Another A for ABC School

Charter school bucks statewide trend

By DAVID ADLERSTEIN
653-8894 | @ApalachTimes
dadlerstein@starfl.com

The Apalachicola Bay Charter School swam against the statewide current last week as it posted its second consecutive A grade, its fourth in the last five years.

The grade for the kindergarten through eighth grade school was achieved even as the number of A schools throughout the state dropped sharply, from 1,242 in 2012 to 760 last year. The number of A schools went from being 48 percent of the total number of schools to 29 percent, a decline of almost 20 percentage points.

"We were extremely proud that we maintained the A status and A ranking," Principal Chimene Johnson said. "I feel like it comes from the support of our volunteer board of directors, our students, our staff, our parents, who all focus on the mission of our school, to reach the child's social and academic potential.

"It was an outstanding effort. A lot of team effort went into play. We're very thrilled and excited for our students. Everyone is focused on the mission of our school."

The ABC School produced a total of 614 points, well above the minimum of 590 needed to earn an A. "It is comfortable, but there's always room for growth," Johnson said.

Because Franklin County High School is a combination kindergarten through 12th grade school, its grade is pending until December. As it stands now, the school has produced 504 points and will be assigned additional points for student participation

It was a perfect four-for-four for Franklin County High School junior Morgan Martin Saturday night, as she carried home the title of this year's Miss Florida Seafood.

The 16-year-old daughter of Henry and Teresa Ann Martin of Apalachicola won each of the four categories — Interview, Talent, Poise and Appearance, and Casual Wear — to win the prized tiara, especially significant because this year's pageant is the 50th anniversary of the state's oldest and largest maritime festival.

Aquaculture leases back on the table

State officials take cautious approach

By DAVID ADLERSTEIN
653-8894 | @ApalachTimes
dadlerstein@starfl.com

In a lengthy and detailed face-to-face meeting with local seafood industry leaders Monday afternoon, Florida aquaculture officials signaled they planned to take a cautious approach to opening up Apalachicola Bay to small oyster harvesting leases.

The meeting with members of the county's oyster recovery team, an ad hoc group hosted by University of Florida officials in the wake of the BP oil spill, drew a large audience at the Apalachicola Community Center at Battery Park.

The topic under discussion was a request set to go before Gov. Rick Scott and his cabinet to reactivate four aquaculture use zones (AUZs) that were part of a previously planned, but abandoned, aquaculture leasing project in the aftermath of Hurricane Elena in the late 1980s.

The proposal would allow the use of the full water column in all four lease areas, originally platted in February

Twice the rain leads to runoff woes

July has been a wet month. The average monthly rainfall for July is 7.3 inches, making it the wettest month of the year. Though the record of 18 inches set in 1984 was not broken, the county almost doubled the expected rainfall with more than 12 inches of rain.

Local residents with rain gauges anecdotally reported much higher amounts of rain in some areas of the county. Rod Gasche of Carrabelle, who watched both a digital and a traditional rain gauge, received almost 12 inches of rain between July 18 and 25.

Recorded rainfall exceeded an inch at Apalachicola Regional Airport on July 3, 4, 19 and 22.

1990 and surveyed in areas suitable for oyster cultivation. These included the Nine Mile AUZ of about 40 acres, the Four Mile AUZ of 44 acres, the St. George Island AUZ of 46 acres and the Highway 65 AUZ, comprising 72 acres.

The AUZs are set to be resurveyed to delineate two-acre parcels. Oyster farmers could be allowed to use the full water column by suspending oyster cages above the bottom away from predators and in the most nutrient-rich part of the water.

But Kal Knickerbocker, the newly appointed head of the aquaculture division of the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, told the audience the proposal would not be going before the cabinet on Aug. 6 as originally planned.

"It's pretty obvious we need to look at this more," he said. "It's not the intention to offer this up to replace oyster tonging."

"There's nothing set in stone," he stressed. "What we put out there is a starting point. There's a series of criteria we have to go through, looking at water quality, and we're concerned about sea grasses, all natural habitat. We have to deal with all the users, shrimpers, crabbers, recreational fishermen."

"There's not a lot of places that are going to work, and the industry can identify areas," Knickerbocker said.

The meeting opened with remarks by State Sen. Bill Montford, who made a brief appearance. He offered condolences to the family of drowned oysterman Brandon Creamer and praised the work ethic of the industry as well as elected officials.

"Ask tough questions, and don't leave anything unasked," he advised the large assortment of seafood industry players who were on hand. "We're at a critical point in this industry. The best way to address it is to get all the concerns out."

The meeting was chaired by Karl Havens, a University of Florida professor of fisheries and aquatic sciences who has been a key adviser to the oyster recovery team. He began by introducing Leslie Sturmer, a veteran extension agent who has been active in revitalizing the Cedar Key clam farming industry and was involved in the unfulfilled effort of 20 years ago to bring oyster harvesting to Franklin County.

Sturmer offered detailed answers to a series of questions on the science of oysters and how such farming might work here in Apalachicola Bay.

"We have a lot of history when it pertains to oyster aquaculture," she said. "There were a lot more wrongs, but that was 20-plus years ago. There's been an amazing amount of technology developed since, for intensive oyster cultures. Are they applicable here? It's all about can you make money.

"The product is directed for the more lucrative half-shell trade. It's got to be perfect to get that price. Those are the answers we don't know today."

She, Havens and Knickerbocker handled every question lobbed their way from the oyster recovery team, chaired by Chris Milender, with help from Shannon Hartsfield, both active with the Franklin County Seafood Workers Association.

Sturmer said a hatchery here to grow spat for oyster farming might be done, but only if the business grew here and elsewhere from its current comparatively small numbers.

"If there were a demand for oysters in Apalachicola Bay, I would expect the industry would consider it," she said. "Right today, only a few folks have asked for oysters' seed. We're going through a very high learning curve."

Knickerbocker said aquaculture regulators require that all seed stock has to come from brood stock that originated in Gulf waters, and rules are in place to ensure East Coast oysters are kept separate from those from the West Coast, to keep the genetics from being commingled.

He said the marketplace would set the standard for the farmed product, which would be regulated by FDOAC, and not the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission. Sizes smaller than the 3-inch minimum might be allowed, but the farmed product would have to be kept separate from the wild variety and would be subject to all the same rules concerning temperature, handling and the like.

Sturmer said the leases might be used for extensive shell planting. "It gives you an alternative to harvesting the wild bars," she said. "You can start managing your own stocks. You can become a lease holder. I understand these are scary times, but this might offer some opportunities down the line."

She noted that unlike the situation in the 1990s, when county commissioners eventually decided against granting leases in the bay, the state no longer grants county officials the right to veto a program in the state waters.

Commissioner Cheryl Sanders took issue with this. "I'm real concerned about this taking all the powers from local government," she said. "The local government, one or the other, is going to have a say in it."

Sanders also said she supported giving a preference to local residents when it comes to handing out the leases. The aquaculture regulators said rules have yet to be drafted but indicated all applicants would likely have to have an equal chance in securing a lease.

RAIN from page A1

Andy Lahr, a volunteer with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Tallahassee, said the wettest day was July 22 with more than 3 inches, which broke the previous July 22 record of 2½ inches set in 1963.

All this water caused problems across the county. During the first week of the month, rain caused Independence Day celebrations to be rescheduled in both Carrabelle and on St. George Island. And there has been a large number of days in which the bay has been closed to oyster harvesting because of concerns over runoff into the estuary waters.

On the bright side, housebound visitors flocked to local businesses, leading to a windfall for local merchants and restaurateurs.

On July 23, county road crews performed emergency repairs on Buck Road in Eastpoint, after the road washed out near the entry to Ridge Road, stranding homeowners. This is the third time the county has repaired the privately owned thoroughfare even though at the July 15 county meeting, attorney Michael Shuler told commissioners county crews could not legally work on the road.

On July 22, Carrabelle's SCADA (supervisory control and data acquisition) alarm system warned city hall that parts of the sewer system were being overwhelmed by the huge influx of water.

City Clerk Keisha Messer said the SCADA system reacts when pumps are running constantly or water pressure starts to drop. It notifies Messer, Water and Sewer Head Keith Mock and other employees of the water department by telephone that there is a problem.

Swimmers in the surf at Carrabelle Beach despite a sign warning beachgoers not to swim.

"Water and sewer crews worked round the clock from Monday until Thursday to try and keep the system running," Messer said. Parts of the city were briefly without service during that timeframe, but by Thursday afternoon all problems were resolved.

Because of the problems with the sewer system and flooding on Gray Avenue, The Nest summer youth program in Carrabelle was canceled for July 23 but reopened the following day.

On July 24, the county health department issued contamination advisories for both Carrabelle Beach and Alligator Point. Environmental health specialist Melissa Durkin said samples taken on July 22 showed unacceptable levels of fecal bacteria at both sites.

Carrabelle Beach had 118 colonies of enterococci per 100 ml of water, and Alligator Point had 106. The cutoff for safe exposure is 104 colonies per 100 ml of water.

Durkin said readings at all county sites were higher than normal on July 22. "We were surprised to see poor ratings because we haven't seen poor ratings recently," she said.

She said the contamination likely was caused by the heavy runoff and that samples taken while it is raining were "not ideal."

Durkin said the health department was following a protocol that determines when beach water will be sampled.

According to Durkin, the water will be resampled in two weeks. In the meantime, advisory signs are posted at the two beaches.

The advisory did not deter swimmers at Carrabelle Beach on July 27. About two dozen adults and children were frolicking in the surf, and many more were enjoying the sunshine.

FWC REPORT

Officers tackle oyster violations

Officers with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission handled net and oystering violations at the end of last month.

Resource Protection Service (RPS) Officers John Allen and Matt Gore received information that two individuals were fishing a seine net on the beachside of Bald Point State Park. When they arrived on the scene, they set up surveillance on two individuals who were fishing two nets, and were able to determine they were fishing with two monofilament gill nets. They observed the individuals working the nets pulling crabs and fish from the net. The two officers approached the individuals and identified themselves. Two monofilament nets were seized and the case was turned over to the State Attorney's Office for prosecution.

Officers Allen and Gore were on patrol in St. George Island State Park when they observed two individuals cast netting on the bay side of the park. Further surveillance revealed that one of the individuals fishing was a repeat resource offender, whose recreational and commercial fishing license is revoked for net fishing violations.

They continued surveillance and when the individuals quit fishing, the officers identified themselves and conducted a resource stop. The individual with the revoked license was in possession of a quantity of fish which included an undersized black drum. The subject was arrested and booked into the Franklin County Jail for fishing on a revoked saltwater products license and possession of an undersized black drum.

While on night patrol, Officers Allen and Gore observed a boat in the Eastpoint Channel operating without navigation lights. Surveillance was set up on the vessel. There were two occupants on board and the individuals were observed harvesting oysters off of exposed oyster bars in the channel, an area where harvesting is prohibited. The officers watched as the individuals harvested several bags of uncultured oysters, brought them back to the boat ramp and hid them.

When the boat returned back to the boat ramp with more oysters, the officers identified themselves to the boat operator and passenger. The operator of the boat took off running into the water, but Gore was able to apprehend him. Seven large bags of oysters were seized and returned back to the water alive.

The subjects on the boat were booked into the Franklin County Jail and charged with harvesting oysters in a prohibited area, harvesting oysters between sunset and sunrise and possession of uncultured oysters. One subject was charged with resisting a law enforcement officer without violence and possession of less than 20 grams of cannabis.

County residents invited to join historic cancer study

Special to The Times

Residents of Franklin County and nearby counties have an unprecedented opportunity to participate in a historic study that has the potential to change the face of cancer for future generations.

Men and women between the ages of 30 and 65 who have never been diagnosed with cancer are needed to participate in the American Cancer Society's Cancer Prevention Study-3 (CPS-3). CPS-3 will enroll a diverse population of up to half a million people across the United States and Puerto Rico. The opportunity for local residents to enroll in CPS-3 is being made possible in partnership with Bay Medical Center-Sacred Heart Health System and Gulf Coast Medical Center, on Oct. 17 and 18.

CPS-3 will help researchers better understand the lifestyle, environmental and genetic factors that cause or prevent cancer. "My mom is a two-time cancer survivor, and I'm doing all I can to make sure my children don't have to say that ... I really believe this (CPS-3) is part of the answer," said one study participant.

To enroll in the study, individuals will go to a local enrollment location and will be asked to read and sign an informed consent form; complete a brief survey; have their waist circumference measured; and give a small blood sample. The in-person enrollment process takes approximately 20 to 30 minutes to complete.

At home, individuals will complete a comprehensive survey packet that asks for information on lifestyle, behavioral, and other factors related to their health. Upon completion of this process, the society will continue to send periodic follow-up surveys to update participant information and annual newsletters with study updates and results. The initial and follow-up surveys completed at home will take an hour or less to complete and are expected to be sent every few years.

"Many individuals diagnosed with cancer struggle to answer the question, 'What caused my cancer?'" In many cases, we don't know the answer," said Alpa V. Patel, Ph.D., principal investigator of CPS-3. "CPS-3 will help us better understand what factors cause cancer, and once we know that, we can be better equipped to prevent cancer."

"Our previous cancer prevention studies have been instrumental in helping us identify some of the major factors that can affect cancer risk," he said. "CPS-3 holds the best hope of identifying new and emerging cancer risks, and we can only do this if members of the community are willing to become involved."

Researchers will use the data from CPS-3 to build on evidence from a series of American Cancer Society studies that began in the 1950s that collectively have involved millions of volunteer participants.

The Hammond-Horn Study and previous Cancer Prevention Studies (CPS-1 and CPS-2) have played a major role in understanding cancer prevention and risk, and have contributed significantly to the scientific basis and development of public health guidelines and recommendations. Those studies confirmed the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, demonstrated the link between larger waist size and increased death rates from cancer and other causes, and showed the considerable impact of air pollution on heart and lung conditions.

The current study, CPS-II, began in 1982 and is still ongoing. But changes in lifestyle and in the understanding of cancer in the more than two decades since its launch make it important to begin a new study.

The voluntary, long-term commitment by participants is what will produce benefits for decades to come. "Taking an hour or so every few years to fill out a survey – and potentially save someone from being diagnosed with cancer in the future – is a commitment that thousands of volunteer participants have already made. We're looking for more like-minded individuals in the Franklin County area to join this effort that we know will save lives and improve the outlook for future generations," said Patel.

For more information or to learn how to become involved with CPS-3, visit cancer.org/cps3, email cps3@cancer.org, or call toll-free 1-888-604-5888. To make an appointment to enroll at one of the Panama City event's locations visit cancer.org/cps3florida.

The Times wins 4 awards in state newspaper contest

Special to The Times

The Apalachicola and Carrabelle Times took home four awards in the 2012 Better Weekly Newspaper Contest when winners were announced at the 2013 Florida Press Association / Florida Society of News Editors' annual convention July 18-19 in Orlando.

All four awards were in Division C, which encompassed weekly newspapers throughout the state with a circulation of under 7,000. Judging of the Florida Press Association contest was completed by out-of-state industry executives.

Staff writer Lois Swoboda won second place in the Outdoor & Recreation category for "A whale of a fish tale," a feature about three Georgia fishermen who encountered a rare whale shark about 30 miles offshore of Franklin County.

City editor David

Adlerstein took home three awards. In the category of Health, Medical & Science, he won third place for "First step toward the moon," a story about how former high school teacher and Clerk of Courts Pal Rivers helped teach astronaut Neil Armstrong how to fly Navy jets.

Adlerstein won second place for Feature Photo for "High-wire act," an image of workmen stringing transmission lines on the new power poles across the Apalachicola River.

He won a first place award for Best Headline, for three entries. "Ladies in wading," about the Sports Illustrated swimsuit edition; "Residents call to throttle the bottle," about Carrabelle debating restrictions to alcohol sales; and "High hopes hang on hangar," about new construction at the Apalachicola Regional Airport.

Summer reading a great success

The Apalachicola Municipal Library and Project Impact's joint Summer Reading Program has just ended, and it was a great success. Each week - for three weeks in June and three weeks in July - joint staff read to the children at the two Project Impact sites, did crafts, and welcomed the children to the library to check out books.

The national theme for the summer was "Dig Into Reading" and along with crafts and activities designed around the theme, a number of new books were purchased through a grant from the Libri Foundation (see May 30, 2013 Times).

Weekly themes included Gardening, Trucks, Underwater and Underground Animals, Pirates and Buried Treasure, the Earth and Geology, and finally Explorers, Archaeology and History.

Almost 700 crafts were created including felt strawberry puppets, articulated truck puppets, rainbow fish, treasure ships, dinosaur bone paintings, solar systems and lighthouses, by the Kindergarten through second grade groups. Grades third and up made vegetable block print scarves, painted wooden snakes, gold and silver treasure coins, and pressed fossils.

For the final week, the older kids filled their own individual time capsules. These capsules are a miniature version of the city of Apalachicola time capsule which will be sealed at the opening ceremonies of the 50th Florida Seafood Festival. This large time capsule is part of the statewide celebration of VIVA 500, commemorating the arrival of Ponce de Leon to the St. Augustine area 500 years ago. Apalachicola's time capsule will be opened at the 100th Florida Seafood Festival, in the year 2063. Citizens who would like to offer materials for inclusion should see Janelle Paul at City Hall.

At the library hundreds of books were checked out, and "patrons" learned the importance of returning their books so they could check out more. There are still a few out, so if your child was at Project Impact this summer, please be sure to check if they have library books still at home.

The Apalachicola Municipal Library thanks the city's street department for providing earth-moving equipment, and an enormous thanks to Project Impact's Faye Johnson, Kati-Morgan Hathcock, Barbara Lewis and Danielle Layne, and PALS (Dosik Fund) for all their support and help.

Since a picture is worth a thousand words, here are just a few of the fun we had.

QUEEN from page A1

She also was selected Miss Congeniality by the four other contestants. This earned her a $50 gift, courtesy of Karen Pette-way Cumbie, the 1983 Miss Florida Seafood, which she donated in honor of this year's golden anniversary.

Selected as runner-up was Franklin County High School senior Samantha Shiver, the 17-year-old daughter of Tony and Joann Shiver of St. George Island. Shiver was named as runner-up in the interview portion of the competition.

Runner-up in the talent portion went to Franklin County High School senior Savannah Cook, 17, daughter of Duane and Amy Cook of Eastpoint.

Runner-up in the poise and appearance portion was Franklin County High School junior Aaliyah West, the 15-year-old daughter of Melissa and Nancy West of Apalachicola.

Runner-up in the casual wear portion was Franklin County High School senior Ashley Carroll, 17, daughter of Tracey and Link Carroll of Eastpoint.

The pageant, which drew a modest audience at Franklin County High School, was emceed by Ginger Coulter, the finance director of the sheriff's office, and the 2012 Miss Florida Seafood Christina Collins.

"Weeks of preparation and hard work have led up to this night's event, and we are so proud of each one of these girls," Coulter said. "It takes a lot of courage to get up on this stage and perform as well as each of these young ladies do tonight."

The five entrants opened the pageant with an appearance in casual wear, a portion of the competition that has replaced the physical fitness category.

The young women were then each introduced, with details about their hobbies, interests, ambitions and the person they most admire.

Cook wrote that her ambition in life is to pay service to society and reach out to help others in the profession of nursing. Later, in the portion in which Festival President John Solomon asked them each a question, Cook said visitors should attend the festival "to experience our character here and to experience some of the world's finest seafood."

Cook said she most admires her mother, who is her best friend in life because "she has a heart of gold, giving love to others that cannot be bought or sold. Her mother is always there to listen and help her through anything, and without her she doesn't know where she would be."

Sponsored by Coastal New and Used Furniture, Cook sang "I Was Here," the hit song made famous by Beyonce, in the talent portion of the completion.

Shiver wrote in her intro that her ambition is "to graduate college, set foot on all continents and start a career as a psychologist."

DAVID ADLERSTEIN | The Times

She told Solomon her favorite memory of the festival came when she was 5 years old, and she strolled the festival in a cheerleading outfit, eating candy and enjoying all the rides with her mother and father.

Shiver said she most admires her grandmother Veronica Armistead. "She was hardworking and in her 90s, managed several businesses daily. Despite her busy schedule, she would still make time to have tea parties, play card games and watch movies together. Her grandmother had a strong impact on her and taught her to be strong, always smile and though she is small, to stand like she was the tallest person in the room."

For her talent, Shiver delivered a humorous monologue titled "No Talent." She was sponsored by the Armistead Companies.

Carroll wrote that her ambition is to be a traveling doctor, helping ones in need along her way. In becoming a nurse. She told Solomon the festival was scheduled to be held regularly on the first weekend of November because it came about before the boom in year-round tourism in the county and was intended to bring a large amount of visitors here during a slow time of the year.

Carroll said she most admires her mother in life. "Her strength is unbreakable during hard times, and she is extremely determined to accomplish her goals. She admires her open mind, compassion and sense of understanding. She is always there to support her in anything she undertakes."

Sponsored by Lynn's Quality Oysters, Carroll in the talent portion sang "Heads Carolina, Tails California," a song made famous by Jo Dee Messina.

West wrote that her ambition is to be a traveling doctor, helping ones in need along her way. In her response to Solomon's question, she said becoming queen would mean she "would be able to put my input on my family's legacy and be able to help a great number of people in the industry where we live."

Sponsored by Apalachicola Commissioner Brenda Ash, West did a dramatic reading of Maya Angelou's poem "And Still I Rise" during the talent portion.

Martin said her ambition to become an actress and perform on Broadway and in movies, and to minor in business in college. She described to the audience, during the questions, that King Retsyo's name is the word "oyster" spelled backward and that he is the son of Neptune, who protects natural resources as well as the wonderful seafood industry.

Sponsored by the Gulf Coast Workforce of Apalachicola, Martin did an expressive dance called "The Prayer" for her talent.

As a break in the pageant, five former queens — Carline Medley (1976), Melissa Bloodworth (1977), Suzanne Hill (1979), Link McWhinnie (1989) and Donna Dasher (1991) — appeared on stage for a dance number. Also as an interlude, a handful of tiny dances from Pam Nobles Studios performed on stage. Nobles also choreographed the pageant contestants' dance numbers, beginning with "Edge of Glory" that opened the evening.

The three-judge panel who decided on the winners included Heather Schimek, from Tallahassee, a mother of four who is the reigning Mrs. National Southern Miss Queen; Paige Ingram, an Alabama resident who has been judging and directing pageants for the past two years; and Caron Myers, the former Caron Spikes who grew up in Apalachicola.

Myers earned her degree from Florida State University and has worked as a television reporter. After she and her husband, Danny, a nationally syndicated radio host, lost their daughter to childhood leukemia, Myers helped to start the National Bone Marrow Transplant Registry with Congressman C.W. Young, of St. Petersburg.

Myers' father, Billy Spokes, the first chairman of the festival, was on hand to enjoy the festivities and will serve as grand marshal of the Nov. 3 festival parade. That night will feature country music sensation Kellie Pickler as the headliner.

The evening featured the rollout of new 50th anniversary T-shirts, which are now on sale, along with DVDs of the pageant. In addition to Solomon, serving on the all-volunteer board are Vice President Tress Anderson, Secretary Andrea Register, Treasurer and Pageant Director Jennifer Brown, and board members Kevin Ward, Danny Gay, Ted Mosteller, Michael Shuler, Carl Whalley, R.J. Shelley, Danielle Layne and Pam Brownell.

in accelerated curricular, performance in accelerated curricular, graduation rates and college readiness in reading and math.

"Growth in learning this year has exceeded levels from last year," Superintendent Nina Marks said.

Last year, the school earned a C grade. Earlier this month, the state board of education adopted Commissioner Tony Bennett's recommendation to prevent any school grade from dropping more than one letter grade in one year in order to transition to the more rigorous Common Core State Standards.

Marks said Bennett spoke to superintendents last week to reinforce the "safety net" provision he had requested on behalf of the superintendents. Bennett said the provision, supported by the board, is in place for superintendents "to maintain the integrity of the system" as Florida moves toward transitioning to Common Core. Bennett also said that 2014-15 will most likely produce another decline in grades, indicative of maintaining higher standards, higher levels of expectation and the rigor of assessments.

"Everyone working in the Franklin County School District system should understand that our primary focus and decision-making process must be for benefit of all district children," Marks said. "We have a responsibility to make a difference in their lives. I believe students should be provided resources, enhancing their educational experiences. The job is never done until the life of a child is improved, confidence is evident, and future success is more secure."

Five new staffers to join ABC

Johnson said the ABC School's success has been because of a joint effort to evaluate the data generated by student performance and then involve students and parents in the ongoing process of tailoring the best approach.

"We have veteran teachers teaching the same subjects and grade levels. They are fine-tuning the curriculum to reach all our students," she said. "Students play an active part in their education. They take ownership of their data and their scores, and teachers have chats with students and parents about setting goals for them to reach."

"I feel that is one of the key factors that help our students to become more successful," said Johnson, now in her 29th year as an educator. "We evaluate the data that we have to look at and see where the areas are that we need to focus their attention."

Schools that receive an A grade are eligible to receive bonus funding that they decide how best to spend. Johnson said staff members, together with the School Advisory Council, will work out a plan that might include bonuses to employees, or an investment in additional technology, or a combination of the two. The ABC School has used its A school bonus money for both purposes in years past.

Johnson said the school has hired five new teachers, to replace those who have left either to be stay-at-home moms or have moved away because of their spouse's employment or to be nearer to family.

First-grade teachers Lena Allen and Aani Carlton have left and will be replaced by Shelby McDonald, from Georgia, and Roxanne Ramsdell, from Wisconsin.

Fifth-grade teacher Brooke Linane, who Johnson said had helped produce excellent science scores, has moved and will be replaced by Leanne Poloronis, who is back fulltime in the classroom.

Dana Hicks also has moved, and she will be replaced in the pre-kindergarten classroom by Katy Sparks, from Atlanta.

To accommodate growth, the ABC School has added an additional third-grade classroom, and that will be taught by Jessi Ammons, an Apalachicola native, who has been teaching in the Orlando area.

In addition, Johnson said, two new members have been added to the volunteer board of directors that oversees the school. Parent Tina Messer has been added to the board, and Hank Kozlowsky has rejoined the board, which is chaired by Bud Hayes.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AQUACULTURE LEASE AREAS

NOTICE is hereby given pursuant to Section 253.70. Florida Statutes, that the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is proposing to submit an agenda item to the Board of Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund, requesting approval of four (4) areas of sovereignty submerged lands to be reestablished as Aquaculture Use Zones (hereafter "Zones") for the performance of oyster cultivation activities. If approved, these Zones would be subdivided into individual 2.0 acre (more or less) lease parcels, for preemption of the bottom and the entire overlying water column, and leased accordingly.

The following Zones are proposed to be reestablished:

- 1) Highway 65 (72 Acres), in St. George Sound;
- 2) St. George Island (46 Acres), in St. George Sound;
- 3) Four Mile (44 Acres) in St. Vincent Sound; and
- 4) Nine Mile (40 Acres), in St. Vincent Sound.

All four (4) Zones are located in Franklin County, Florida, and in the Apalachicola National Estuarine Research Reserve. Nine Mile and Four Mile Zones are located in the Apalachicola Bay Aquatic Preserve. A map identifying the locations and the limits of the proposed activities accompany this notice.

Anyone having any questions or comments regarding the proposed projects should file them in writing with the Division of Aquaculture, Magnolia Center, Suite 501, 1203 Governor's Square Boulevard, Tallahassee, Florida 32301, on or before 5:00 p.m. on the 24th day of August, 2013.

Patrick C. Smith completes basic training

Navy Seaman Recruit Patrick C. Smith, son of Darlene M. Martinez of Lanark Village and Glenn D. Smith of Pleasant View, Tenn., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Smith completed a variety of training that included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis also was placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations," an exercise that gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage and commitment. Its distinctly Navy flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a sailor.

Smith is a 2010 graduate of Sycamore High School of Pleasant View, Tenn.

Lanark Boat Club appreciates its volunteers

LANARK NEWS
Jim Welsh

Goodbye July! What a month, soggy and tearful. Don't forget now, we will have our monthly covered dish dinner in the church hall after 5 p.m. Mass at Sacred Heart of Jesus Catholic Church. So on Saturday bring your favorite dish to share and feed your soul and your body. The over-50 dance will be at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Franklin County Senior Citizens Center in Carrabelle. Bring your favorite snack, beverage, dancing shoes and your main squeeze and enjoy the evening. You bet Ron Vice will be on hand to provide the music. Cha, cha, cha! On Sunday, there will be coffee and munchies after the 7:30 a.m. Mass in the church hall. Enjoy! The board members of the Lanark Village Boat Club held an appreciation party for the volunteers that helped them at the pancake breakfast and with other things around the boat club. Good going guys! Keep your preparedness kit and evacuation plan handy in late August and in September; the hurricane season really gets cranked up.

Be kind to one another, check in on the sick and the housebound and keep smiling. You may not feel any better but everyone else will wonder what you're up to. Until next time, God bless America, our troops and the poor, homeless and hungry.

Don Rogers

Donald Patton Rogers, 71, of Tallahassee, died on Wednesday, July 24, 2013, of pancreatic cancer. He was at home with his surviving spouse, Stephanie Schotting Rogers.

DON ROGERS

Don Rogers was born to Otis and Opal Rogers of Kenvir, Ky., on Sept. 17, 1941. He is survived by brothers Bob L. and Jerry Rogers, of Kentucky, and sister Barbara Rogers Asher, of Michigan; his children, Paul Rogers (Sylvia Pierce), of Michigan, Patricia Rogers Reed (Steve Reed), of Ohio, and Don Rogers Jr. (Tina Stone Rogers), of Virginia; three grandchildren, Robert and Christopher Rogers, of Virginia, and Steven Rogers, of Michigan; and two step-children Cole Carritz and Shannon Carritz Summerlin, of Tallahassee.

Don Rogers spent much time in Carrabelle, originally coming here for recreational fishing and boating, eventually purchasing a boat and a piece of land on Timber Island Road, where he built a dock to keep the boat.

He loved to fish, and his many friends in Carrabelle will remember him for his unflinching good humor, generosity and the rare ability to laugh at himself. While he loved good food, drink and company, at heart he was a hardworking man whose focus was primarily on his family.

It was on a weekend trip to Carrabelle that he met and fell in love with his surviving wife, Stephanie.

After their marriage, he built a second home on his Timber Island property, and it was to Carrabelle that the Rogers family continued to retreat for holidays and vacations, enjoying many sunny days, riding out a few storms and filling out years of love and happy memories.

Don Rogers will be missed and remembered fondly by all his Carrabelle friends.

Sangaree receives third pacemaker at 101

By LOIS SWOBODA
653-1819 | @ ApalachTimes
Lswoboda@starfl.com

Franklin County's oldest veteran is still going strong. At 101, World War II vet Dan Sangaree is still full of life.

On July 18, he received his third pacemaker at Bay Medical Center as an outpatient and the operation was a complete success. Sangaree said, after two days, he felt stronger and better. He said Ann Sizemore took him for a postoperative checkup on July 19, and he will not need to return to Panama City for an additional treatment.

At the age of 83, Sangaree received was the first person to have pacemaker implanted at Weems Memorial Hospital, on July 29, 1998, almost 18 years ago to the day. That one remained in place for less than two years and the second was installed Jan. 28, 2000 at Gulf Pines Hospital in Port Saint Joe.

Sangaree said after his latest surgery, his cardiologist, Dr. Basivi Baddingham, sent him his second pacemaker as a souvenir with a note congratulating him on its long period of service. "They said most pacemakers last only five or 10 years," said Sangaree.

Seated in his Apalachicola home, Sangaree talked about his current projects, pausing frequently to take telephone calls from friends.

Once known as the orchid man, he still has many flowering plants under cultivation and a beautiful bamboo orchid blooming on his covered patio.

"I have converted some tools to make it possible for me to work in the garden from my power chair," he said and demonstrated a rake, hoe and bulb auger fitted with long PVC handles.

He also recently designed and built a Rube Goldbergesque alarm to frighten crows away from his fig tree. A timer periodically triggers a stream of water to strike a tin dishpan, creating enough commotion to frighten the boldest bird.

Although he said much of his garden drowned in the recent deluge, he still had a few pet projects to show off. The ramp to his front door is camouflaged by a riot of butterfly weed, cosmos and other bright flowers mingled with cherry tomato vines. A papaya tree has volunteered in his yard near the venerable bay tree he has cultivated for decades, but his newest fascination is a climbing spinach vine with beautiful fuchsia stems and pink and purple berries.

"Try it! It's delicious," Sangaree said.

until. The sale will feature bedding, appliances, clothing for the entire family and much more, so come and check it out.

Evangelist Steege to minister at High Calling

The power of Pentecost has been diluted long enough! Let's set aside the counterfeits, imitations and substitutes, and ask the Lord to restore an old fashion move of God.

Evangelist Jason Steege will minister the Gospel at 7 p.m. Saturday and 4 at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at High Calling Church, 21 Island Drive, Eastpoint.

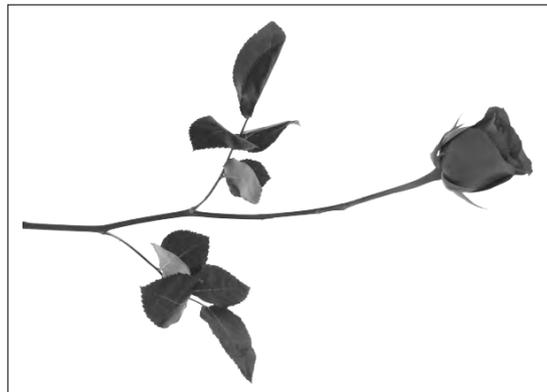

Join us Saturday night for a gospel concert where Christ will be exalted and the Holy Spirit will flow.

Sunday morning Brother Steege will minister in song and in the preaching of the Word.

You don't want to miss this opportunity. Chains will be broken, lives will be healed, and Christ will receive all the glory!

For more information call 850-320-0409 or visit www.highcallingchurch.org.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Austin Brandon Glass

July 17, 1989 - June 5, 2012

Bless us Lord as we pray; You took our Brandon home June 5, 2012. Please let him know as we have to say How much we love him every day. We miss his laugh, his smile, his thoughtful ways, His "I got this Mom, it will be OK." As we still mourn our loss of him, There is no more pain for him. That puts peace in our hearts. Lord, it's easier to say hello than it is to say goodbye. May he watch over all of his loved ones and friends who had to stay, Until we see him again some sweet day in Heaven. Happy birthday, my love, We all still love and miss you.

God bless,

Granny Mary Lou, Paw Paw King, Mama, family and friends

Bladderworts sophisticated carnivores

Utricularias (“you-trick-you-lay-ree-as”), commonly called bladderworts, are more than 200 species of carnivorous plants that grow on wetlands and in freshwater and are found virtually worldwide except for in Antarctica.

Some are cultivated for their exotic flowers, often compared to members of the pea family, snapdragons and orchids. Bladderwort flowers are usually bright yellow or occasionally white, pink or lavender and have two “lip-like” petals of about equal size. Flowers are on long stalks that emerge several inches above the water.

Bladderworts are rootless and have main stems from which lacy or scale-like leaves grow. Bladders are attached at regular intervals along the linear leaf segments.

All bladderworts are carnivorous and capture small organisms by means of bladder-like traps.

BUDDS ‘N’ BUGS
Lois Swoboda

Wetland species tend to have tiny traps that feed on microscopic organisms. Free-floating bladderworts usually have larger bladders and feed on larger prey like small worms, water fleas and even fish fry, mosquito larvae and young tadpoles.

Some bladderworts have passive traps but many have active traps similar to a Venus flytrap, only much smaller. The prey brush against trigger hairs connected to the trapdoor. When the trap is triggered by movement of its victim along with the water surrounding it, is sucked into the bladder. Once the bladder is full of water, the door closes. The whole process takes only a tiny fraction of a second. These bladder traps are recognized as one of the most sophisticated structures in the plant kingdom by botanists.

Dozens of bladderworts make their home in the United States and species are found in both Alaska and Hawaii. With 14 native species of bladderwort each, Florida and Rhode Island have the greatest variety of any state.

Seven Florida natives are commonly found floating in lakes and ditches. Four are native to our pine flatwoods.

One Florida native, humped bladderwort, is considered an invasive species of international concern in other parts of the world.

In traditional medicine, bladderwort was a remedy for urinary tract disorders including kidney stones and urinary tract infections, digestive spasms, fluid retention, and swelling. They were thought to stimulate the gallbladder and promote weight loss. Bladderwort was sometimes applied directly to the skin for burns and swelling.

For an online key to the bladderworts of Florida, visit www.dep.state.fl.us and search for bladderwort.

FISH REPORT SPONSORED BY

Inshore

Fishing has improved this week on the Forgotten Coast as the waters settle and things return to normal after all the rain. Good reports on flounder from Mexico Beach and Eagle harbor are the talk of the town. Scalloping is getting better and better this month as the shells are growing in size. Presnell’s channel and treasure bay areas are producing the most shells right now, and the numbers are great!

Offshore

Offshore fishing will be great this week with the return of amber jack on Aug 1. This will increase chances and make for a better trip, keeping both grouper and amberjack. Kingfish are still holding close to shore on the buoys and near shore wrecks, and with better weather, the bait should be back on the surface!

Sea Grant guide to estuary living available

“A Practical Guide to Estuary-Friendly Living” by Karl Havens, Gary Lytton and William Seaman is a new publication of the Florida Sea Grant Program. The 24-page publication can be viewed at www.flseagrant.org or purchased from Kindle or the iBookStore for 99 cents. This is the first all-electronic publication of Florida Sea Grant.

Goliath grouper survey results released

Goliath grouper numbers have grown, but scientists still don’t know how well the species has recovered.

Atlantic goliath grouper, part of the sea bass family, were overfished from the 1960s through the 1980s. In 1990, a harvest moratorium was put into place in U.S. waters. As the name suggests, the slow-moving fish can reach 800 pounds and more than 8 feet in length. They are found off Florida’s coasts, throughout the Caribbean and off West Africa.

The species’ recovery is good news for scuba tour guides who showcase the impressive fish during outings.

Some anglers who have had goliath grouper snatch their catch say the large fish might have bounced back too well.

Kai Lorenzen, a University of Florida fisheries professor, led a team of UF and Florida Sea Grant researchers that surveyed almost 6,000 stakeholders in the goliath grouper debate. They held a workshop to discuss the big fish and presented the findings to the Gulf of Mexico Fisheries Management Council.

Many commercial fishermen believe goliath grouper harm the environment by consuming huge amounts of fish. In addition, goliath interfere with fishing operations, and many commercial fishermen (43 percent of hook and line, 87 percent of spear fishermen) have had to change where and how they fish to avoid goliaths. More than 70 percent of commercial fishermen surveyed would like to see the goliath-harvesting moratorium lifted.

Most recreational anglers view goliath encounters as desirable, and only 19 percent feel that goliath are bad for the ecosystem. About half the recreational anglers surveyed would like to see the goliath fishery reopened. Most fishing charter captains say it will be good for business if anglers are allowed to catch some goliath.

Goliath are most popular with recreational non-fishing divers. Eighty-seven percent hope to see goliath when they dive, and 54 percent have undertaken dives specifically to view goliath. Dive charter operators benefit from this interest in goliath viewing. Non-fishing divers and dive charter operators strongly favor keeping goliath off-limits to fishing.

The survey team found broad support for limited harvest for scientific research to expand knowledge of the fish.

Lorenzen recommended that policy makers continue to seek in-depth, information on stakeholder views and bring groups together to communicate and look for shared solutions to maintaining a healthy population of goliath grouper.

Seahawk summer hoopsters head to Nationals

By DAVID ADLERSTEIN

653-8894 | @ApalachTimes
Dadlerstein@starfl.com

Franklin County's 16-and-under team is headed to the TNC (True National Champion) National Tournament in Hampton, Va., this week after a busy summer off-season.

On July 6-7, and July 12-13, both county basketball teams represented the local community well in the North Florida Hoopfest at Tallahassee Community College and the TNC Regional Shootout National Qualifier.

All players, for both the younger team and the older team who played in these tournaments, were Tyler Howard, Marshall Sweet, Kenneth Wilson, Carza Harvey, Cameron White, Josue Barahona, Mercury Wynn, Tyler Farmer, Wesley Norred, Sharod Senatus, Brycen Beverly, Dajon Penamon, Nathan Jones, Jonathan Jones, Sean Williams, Mikalin Huckeba, Landon Nash, Jan Lowe, Chance White, Cameron Nash, Tyrell Green, Aric Sowell, Jeremiah Stephens, and Michael McLeod.

Kelsey Jones and Logan McLeod were not able to participate in either due to injury. Coaches were Michael Sweatt, Jeremy Williams, and Ricky Jones.

North Florida Hoopfest

The 13-and-under team placed fourth in the North Florida Hoopfest by defeating the TAB Spurs 32-29. Standout players for the tourney were Nash offensively, Williams defensively, and Nathan Jones all-around. Penamon was most improved, Sowell made a lot of clutch three-point shots for the team, and Huckeba made many crucial mid-range shots to help pull the team through.

The 16-and-under team place third in the tournament, going 2-0 in regular play before losing in the semifinal game to the Alleyhoopers with players from Tallahassee and Wakulla making up that team.

In the first game against the Tallahassee Tarheels, the Seahawks won 70-35. Norred, Harvey, Senatus, and Barahona were the standout players, as everybody on the team contributed, whether on defense, offense or all around.

"It was one of our best-played games of the summer," said Sweatt.

In the second game the Hawks played the TAB Spurs and blew a 20-point lead in the first half to be up 28-27 at the half. In the second half the teams traded baskets throughout and the Hawks found themselves down by two with a minute left.

"We set up full court on defense and Tyler Howard along Marshall Sweet got a good hard trap on in the corner," said Sweatt. "Carza Harvey then got a tipped steal to Howard who then passed the ball back to Carza for the lay-up and tie."

Sweatt said the team was able to get a stop on defense. "I noticed the Spurs were walking back so I elected not to call a timeout with 10 seconds left," said Sweatt.

Senatus then dribbled the length of the court and won the game with a lay-up. The Spurs heaved up a full court contested shot with three seconds left which missed wide, giving Franklin County a 61-59 win and a berth in the semifinals to face the Alleyhoopers.

"We started off this game flat and disinterested and dug ourselves a 20-point hole at the half," said Sweatt. "We played a lot better the second half, closing the gap to nine but fell short of time."

A few late foul shots by the Alleyhoopers earned them a 63-49 win as the Hawks finished the tourney in third place.

The 13-and-under team finished second in the TNC Regional Shootout National Qualifier, even with the absence of starting center Nathan Jones.

Sweatt said standout players for the tournament on the team were Lowe offensively, Howard defensively, and Nash all-around. Penamon played well, and White made some great hustle plays and a couple of clutch layups in the semifinal game. McLeod played some great defense as well.

Sweatt said Nash hit a game-winning two-point jump shot in the semifinal game to help lift the team to the championship game. In that game, the Hawks were down 15-11 at the half but ran out of gas in the second half losing 20-37. The last tournament for the 13-and-under team was played July 19-21 in Tallahassee.

TNC Regional Shootout National Qualifier

The 16-and-under team won their first tournament of the season which started back in April. It was at the right time, since this was the regional shootout, with the winner of this tourney earning an automatic bid and invitation to the TNC (True National Champion) National Tournament in Hampton, Virginia.

"We have placed second, falling short in four different tournaments, this off-season and the kids have been getting more and more tired of being second," said Sweatt. "At the beginning the kids seemed to be just complacent and excited just to make a tournament championship game but after falling short on the second attempt this off-season, they have been everything but complacent."

Members of the 16-and-under team celebrate their tournament win.

Members of the 13-and-under team have been learning to win this year.

In the first game the Hawks faced a familiar foe, the Heat, with players from North Florida making up that team. The Hawks had lost to them in a previous championship game a few weeks ago.

"Not today, our defense was all over the place," said Sweatt. "It looked at times like we had seven guys on defense!"

The Hawks allowed only three points in the first half with the halftime score 18-3. In the second half the Heat hit a few three-pointers, and the final score was 35-14. "We did not play great on offense but our defense was so intense and fast that it made up for the lack of offense," said Sweatt.

In the second game the Seahawks faced the Tallahassee Tarheels who already had secured a bid going to nationals. "They managed to handle our full court press in the first half very well as we did not come out playing as intense as the previous game," said Sweatt.

Down 21-13 at the half, the Hawks were told to win the possession battles "with our man-to-man defense in the 1/4 court and we will mix in some half court press in between," said Sweatt. "That's exactly what we did, winning the second half executing our defense and only allowing them to score seven points in the second half. Our offense picked up as our defense did and we won 38-27."

In the third game, the Hawks faced the Georgia Rams. "This game can be defined as 'run' because that's what our game plan was and that's what we forced them to do," said Sweatt. "We won this game with a final of 40-20."

In the championship, the Hawks again faced the Tarheels, who had advanced in the losers' bracket. "This game was a battle, but our team speed was too much for them as we won 41-33," said Sweatt. "It seemed close but they hit a couple of late treys to make it seem close. The kids were very excited to win this tournament as it means we are now going to Nationals in Hampton, Virginia this week. I am very proud of the team and I hope we will have Kelsey Jones and Logan McLeod back for Nationals."

The Hawks competed in a July 26-28 tourney at Tallahassee Community College. "This is the live recruiting week for college coaches so there should be some good exposure for the kids at this tourney and competition," Sweatt said.

He thanked the teams' sponsors for their support and donations - Franklin County Recreation and Parks, Gander Auto Parts, Fisherman's Choice, Sandy Beach Properties, C and S Service, Barber's Seafood, Gulf Coast Auto Parts, Red's Family Store LLC, Water Street Seafood, R Gray and Associates, Buddy Ward and Son Seafood, George Thompson, and Jimmy Gander.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

The Postum Bayou dredging project began July 25.

Postum Bayou dredging underway

Special to The Times

Planned and permitted, the Postum Bayou dredging project is underway at Carrabelle Boat Club. The anticipated project began on July 25 with Gator Dredging of Pinellas Park, the operators of the dredging vessel, positioning themselves at the mouth of the Carrabelle River.

Dredging was in full operational mode as of Monday. The journey of the vessel will end at the Carrabelle Boat Club in approximately one week to 10 days, with Gator Dredging operating six days a week, Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

"The staff, as well as members of Carrabelle Boat Club, are delighted to see this project come to formation," said Amy Kilgore of Carrabelle Boat Club. "Increasing the depth of the channel to five feet mean low water (MLW) is the solution that our owners have been looking for, since in the past the low water depth has been a major concern."

Channel depth will be controlled by an advanced on board GPS monitoring and tracking system attached to the cutter head and by an "as built" survey. Once the project is complete, it will confirm conformity to permit specifications of five feet MLW and channel width of 25 feet.

Searching for Henry Brown

Special to The Times

Beverly Edna Brown Goode is looking for her family. She knows she has roots in Carrabelle and Sumatra. She is related to Rowan and Dewey Brown. Here is her story.

As a child, I was told by my father, Allison Claude Brown, that his father, Henry Jesse Brown, married Kate Sarvis and moved from some part of Georgia to Carrabelle.

They lived in what is now known as Tate's Hell area. He was in the lumber business, so he picked a great area to move since it is all trees and such.

I can only imagine their hardships along the way and even more once they took up homestead. Can you imagine my father having to ride a horse to school when they lived so far from town?

Recently visited the area and it took me by car, about a good 25 minutes to arrive where my grandfather is now laid to rest. Oh, and did I mention the mosquitoes I encountered?

I cannot even imagine how they managed to get supplies living so far from Carrabelle, with only a horse and wagon. That must have been an all day event!

As I said my grandfather was a logger, and from the stories I heard he was a very hardworking man. Unfortunately he was killed in a hunting accident. The death of my grandfather put a heavy burden on my father, who at the time was only 10 years old; he had to quit school to help take care of his mom and the homestead.

I'm not sure when they moved, but from there they ended up in Bell, and from there my father moved his family to Cedar Key, where I grew up.

My father was born in 1892 and passed away in 1970 in Cedar Key. I have been unsuccessful locating my grandmother's grave. My father passed when I was 14 years old, my mother passed away when I was only 8, so I never asked too many questions as a young child.

If you recognize the above pictures or have information about Goode's ancestry, you can contact her at 16424 Caju Road, Clermont, FL 34711 or call (407) 433-9426.

County celebrates World Breastfeeding Week

Special to The Times

World Breastfeeding Week is celebrated around the world on August 1-7 each year. Franklin County will celebrate it twice!

Franklin County WIC will celebrate World Breastfeeding Week 2013 in Apalachicola Aug. 1 from 11 a.m. to noon at 139 12th St. Then they will have another celebration in Carrabelle, on Tuesday, Aug. 20, from 11 a.m. to noon, at 106 Northeast 5th St.

WIC staff and volunteers will provide fun prizes and refreshments along with information about nutrition and breastfeeding for WIC participants.

This year's World Breastfeeding Week theme, "Breastfeeding Support:

Close to Mothers," highlights the importance of providing support to breastfeeding families. The WIC program plays a vital role in providing support to breastfeeding moms. The WIC program offers a breastfeeding friendly environment with support from trained breastfeeding peer counselors.

Deciding what and how to feed an infant is one of the most important decisions that new families make. Evidence is clear that breastfeeding is the ideal way to feed an infant. Research shows that infants who are not exclusively breastfed for their first six months of life are more likely to develop a wide range of chronic and acute diseases, including ear infections, diarrheal diseases, asthma, Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, obesity and respiratory illnesses. Mothers also benefit from breastfeeding with a decreased risk for breast and ovarian cancers.

World Breastfeeding Week is coordinated globally by the World Alliance for Breastfeeding Action (WABA). For more information, visit the WABA website at www.waba.org.my.

School BRIEFS

Stuff the Bus with school supplies

A "Stuff the Bus with school supplies" effort is now under way to gather supplies for students and teachers as the school year approaches.

The effort is seeking to gather items that students can use. Needed are such items as backpacks, No. 2 pencils and mechanical, cap erasers, pens (black and blue), red pens, expo markers, highlighters, glue sticks, colored pencils, 24-count crayons, three-ring one inch binders (not flexible, single colored), tab dividers for 3-ring binders (5 per pack), plastic folders with two pockets, multi-colored card stock, white and colored index cards, wide ruled loose leaf paper, spiral notebooks, construction paper and scissors.

The teachers wish list includes white copy paper, Clorox wipes, Kleenex, white and colored index cards, yellow plastic pocket folders, electric pencil sharpener, dry erase markers and colored and black ink for printers cartridge sizes (Hp950XL, Hp951XL, Hp564).

For your convenience, there will be a school supply drop off bus in Carrabelle, Eastpoint, and Apalachicola Aug. 10 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Head Start now accepting applications

Head Start Centers in Eastpoint and Carrabelle are now accepting applications for the 2013-14 school year.

Head Start offers free pre-school for 3- and 4 year old children of income qualified families. Students receive early childhood development services along with medical, dental and mental health care.

To enroll your child in Head Start, please call (850) 222-2043 ext. 223. Or visit the Eastpoint Head Start Center on School Road, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., or the Carrabelle Center, on North 5th Street, Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Head Start is a program of the Capital Area Community Action Agency and is funded, in part, by a grant from the United Way of the Big Bend.
