Money woes for Bonifay council

By Steve Liner
Managing Editor

The only difference in listening in on a Bonifay City Council meeting and a family financial review is that tax dollars are discussed.

Bottom line: There simply isn't enough money to stretch over all the priorities. Whether the council is discussing finishing a contract for the roof at City Hall, the water system or the state of Memorial Stadium, as they did during their June 14 meeting, it all boils down to money, the need for it and where it might come from.

By the end of last week, the council was hoping finishing touches would be completed on a long-standing, contract to make repairs to the roof of City Hall, complete with a new awning over the drive-thru service window. Ultimately, their contractor's representative said all work should be finished before a review to mark substantial completion on June 26.

One challenge for the council has been the changes in the long-standing project have not been properly documented through change orders with the contractor.

"This is just a typical Bonifay City Council situation," a frustrated Rogers Brooks finally blurted out as the issue was being discussed at the recent meeting.

Next, the council hopes to turn its attention to more efficient and effective lighting and air conditioning in City Hall - when it can find the money. Such a move would allow the city to get maximum benefits from the improved insulation and new roof, according to Councilman Richard Woodham.

Another key concern for the council was the needed repairs at Memorial Field. Woodham, who has been charged in meeting with the Bonifay Kiwanis Clubs and Holmes County Schools concerning the repairs indicated progress has been made.

Next, the council turned its attention to derelict properties around town that are not in compliance with city ordinances, and instructions were given to pass out warnings and, in one case of an unlicensed business, the police department was instructed to move forward.

A result of new state law concerning growth management and planning will cause the city to host a public meeting of the planning board, the mayor said. Date and time for the meeting will be announced at a later date, he said.

'PRAY FOR RAIN'

Washington, Holmes and Bay counties submit Drought Disaster Declaration to state

By Cecilia Spears
Staff Writer
cspears@chipleypaper.com

Pastures and crops continue to deteriorate as the region settles deeper into summer heat and a record setting drought.

"We held a meeting with the Farm Agency, forestry and a few other organizations to come up with a number of concerned crops," said Agriculture and Livestock Director Andy Andreasen. "We then sent a Drought Disaster Declaration to Gainesville for approval."

Andreasen explained that once the declaration was approved, there were several options the state would take to help aid farmers through this disaster.

"They may offer low interest loans to farmers experiencing financial hardships," said Andreasen. "We're 10 inches below the average rain fall for the last 65 to 70 days, which is 20 percent of the year's average rainfall."

Farmers are still planting in spite of "extremely adverse conditions," Andreasen said.

"Fifty to 60 percent of plants have come up, but there are a lot of skips in the rows and a very low plant population," he said. "The majority of these crops are where the crops have died and the farmers had replanted them three or four times."

He said that what was needed was a good, general rain to be repeated every week for several weeks to get the crops to be decently salvageable.

"A problem with some areas is that even if they do get rain, we're seeing signs of white mold," Andreasen said. "If we get an average rainfall, then the white mold is going to spread and farmers are going to have to do a lot to fight it off." The biggest problem that farmers face right now, Andreasen said, was fulfilling their contracts.

"Farmers were very optimistic in the spring when the return prices on cotton and peanuts were the highest they've been in a long time and taking a contract was good," he said. "With contracts though you're expected to have a certain amount or you have to make up for it, which could cost twice as much."

He said the one crop that was going to fully meet contracts were irrigated crops.

"They're not going to make very much, if any, money because it costs so much to run irrigation fields," he said. "If anything, they'll be lucky if they just break even."

He said all the farmers can do is "pray for rain."

"We need, at the least, a good quarter of an inch of rain a day for several weeks and everyone needs to get it," he said. "We've had some isolated showers, but unless you were right under the cloud it didn't help you much."

He said that another concern was that problems with crops always affects more than just the farmers, but the cattle ranchers too.

"They've gotten to the point where they have to bail wheat straw for the cattle, otherwise they'll have to sell their cattle," he said. "Animals need food everyday, and farmers are doing everything they can to get any kind of forage they can get."

The majority of these farmers also depend on growing soy and cotton after their wheat crops, but there hasn't been enough moisture to grow soy.

"To make matters worse is that those that have managed to grow some soy, the deer have found it and ate it to the ground," Andreasen said. "So we've got the drought conditions to contend with and now we're getting the animals to fend off; it's a tough year to be a farmer in this part of the country."

Holmes Schools weathering 'continuous decline' in revenue

By Gary Galloway
Holmes County
Superintendent of Schools
Special to the Times-Advertiser

Editor's Note: Superintendent Galloway provided this report at the request of the Times-Advertiser in the interest of keeping voters informed of the challenges facing local schools - Steve Liner.

Over the past four years, the Holmes County School District has been coping with a continuous decline in revenue. Our district budget during the 2006/2007 school was approximately $25,000,000; the projected budget for the 2011-2012 school year is approximately $20,000,000 this amount includes a $1.85 million cut from 2010-2011. Districts have been told to expect another 5 percent cut during the 2012/2013 school year. If the state decreases our budget by 5 percent next year, then the district will have experienced a 25.5 percent decline in funds in recent years.

Dealing with this shortfall in funds has been a tremendous challenge. A few of the actions that the district has taken are as follows:

- No raises for employees, except for steps totaling approximately $225,000 per year.
- No extension of the drop program beyond the sixth year.
- Reducing rehired/retired personnel to a beginning salary with 7 years experience.
- Drastic reduction of the use of substitutes when employees are absent.
- Limited expenditures in maintenance with no new construction at all.
- Grants have been revised to direct funds to salaries as much as possible.
- Principal's have not overspent their budgets and have adhered to their spending plans.
- The Voluntary Pre-K program was historically going over budget by approximately $100,000 per year, but this year it has operated within budget and has approximately $10,000 in reserve.
- The district has absorbed over 50 positions, mostly through retirements and resignations; we will continue to absorb positions at every opportunity.
- Lunchrooms have reduced over

Traffic stop leads to marijuana arrests

At 2:38 Friday morning an officer with the Bonifay Police Department conducted a traffic stop on a 2009 Chevrolet truck for a speed violation. As the officer approached the driver's door a strong odor of burnt marijuana was detected. Further investigation led to the discovery and seizure of approximately 24 grams of suspected marijuana packaged for individual sale. Numerous items of drug paraphernalia associated with marijuana use were located as well, along with alcoholic beverages and approximately $400 in cash.

The driver of the vehicle was identified as William Clark Ledbetter a white male, 20, from Bessemer, Ala. He and his passenger, identified as Michael Clay Hocutt, a white male, 20, from Birmingham, Ala. were placed under arrest and taken to the Holmes County Jail.

Ledbetter was been charged with possession of marijuana over 20 grams with intent to distribute, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of alcohol under 21. Bond was set in his case at $7,000.

Hocutt was booked on charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of alcohol under 21. He pled to county probation.

Florida names new Commissioner of Education

TAMPA (AP) — Virginia's current education secretary, Gerard Robinson, has been named Florida's new education commissioner.

The six members of the State Board of Education conducted the interviews June 20 in the Hillsborough Grand Ballroom at the Tampa Airport Marriott, allowing each candidate up to an hour to answer questions and make the case for his or her selection as Commissioner of Education. None took the entire time allotment, and all enjoyed cordial exchanges about their qualifications, goals and management styles.

Other candidates were Stacia A. Smith, an Ohio educator who earned her bachelor's degree at the University of Florida; former New Jersey Commissioner Bret Schundler, who was fired by Gov. Chris Christie last August because of an improperly completed grant application that cost the state some $400 million in federal aid; Florida native Loretta Costin, now the state's Career and Adult Education Chancellor; and Thomas P. Jandris, called himself "the hybrid candidate," because of his experience as an entrepreneur, educator, consultant and political advisor.

The last interview went to Robinson. From a working-class Los Angeles upbringing to a master's degree in education from Harvard, he told the board, "I don't have a career. I have a calling." A strong supporter of school choice, he said it is a priority to find common ground with various groups and to listen to their concerns before making a decision. His style, he said, is "to lead without running over" people. He said he believes in a variety of public-private partnerships to help solve problems in supporting and improving schools. "Always look, listen and learn," he added.

Bonifay Lions sponsor 'Recycle for Sight' luncheon

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The Bonifay Lions Club members are asking residents to look through dresser drawers and closets for used eyeglasses and donate them to the Lions Recycle For Sight program. In conjunction with the collection effort, a learning luncheon took place at 12 noon on Tuesday, June 28, at Doctors Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Kelly Smith, from the Eye Center gave a presentation on "The Aging Eye." Admission to the luncheon was free with a donation of one pair of used eyeglasses. For more information on the program and how you can help call (850) 547-8193.

The Bonifay Lions Club will be continually collecting used prescription eyeglasses and prescription and non-prescription sunglasses as part of a unique recycling program. The donated glasses will be shipped to a regional Lions Eyeglass Recycling Center where they will be cleaned, categorized by prescription and prepared for distribution by Lions and other groups.

In most developing countries, an eye exam can cost as much as one month's wages and a single eye doctor may serve a community of hundreds of thousands of people. Locally, the club has already helped several citizens in need of replacement eyeglasses.

To donate used glasses (including sunglasses and reading glasses), place them in the specially marked Lions Recycle For Sight collection boxes presently located in the Doctors Memorial Hospital lobby, 2600 Hospital Drive and the office of Dr. Cliff Wood, OD, 408 E. Hwy. 90 in Bonifay.

budget expenditures from approximately $280,000 per year to less than $50,000 per year.

- Funds spent on In-service training and travel have been dramatically reduced.

- Transportation procedures have been revised and resulted in an approximate increase of $400,000 in new monies.

- Only four new district buses in the last three years.

Other factors that make dealing with the revenue decline a challenge is the increase in costs that the district has little or no control over including

- Health insurances rates have increased by 14 percent for an additional cost of $215,000 per year.

- Increasing fuel prices could cost the district an additional $300,000 per year.

- Electricity cost and even the price of trash pickup have increased significantly.

- Costs related to State mandated class size reduction will continue to be a significant expenditure.

- All schools must be fully digital in 5 years.

The Holmes District School System has had many challenges in dealing with the decreasing budget; however, personnel at all levels have been willing to step up and do more without compensation. The Superintendent and School Board members for the Holmes County Schools appreciate everything that everyone has done. It has truly been a team effort.

Even during this time of challenges, personnel and students have stepped up to the plate as indicated by our Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test (FCAT) scores. Across the board the district ranged from a few points below the state average to a few points above the state average. Our percentage of students who scored three and above in reading at the ninth and 10th grade was the same as the state average while our eighth grade students were five points above the state average in reading. Our mathematics scores continue to parallel the state average. Our science scores were just below the state average for eighth and 11th grade. There was a wider discrepancy at fifth grade; we are reviewing and developing plans for improvement.

Most of our schools showed an increase in learning gains over last year, but there is still room for improvement. This year the state has transitioned to a more difficult test, FCAT 2.0, which reflects the more rigorous Next Generation Sunshine State Standards. Our district is still in the process of reviewing the data and instructional decisions will be made based on this data.

Opinion

A visit to the Isagora Community and the BHS Class of '53

An impromptu invitation from Jean Brown Rich last Saturday morning had me heading north on highway 179 about noon that day. A few of the Bethlehem graduating class of 1953 were gathering at the home of Mavis Harris Oliver for an informal lunch. Because my husband wasn't able to attend, I headed out by myself. Not sure of where I was heading, I just knew if I got to Isagora Church, I'd gone too far. Fortunately, I found my way to the old home of the Harris family where Mavis now resides. It's a good thing I didn't need to ask directions as there was no one a-stir in those parts of the county on that hot morning.

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

I was reminded of when I took the Farm Census in that area in 1953. As I went from house to house in the Holmes County portion of the Gritney community, I found almost no human habitation, only Bantam chickens. I began to think that the "Rapture" had occurred and I had been left behind. When I arrived at the old Harris Homestead set among the spreading live oak trees where Mavis, Ralph, Roy and Dowling grew up, I found a group of Bethlehem High School Class of 1953 gathered. They were a small class, but Mavis, Jean, Fred Andrews, Virginia Forehand Hendrix, Shirley Clark Taylor and Barbara Bryant Moore were there. Melba Pate Andrews, and Hubert Hendrix, who were also Bethlehem graduates, were in attendance along with Jo Brown, sister-in-law to Barbara and yours truly. It was interesting to see Mavis living the rural life after so many years of following her late husband about the country to his Naval appointments. Her kitchen counter contained brown yard eggs from her chickens and home grown tomatoes. She, Virginia and Melba were working side by side to serve the gracious lunch as if 58 years had not intervened since they were classmates at BHS. I remembered the class of 1953 because I substituted as a teacher at Bethlehem during those years. I particularly remembered helping put make-up on the cast members for their Junior Class play of which Fred was a member. He even remembered his stage name. Virginia remembered me demonstrating a basket-ball cheer (pregnant though I was) for the girls at their practice. She also remembered how they aspired to be a newly wed as I was. Jean and Mavis reminisced about their days at Isagora School which was located at the site of the Isagora Methodist Church. In fact, the building where they attended first through seventh grades is still there and is used as a fellowship hall for the church. They especially remembered a beloved teacher Dixie Whitaker who, though kind and caring, had no reservations about punishing the disobedient. They remembered her taking all her students at the end of the year to the store about a mile up the road. She gave them each a nickel to spend on whatever they chose. Then, a nickel would buy a Coca Cola, a large Moon Pie, a package of chewing gum, 5 pieces of penny candy or some other mouth-watering delicacy. Isagora is one of the oldest schools in the county. In fact, Whitmill Curry, the first School Superintendent, grew up in that community. Curry's Ferry, a Holmes County landmark, is just west of the church and school. In 1918, it is listed in the Heritage of Holmes County as having 29 students. F.M. Murphy was the teacher.

Later, it was a two teacher school with grades one through four in one room and grades five through eight in the other. When the Brown children and the Harris children attended there through the 1940s, a small lunch room was in back where lunches of pork and beans and other commodity foods were served. However, most of the years, the children carried their biscuits and sausage, fried ham, baked sweet potato or whatever our Mama's could find to stuff in them. Like the Wells children at Bracken School where we went, it was usually wrapped in a newspaper or carried in a syrup bucket. Those days are more fun to remember in retrospect than when they actually were happening.

Letters to THE EDITOR

Killed by medical negligence

Why does Florida law allow unmarried adults with no children younger than 25 and retired people without spouses to be killed by medical negligence without recourse? Florida statue 768.21 elevates only doctors, hospitals and other health care providers to this exalted status of having virtual immunity for negligently killing some of the most defenseless members of our society, i.e., the elderly, the disabled, and the underemployed. My mother is one of the elderly who was killed by the medical negligence of the ER doctor and his unconcerned nursing staff on the night of Oct. 11 and 12, 2009, at Doctor's Memorial Hospital in Bonifay. The doctor let my mother bleed out of a brain aneurysm, when he could have saved her life by transferring her to Flowers Hospital in Dothan per my repeated requests to him. My heart breaks when I think of how the doctor and ER staff treated her that night. Their neglect in giving her the wrong medication, withholding the correct medication, denying my repeated requests for her transfer, not ordering a head CT scan, not ordering a C-spine of her neck, not continuing vital signs on her, not performing a fundoscopic exam (eye exam) on her, failing to recognize her symptoms as an intracranial catastrophe and not timely recognizing the doctors limitations and the limitations of Doctors Hospital and their inability to care for my mother appropriately. When my mother was code blue, it took them nine attempts and about one-and-a-half hours to intubate her. I have never received an explanation from the doctor or the hospital as to why it took nine attempts and so long. This caused my mother tremendous suffering and resulted in her untimely death. This also resulted in the doctor being found guilty of Medical malpractice by the Department of Health and the Board of Medicine. For this much, I am grateful. But, Florida statue 768.21 needs to be changed. Those of us who have lost a loved one due to medical malpractice or wrongful death need to be able to hold those responsible accountable for their actions. This statue states if the person has no spouse (due to death or divorce) or has no dependents younger than 25, you can't recover for anything other than the funeral and the medical bills (if you paid them.) I miss my mother terribly; she was my best friend, mentor and confidant. She encouraged me to be all I can and is responsible for me going back to school to get my degree. Her grandchildren miss her and her great-grandchildren ask "where is grandma?" She was not your typical 75-year-old. She was healthy and very active. She held down a full-time job and was Awana leader at church. I try so hard to push back the tears and the image of her bald, scarred head lying unresponsive in Flowers hospital. I fight the heart wrenching reality that she was taken prematurely from our family. I can still see the anger of the neurologist at Flowers Hospital when he realized he couldn't operate on my mother until the effects of the wrong drugs wore off (that ER doctor in Bonifay gave her). In a situation where time is golden, the actions of Bonifay ER doctor took that time away from my mother. The horrible actions of the doctor have shaken my faith in the medical community. I will forever remember what this doctor did to my mother and how she was brutally treated, tormented, and eventually lost her life because of the actions of the doctor and his staff. The citizens of Florida put their trust in its health care system and doctors expecting that they are qualified, humane, caring and professional. The sad reality is this is not always the case, which I have had to come to terms with in the death of my mother.

Diane Smith, Bonifay

Disrespect for the graduation ceremony

Dear Editor: I recently attended a Holmes County high school graduation and I was utterly shocked, appalled and disgusted by the blatant disrespect and contempt those in attendance had for the dignity and decorum of the graduation ceremony. Additionally, certain aspects of the ceremony gave the appearance of severe disorganization and a lack of planning that one would not expect for such an important and momentous occasion. Throughout the entire ceremony, people were continually walking in and out of the gymnasium in a nonchalant and disrespectful manner. To give an idea of how much foot traffic, it was as if one were sitting in an outside market. Not only was this constant movement an affront to the ceremony and the graduates, but it was also distracting from the night's events and the consequential noise made it rather difficult to hear the speakers. Compounding the distractions caused by the continual movement of people and the resulting noise, many attendants were yelling and cheering as if at some type of athletic event instead of an occasion calling for a high degree of respect, formality and decorum. Appreciation for a graduate's accomplishments should be shown in the strongest possible manner. However, common sense would suggest and even dictate that such pride, admiration and appreciation be shown in a style that is decent, in order and conforms to the level of formality appropriate to a graduation ceremony. While disruptions from the attendants of the graduation ceremony are frustrating and inexcusable, they do not compare to a disorganized ceremony caused by a lack of planning and attention to detail by those in charge of conducting such an event. Although numerous details could be mentioned, I will mention only one. When the final graduate entered the gym, he proceeded to his assigned seat. Upon reaching his seat, none was to be found. The back row was short one chair. This graduate was forced to retrieve a chair from the adjacent faculty seating area before he could sit down at his own graduation. Conventional wisdom would suggest those in charge of such an important event would have, at the very least, counted and checked multiple times to make sure there was sufficient seating for the graduates. However, it would appear that no such check was performed. For some members of this particular graduating class, a disorganized and unruly graduation ceremony might be of no consequence. Many of the class members will go on to further educational endeavors and likely experience a graduation ceremony where the traditional decorum and other formalities are observed. However, other members of the class, for various reasons, will not be fortunate enough to go forward and have another graduation experience. Their high school graduation was their one night to bask in the glory of their educational accomplishments. To think that these students' one night to shine was essentially desecrated by people either too ignorant or too rude to appreciate the full measure of the occasion is at the very least maddening. Such anger should be strong motivation for parents of future high school graduates to take proactive steps that will ensure the protection of the dignity of their child's graduation ceremony. Because whether someone goes forward and experiences a college graduation or not, a person only graduates from high school once. It is undeniable that Holmes County, and even the tri-county area, is the textbook example of small town USA. However, such a characteristic does not automatically mean at a momentous and dignified occasion, such as graduation, those in attendance must act in a "backwoods" manner that seems to display a stereotypical rural ignorance and lack of sophistication. One can only hope that before next year's graduation season arrives, people will learn to act with the common decency the graduation ceremony calls for. However, in the event the attendants act unruly or there is a lack of organization and planning, we must hope those with the power and ability to protect the dignity of our high school graduation ceremonies will muster the necessary courage and exercise that power of protection.

Respectfully,
C. Tyler Land, Bethlehem

Gov. Scott appoints 2 to 1st District Court of Appeal

Special to The Times-Advertiser

Gov. Rick Scott on June 17 announced the appointment of Judge Ronald V. Swanson of Pensacola and Commissioner Stephanie Williams Ray of Tallahassee to the First District Court of Appeal.

"The First DCA is one of the state's most important courts, and with these two appointments, the court gains jurists with a deep intellect, an abiding commitment to judicial restraint and great professional and personal integrity," Scott said.

Swanson, 63, has served on the First Judicial Circuit Court since 2003 and served on the Santa Rosa County Court from 2000 to 2003. He was an assistant state attorney from 1995 to 2000. From 1975 to 1995, Swanson served in the United States Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps. He earned a bachelor's degree from Florida State University, a law degree from the University of Florida College of Law and a Master of Laws from George Washington University.

"With eleven years on the bench and a long and distinguished career as a Navy JAG, Judge Swanson will bring integrity, wisdom and experience to the First DCA," Scott said. "He has a proven record of judicial conservatism and a reputation for considering cases with respect and patience, coming to each decision in a firm but fair manner. As a well-respected member of the Pensacola community, Judge Swanson will bring that community's values and perspectives with him to the bench. I am confident he will prove to be a wonderful addition to this important court."

Ray, 41, has served as the chairwoman of the Florida Public Employees Relations Commission since 2008. As chairwoman, Ray has led the panel that issues final orders in the state's labor and employment disputes and has served as the chief executive and administrative officer of the agency. From 2004 to 2007, Ray held several leadership roles at the Florida State University College of Law, including associate dean for administration, assistant dean for academic affairs and director of career placement. Before that, Ray was in private practice at Ausley & McMullen P.A. She earned her bachelor's degree from Vanderbilt University and her law degree, with honors, from Florida State University, where she was a member of the Law Review.

"Throughout her career, Commissioner Ray has demonstrated an ability to analyze complex legal issues while also taking on significant management responsibilities," Scott said. "Her record of decisions as a PERC commissioner is impressive and reflects respect for and adherence to the rule of law. She has an abiding commitment to ensuring that judges say what the law is, rather than what it should be, and I am confident that Commissioner Ray will have a long and distinguished tenure on the First DCA."

Swanson will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Peter D. Webster, and Ray will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Charles J. Kahn Jr.

Help your student online at 'Teacher Talk'

Special to the Times-Advertiser

Parents looking for additional opportunities to help their students succeed in and out of the classroom this summer are encouraged to tune in to the latest Florida Department of Education (DOE) "Teacher Talk" show. This month's episode of the popular series, available through the Florida Knowledge Network and on the Just for Teachers website, focuses on unique ways parents can get involved in their child's education.

"Establishing a positive relationship with parents is an essential role that teachers must play right from the start," said DOE Teacher Liaison Kelly Seay. "A supportive home environment is crucial to a child's academic success. By working with their students' families, teachers can be assured that learning continues even after the child has left the classroom."

Throughout the show, teacher Liaison Kelly Seay shares why it is important to involve parents in the educational process and interviews teachers who are able to share common parental communication techniques. In addition, the show highlights various ways for parents to become co-educators within the classroom, enhancing the overall student experience.

The show rounds out with information on how families can get involved with their local School Choice Parental Advisory Council and provides teachers and parents with a collection of resources, strategies and ideas to improve the home, school and teacher relationship.

Teachers who view this episode will also learn of the Teacher Treasures giveaway for the month of June, a two-night stay at the Palms Hotel. In May, Exceptional Student Education Teacher Kathryn Hall from Palm Beach County Public Schools won a two-night stay for two at Jupiter Beach Resort.

Hooked on Outdoors

There's a new sheriff in town. Well, not exactly a law officer, this sheriff is a fish. Our area of the Gulf is sort of like U.S. Highway 98 with all the transients coming by both on land and in the water. Our latest transient to visit our area is the tarpon.

A fellow once said, "If you want to catch a lot of mullet, you have to be where a lot of mullet live." The same goes for tarpon. If you want to catch a lot of tarpon, go where they are the thickest, which in our case is Boca Grand Pass, about an eight-hour ride south of here. But if you want to catch a tarpon and not leave home, it can be done right here in the Panama City area.

There are several thoughts on catching tarpon, and they're all different. A lot of people see tarpon off our beaches and never know what they are seeing. They will either see them as they slide under their boat or on top rolling. If you get a good look at one you will be amazed at the size of these fish. Most of them will weigh more than 100 pounds.

We have two types of guides in this area that fish for tarpon. The ones that use "chicken feathers" as they call it, you might call it fly fishing, and then you have the live bait guide. The fly fishing guides are secretive about where they fish and with good reason.

Tarpon are easily upset, and a bunch of boats running around is not conducive to catching them with live bait or flies. Fly fishing for tarpon is a specialty sport. Not every one is cut out to do it, and you have to be dedicated. You might spend many hours anchored up and not see a fish.

The same can be said for live baiting tarpon. You can move down the beach and get into position in front of the fish and wait for them to get into range to cast a live greenback and hope for the best.

If you think you might want to take up this sport, I wouldn't advise trying it on the fly at first simply because it takes special tackle and a lot of practice. Look for a guide that specializes in tarpon fishing and try this sport out before they leave this area.

FWC asks anglers to help with snapper research

From staff reports

Want to help state researchers protect the long-term population of red snapper?

If so, biologists with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) are offering a way you can help.

FWC's Fish and Wildlife Research Institute (FWRI) is undertaking a research project focusing on red snapper caught in Florida's offshore waters. The project will provide fisheries researchers and managers with vital catch-and-release survival information needed for assessing the status of red snapper.

FWRI biologists will approach anglers at public areas along the Gulf coast of Florida, including boat ramps, fishing piers and marinas, to request participation in the study. These biologists will distribute survey cards designed to collect detailed information on fishing trips targeting red snapper.

This information includes where red snapper are caught and released, the type of fishing equipment used, and the condition of the fish when released. The data will provide vital information that will help improve the management of red snapper.

Anyone fishing for red snapper in Florida can also request a postage-paid survey card in the mail, by emailing their name and address to FishStats@MyFWC.com.

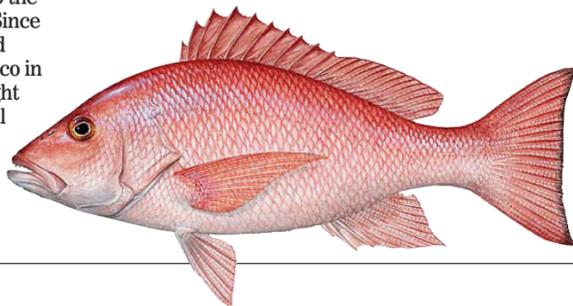

In addition to completing survey cards, anglers, vessel captains and mates can assist with reef fish research by reporting tagged fish to the Angler Tag Return Hotline at 800-367-4461. Since 2009, FWRI biologists have been tagging and releasing reef fish back into the Gulf of Mexico in an effort to evaluate the survival of fish caught and released with hook-and-line recreational fishing gear.

Previous studies estimate that

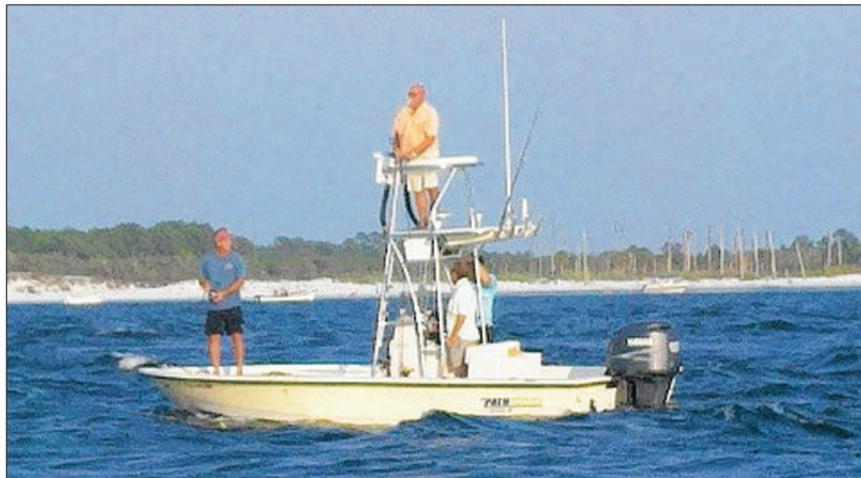

When reporting a tagged fish, anglers should provide the species of fish, tag number, date and time of capture, where the fish was caught, fish length, type of bait used and whether the fish was kept or released. If the fish is released, anglers should leave the tag in the fish so biologists can continue to collect data.

approximately 60 percent of red snapper survive when released after being caught on hook-and-line. A similar tagging program began this year on the Atlantic coast. By reporting tagged fish, anglers will help to improve the accuracy of estimated release survival rates for this species.

For this project, biologists are inserting yellow or orange tags near the dorsal fin of the fish. Each tag has a unique number printed on the side. When reporting a tagged fish, anglers should provide the species of fish, tag number, date and time of capture, where the fish was caught, fish length, type of bait used and whether the fish was kept or released. If the fish is released, anglers should leave the tag in the fish so biologists can continue to collect data.

Coyotes have found ways to endure

By Stan Kirkland

Florida Fish and Wildlife
Conservation Commission

Years ago, we were introduced through cartoon lore to the bumbling, inept coyote, always pursuing the fleet-footed roadrunner.

As it turns out, coyotes are anything but bumbling and inept. While some wildlife species have suffered from the impacts of development, that's not the case with coyotes.

Contrary to what some people think, coyotes were found in Florida long before Europeans arrived here, according to a paper written in 2007 by staff of the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's Fish and Wildlife Research Institute. The authors, Walt McCown and Brian Scheick, say fossil records indicate coyotes disappeared from eastern North America about 15,000-20,000 years ago, near the end of the last ice age, at a time when the number of red wolves increased.

In the 1800s and early 1900s, habitat changes opened the door for the ever-adaptable coyote to expand its range east of the Mississippi River. In addition, some coyotes were transported into Florida by hunters, who ran them with hounds, but how many were brought in is anyone's guess.

In 1983, the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission said coyotes were in at least 18 counties and by 1990, in 48 counties. Today, they're found in every county.

Coyotes are in the same family (Canidae) as wolves, foxes and dogs. They weigh 20-35 pounds, are lean, almost looking unfed, and highly resourceful in finding food and a place to live. The fact is coyotes can live almost anywhere except dense urban areas.

Always the opportunistic feeder, coyotes generally move about at night and eat rodents, birds, snakes, eggs, turtles, goats, sheep and even small deer on occasion. Coyotes readily feed on carrion and can consume an animal carcass in a single night.

They'll eat fruits such as blackberries, persimmons, wild plums and wild grapes. They also eat cantaloupes and watermelons and can cause big losses to farmers.

What raises the ire of many residents is the fact they'll sometimes go after house cats and even small dogs. Newspaper articles or TV stories detailing a pet owner's anguish are becoming more common.

In 2009, the highly respected Journal of Wildlife Management published a scientific paper that summarized the results of a study conducted in a residential area of Tucson, Ariz., from November 2005 through February 2006. Eight coyotes were captured, fitted with radio collars, released, and monitored. Of 36 coyote-cat interactions, cats were killed in 19 instances. But they also noted such situations could be avoided if owners kept their pets indoors at night.

Some residents who have lost pets want coyotes eliminated from their area, but biologists say it's just not that simple.

WILDFIRES BURN THROUGHOUT STATE

FWC, Division of Forestry bans campfires in region

Special to The News

In light of significant drought conditions and the increased threat of wildfires, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC), in cooperation with the state Division of Forestry and other partner agencies, issued an executive order June 16 prohibiting campfires in wildlife management areas, wildlife and environmental areas and all other lands it manages.

The order went into effect at 12:01 a.m. June 17 and remains in effect until rescinded by a subsequent order. The FWC joins the DOF, the Department of Environmental Protection and Florida water management districts in this effort.

"Special regulations are necessary to mitigate risk to public safety and to minimize the likelihood of igniting fires that will adversely impact wildlife and wildlife habitat," read the order, signed by FWC Executive Director Nick Wiley.

In its executive order, the FWC notes that Florida is experiencing inordinately dry conditions for this time of year. "As a result, DOF and FWC have been fighting multiple wildfires within wildlife management areas, wildlife and environmental areas and other lands managed by FWC."

If placed openly on the ground, the fire is considered a campfire and therefore barred. Only cooking fires contained in commercially designed apparatuses are allowed.

Any violation is considered a second-degree misdemeanor, punishable by up to a $500 fine and 60 days in jail. Law enforcement agencies on each respective state property are responsible for enforcing violations.

2 rangers killed fighting wildfire near Jasper

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Two state forest rangers trapped by shifting flames died while fighting a wildfire that also injured two others near Jasper in north Florida, officials said Tuesday.

The rangers were working Monday to stop a rekindled blaze called the Blue Ribbon Fire in Hamilton County on the Georgia line, one of more than 400 wildfires currently burning around Florida in one of the busiest fire seasons in years.

The rangers killed were 31-year-old Josh Burch of Lake City and 52-year-old Brett Fulton of White Springs, said Sterling Ivey, a spokesman for the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Officials say the injured rangers, Robert Marvin and Stephen Carpenter, suffered smoke- and heat-related injuries while trying to help their fellow firefighters. They were treated and released from hospitals in Lake City and Gainesville.

The Blue Ribbon Fire started June 16 and had been declared contained before dry conditions allowed the fire to flare up again Monday.

"Josh and Brett were cutting a fire line around the fire," Ivey said. "The wind changed, and they became trapped by the flames and couldn't get out."

Both men were married. Fulton had two grown children, and Burch had young two sons, ages 4 and 5, Ivey said. Burch had been with the department's Division of Forestry for 10 years and Fulton for 11 years.

Gov. Rick Scott told CBS's "The Early Show" on Tuesday that his "heart goes out to the families."

"It's tragic, but pray for rain," Scott said. "It looks like we're going to start getting more rain tomorrow."

Scott said the rains are expected to begin in north Florida and then in the southern part of the state by the weekend.

"So that will damp this out and stop this," Scott said.

Forestry officials, though, have warned that lightning accompanying the rains might briefly worsen the situation before trees and underbrush become damp enough to resist burning.

Firefighters have fought more than 1,500 wildfires since May 1 that have burned nearly 200,000 acres across the state. That's made this one of the busiest wildfire seasons in recent Florida history. Florida firefighters have been facing an average of more than 31 new wildfires every day.

Agriculture Commissioner Adam Putnam also expressed his sorrow "to the families and loved ones of the two courageous men who sacrificed their lives for the safety of others."

"We can rebuild the structures and restore the land, but the lives of these two heroes can never be replaced," Putnam said in a statement.

Chiplely grad to play outfield for Enterprise State

Special to The News

One of the new faces in the Enterprise (Ala.) State Community College Weevil Women's 2011-12 team photo is Shelby Bowen of Chiplely.

"Shelby is an honor student and an outstanding outfielder with strong defensive skills," said ESCC coach King Jones. "She is a very quick slapper who has generated a batting average of .434 and a .610 on-base percentage on her travel ball team. She has a .357 average on her Chiplely High School team."

"Shelby put on an impressive display of outfield skills during her tryouts at ESCC, and we are excited to have her join our team!"

Asked why she selected Enterprise State, Bowen quickly responded, "Because I know I can fulfill my dreams here."

"I want to become a physical education teacher and coach softball."

Fifty years from now, Bowen said, she'd like to look back on her life and realize she'd fulfilled her dreams.

"Sports mean everything to me," the 5-foot-1 speedster said. "I started playing softball at 10 and played middle and high school softball and travel softball (ever since.)"

Bowen, who bats left-handed and throws right-handed, played center field at Chiplely High.

"We had somehow gotten away from having a team full of quick, fast players," Jones said. "We're getting back to what's become our norm, and Shelby will be a big part of that movement."

Bowen said shrimp is her favorite food and "Glory Road" is her choice in movies. She enjoys watching "Criminal Minds" on TV, listens to all kinds of music and said Charlotte Morgan is her favorite athlete.

Bowen said that until now, not everyone knows "everything I wear has to be ironed, including my hair."

HOLMES COUNTY CRIME STOPPERS

Working Together to Make a Difference

CRIME STOPPERS is a community action program that gives citizens the opportunity to become involved in the fight against crime in Holmes County and make our communities a better place to live, work, and go to school. Crime Stoppers of Holmes County is comprised of three segments – the community, law enforcement, and the media – working together in a partnership that has one common goal – reducing crime in Holmes County.

CRIME STOPPERS provides a means of communication for the members of the public to provide law enforcement agencies with information on crimes or suspects without having to reveal their identity. Crime Stoppers is not a LAW ENFORCEMENT program. It is a partnership between the community, the media and law enforcement. Crime Stoppers offers individual anonymity and a financial reward for the information provided if it results in an arrest.

Law Enforcement – The Holmes County Sheriff's Department provides personnel support by assigning deputies and investigators to follow up on information provided to the TIPS line. Phone lines are paid for by the Crime Stoppers Program.

Media – Media provides the avenue to promote awareness of the program by educating the community about the TIPS phone number. They also can produce reenactments and promote the Crime Stoppers initiatives. All media participate as a public service.

Caller or Tipster – The caller or tipster is the most important partner in our program. He or she is a member of the community who sees, hears or knows of criminal activity. When a caller contacts Crime Stoppers, he or she is GUARANTEED ANONYMITY. Once a call is received, the tipster is given a control number. If, as a result of their information, an arrest and filing of criminal charges has been made, the caller is eligible for a monetary REWARD OF UP TO $1,000.00. The anonymity allows members of the community to offer information to law enforcement without the fear of reprisals.

Board of Directors – A volunteer group of citizens comprise the Board of Directors, the governing body of Crime Stoppers of Holmes County. They raise funds through donations and fund raisers. The Board of Directors also approves and administers all rewards.

Rewards – Rewards are approved and distributed monthly. The Board of Directors meets, review the cases and determines the reward to be paid. Once a reward has been determined, the caller is given a method to collect their reward by providing their control number. The identity of the caller is never known throughout the entire process.

Farmers facing cuts to food aid programs, agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-led House voted to slash domestic and international food aid Thursday while rejecting cuts to farm subsidies.

A spending bill to fund the nation's food and farm programs would cut the Women, Infants and Children program, which offers food aid and educational support for low-income mothers and their children, by $868 million, or 13 percent. An international food aid program that provides emergency aid and agricultural development would drop by more than $450 million, one-third of the program's budget. The legislation passed 217-203.

The bill would trim the Food and Drug Administration's $2.5 billion budget by almost 12 percent, straining the agency's ability to implement a new food safety law signed by President Barack Obama this year. Democratic attempts to restore some of the food safety money were rejected.

As they cut other programs, lawmakers rejected two proposals that would have saved money by lowering the maximum amount of money a farmer can receive in subsidies from the government. While fiscal conservatives and other critics of subsidies argued that they need to be cut as lawmakers look for ways to save, farm-state members said those cuts should be pushed back until Congress considers a new five-year farm bill next year.

Democrats said the cuts to food aid were reckless and that farm subsidies should be trimmed instead.

"The Republican bill is harmful, ineffective and plays politics with our children's health," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif.

Critics of farm subsidies did score one victory: The House voted to block a $147 million annual payment to Brazil's cotton industry. The United States agreed to make that payment last year after Brazil's industry complained to the World Trade Organization that Washington unfairly was subsidizing U.S. cotton farmers. The United States lost the WTO case and agreed to make the payments to Brazil as a settlement.

Rep. Ron Kind, D-Wis., a frequent critic of domestic farm subsidies, offered the amendment, saying the U.S. should lower domestic cotton subsidies to comply with the WTO instead of paying the settlement to Brazil. Kind was joined by fiscal conservatives who agreed the Brazil payment is wasteful.

"Let's end this nonsense of stacking subsidy program on top of subsidy program to blackmail other governments," Kind said.

In addition to making spending cuts, Republicans in the House used the legislation to express dissatisfaction with a number of Obama administration policies, including healthier eating initiatives championed by first lady Michelle Obama as part of her "Let's Move" campaign:

- Directs the Agriculture Department to rewrite rules it issued in January meant to make school meals healthier. Republicans say the new rules, the first major overhaul of school lunches in 15 years, are too costly.
- Forces USDA to report to Congress every time officials travel to promote the department's "Know Your Farmer, Know Your Food" program, which supports locally grown food, and discourages the department from giving research grants to support local food systems. Large agribusiness has been critical of the department's focus on these smaller food producers.

- Prevents USDA from moving forward with new rules that would make it easier for smaller farmers and ranchers to sue large livestock companies on antitrust grounds. The proposed rules are meant to address the growing concentration of corporate power in agriculture.
- Delays for more than a year new rules for reporting trades in derivatives, the complex financial instruments blamed for helping precipitate the 2008 financial crisis. A Republican amendment adopted Thursday would require the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which funded in the bill, to first have other rules in place to facilitate its collection of derivatives market data.

- Prevents the FDA from approving genetically modified salmon for human consumption, a decision set for later this year.
- Questions the scope of Obama administration initiatives to put calories on menus and limit the marketing of unhealthy foods to children.

The House bill would provide $17.3 billion for the day-to-day operations of USDA and FDA. The Senate has not released its version of the bill.

The agriculture measure is the third of 12 annual spending bills funding government operations for the budget year beginning Oct. 1. Republicans have promised to cut tens of billions of dollars this year as they tackle the annual budget process, in addition to trillions in cuts they hope to make across the government.

Thinking of You with Love
We thought of you with love today, but that is nothing new.
We thought about you yesterday,
and days before that too.
We think of you in silence,
we often speak your name

All we have are memories, and your picture in a frame.
Your memory is our keepsake, with which we will never part
God has you in His keeping,
we have you in our hearts.
A million times we've wanted you.
A million times we cried.
If love could only have saved you,
you never would have died.
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you didn't go alone.
For a part of us went with you...
the day God called you Home.

Pomp accompanies 2011 Holmes County High graduates

By Steve Liner
 Managing Editor
sliner@chipleypaper.com

As the sun moved into its reddish early evening glow, the green grass of Memorial Stadium in Bonifay was dotted with the sedate blue and gold as members of the Holmes County High School Class of 2011 moved across the field to take their places for commencement.

In the class were three valedictorians, a salutatorian and 33 honors graduates, who completed high school with an cumulative average of 3.25 and above. And waiting for them as they walked in were the members of their faculty and staff along with VIP guests invited for the ceremonies.

"If I have seen further, it is because I stood on the shoulder of giants," said Class President Ryan Pickwick in his welcome address. Pickwick had served the class as its president for three years, he said.

"I encourage everyone to look forward and not back," Hannah Pipin said in her salutatory address. "Never lose hope," said Valedictorian Jenna Belser. "Even darkness will pass. Good is worth fighting for."

One of the most unusual moments of any of this year's local graduations came with a valedictory story about manure and optimism.

"There once was a little boy who always, always looked on the bright side," recounted valedictorian Carley Long. In fact, she said, the boy's sense of optimism got so strong that it concerned his parents, who tried everything to dampen his positivity. Finally, she said, they came upon a plan. They dropped the boy in a vat of horse manure. The boy stood forlorn for a moment, but then, his expression brightened and he began to dig toward the bottom of the vat.

"What are you doing?" inquired the parents.

"With this much manure," the delighted boy said, "there must be a pony in here somewhere."

And so the members of the Class of 2011, diplomas in hand, were sent out to seek their personal ponies with a unique vision arising from standing on the shoulders of giants.

Finding thankfulness in 'the rut'

One of my greatest challenges as a believer is making sure I am relating to God in a fresh way that, I hope, is meaningful worship

STEVE LINER
Living the Editor's Life

for Him and truly heartfelt by me.

Sometimes I have to stop myself in mid-prayer for a little self-reminder. See, I am a creature of planning – and that often can be read as a creature of habit.

I neither go to bed at night nor do I rise up to face my day without prayer.

But the repetition of that can be spiritually deadly, I'm afraid.

I find myself saying my version of "Now I lay me down to sleep," and I have to stop, regroup and start over.

Truth is, God is so good to us that He deserves our complete attention when we pray.

Talking about this reminds me of one of the most startling episodes in the life of Christ. He was walking in Judea when he came upon 10 men with leprosy. "Help us!" they cried. And he did. Immediately, off they went, celebrating. But one thinks better of it and comes back to thank Jesus.

"Where are the others?" Jesus asks.

Naturally, there is no answer to that.

The point is, we get in a rut and, while there, we start to feel entitled to the blessings we receive. The logical next step is to go our way celebrating or belly aching or whatever, based on our personality or state of life.

So, my chore each morning and each night is to make sure I'm living in the moment when I am thankful or when I ask for a blessing or guidance.

I definitely do not want the Savior to be looking at my back, saying, "Where's Steve? Didn't he receive the blessing, too?"

And, of course the truth is, I have been blessed beyond any way to express gratitude.

So, thank you, Lord.

FBC of Orlando Global Mission Team lends BCF helping hand

Special to Extra

For eleven years, First Baptist Church (FBC) of Orlando's Global Mission Team has given time, energy and resources on mission at The Baptist College of Florida (BCF) in Graceville. This year, the mission team, coordinated by Jim Worthan and his wife, Pat, arrived on campus the third week of June with willing hearts ready to work and lend a helping hand.

The 73 member team provided manual labor around the campus in addition to the prayer support for what God continues to do in the lives of the students attending BCF. For years, the volunteers have worked tirelessly on projects around the campus laboring long hours in the sweltering summer heat. Many of the team members speak of Graceville as their "adopted summer home" as they return each year investing their time and skills in improving the facilities and landscape.

Members of the Global Mission Team recognize the value of an institution that trains men and women for areas of Christian service and ministry, which is why they repeatedly devote their time and money into helping maintain its physical premises. When asked, Wortham humbly acknowledges that working on the BCF campus allows the school to focus and channel more resources on student scholarships and obtaining faculty members that are training the next generation to spread the Gospel.

The visiting mission team made visible impacts all over campus this year as they worked hundreds of man-hours sprucing up the grounds, trimming bushes, painting, and maintaining the academic beauty of the campus. They also filled a tremendous need in restoring and preparing the new classroom complex located in Heritage Village.

The actions and dedication of the missionaries from Orlando serve as a clear indicator of their love for God and Kingdom work. They make the five and a half hour journey to Graceville each year and sleep in the dorms each night after prayer time and devotions. They are a welcome sight and joy to the staff and administration at BCF. It is because of their vision, their dedication, and unending passion for people and service that keeps this group of volunteer construction workers, electricians, teachers, Sunday school workers, praise leaders, moms, dads, grandparents, and young people, returning to their summer home.

More information about mission opportunities is available by contacting The Baptist College of Florida at (800) 328-2660 ext. 460.

BELIEVE IN FREEDOM

There is a long-standing debate among philosophers concerning the nature of freedom. The positions on this issue range from those who claim we are nothing more than machines (and thus freedom is merely an illusion), to those who claim that our actions are completely undetermined by nature or nurture, and thus that we are radically free. As usual in philosophical debates, the truth most probably lies somewhere in the middle. Our behavior is determined to some degree by our inherited constitution and by our upbringing, and yet in most circumstances, those factors don't compel us to act in any particular way. As humans we can choose not to do the habitual or expected thing, however difficult this may be. And, we actually "prove" our freedom most when we resist the inclination to do wrong and force ourselves instead to do what is right. While the greatest hindrance to our freedom is the belief that we are just cogs in a wheel whose movements are determined by forces beyond our control, perhaps the greatest boon to our freedom is the belief that we are indeed free, and the resolution to always make good use of it. Therefore, we should believe that we are free, and we will be.

Watch and pray that you may not enter into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

- R.S.V. Matthew 26:41

Atheist group drops anti-church lawsuit

Special to Extra

A group of atheists and anti-religionists agreed Friday to voluntarily dismiss a federal lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of centuries-old tax exemptions for parsonages and other ministerial housing.

The voluntary dismissal was filed today with the U.S. District Court in Sacramento. The plaintiffs, led by the Freedom From Religion Foundation and represented by atheist Michael Newdow, had not alleged that they had ever asked federal and state tax officials for the same treatment prior to filing suit and claiming favoritism toward religion.

Pacific Justice Institute represented a Sacramento pastor, on behalf of thousands of clergy throughout California, who would have been directly affected by a ruling in favor of the FFRF. The District Court initially denied PJI's request to intervene in the case, holding that the IRS and Franchise Tax Board would adequately represent ministers' interests. However, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal reversed that decision last month, and PJI had been preparing to enter the case and present a staunch defense of the pastors.

PJI Chief Counsel Kevin Snider, who successfully argued PJI's motion to intervene in the case at the Ninth Circuit, stated, "We are pleased that this case has been dismissed, but we have no illusions that the FFRF and its allies will abandon their attacks on the clergy. We will remain vigilant to protect the outstanding men and women who serve our faith communities, and we are prepared to counter any future court challenges of this nature."

Baptists adopt immigration resolution

Southern Baptists adopted a resolution Wednesday that supports a path to citizenship for undocumented immigrants but clearly states they reject "amnesty."

After heated debate at their annual meeting in Phoenix, the Baptists approved a statement that called for secure borders and "a just and compassionate path to legal status, with appropriate restitutionary measures" for illegal immigrants already in the U.S.

Some delegates said the language on "legal status" was tantamount to amnesty, prompting an almost equally divided vote over whether to remove it. In response, officials added language that said: "This resolution is not to be construed as support for amnesty for any undocumented immigrant."

After Tuesday's

election that put an African-American pastor in the denomination's No. 2 leadership position, and plans to increase ethnic diversity, the resolution emphasized the church should minister regardless of a person's immigration status or country of origin.

"The intention ... is to point us all toward thinking about those who have come into the United States from other nations," said Paul Jimenez, a South Carolina pastor and chair of the resolutions committee.

In a separate and unexpected vote, delegates expressed "profound disappointment" with the 2011 translation of the popular New International Version of the Bible, saying its use of gender-neutral language has made it an "inaccurate translation of God's inspired Scripture." The meeting was attended by 4,814 registrants, the lowest number since 1944.

USDA announces compensation for claims of discrimination

Staff Report

The U.S. Department of Agriculture this week released the following statement in its ongoing legally required effort to locate and eliminate discriminatory practices related particularly to Hispanics and women.

Those who feel they have been unfairly treated in matters relating to farm loans are given instructions in the following statement related to steps they should take to correct any problem.

At the request of the USDA, as a result of court orders relative to the agency's lending practices, the statement is printed in full as presented to the newspaper.

"If you believe that the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) improperly denied farm loan benefits to you between 1981 and 2000 because you are Hispanic, or because you are female, you may be eligible to apply for compensation.

"This means you may be eligible if:

- "1. you sought a farm loan or farm-loan servicing during that period; and
- "2. the loan was denied, provided late, approved for a lesser amount than requested, or approved with restrictive conditions, or USDA failed to provide an appropriate loan service; and

"3. you believe these actions were based on your being Hispanic, or your being female.

"If you want to register your name to receive a claims packet, you can call the Farmer and Rancher Call Center at 1-888-508-4429 or access the following website: www.farmer-claims.gov

"In 2011, a claims administrator will begin mailing claims packages to those who have requested one through the Call Center or website. The claims package will have detailed information about the eligibility and claims process.

"For guidance, you may contact a lawyer or other legal services provider in your community.

"If you are currently represented by counsel regarding allegations of discrimination or in a lawsuit claiming discrimination, you should contact your counsel regarding this claims process.

USDA Cannot Provide Legal Advice to You.

USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer."
