'A tidal wave of change'

State restructuring rocks county planning process

By Steve Liner
Managing Editor
sliner@chipleypaper.com

A "tidal wave" of change has hit the Holmes County comprehensive planning process, commissioners were told last week, leading to a $25,000 change order request from the county's planning consultant. The request by Diversified Environmental Planning (DEP) to make the addition to its contract came in the wake of unexpected action by the Florida Legislature and Gov. Rick Scott to disband the Florida Department of Community Affairs. "When we contracted with the county (earlier this year), we had no intention of making any changes," DEP Principal Hilton Meadows told the board of county commissioners. "But we did not expect the changes that were made to the Department of Community Affairs."

County Attorney Jeff Goodman said the county is "caught in a tidal wave of change." Meadows told the commission that, even though DEP already has prepared "over 500 pages" of documents for the Holmes County Comprehensive Land Use Plan, unanticipated changes by the governor and Legislature will require up to five months of new effort to complete the plan and make it consistent with two new state laws and a host of regulations. But the commission balked at the point of entering into the change order, at least for the time being. "We made it clear we wanted a contract for a comprehensive plan and agreed what we'd pay for it," Commissioner Kenneth Williams said. Changes to Florida's land use planning laws and action to reorganize the Department of Community Affairs changed dramatically in the final moments of the Legislative session. Meadows told the commissioners the changes give greater

South Alabama Gas expands into Bonifay

The new Hy Temp store just outside of downtown Bonifay is a gleaming storefront, but it symbolizes more: South Alabama Gas opening the gateway to a major expansion into the Florida Panhandle. As the ribbon was cut last Friday on the new Bonifay store, Mark Burgess, South Alabama's chief executive officer, beamed in the background, preferring to give all the attention to his new Florida employees under the leadership of Area Operations Supervisory Cindy Myers. The ribbon cutting put the cap on a South Alabama expansion that saw the purchase of Crutchfield Gas in Graceville, Hy Temp in

Holmes schools earn high grades from state

By Steve Liner
Managing Editor
sliner@chipleypaper.com

Even though high school scores are still pending release by the Florida Department of Education (DOE), it is clear Holmes County schools scored well for Academic Year 2010-2011. Individual school scores were released June 30 by DOE with both Bonifay Elementary and Ponce de Leon Elementary schools receiving overall grades of A. Holmes County was given an overall score of B for Academic Year 2009-2010, DOE records show. In writing, where testing was made more stringent by state standards, countywide scores showed that 94 percent of Holmes County elementary students scored at grade level or above. In the same report, Bonifay Middle School was given a B grade. Statewide, even with an increase in writing standards this year, the grades of Florida's public elementary, middle and non-high school combination schools remained

Rabies Advisory issued in Holmes County

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The Holmes County Health Department has issued a Rabies Advisory for two areas in the county. The first is in the southwest part of the county in the vicinity of Oak Grove Road and U.S. Highway 90, east of Ponce de Leon. The second is in the northeast of the county on Bush Road, east of the town of Noma. Health officials are urging residents to avoid all contact with high-risk stray and wild animals including raccoons, foxes, skunks and bats. Rabies is a viral disease affecting the central nervous system that usually results in death. Rabies can be prevented but not cured. All warm-blooded animals, including humans, are able to contract rabies. Rabies is almost always contracted by exposure to a rabid animal. Exposure can come through a bite, scratches or saliva from the animal coming in contact with broken skin of another animal or a human. To avoid the risk of exposure to rabid animals, HCHD recommends that the following guidelines be followed:

- Do not feed wild or stray animals.
 - Pet food should not be left outside.
 - Secure trash receptacles to avoid attracting wild or stray animals.
 - Teach children never to handle unfamiliar animals, either wild or domestic, even if they appear friendly.
 - Never adopt wild animals or bring them into your home.
 - Do not try to nurse sick animals to health.
- Persons who have had physical contact with a suspicious animal should do the following:

- Wash the wound right away with soap and water to decrease the chances of infection.
- Seek medical attention immediately for post-exposure care and vaccine.
- Get a description of the animal that bit or scratched you.

The health department is recommending residents to report any suspicious behavior in wild animals or stray animals to the Holmes County Sheriff Department, 547-4421, or Holmes County Health Department, 547-8500, ext. 2.

Extension Service plans pesticide training, exams

The Washington County Extension Service has announced training, examination and continuing education opportunities for pesticide applicators.

The classes with attendant examinations are required for all private, commercial or public pesticide license holders. Previously licensed applicators also are required to take a number of hours of continuing education, and the announced classes can fulfill some of this requirement, County Horticulture Extension Agent Matt Orwat said.

"This is an opportunity for individuals needing general standards (CORE) or private applicator agriculture pest control CEUs or needing pesticide license exams to have their requirements fulfilled," Orwat said.

The training will be from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. July 19 at the UF/IFAS Washington County Extension Office at 1424 Jackson Ave. in Chipley for general standards (CORE) and July 20 for private applicator agriculture pest control.

Topics will include principles of pest control, pesticide labeling and formulations, harmful effects and emergency response, worker protection standards, application equipment, calibration, formulation, area calculations and Florida law and regulations.

The cost will be $10 per day and includes lunch. Preregistration required.

For more information and registration, call the Washington County Extension Office at 638-6180.

Chipley and Ward Propane in Vernon. A fourth expansion in Blountstown completes the deal, at least for the moment.

"This is a great market and a great new store," Burgess said at the grand opening in Bonifay. Clearly, Burgess is pleased with the acquisitions, extending his stay through Saturday to enjoy what he was sure would be a big weekend for the new storefront and Hy Temp.

"We want to be good citizens of this community," he said, promising Hy Temp would maintain a high level of visibility in its new home in Bonifay and throughout the Central Florida Panhandle.

South Alabama Gas is a quasi-public company with a board of directors to whom Burgess reports. The Florida expansion, he said, is part of a broader plan for the company's growth and success.

The store established in Bonifay is a full-service facility, offering a full range of appliances as well as serving as headquarters for Holmes County operations that also include HVAC repair and service.

relatively stable, according to the 2011 school grades results released last week. As a result, more than three-quarters of these schools continue to be high-performing (receiving either an A or B). Some positive exceptions to this stability include gains in the number of elementary schools graded "A" (82 additional "A" schools) and a reduction of 13 schools graded "F" (44 in 2010 to 31 in 2011).

"Our teachers, principals and school district leaders deserve tremendous credit this year for answering the call of higher standards with resounding success," said Education Commissioner John L. Winn. "Over the last decade, we have continued to raise the achievement bar to ensure our students are learning the skills they need to be successful in today's economy, and every time that bar has been raised, our schools have redoubled their efforts to the direct benefit of children."

Of Florida's 2,547 graded elementary, middle and non-high school combination public schools earning "A" through "F" grades this year, 1,481 (58 percent) earned an A (an increase of 82 schools compared to last year), 458 or 18 percent earned a B (a decrease of 33 schools), 460 or 18 percent earned a C (a decrease of 35 schools), 117 or 5 percent earned a D (an increase of 16 schools) and 31 or 1 percent earned an F (a decrease of 13 schools).

The Florida School Recognition Program rewards schools that have sustained high student performance or demonstrated substantial improvement in student performance. Schools that receive an "A" or improve at least one performance grade from the previous year are eligible to earn an additional $70 per student. The School Recognition Program has had a positive effect on schools maintaining and improving grades. In 2011, 1,146 schools maintained their "A," 23 schools that were not graded last year earned an "A," 312 schools improved to an "A" and 187 schools improved to a grade other than an "A."

responsibility to counties, retaining all previous land use planning requirements with the exceptions of school and park and recreation land. In addition, he said, counties now have a mandate to use data from the Center for Business and Economic Resources at the University of Florida in preparing plans.

Commissioners asked that Goodman meet with Meadows to understand what the county should do both about land use planning and the DEP contract.

"If it's easier to produce something simpler and just as good for the county, it may not take as much time," Goodman said. "I don't understand what is salvageable."

Based on Williams' motion, the commission decided to delay pending the meeting between Goodman and Meadows.

The commission voted to hire Backwoods Building and Trust for a total of $24,177.44 to construct a storage facility for emergency operations equipment. Most of the funds for the construction will come from the state, according to Commissioner Chair Ron Monk. Backwoods entered the lowest of three bids for the project.

The commission also accepted a bid from Davis Plumbing to provide repairs to courthouse restrooms.

Finally, action was taken to clarify bid notices for asphalt for county construction. Clarifying language will be issued and submitted for bid reset to 2 p.m. July 22. Sealed bids for the materials will be opened July 26.

Sometimes being in hot water is a good thing.

When we hear the words "you're in hot water now," it's usually not a good thing. But with the H2O Plus program from your local electric cooperative, those words take on a whole new meaning. When you sign up for H2O Plus, we'll equip your water heater (at no cost to you) with a special device that allows us to cycle the unit for short periods of time (usually between two and four hours). You'll still have plenty of hot water in your tank while being a wiser energy user, which can result in a reduction of greenhouse gases. Call your local cooperative and sign up today.

Dothan man charged in area thefts, vandalism

Special to the Times-Advertiser

Within the past several weeks, businesses and churches in Jackson County, Graceville, Chipley and Marianna have been victims of vandalism and theft, according to a statement released Friday by the Chipley Police Department.

The central air conditioning units of these businesses and churches were dismantled and inside components removed. Law enforcement officers from the Jackson County Sheriff's Office, Graceville Police Department, Chipley Police Department and the Marianna Police Department conducted surveillances and extra patrol in these areas to apprehend the suspect(s) responsible for these crimes.

On the early morning hours of Thursday, June 30, a Graceville police officer was checking businesses in the strip mall on Prim Avenue. The officer observed a Jeep Grand Cherokee with a Georgia license plate behind the businesses and called for back-up while investigating further. The driver had fled the area on foot. The officer observed a central air conditioning unit had been dismantled.

Officers from the Graceville Police Department and deputies from the Jackson County Sheriff's Office and Chipley Police Department responded. K-9 units from Jackson Correctional Institution, Holmes Correctional Institution and Washington Correctional Institution arrived at the scene. After tracking the suspect a short distance, he was captured in a wooded area behind the mall. The suspect was identified as Benjamin Howard Chastain, residing in Dothan, Ala.

With cooperation from Chastain and further investigations by the Graceville Police Department, Marianna Police Department, Chipley Police Department and the Jackson County Sheriff's Office, several grand thefts from local businesses and churches were solved.

Chastain was placed into the Jackson County Correctional Facility and charged with grand theft. More charges are pending.

Tech Center Foundation celebrates funding success

By Steve Liner
Managing Editor

Earlier in the spring, the Washington Holmes County Technical Center (WHTC) Foundation sent out an SOS to its members: The foundation was in danger of failing to raise its matching funds for a statewide consortium of education foundations with the result that WHTC students in need of tuition assistance would not be helped.

In response, foundation members and contributors swung into action, making added contributions and recruiting other local businesses to donate.

As a result, the foundation surpassed the annual goal.

Last week, members of the foundation were called together to celebrate the victory — and more than $13,000 scholarships given to 33 students who otherwise would be unable to attend WHTC.

"You let me be here with confidence and independence," said Tonya Sweeting, a drafting student who took third place in statewide competition.

At the luncheon, the members elected officers for the coming year. Elected were Bert Roberts, chairman; Bill Howell, vice chairman; John Dougherty, treasurer; Martha Compton, secretary; and Ken Stoutemire, Wayne Saunders, Zenna Corbin, Jim Town and Vickie Williams, directors.

Trustees also were selected. They are Josephine Robinson-Floyd, Terry Ellis, Ted Everett, Bill Howell, Sallie Johnson, Colby Peel, Ralph and Marlene Ray, Perry and Hester Wells, Ernie Zorn, Zenna Corbin, John and Rebecca Dougherty, Gene and Stephanie Halley, Fred Lavender, Sheila Sanders, Wayne Saunders, James Town, Paula Waller, Price Wilson, Kim Wilson, Vann Brock, Pam Cates, Andy and Martha Compton, Joy Davis, Danny Finch, Missy Finch, Dawn Frost, Howard and Brenda Harris, Patsy Parker, Gloria Potts, Bert and Susan Roberts, Pat Schlenker, William Steverson, Luis Valencia, Vickie Williams and Lyle Young.

Recognized for her work was Sheila Saunders of Capital City Bank, who was named Fundraiser of the Year.

Winners of the Trustee Award in addition to Capital City Bank were Community South Credit Union, Corbin, Dawn Frost and the Kiwanis of Chipley. Chairman Awards were given to Atkins, One South Bank and Jim Town.

Foundation Award recipients were Pam Cates, Andy and Martha Compton, Cypress Creek Wood, John and Rebecca Dougherty, Elite Realty, Terry and Paula Ellis, Finch Fire and Water, Josephine-Robinson Floyd, Gloria's, Gene and Stephanie Halley, Howard and Brenda Harris, Sallie Johnson, King's Drugs, Fred Lavender, Northwest Florida Community Hospital, Optimist Club, Colby Peel, Peoples Bank, Ralph and Marlene Ray, Bert and Susan Roberts, Wayne and Carolyn Saunders, Tyndall Credit Union, Valencia Jewelers, Wal-Mart, Paula Waller, Washington County Chamber of Commerce, Price Wilson, Lyle Young and Ernie and Gwen Zorn.

Other Contributor awards went to the Bank of Bonifay, Mary Hermann, Janet Townsend and Perry and Hester Wells.

From one small town to another for Corbin

PeoplesSouth's branch president fits in

After PeoplesSouth opened its branch bank on South Waukesha Street, our son Glen asked me several times if I had met Stewart yet. It wasn't until last year when we were canvassing for sponsorships for Doctor's Memorial Foundation that I met the man Glen had been asking about.

Stewart Corbin came to Bonifay in March 2010 after several years at a Panama City Beach bank. When the opportunity came to come to Bonifay as the president of the branch here, he welcomed the move.

When I asked him what impressed him about Bonifay, there were several things. Like Corbin's hometown of Gladewater, Texas, Bonifay is situated at the junction of two major highways. He is interested in finding ways to capitalize on the traffic that passes through our little town, and he sees a great potential for growth here. Bonifay is about the same size as Gladewater, an east Texas town located about 20 miles from Tyler. Incidentally, that is where my husband took basic training at Camp Fanning during World War II. Tyler is also known as the Rose Capital as roses are grown commercially there. Like Bonifay, Gladewater has had a pro rodeo for many years. Now it calls itself the antique capital and boasts numerous antique shops that draw visitors from all over the nation. Stewart said what impresses him most about Bonifay are the sweet, kind, hard-working people. He mentioned that when they first opened, he'd hear teller Pepper Hodge call out to customers leaving the drive-through, "I love you." He thought, "Wow! She surely has a big family." He learned that she and the other tellers truly love their customers.

In the 1970s, PeoplesSouth Bank was chartered by a group of eight business, professional and agricultural leaders in Colquitt, Ga., to meet the financial needs of a largely agricultural community. They take pride in being a community bank, and even though they have grown from one to 19 locations, they still strive to maintain that same goal. Each customer is treated as an individual, and the employees are involved in the community. This philosophy is what drew them to Bonifay.

Corbin, 44, lives in Lynn Haven with his wife, Melonie, and four daughters, Bailey Anne, (she is the 14-year-old that spent the day at the blueberry farm with my granddaughter recently). Laurabelle is 11, Mattie-Mae is 9 and Daisy Joy is 7. They are active in First Baptist Church of Panama City, where Glen became friends with him as they are both deacons and both are involved in the music ministry. Stewart plays the trumpet in the orchestra where Glen occasionally plays his mandolin and regularly sings in the church choir.

When I first met Mr. Corbin, he told me that as a teenager in Texas, he planted about an acre of blueberries on his family ranch as an FFA project. Those berries helped pay his way through the University of Oklahoma, where he received his degree in finance.

Other employees of PeoplesSouth Bank in Bonifay are Christine Prescott in charge of customer service; Pepper Hodge and Dana Miles, tellers; and Tim Wright, loan officer. Janice Hewett is in charge of corporate compliance for 19 PeoplesSouth branches but maintains her office in Bonifay, which is near her home. In fact, the Hewett property adjoins my family's property just across the county line in Washington County.

We have a family story concerning the Hewett family. Practically everyone in our community was related to us so they were usually Aunt or Uncle or just plane Jane or Joe. A traveler stopped out front one day and asked my brother Perry for directions to Mr. Dave Hewett's house. After Perry gave him directions, the man asked, "Is he kin to you?"

Perry replied, "Yes, he's my mister." Well, Mr. Corbin, welcome to our little town. I hope we treat you like kinfolks.

Forget Ronald, now they're chewing on Sweet Tony

It just makes you wonder if there isn't something else for the federal government to do.

First, it was taking after Ronald McDonald for subverting the nutritional innocence of American children.

Now, low and behold, they want to get Tony the Tiger. And it ain't GRRRRREAT!

Listen, I know I wrote humorously about Ronald McDonald and suggested Dancin' Broccoli instead. But there is a limit.

I'm not saying it's Tony the Tiger. Frankly, I think we surpassed the limit long ago and blundered into Absurdville.

STEVE LINER
Managing Editor

I mean, we spent millions — no, literally millions — redesigning the Food Pyramid. Then we scrapped that and spent millions developing the plate.

What? Yes, true as I draw breath, they spent millions of our Great Recession taxes designing a plate.

Oh, they say, it's not just any plate. Indeed not. It shows caregivers (we can't say "Mom" anymore because that would be sexist and stereotyping of family roles) what size the meat is supposed to be and the veggies and such on our dinner plates.

Far superior to the Food Pyramid, right?

Wrong. The very premise is wrong.

To our government, we have no minds of our own. No personal will to wield. We are mindless victims of marketers. That's why we need graphic, icky pictures of smokers' lungs adorning half of our cigarette packs (I'll leave that to another time, though).

Somewhere along the line I missed the memo that I'm supposed to follow the commercials mindlessly and just say "charge it" to all the bad-for-me, creators-of-obesity commercials that come my way.

See, I'm not savvy enough to read the label and see if Tony's level of sugar is too high for me and my kids.

"Frosted Flakes," the little puff balls whine at me in the store. And, sure enough, I walk as if hypnotized to the cashier for the ringing up of a cereal with limited nutritional value but loads of refined cane sugar.

And, Lord help us all if I want a bowl of Fruit Loops! For two weeks I've been biting my tongue about certain congressional types walking out of the debt ceiling meetings. Truth is, we must not default on our obligations.

But instead of getting busy with the real, hard work of hammering out a deal we all need lest we become unable to afford a bowl of Tony's flakes, we get this from USDA.

It's enough to make a cactus laugh!

So, here's what I propose: lean down government of all the programs and know-it-alls who think they can protect me from myself. Let's repeal the laws and regulations that give teeth to that effort and see how much debt is left after that, shall we?

And, anyway, it could bring an end to the Medicare reform debate 'cause none of us can be expected to live long enough to cash in as we eat Frosted Flakes and smoke ourselves into early graves (not to mention not eating the proper percentage of veggies to go with our tasteless cod cutlets as specified by the Great USDA Plate).

It ain't a matter of political party, it's all Tony's fault. So maybe he isn't so GRRRRREAT after all!

Pet TALK

Shoo fly, don't bother me!

Shoo fly, don't bother me! Summer time is prime time for increased numbers of various types of flies that can irritate your horse and you. Put away that fly swatter, because there are better measures that can be taken to limit the number of flies.

"Stable flies, horse flies, black flies, deer flies, sand flies and biting midge flies — so many flies," said Dr. Glennon Mays, clinical associate professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences. "They all can bite your horse, draw blood and possibly cause allergic reactions."

"Flies will probably not be completely eliminated from your horse stable. But, there are control measures that can be put in place to decrease the fly population in your horse facilities."

Stable flies, one of the most common summer pests for horses, feed on the blood of warm-blooded animals, Mays said. They pierce the skin with their mouth parts, lacerate the skin and then inject saliva that contains an anticoagulant that keeps the blood flowing. The bite can be painful and irritating. Depending on your horse's skin sensitivity, there could also be a reaction to the bite. Stable flies usually feed during the early morning hours and again in the late afternoon. They also feed selectively, preferring the legs and belly to other areas of your horse's body.

"The female stable fly requires blood meals to produce viable eggs, and surprisingly, eggs are deposited in decaying animal and plant waste, generally not in fresh manure," Mays said. "Fly larvae can develop in stable waste that is a combination of damp straw and manure, or under hay bales that are in contact with moist soil. In the warm summer, the entire life cycle from egg to adult can be completed in three to six weeks."

The hot summer temperatures promote increased fly numbers, but sound sanitation practices in conjunction with other controls can decrease fly populations, Mays said. Reduce larvae development by eliminating the environment where they can develop. Spread manure and stable bedding regularly so that it will dry out fast as possible. Modify drainage areas so that excess water is eliminated.

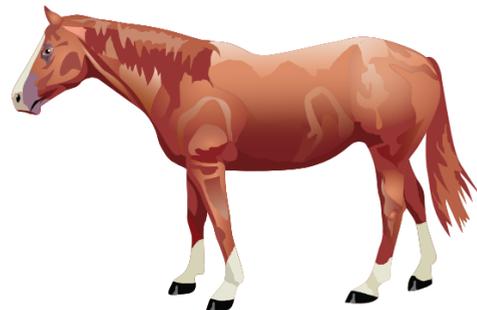

When stable flies finish feeding, they seek a place to rest and digest their blood meal. This instinctive habit makes way for control of adult flies with residual insecticides sprayed on stable surfaces, Mays said. Sides of buildings (inside and outside), stall surfaces and fences are all areas where flies can be found resting. Residual insecticides can provide fly control over a period of time. Be sure to follow label recommendations for use, mixing and spraying.

"Sprays and dusts may be used to protect your horse, but these usually have short residual effect," Mays said. "Repellents containing DEET are better suited for mosquitoes rather than flies."

The number of flies produced by a pair of stable flies and their offspring in the summer months is in the millions. Therefore, it is best to establish good fly control practices. A sound sanitation program is the first step needed to decrease stable fly populations at your horse facilities.

"It will take a combination of controls to decrease stable fly numbers," Mays said. "You need to implement measures to decrease fly breeding and larvae hatching. Any stable flies that make it through these stages should be chemically controlled with residual insecticides and direct animal applications."

Knowledge of some basic stable fly facts in addition to good stable management practices will help you to have a winning chance against the pesky stable fly.

Officials urge water conservation

Special to the Times-Advertiser

As drought conditions deepen across the Panhandle, the Northwest Florida Water Management District has urged all water users to conserve water. A water shortage warning order is in effect because of declining ground and surface water resources and increased use because of drought. Several surface water sites are at or near record daily low flows, and groundwater levels continue to decline and are approaching record lows.

"Everyone is urged to voluntarily reduce water use as much as possible," said Douglas E.

Barr, district executive director. "Extreme to exceptional drought conditions exist across the district's 16 counties, and monthly rainfall totals have been below normal for nine months."

The U.S. Drought Monitor indicates extreme drought conditions in counties east of the Apalachicola River and in Gulf County. Exceptional drought conditions, the most intense drought category, are indicated in counties west of the Apalachicola River and northern parts of Gadsden, Leon and Jefferson counties.

The City of Crestview has issued mandatory conservation measures, enforcing a city ordinance that requires residents to water between 5 p.m. and 11 a.m. and customers in odd-numbered houses to water on odd-numbered calendar days and even-numbered houses to water on even-numbered days. Customers are given a verbal warning on first violation followed by a fine on any additional violation.

Auburn Water System and Gulf Breeze Water Department have implemented voluntary conservation measures, asking customers to water every other day and not in the heat of the day. In Gulf Breeze, conservation measures apply only to reclaimed wastewater that is delivered for outdoor irrigation. Also, pond levels are supplemented by district-permitted groundwater.

Elsewhere in the district, water utilities have encouraged conservation measured but are reporting no problems because of drought. For example, the City of Fort Walton Beach and Okaloosa County Water and Sewer have encouraged coastal customers to irrigate with shallow wells from the sand-and-gravel-aquifer that is not used as a public supply source.

"Should the drought continue, we urge people to voluntarily reduce water consumption and maximize conservation," Barr said.

Residents and businesses not under local utility restrictions are urged to follow these guidelines:

- Limit outdoor watering to no more than two days per week; water only during low evaporation hours of 5 p.m. and 10 a.m.
- Limit hours of golf course irrigation.
- Reduce recreation if it requires pumping, diverting or otherwise using water supply, such as filling duck ponds.
- Discontinue aesthetic uses of water that are primarily decorative (such as fountains).

FLORIDA FREEDOM NEWSPAPERS

Bed, Bath and Beyond is one new store being added to Panama City Mall.

Bed, Bath and Beyond relocating

By Chris Segal

Florida Freedom Newspapers

PANAMA CITY — Bed, Bath & Beyond will relocate from the store's current location on 23rd Street to the Panama City Mall.

Also opening in the mall this fall will be two other stores, America's Best Contacts & Eyeglasses and Encore, a division of the Shoe Show Inc., according to CBL & Associates Properties, Inc., which owns and manages the mall.

"Bed Bath & Beyond strives to always put our best foot forward for our customers," wrote Rachael Risinger, a company public relations manager in an email. "In order to provide a 'fresh face' and enhanced shopping experience, we chose to relocate to the store versus doing an open store renovation and risk disrupting our customers shopping experience."

Risinger said the company did not have any information on what might happen to the store's current location when the new store opens.

The Panama City Mall management is enthusiastic about the impact the new stores will have on customers' shopping experience and the mall.

"It's a great economic impact to the mall to get these national retailers to our shoppers," said Chris Ware, the Panama City Mall general manager. "We are excited about them."

Bed Bath & Beyond is a chain of more than 1,000 stores nationwide that provide domestic merchandise and home furnishings. The new 23,000 square-foot store will be at the front of the mall.

Encore is a larger version of the parent company's stores and offers a wider variety of shoes and a variety of price. The Shoe Show is the nation's largest independent shoe store with 1,113 locations in 36 states.

The final new addition to the mall will be at the Shoppes at Panama City, the center at the rear of the mall where the Best Buy is located. America's Best Contacts & Eyeglasses will open and offer eyeglasses, frames, contact lenses and accessories. The new store will also offer eye exams by a professional optometrist. America's Best Contacts & Eyeglasses operates 300 optical stores across the country.

"We are committed to continually improving the shopping experience at Panama City Mall by bringing shoppers in the Florida Panhandle the best in today's retail names, and these new stores deliver on that commitment," said Ware, in a news release.

The Panama City Mall is owned and managed by CBL & Associates Properties, Inc. of Chattanooga, Tenn. The Panama City Mall houses more than 100 stores and eateries and is anchored by Dillards, JC Penny and Sears department stores.

Hooked on Outdoors

If you're looking for a place to fish during the holiday weekend and don't want to dodge boats, one of my favorite spots is St. Joe Bay. It is large and doesn't have a bottleneck pass like the one in St. Andrews.

St. Joe Bay has a pass about two miles wide and the current doesn't come boiling through like St. Andrews pass. St. Joe Bay is a large body of water running north and south and more than three miles wide from shore to shore running east to west.

Scott Lindsey
Outdoor Writer
captainslindsey@wto.com

The only bad part about fishing there is the scalloping currently going on. All the boat ramps will be full and this bay doesn't have an abundance of them. The first ramps you will encounter east of Panama City are in Mexico Beach. If you want to have a place to park I would advise you not sleep late.

If you are going toward the cape an obstacle to watch out for is the amount of water you will have to cross to get there. When the wind gets up in the middle of the day it can get pretty rough between the cape and Mexico Beach.

The best boat ramp moneywise is in downtown Port St. Joe because it is free. Down the road is Presnells landing which will entice every hard core scalloper from Georgia to Tennessee.

The best bet might be Eagle Harbor landing on the west shore of the bay. The state park there has a good landing and plenty of parking and you can start speckled trout fishing immediately after you launch.

St. Joe Bay has the most diverse sea life in this part of Florida. It is possible to catch everything from tarpon, speckled trout and redfish to a variety of sharks.

If you want to slip away from everyone fishing freshwater, I would head to the Apalachicola River. It should be clear enough to fish because with its size local rains don't easily stain it. In the head waters of Brothers River always is a favorite with bream fishermen.

Lake Wimico should offer good stringers of bream and bass, but you have to be a tough customer to stay on this lake after 10 a.m. There is no shade unless you go up into one of the creeks that feed the lake.

Expect a lot of company if you head for your favorite snapper hole. The Gulf is swarming with people who don't have a clue where to fish, and when they see another boat in one place for more than 10 minutes automatically think you are catching some fish.

White marlin are one of the billfish present in offshore waters of the Panhandle. Blue water fishing is prime from May through October. A yellowfin tuna comes over the rail. Tuna up to 150 pounds show up in big schools offshore in the Gulf of Mexico throughout the summer.

Blue water dreams

Offshore big game action marks Panhandle summers

By Frank Sargeant
franksargeant@bellsouth.net

In the dreams of every angler, there leaps a 1,000-pound blue marlin.

For most of us, that will remain a dream. But for those fortunate enough to finance an offshore trip in Florida's Panhandle waters anytime between May and October, it's always a possibility.

We know because Capt. Tom Browning and crew, fishing out of Destin, proved it few years back with a monster billfish that scaled 1,046 pounds. While that blue remains the biggest ever for Florida, several fish in the 700-pound range have been caught since.

The offshore fish are what biologists call "pelagics" or ocean roamers. They ride the Gulf Loop Current out of the Caribbean in May, stay in the DeSoto Canyon and off the Mississippi Delta through the summer, and complete the loop in fall as water temperatures start to fall back into the 70s offshore.

In addition to the blue marlin, there are white marlin, sailfish, wahoo, yellowfin tuna and dolphin in the mix, as well as swordfish — mostly caught at night by specialists — all marking Panhandle waters as some of the best big game fishing territory in the nation.

The fishing begins about 50 miles offshore most of the time, around the 100-fathom (600-foot) curve. Basically, skippers run south until they hit the clear blue of offshore water. The edge where it meets the green inshore water often is a great spot to start trolling for weedline species such as dolphin.

The fishing areas are well-known despite being so far from land; the Elbow, the Spur, the Nipple, the Steps and the Squiggles all are part of the lexicon of offshore skippers, each named for unique bottom characteristics.

Needless to say, this is not small boat country. Most experienced offshore anglers consider a 35-footer the minimum for safety. Twin engines are a must, as are satellite communications gear and a life raft.

Since very few of us can afford boats of that size and equipment, charters are the way to go for most. Fortunately, Panhandle ports have plenty of options, with Destin one of the most active bluewater towns in the nation.

It is not cheap to go blue water fishing. Because of the staggering costs of fuel, charter fees typically are $1,200 to $1,500 per day. On top of which you generally are expected to tip the crew 10 to 15 percent.

The cost of a day's charter can be split by up to six anglers on most boats. That cuts the tally back to a reasonable level for those who can stand to share "chair time," or hours spent actually sitting in the fighting chair and waiting for the strike.

Billfishing is a game of patience, and more often than not, those who can spend only a single day chasing marlin or sails will be disappointed. However, if you can be satisfied with 100-pound yellowfin tuna, 50-pound wahoo and 40-pound dolphin — all highly edible creatures — you're likely to feel richly rewarded for the offshore adventure.

Getting far offshore is a treat in itself. You may see a school of hundreds of oceanic dolphin driving tuna, or sit on the bowsprit and watch these black-and-white mammals play in the bow wake just a few feet below.

You might see a whale shark lazing along at the surface, sucking in hundreds of gallons of plankton at each gulp. Flying fish sail away like transparent butterflies. And just looking into water so clear that you can see a 100 feet straight down is a treat for landlubbers.

If you do luck into a marlin, don't expect to tie it to the roof of the station wagon for the trip home. Billfish usually are released after a few photographs. They are scarce, mostly due to incidental commercial long-line kills and highly valued by the charter skippers who depend on them as the poster children of their advertising.

One of the best online sources for info on blue water fishing in the Panhandle is Capt. John Holley's site, www.catchbigmarlin.com. There are numerous other skippers at Panhandle fishing centers who offer blue water trips, as well.

NFL, NBA LOCKOUTS: A GUIDE

In March, NFL owners locked out their players. On Friday, NBA owners followed suit.

It's believed that only once before two of the United States' major sports leagues have been shuttered at the same time.

Here's a look at what's at stake in the labor disputes, and how they are similar and different:

Q: What's with the NFL and the NBA being stuck in labor lockout at the same time? Are the two situations connected?

A: It's partly a coincidence that the two leagues' collective bargaining agreements expired within months of each other. But it's probably not a fluke that owners in both sports are saying at the same time that the old deals didn't provide them with sufficient revenue. The U.S. economy is emerging from a recession. And NFL and NBA leaders contend there aren't enough new revenue streams to cover costs for building and improving stadiums and arenas.

Q: But haven't both sports been doing very well recently?

A: The NFL and NBA have enjoyed a surge in interest the last couple of seasons, with appealing story lines and big-name stars driving robust television ratings. In fact, the two most watched U.S. television programs of all time were the past two Super Bowls. And the NBA, though not the same draw as pro football, last month had the highest rating for a Game 6 of its final series in 11 years.

Both players' associations argue that's proof the leagues are better off than they purport to be. The owners counter that ratings and other indicators of popularity are irrelevant when their economic models are broken. NBA owners say they lost hundreds of millions of dollars in every season of the last collective bargaining agreement, which was ratified in 2005. According to league officials, 22 of the 30 teams were losing money this past season. One of the points of contention between the NFL and its players is that the union wants access to more financial data from teams to see the exact economic situation of the clubs.

Q: OK. But what, exactly, is a lockout? And how's it different from a strike?

A: Management has the right under federal labor law to shut down a business once a CBA expires. That means, for instance, that the leagues aren't paying for players' health insurance, and free agents can't sign with teams. Employees have the same right to strike.

In this case, for both basketball and football, the owners' side is the one that wants to significantly alter the structure of the old deal, leading to a lockout, not a strike.

Q: How similar are the issues in the two sports' negotiations?

A: The tone of the two labor disputes has differed because of the league's disparate financial situations. For the NFL, the debate is how to divvy up $9 billion in revenues, with players and owners wrangling over what is the fairest split. The NBA is in a more dire economic plight, and the question is how much of a hit players' salaries will take as a result.

Q: Is the NBA lockout going to look like the NFL's?

A: The NFL union decertified and turned to the courts in an attempt to lift the lockout. The NBA players' association doesn't plan to go that route, at least for now.

Q: Should fans be worried about losing games in either situation?

A: Anything's possible. There was optimism earlier this week that an NFL deal was near, but the sides went into the holiday weekend without an agreement. The league says it hasn't set a deadline for when games would be canceled without a CBA. The regular season is supposed to start Sept. 8, but the NFL could start later and still get in 16 games. The NBA's regular season isn't scheduled to start until around late October, but at the moment both sides say they're very far apart.

Panhandle Conference pitchers get mixed results on season

By Brad Milner

Florida Freedom Newspapers

This season has brought mixed results to three former Panhandle Conference pitchers.

Former Chipola College pitcher Patrick Corbin is finding his footing after a rough start to the year. Fellow Indians' prospect Ryan Chaffee, is finding it difficult to escape a slump. And Former Gulf Coast State College left-hander Cam Greathouse is fighting control issues.

Corbin has won his last four decisions after starting 2-2 for Double-A Mobile, Ala., in the Arizona Diamondbacks' organization. The streak of good fortune came after he gave up 13 hits and nine runs in five innings pitched in a loss May 19. He has been in command since the sluggish performance.

The 6-foot-3, 165-pound left-hander has given up 17 hits in the four straight wins, with each outing lasting at least 5 2/3 innings. He tossed a season-high eight innings against Birmingham, Ala., on June 23. He has 30 strikeouts and five walks in the four-game spurt.

Chaffee is nearly at a 2:1 strikeout-to-walk ratio but has been hit hard this season and hasn't been able to stop the tide of defeat. He has given up 60 hits in 52 1/3 innings for Single-A Inland Empire, located in San Bernardino, Calif.

The 6-2, 195-pound righty has a 7.05 ERA and a 1-7 record with losses in seven straight decisions. Opponents are hitting .275 off of him for the season and .293 against in his last 10 appearances for the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim minor-league team.

Greathouse's record is better, 4-4, for Single-A Peoria, Ill., of the Chicago Cubs' farm system, but he hasn't been able to hold down his walks. He has 49 walks to 48 strikeouts in 11 appearances, all starts. The 6-2, 230-pounder is holding opponents to a .200 average with one or fewer hits in four of his last eight outings.

On the way back: Former Marianna High School standout Alan Horne is slowly making his way back from multiple shoulder surgeries. The 6-4, 195-pound righty hasn't pitched in a professional game since 2009. He is entering his seventh season in the New York Yankees' organization.

Horne is in extended spring training to rehabilitate his shoulder and gain arm strength. He has made several starts, most lasting two or three innings. The Lower Hudson Journal News reported Horne had a hook-shaped bone spur removed from his shoulder during the second procedure that was causing more tearing.

Waiting game: Short-season teams begin play later this month. Among those waiting for first at-bats on the Rookie League level include former Chipola stars Andy Fermin, Trey Manz and Dayne Read.

Horne shoulders the burden

Marianna grad still pushing forward despite injuries

By Bard Milner
Florida Freedom Newspapers

TRENTON, N.J. — Minor league pitcher Alan Horne has faced so much adversity that some day a surgical procedure might be commemorated in his name.

Each arm misery, more trying than the last, has chiseled another notch in Horne's resolve. Rather than walk away, Horne moved forward each time in the hopes of recapturing a promising future as a right-handed pitcher.

The 6-foot-4, 195-pound Horne took the mound June 22 for Trenton, N.J., the Double-A farm club of the New York Yankees. It was his first live game since 2009, when he made 14 appearances on three levels until sidelined with shoulder trouble.

His outing wasn't memorable, as he walked five and gave up four runs without recording an out. Yet somehow it served as a measuring stick and a baby step in the right direction.

"I would call it more excited than nervous. Rehab is a tough thing on somebody, and I've basically been doing it since the beginning of 2008," Horne said. "It's nice to get out and compete again, throw some real games that have some meaning to them because it's so hard to get yourself up for (extended) spring training games and on the lower levels considering where I was when this all started."

Horne believed he was on the verge of a breakthrough when his most recent reconstruction took place in 2008. He was 12-4 the previous season at Trenton with 165 strikeouts and 57 walks in 153 1/3 innings. He opened 2008 at Triple-A and had reason to anticipate that a productive half-summer possibly would generate a call-up from the Yankees.

Instead he struggled with his command and was 2-3 in eight starts. After a stint on the disabled list and a rough rehab start, Horne was back on the operating table.

The Yankees shut him down in 2009 when his right shoulder pain worsened following his surgery a year earlier.

"I was still having some issues toward the end of the year," Horne said. "We hoped shutting me down would do it good."

It didn't. In 2010, an MRI revealed that Horne had torn 80 percent of his rotator cuff. After a consultation with Dr. James Andrews, it was decided that another surgery, considering the extent of his damage, could be perilous to Horne's career.

Horne agreed on an alternative treatment plan called platelet-rich plasma therapy. The innovative treatment involved taking a sample of Horne's blood that was put into a centrifuge to separate the healing platelets. Horne underwent six weeks of PRP injections, but the pain persisted.

"I started throwing again and felt really miserable," Horne said. "We figured the injections didn't work."

Surgery was scheduled and Horne expected the worst. However, Andrews discovered that the rotator cuff was almost completely healed. The problem was a hook-shaped bone spur on Horne's collarbone that had ripped a hole through the cuff to his bursa sac.

The spur was removed, and Horne resumed throwing without pain.

"I've started to feel normal pitching soreness," Horne said. "It doesn't feel like I've had two surgeries. I had six outings in extended spring. My last I threw 76 pitches and am really getting stretched out where I need to be."

Horne maintains hope that in a few years he can be pitching in the major leagues. At 28, he's long past the age of top prospects, but his resolve has been strengthened by challenges that would have sidetracked the dreams of many less determined.

Cozzie charged with sexual assault, murder in teen's death

By Angel McCurdy
Florida Freedom Newspapers

DeFUNIAC SPRINGS — A Walton County grand jury has indicted Steven Cozzie on a charge of first-degree premeditated murder in the death of a 15-year-old girl last month.

The grand jury on Friday also indicted Cozzie on charges of aggravated child abuse, armed kidnapping and sexual battery, according to a news release from the State Attorney's Office.

The indictment was handed down in the June 16 strangulation and beating death of Courtney Wilkes of Lyons, Ga., in Seagrove Beach.

STEVEN COZZIE

State Attorney Bill Eddins said the sexual battery charge "stems from activities that occurred at or around the time of the murder." Cozzie, 22, of Seagrove Beach, was arrested June 17 after Wilkes' body was found in a wooded area off the Cassine Nature Trail. Wilkes was vacationing with her family at a nearby condominium.

According to Cozzie's arrest report, it is believed he hit her in the head with a stick and later took a friend to see the body.

According to Eddins, Wilkes' autopsy is complete, and most of the results have been obtained. However, he said some tests are pending, and until they are completed, no specific information will be released.

"It's not appropriate to talk about the results, because it is a pending case," Eddins said.

Death penalty decision

The next step for prosecutors will be to decide whether to seek the death penalty for Cozzie. They were continuing to gather information Friday to determine what sentence they will seek.

Cozzie is being held without bond at the Walton County Jail.

His plea day is scheduled for July 19.

Eddins said it could take a year or two for the case to come to trial. He said Cozzie's attorney can obtain the list of witnesses and any other information collected by the prosecution for the discovery process.

Assistant State Attorney Bobby Elmore will represent the state, and public defender Lenny Platterborze will represent Cozzie. Circuit Judge Kelvin Wells will preside at the trial.

Grass problem plagues Airport Authority

By Pat Kelly
Florida Freedom Newspapers

PANAMA CITY BEACH — As Yogi Berra once said: It's déjà vu all over again.

The Airport Authority board on June 29 agreed to spend an extra $400,000 to mend the sod, winter rye grass and seed germination problems that airport officials say Phoenix Construction left behind. The exact figure will be brought back to the board at a later date.

Phoenix and its grassing subcontractor were asked to clean up the setback but have refused to deal with the serious erosion possibilities that are being closely monitored by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, said John Wheat, executive director of Northwest Florida Beaches International Airport.

"This is an environmental problem, and the contractor has said he will not do anything about it,"

Phoenix President James Finch, whose contract was completed in May 2010, said following the meeting that the work can't be done under current engineering specifications, an argument between Finch and airport officials that became particularly fierce during the airport's $318 million construction.

That argument finally led to a multimillion-dollar lawsuit between the two parties that still has not gone to court.

Finch said June 29 that his subcontractor on grassing issues, C.W. Roberts, has not refused to do the work, but has said only that the soil must be treated with more chemicals than is provided for under current engineering plans.

"If they want to pay us to go out there and do the grass, we'll do that," Finch said. "But the way the engineers are saying to do it is not going to work. We are not refusing to do it; we're just saying it can't be done the way they want."

Wheat said the area of environmental concern is located on land cleared but never paved for the airport's crosswind runway, a project never completed because of financial concerns. In the place set aside for the runway, expensive sod didn't take root, grass seed didn't germinate, and the rye winter grass looks like plant stubble in an arid and alien land.

Phoenix was responsible for clearing and grassing the airport site and also constructed the facility's 10,000-foot runway.

George Roberts, head of C.W. Roberts, said June 29 he sent a letter to airport officials explaining the reasons for the problems, not the least of which were the current drought conditions.

Like Finch, he said the soil needed to be treated with more chemicals than the engineers allow.

"I could have 10,000 pounds of seed and the grass wouldn't grow under those conditions," Roberts said.

Wheat said the final amount to fix the issue will be charged back to Phoenix, making it the latest pile of money in an ongoing battle that still must be decided in the courts.

In other financial matters, Wheat told board members the airport relocation project has so far cost $318,630,350 through May 31, with the remaining payouts estimated to be $6,109,747, including the $400,000 to fix the grassing troubles, $1,070,700 associated with preparing the old airport for sale, and $1,000,000 in construction litigation costs.

Board chairman Gerry Clemons, who has been on the Airport Authority board since the new airport was just an idea, was presented with an engraved, life-size airplane propeller suitable for mounting on a wall. June 29 was his last meeting.

J. Carey Scott, appointed by the Panama City Commission as Clemons' replacement June 28, will join the board next month, when a new chairman will be chosen.

The Historic Museum will be open, and that is a treat for one and all. Event is rain or shine.

Nelson Reunion

Descendants of Ed and Sarah (Register) Nelson will hold their annual reunion July 9 at Bailey's Surf and Turf on Highway 90 east in Chipley, at 11 a.m.

Ed and Sarah Nelson lived on a homestead about two miles from Oakie Ridge Baptist Church on what is today called Gilbert Mill Road south of Chipley. Ed was a Baptist preacher and farmer. He and Sarah were two of the 12 original members of Oakie Ridge Church and were the parents of 10 children, some of whom were already gone from home when the youngest was born. That explains why, although they were a close-knit family, they were never all together at one time until they were advanced in years and held a reunion in 1947; a picture of all 10 made by Herbert Heisner on that occasion became instantly treasured by family members, especially since one sister, Lavonia, was involved in an auto accident en route home and died in a few days later.

Ed Nelson was descended from Jens Nissen of Hadersley, Denmark, who landed on American shores at Port St. Joe in 1829. His name was Americanized to John Nelson as he found work at a salt works somewhere along the coast and learned the language. He migrated westward and bought land in 1838 near Vernon, was married, and later helped organize a church called the Holmes Valley Baptist Church, later renamed Ebenezer Baptist Church, sometime about 1846.

Many other descendants of John Nelson live in this area, and all are invited to attend the reunion.

Kolmetz Family Reunion

The Kolmetz Family Reunion will be on July 9, from 10 a.m. until, at Hinson Crossroads Fire Department, on Douglas Ferry Road in Vernon.

Locals raise money for Hearts of Promise

By Cecilia Spears
Staff Writer
cspears@chipleypaper.com

CHIPLEY — Local residents Wayne and Carolyn Saunders are raising money in honor of their granddaughter, who was born with a congenital heart defect, and Dr. John Mayer, the doctor who's research saved her life.

"We started Hearts of Promise in April 2003 following Holly's second open-heart surgery," Carolyn said. "The mission of Hearts of Promise is to raise funds for research, currently being conducted by Holly's cardiac surgeon, Dr. Mayer, at Children's Hospital Boston."

She said Mayer's research is to find a way to grow a valve from a child's own tissue and eliminate the need for multiple heart surgeries for thousands of children.

Two major ongoing fundraisers for the nonprofit organization Hearts of Promise are the selling of Heart-to-Heart Recipes and Send a Beanie Baby; all proceeds go to Mayer's research at Children's Hospital Boston.

"God has truly blessed Holly and all our fundraisers," Carolyn said. "Over 5,000 Heart to Heart Recipes cookbooks have been sold through the book's first seven printings, and we just ordered the eighth printing due to the great response to the cookbook and the many requests received."

The books are made up of hundreds of local recipes "guaranteed to fill you, heart, mind, body and soul."

"We've got a lot of down-home recipes given to us by so many kindhearted people, and the responses to the cookbooks are staggering," Carolyn said. "Almost everyone has said they won't go back to another cookbook again and that this is the one they keep on the counter."

Another fundraiser is Send a Beanie Baby. For a donation of $20, they send a Beanie Baby and a note of encouragement to a child having surgery at Children's Hospital Boston.

"It's not just for the children;

it's for the parents, too," Carolyn said. "We should know; we've been there many times before with Holly."

She said anyone could help by purchasing a cookbook, sending a Beanie Baby to a child at Children's Hospital Boston or making a tax-deductible donation to Hearts of Promise.

"Our praise is to the Lord; He has most assuredly been with us in the project, has guided us in this and every fundraiser we have undertaken and has been merciful in all of our trails," Carolyn said. "He has taken care of Holly, answered prayers in awesome ways, opened many doors of opportunity for us to share Holly's story and our testimony of all He has done for her."

For more information, contact Wayne and Carolyn Saunders at 638-4640 or wesaunders@bellsouth.net. Donations can also be made to Hearts of Promise, 847 Candy Lane, Chipley, FL 32428.

"Thanks so very much for your support, and please keep Holly, Dr. Mayer, this vital research and all children born with congenital heart defects in your prayers," Carolyn said.

Cook of Bulgaria, Europe; two great-great-grandchildren, Lillian Hope Sutton 'aka' Lilly and Braylon William Sutton; and numerous nieces and nephews.

A special thanks to Dr. James Howell and the ICU nurses at the Healthmark Hospital, also the staff at Chautauqua Rehabilitation and Nursing Center.

A time of visitation was held from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday, June 25, 2011, at Clary-Glenn Funeral Home Chapel, 230 Park Avenue DeFuniak Springs, Florida 32435. Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 26, 2011, at Sandy Creek Baptist Church, 1125 Line Road, Ponce De Leon, Florida 32455, with the Rev. Shep Eubanks, the Rev. Kenneth Harrison and the Rev. Toby Stone officiating. Burial followed in the Sandy Creek Cemetery. You may go online to view obituaries, offer condolences, or sign the guest book at www.clary-glenn.com. Clary-Glenn Funeral Home was entrusted with the arrangements.

God Is Our Refuge

I often wonder what atheists do when they are faced with a serious crisis or problem. Who do they call upon for help or guidance? Perhaps they call upon themselves to muster the courage and strength to face these ordeals, or perhaps they rely on the strength and wisdom of their friends and professional people to see them through. I realize that young people often feel that they are indestructible and can handle any crisis situation they face.

However, as we grow older we usually have a more mature and realistic view of life. With age, we learn that we are destructible and that life can be very fragile. I cannot imagine getting through a day without God's help and love. Everyone has problems that must be faced, and there are times when we may feel that no one cares about us or our problems. But it is nice to know that God cares and loves us, and He is only a prayer away. Our Heavenly Father loves the skeptics as well as the believers. He only wants us to trust and confide in Him.

Trust in God at all times, my people. Tell Him all your troubles, for He is our refuge.

James R. Brown

ROY BROWN

Longtime Anchorage resident Roy Brown, as he liked to be called, died June 23, 2011, after bravely fighting a long-term illness.

Roy was born October 12, 1937, to James David Brown and Celia Marie Brown in Bonifay, Florida, where he was raised. Roy later married the love of his life, Carol Ann Brown, on March 15, 1963. After living in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, till 1976, he received a job offer and packed up his family and drove to Anchorage, Alaska. Roy was mesmerized by the majestic beauty Alaska had to offer and considered himself lucky to live in Alaska. In 1985, Roy opened a coin shop named Roy's Coins after always having a love and fascination for rare coins. Roy became one of the foremost authorities on coins in the state of Alaska. A life member of VFW 1685, Roy was always generous in donating to fundraisers for our veterans, but that is no surprise to his family and friends, as it was often said that Roy never met a stranger. Roy was extremely generous and kind, and even after just meeting him, he made you feel at home. Roy will remain dear in the hearts of all who knew him, and also greatly missed.

Roy is survived by his wife, Carol Ann Brown; his brother, Bobby Brown; his sons, Charles Brown and Tim Brown of Bonifay, Florida, and Marc Cravey and Richard Brown of Anchorage, Alaska; his daughter, Lisa Coppersmith of Tampa, Florida; 14 grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren. The family would like to acknowledge the years and special care given to Roy by Dr. Leslie Bryant, who Roy considered also a friend.

A viewing was held on June 30, 2011, at 4 p.m. for immediate family, and at 5 p.m. for all family and friends at Peel's Funeral Home, and a graveside service was on July 1, 2011, at Bethany Baptist Cemetery in Bonifay. A celebration of life will be held on July 9, 2011, at VFW 1685 at 3 p.m. in Anchorage, Alaska. Arrangements were entrusted to the Legacy Funeral Home Kehl's Chapel in Anchorage, Alaska, and Peel Funeral Home in Bonifay.

Kevin P. Cook

Kevin Paul Cook, age 35, a native of Tallahassee, Florida, passed away Tuesday, June 28, 2011, in Chipley, Florida.

He was employed as a Correctional Officer with the Washington County Sheriff's Department in Chipley, Florida. Kevin had graduated from Mosely High School in Panama City, Florida.

Kevin was preceded in death by his father, Remus O. Cook, Jr.; maternal grandfather, J.T. "Buddy" Tipton; and paternal grandparents, Remus O. Cook, Dr. and Lillie Layfield Cook.

He is survived by his mother, Gloria T. Cook of Sneads, Florida; his maternal grandmother, Lena Tipton of Sneads, Florida; two brothers, Craig Cook of Tallahassee, Florida, and Jason Cook of Chipley, Florida; three nephews, Hunter Holland, Taylor Cook, and Sawyer Cook, all of Chipley, Florida; and many other relatives and friends.

Visitation with the family took place at Lanier-Andler Funeral Home in Sneads, Florida, Friday, July 1, 2011, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Funeral services were held Saturday, July 2, 2011, at 11 a.m. CDT, graveside at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Highway 90 East, Chattahoochee, Florida, with the Rev. Matt Basford. Lanier-Andler Funeral Home in Sneads, Florida was in charge of arrangements.
