any tenant who would want to rent it. This is a huge, long-term commitment."

Parmenas said there was more to consider than immediate repairs, including removal of lead paint that could cost $25,000. "The place is not insulated," she said. "I think you will need $250,000 in grants. You are running in the red. You've only got 1,200 people who live in town. We've all got to pay some of the heaviest taxes in the state."

"This could be a historic opportunity but it could also wind up being a white elephant if you don't get the grant money," she said.

She said, if the house was purchased, "the city will own another building for which it has no immediate use and, if it is fixed up, it's going to be in competition with private enterprise."

Carrabelle has now taken possession of the property following the Nov. 21 closing. Millender said utilities will not be turned on initially.

Van Johnson the company "must respectfully decline to further delay the project" to replace the transmission lines downtown. City commissioners had voted unanimously last month to ask Progress for a 90-day moratorium on the project in order to give both sides time to consider a plan to possibly bury the lines underground or re-route them away from downtown.

"At this time, the project is more than 60 percent complete with 21 of the 33 structures already replaced," wrote Pickels. "A delay of three months would result in demobilization and remobilization within our contracts, resulting in significantly higher costs to the project."

Jacobs said he thought the city's request "was quite reasonable and I'm hopeful that these people will see the wisdom of what the city asked them to do."

At a special meeting of the city commission Friday, Johnson called for the executive session to discuss the installation of transmission lines through the city behind closed doors.

Commissioners met at noon Friday to hear a plea from Daly to support an injunction against Progress that would temporarily block installation of the power poles. City Attorney Pat Floyd attended the special meeting via telephone.

About 70 Apalachicola residents were present, all echoing Daly's request for the city to support the planned injunction.

Daly told commissioners the most important breakthrough to date in the battle with Progress was a letter from the city to the company requesting the 90-day moratorium. Daly said he was disappointed Progress had refused to comply with the request.

Daly told commissioners he hoped the county commission and Tourist Development Council would offer support of the injunction too.

"Consider joining this injunction," he said. "Look at this thing factually and in the best interests of the city. We have friends out there and we have raised a significant amount of money in a fairly short time. We have money coming in from all over."

Lynn Wilson Spohrer,

owner of Coombs House Inn and long active in the restoration of several historic Apalachicola buildings, asked commissioners for support. She said that beyond their concerns over property values, protestors were standing up for a principle being lost across the country.

She said the poles would drive visitors away from Franklin County.

Spohrer suggested the lines intended for five poles running along Water Street be buried and the city given 30 years to pay for the change.

Only Commissioner Jimmy Elliot came out in strong support of the protestors. "As far as I'm concerned, I'm with you," he said, comparing the battle against Progress to the Alamo and the last stand of the 300 Spartans at Demopolis.

Commissioners Brenda Ash and Frank Cook spoke little during the meeting, and Commissioner Mitchell Bartlett was not present.

Daly insisted the city ran no risk by supporting the injunction.

"I don't know of any lawsuit with no risk," Floyd cautioned.

"Even if there are risks there are compelling reasons to take a risk," Daly replied.

Floyd said the Florida Public Service Commission makes the actual decision about where lines should be placed underground. He pointed out that a bond is normally required during an injunction and that the loser of a suit might be responsible for the winning attorney's fees.

Downtown property owner George Mahr suggested that since Apalachicola is a cultural asset, it was in the best interest of all Florida citizens to preserve it, and for that reason all Progress customers should share the burden of burying the lines.

Johnson asked Daly how it was possible that last year an attorney for the historical society said nothing could be done and a new attorney now insists there are grounds for an injunction.

Daly said Jacobs has taken more time to investigate the situation. "(There are) things done illegally and wrongfully that we have documentation," Daly said. "And we have documentation of health issues."

The mayor said "I don't want to rush into anything because only fools rush in. Today I haven't heard anything but a bunch of passion."

He suggested people vote on a referendum to impose a sales tax in order to pay for buried lines. Members of the audience responded there was no time for such a vote with new poles being erected daily.

"When I am sick, I go to my doctor," said Carrie Kienzle. "When I want a fine meal, I go to a restaurant. I get my chance to vote as a democracy every four years, and then I expect you to inform yourself and make a decision."

Elliott said he did not believe the general public was "aware of everything that went on with poles."

Following Tuesday's executive session, in which no formal action was taken, Johnson reiterated his support for burying the lines underground, as well as his questioning of the possible costs.

He said Progress has given the city a nonbinding quote that burying the lines would cost more than $15 million, more than 10 times the $1.3 million the company said was the cost of putting in the overhead lines.

Johnson said Progress has told the city that it would cost $200,000 to come up with a specified, guaranteed price for the underground lines, and the city would then have two months to come up with necessary funding.

"Let's focus on how to come up with the money, on how to make this happen," said Johnson. "At the end of the day that's what it's going to take to get those lines buried. Somebody's going to have to pay."

Fifty-four was the magic number at the Thanksgiving Dinner at Chillas Hall. We had a great afternoon! Lots of good food to go along with the turkey and dressing. Thanks to our faithful volunteers and those who brought dishes to share, and thanks to Cheryl for the turkeys. Some long-time friends of mine gave me some oysters, so I made my oyster dressing. Hope you can make it next year.

Good news! I finally got in touch with Arline Falin. She went to her son Tom's house for turkey and a visit. Arline said hello! Her assisted living home is just a mile from Tom and Diane. Bob Falin, on the other hand, is in an assisted living facility in Lake City. He, too, is as well as can be expected. Was sure good to talk to Arline.

Banning prayer led to moral decay

It's funny how certain things in life shed light on another particular situation. A few years ago, we had a missionary come to our church to teach a creation seminar. It was amazing to hear him teach on intelligent design, knowing that he was a converted atheist and evolutionist. He led us through a slide show of flowers, insects and animal life each possessing an intricate means of survival. Each species was so complex that it could not have possibly evolved through adaptation. He meticulously shed light on things that Darwinists would rather not know. Every time he presented a new species he would say, "Out of all the fossils that have been found, they all look amazingly the same as the ones that are recently decomposed." The one thing that converted him from evolutionism, he explained, was the "missing link."

YOUTH MATTERS
Scott and Pamela Shiver

Scientists have yet to find this vital piece that links the current and past species together to prove their theory.

Unlike evolution, it is easy to find the missing links to morality and trace them right back to its origin. In 1929, the beginning of the end occurred when television was first introduced to the world. Prior to the TV, families spent time together talking, listening to the radio or gathered around dad as he read from the Bible, the most common book in America for that time. From then to now, we can see each evolutionary change as it unfolds. Quality time that families once enjoyed together was replaced with sitcoms and dramas. Never before had we been exposed to the privacy of someone's home like the "Honeymooners," and at first, it was fascinating. With each passing year, Hollywood began to slowly desensitize us. Programs were censored for violence, profanity and nudity at first. Today, however, even the commercials are offensive. Kids can learn how to be disrespectful and rebellious just by watching afternoon programs in their own homes. Something intended for entertainment and information evolved into a seed of darkness.

Nevertheless, not all was lost because we still had God in our schools, at least until 1962. Remarkably, one woman and her lawyer changed the course of American history forever while good Christian folks that thought it could never happen stayed home. With prayer banned from the classroom, America was free to erode away, with each generation of students slowly forgetting it even existed. It has been said that "the philosophy of the classroom in one generation will be the philosophy of government in the next." The very first text book, "The Primer," was filled with scripture and designed to educate children to read so they could study their Bible. In less than 200 years, we evolved into a more sophisticated species that was no longer depended on our Creator.

The styles and methods of teaching in the '20s and '30s revolved around Godly manners and treating your neighbors as you would prefer to be treated. Today, demanding manners and discipline from a student can provoke an altercation with a parent. As prayer and correction were dismissed from the classrooms, we evolved to violence. The first reported school shooting was in Moses Lake, Wash., in 1996. Now we hear stories of elementary age students shooting their classmates and taking their own lives because they are victims of bullying.

Free expression has dealt self-control a bad card. The children that are raised with decent moral upbringing are strongly pressed to adapt to their surrounding. It is alarming to think that a generation of freethinkers is our future lawmakers and political leaders.

The American Civil Liberties Union began an all-out attack on our courthouses by systematically removing the Ten Commandments from the walls and steps. Through their removal from all public places, our country is abandoning its roots and sealing the fate of its future. Last year, at just the hint of a lawsuit, Franklin County removed public prayer from the football games, yet nobody has seemed to notice.

The missing link that we truly need to save our country from impending self-destruction is God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost! Scientists continue to look for the missing link to prove we all just exploded into being and then slowly evolved to where we are today. However, time or pages will not allow the presentation of all the missing links to the evolution of moral decay. You cannot argue with the evidence.

Service offers hope for those who grieve

On Sunday afternoon, Big Bend Hospice hosted the annual Service of Remembrance in Riverfront Park in Apalachicola, a service meant to bring hope to those who have lost a loved one. The Rev. Ed Lyon, hospice chaplain, led the service, with the Rev. Craig Hicks, of the Living Waters Assembly of God, and the Rev. Themo Patriotis, of the First United Methodist Church, also offering words of comfort. Music was provided by Steffi Tassos-Wohlsifer.

Once again, worshipers were invited to participate in the Remembrance with seashells. Shells are placed in a toy boat symbolizing hope in honor of "those who have filled our heart with good and happy memories." The ceremony closed with the Litany of Hope, reminding the gathering that "As those who know grief as well as hope, as those who know darkness as well as light, we offer thanks for the opportunity to remember the one we love. We draw strength in knowing that we are not alone on the journey of embracing life. We gain hope in learning how to continue to celebrate the life of the one we will love forever, for we have seen too many stars to let the dark overwhelm us."

Scouts honored at Legion banquet

By Lois Swoboda
Times Staff Writer

On November 17, members of Venture Crew and Boy Scout Troop 22 received merit badges and attended a banquet honoring area veterans.

About 50 people, many of them veterans, attended the banquet at American Legion Post 106 in Apalachicola.

Keynote speakers were American Legion

Post Commander and "temporary" troop leader Larry Hale, Jimmy Mosconis and Jim Lawlor, commander of the Lanark Village AMVETS Post.

Three members of the Girls Venture Crew - Kristina Boyd, Morgan Walker, and Brook Pittman - qualified for the Venturing Bronze Award.

Boy Scout badges for sailing, climbing, whitewater rafting and music were awarded to Thomas and Jackson Copley, Dylan Lance, Bryan Boyd, Cash Creamer, and Bryce Tobin.

Mikael Lewis was awarded his First Class rank along with badges for music and nature. Josue Shattuck received badges for climbing and whitewater rafting. Creamer and Tobin were also awarded merit badges for sports.

Hale said many of the scouts qualified for rock climbing and whitewater badges during a trip to North Carolina this summer. He expressed special pride in the Venture Scouts and joked that when he first heard girls would have to be admitted to his scouting program, he feared he would have to tie bells to the zippers on the tent flaps.

Hale praised the girls for their toughness, skill and motivation. He also spoke on the subject of veterans and the government's obligation to support them.

"If Washington doesn't want to take care of veterans, they need to stay out of these foreign conflicts and stop making them," he said.

This newly renovated vest pocket park with benches and a picnic pavilion has been named for Gene Sewell, the "reigning queen of Lanark Village." The park is located across the street from Chillias Hall and the Lanark Mall. ### BUDS N BUGS

Goldenrod

By Lois Swoboda
Times Staff Writer

Solidago, commonly called goldenrod, is a genus of about 100 species of flowering plants in the sunflower family (Asteraceae).

These beautiful yellow flowers have long been popular perennials in Europe but only found favor in New World gardens in the 1980s when wildflowers grew in popularity especially in butterfly gardens. Goldenrod can also be a good source of forage for honeybees.

Goldenrod, escaped from gardens, has become an invasive species in parts of Europe.

Goldenrod has been underappreciated as a garden flower partly because it is often wrongly accused of causing fall allergies. Actually, goldenrod's heavy sticky pollen is transferred from plant to plant by insects. It doesn't travel in the wind. Ragweed, a pale green flower, blooms at the same time as goldenrod and the two are frequently found together. It is the light, dry, windblown pollen of ragweed responsible for many fall allergies, but because people notice the showy blooms of goldenrod and ignore the inconspicuous ragweed flowers, they associate sniffles and sneezing with goldenrod.

In the Florida Panhandle, we have at least a dozen species of goldenrod and these often cross-pollinate, producing hybrids.

Goldenrod is one of the most popular state flowers; Kentucky, South Carolina and Nebraska all list goldenrod as their state emblem. It was also the state flower of Alabama until it was rejected in favor of the camellia. Goldenrod is the state herb of Delaware.

Dried goldenrod flowers and leaves, especially from sweet goldenrod (Solidago odorata) are used to make an anise-scented tea.

Indians used this tea to treat fever, colds and coughs, shock, tuberculosis and female obstructions. It was considered to be a stimulant and a tonic for nerves. The root was chewed to soothe a sore mouth.

Inventor Thomas Edison produced rubber from goldenrod foliage and the tires on the Model-T given to him by his friend Henry Ford were made of goldenrod rubber. Edison's selective breeding experiments produced a 12' plant that yielded as much as 12 percent rubber. During World War II the US government continued these experiments but the quality of the rubber produced was too poor for commercial use.

FISH REPORT SPONSORED BY

Freshwater

The Fisherman's Landing reports great catches of shellcracker still with some channel cat in the mix this past weekend. Sheep-head are still being caught in the river and into the Brothers. Good news is that the cold snap has triggered the crappie bite.

Inshore

Most of the trout are still small in St. Joe Bay, however, the bite should get better with the cold weather this week. The I.C.W. canal will soon become the hot spot in town as inshore species continue to migrate for the winter. Red fish are still being caught.

Surf

Last week the whiting bite started back up on St. Joe Beach and under the George Tapper bridge. Large pompano were caught as well, but not in good numbers. Larger red fish are in the surf and will eat just about anything now.

Seahawks hoopsters look for first win

By David Adlerstein
Times City Editor

A young, but scrappy, Seahawks varsity boys basketball team got its 2011-12 campaign underway last month with a comparatively inexperienced roster.

Coach Mike Sweatt's squad has just three seniors, with only shooting guard Chance Buffkin entering the season with much varsity playing time under his belt.

The other seniors, starting point guard A. J. Allen and Tresean Carr, both enter the season both enthusiastic and inexperienced. "He's got the quicks," said Sweatt of Allen, who has not played varsity ball before. "But it's kind of like starting again for him. He has to make the adjustment."

Power forward Rahkeim Pierce played junior varsity last year, but his fellow juniors, David Butler, Direek Farmer, Chase

Golden and Seth Rogers all come in with completely fresh faces to the varsity game.

Rounding out the roster are sophomores Holden Foley, Leonard Green and Dwayne Griggs, freshman Kelsey Jones and eighth grader Carza Harvey.

The Seahawks opened the regular season with a non-district game at John Paul II on Nov. 21, losing a close one 59-56. Down 32-26 at the half, and 47-39 after three quarters, the team outscored their opponents 17-12 in the final stanza but it wasn't enough to close the gap.

The team was led by Griggs with 15 points, including a solid 7-of-8 from the field. Green pulled down 14 rebounds.

In the team's home opener Nov. 22, the team fought hard from the start, hoping to secure for coach Sweatt a victory over the visiting Wakulla War Eagles, his alma mater and former coaching assignment.

But the visitors proved too much, winning 63-40, led by 27 points from Takia Knight.

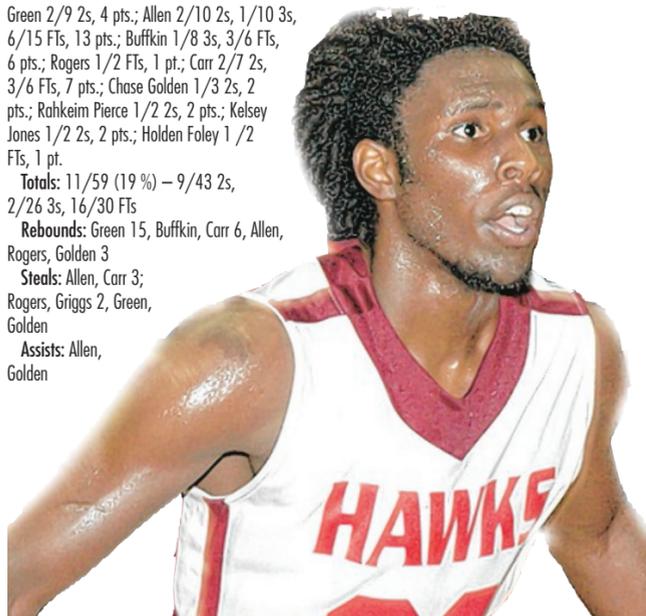

The Seahawks were paced by Allen's 13 points, and Green's 15 rebounds.
