Jury: Brown not guilty in stabbing

Man cleared of 2011 attempted murder charge

CHIPLEY — Tears and solemn hugs set the mood at the Washington County Courthouse when Lawrence Brown was found not guilty of attempted murder in the second degree in the Dec. 31, 2011, stabbing of Micah Taylor.

Brown, 61, a Holmes County resident, was accused of stabbing Taylor multiple times after an altercation at the Thirsty Turtle, a Washington County bar near Caryville.

The jury of two men and four women took about 90 minutes to come to a verdict.

The maximum sentence for second-degree attempted murder, a second-degree felony, is 15 years, said Assistant State Attorney Shalla Jefcoat, the prosecutor in the Brown trial.

The jury could have found Brown guilty of lesser charges such as attempted murder in the third degree or aggravated assault, but they returned a not guilty verdict instead.

Taylor eventually recovered from the attack and was one of the prosecution's witnesses. Brown did not testify during the trial.

"I want to thank you for the way you conducted yourself in court, and in total," 14th Judicial District Court Judge Chris Patterson, who presided over the three-day trial, told Brown. "I appreciate the way you conducted yourself and the way the gallery conducted themselves during the trial."

Dozens of Brown's relatives filled half the courtroom's benches, and after the verdict was read, a steady line of teary-eyed friends and relatives hugged Brown and congratulated him.

Community raises awareness at DMH

From Staff Reports

BONIFAY — The Holmes County Health Department and Doctors Memorial Hospital partnered to promote Heart Health Awareness with a Heart Awareness Walk that was held at Doctors Memorial Hospital on Friday, Feb. 1.

Feb. 1 is the 10-year anniversary of National Wear Red Day, endorsed by the American Heart Association and the Go Red for Women Campaign.

Holmes County's health care organizations encourage everyone to wear red Feb. 1 in support of cardiovascular disease awareness.

Cardiovascular disease is the No. 1 killer of American men and women. CVD is responsible for more deaths in women than the next four causes combined, including all forms of cancers.

The walk was free, and the community was invited to participate. Walkers were encouraged to bring a heart-healthy lunch and commit to walking at least four laps. The first 100 participants received free gifts and educational resources concerning heart healthy exercises, nutrition and more.

Healthy eating workshops will start from noon to 1 p.m. Feb. 14 in the DMH conference room.

Gaetz, Coley visit Holmes

BONIFAY — Rep. Marti Coley and Sen. Don Gaetz, members of state legislative delegation representing Northwest Florida, held a public hearing at the Holmes County School District Office on Jan. 29 to hear comments on proposals for the 2013 legislative session.

Gaetz said he and Coley were seeking Holmes County-specific bills. "There have been no local bills that have been proposed by any local government, any local group, local individual or family," he said. "Subsequently there will be no local bills affecting Holmes County proposed for 2013 session."

The second reason, Gaetz said, was to hear from the people of Holmes County.

"There will be a lot of issues to come before the legislature, like they do every year," Gaetz said. "There are over 3,000 bills that get introduced in the legislative session and, with God's

Senator: State 79 expansion to finish in 2017

By MATTHEW BEATON

PANAMA CITY — State Senate President Don Gaetz announced last week the Florida Department of Transportation will finish four-laning State 79 up to Interstate 10 by summer 2017.

An FDOT official also discussed

County 388, and said no funding is in place to expand the road, but it is being studied.

Gaetz, R-Niceville, delivered the news as part of a three-stop barnstorming tour across the Panhandle, promoting projects previously announced in FDOT's five-year plan. He started the day at the Bay County Public Library, accompanied by state Sen. Bill Montford, D-Tallahassee, state Rep. Matt Gaetz, R-Fort Walton Beach, and state Rep. Jimmy Patronis, R-Panama City.

"The state of Florida is today stepping up to be a bigger partner and a much better partner in building a transportation infrastructure that will help ... create jobs for Northwest Florida," the Florida Senate president told a gathering of local officials and residents.

Gaetz said $974 million in state funding will flow to Northwest Florida for transportation, rail, port and bridge projects in the next four years.

Widening State 79 is one of those projects.

mercy, only 10 percent of them will go on to become law. Most of the rest of them are some pretty dumb ideas.”

One of the most important aspects of visiting constituents, Gaetz said, is to get an accurate read on public input.

“So we’re here today to listen to your concerns, your questions, your insights and help inform us as we grow in the House and in the Senate,” he said. “Representative Coley, we’re very fortunate to have her as our state representative in this area. She is the speaker pro-tem elected by the House of Representatives to be the No. 2 person in the House, working very closely with the speaker in the Senate agenda and moving the House of Representatives forward.”

The first to speak was Holmes County resident Joe Kegan.

“I would like to improve the support of the freedom of unwarranted surveillance act,” Kegan

SEN. DON GAETZ

REP. MARTI COLEY

said. “It is a bill to protect individual privacy against unwarranted governmental intrusion through the use of the unmanned aerial vehicles commonly called drones, and for other purposes.”

Next to speak was Holmes County Supervisor of Elections Debbie Wilcox Morris.

“After the 2012 elections, with issues that were experienced, it seems throughout the state there’s going to be a review of the election laws again, and I would just ask that you, after looking at early voting, that you would give the supervisors of elections more flexibility in where we put up early voting,” Morris said. “... the law says we shall have it in our office. We have a very small elections office, and early voting went well for us, but I think we would be able to better serve our voters if we were able to have it maybe at the ag center so we could have ample parking and more space.”

She requested the law state early voting “may” be held at the supervisor of elections office.

“There are some counties that have large supervisor of elections offices and can accommodate; however, in Holmes County, we do not have a large office,” she said. “Also in reference to electronic poll books, I know that after the 2010 elections we had an issue with the electronic poll books. That is so efficient for our voters, and the only information that a poll worker will see is the same thing they would see if they were using a paper precinct register.”

Morris said it was a time saver and reduced the chances of error.

“They’re not having to flip through pages to find that voter’s name. They don’t have to worry about them accidentally signing on the incorrect line, and when someone else comes in and it shows that they’ve already voted, then they have an issue,” she said.

“With the electronic precinct registers, our data is updated in real time. I hope if this issue comes up again that the legislature will support it.”

Morris said she had to re-train poll workers in address verification.

“They can no longer ask you if you still live at 116 Redwood Drive, and that concerns me, especially now that we have a split in one of our precincts with the redistricting,” she said. “We have a district that was split into two congressional districts, and if they can’t make sure that the voter’s address is correct, they could be issued an incorrect ballot, and it could impact the outcome of that election.”

She said the last issue she had was referendum ballots.

“The 11 constitutional amendments this time, I think, was what created a lot of the issues throughout the state with long lines,” Morris said. “Our voters did an excellent job educating themselves. I think we had more people vote on those amendments this time than we’ve ever had, but we had a two-page ballot, front and back, and fortunately everything went well for us.”

She said she felt sympathy for those counties where the supervisors of elections were “slammed” for their extensive lines.

“I don’t think it was a fault of theirs,” she said. “They didn’t have adequate early voting locations that they could choose to use, and then there was the length of the ballot. It went well here because voters educated themselves and came prepared for the most part.”

She said with the extension of the early voting days, the only thing was to do away with the Sunday before Election Day because that’s the day her office usually delivers its electronic equipment.

“It will give us one day to go out and set everything up,” she said. “We don’t have that many people here that vote on Sunday, so for us it would be better if we had that extra time to make sure everything is set up and ready.”

Both Gaetz and Coley encouraged all those who wish to contact them with questions, comments or concerns to find their contact information at www.flstate.gov.

to two lanes, but the $139 million project will add two more lanes and a median, Gaetz said. That stretch of road runs through Holmes and Washington counties.

Gaetz also said $44.9 million will go toward widening State 77, from the Bay County line to Interstate 10. The project is divided into six segments, totaling 23.5 miles, but no funding is in place for construction costs; the allocated money will be used for design and right-of-way acquisition.

And, Gaetz said, $85 million will be used for an elevated overpass — a flyover — at the U.S. 98 and 23rd Street intersection. The project should be finished in 2015.

FDOT District 3 Secretary Tommy Barfield said the contract for the State 79 project will be executed this month.

“That contract is ready to go. It’s been advertised. Anderson Columbia was the low bidder,” he said.

Though the improvements will stop at Interstate 10, FDOT plans to four-lane State 79 to the Alabama border. The state will spend $5.05 million in 2017 to study that expansion.

COUNTY 388

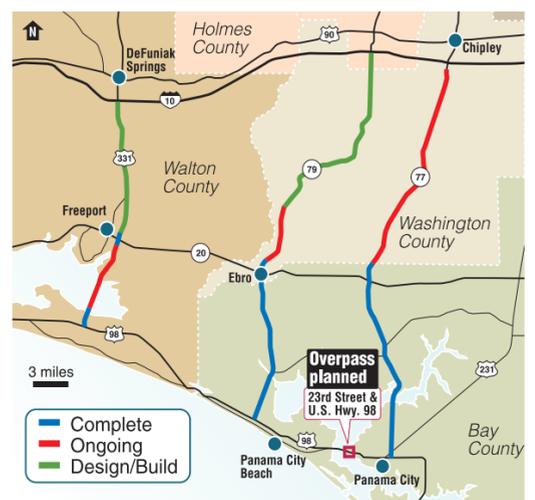

Barfield also addressed County 388. He said the previous district secretary committed to take ownership of the road from the county, but that hasn’t happened. Nevertheless, he said it will be done eventually.

“We’re trying to work out, with the county ... all the details, and let me assure you that we are going to follow through on our commitment as an agency,” he said.

Barfield said County 388 is being reviewed in a project development and environmental study; FDOT is looking at expanding it to four lanes. He said this would be done in phases; likely the first phase would be from Northwest Florida Beaches International Airport entrance to State 79. No construction funds are in place.

“As soon as we get through with (the study), we’ll know more about the cost; we’ll know more about the right-of-way acquisition,” he said.

United Way rep visits Holmes BOCC

By CECILIA SPEARS

547-9414 | @WCN_HCT
cspears@chipleypaper.com

BONIFAY — Regional Director of Resource Development at United Way of Northwest Florida Ron Sharpe visited the Holmes County Board of County Commissioners during their regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday, Jan. 29.

"I'm looking to hold United Way campaigns throughout Holmes County to raise awareness to the services provided in Holmes County. There are over 31 agencies that are available to assist the residents of Holmes County like Life Management, Tri County Community Council," Sharpe said.

He said it was difficult for people to become more knowledgeable about most of those agencies because they weren't stationed in Holmes County.

"Even though they are located in Panama City, it's the residents of Holmes County that receive the help," he said. "One office in Panama City was able to help over 50,000 people. Some of those people were from Holmes County."

Ten calls a day are made from people who need help with their power bills, he said.

"95 cents of every dollar remains local," Sharpe said. "A little bit out of each pay roll helps immensely, and that money can go to the agency of your choice."

A lot of that is possible because the United Way pulls resources from both state and federal.

"When someone gives to United Way over the course of a year it has a large impact," he said. "When it comes to United Way, it's like a grant and someone, not a paid staff member but someone within your community, will look at the dollars. They will look at the grant request, and our agencies will fill out an application, a grant application. They tell us how much we need, how they're going to use the money and that whole process.

"For Holmes County, those individuals are Julia Bullington with the Holmes County Chamber of Commerce, Melissa Willard with Regions Bank, Fran Halthcoat with Wells Fargo and Brenda Blitch from Doctors Memorial Hospital."

The money given through donations is matched and increased because of grant matches, Sharpe said.

"For example, Life Management has a foster care adoption program and $25 is given for every dollar donated," he said. "Meals on Wheels gets $9 for every dollar and the Early Learning Coalition that funds daycare centers in Holmes County gets $17 for every dollar donated. The Red Cross has helped five people over this winter after loosing everything due to house fires and they don't get any funding aside from agencies like ours."

Commissioner David Whitaker asked how does the United Way keep people from abusing these services.

"We've learned a lot from past disasters," Sharpe said. "We have a system set up that keeps people from double-dipping, so to speak, and all agencies have to be reviewed and audited on an annual basis. It's all about accountability."

Sharpe said one-time donations can be made online, and you can use cash, check, credit card or payroll deductions for donating.

"Payroll deduction is the strength of United Way because you'll never miss a dollar out of each paycheck," Sharpe said.

One of the most recent successes was Doctors Memorial Hospital, he said.

"Doctors Memorial Hospital had never done anything like this before, but Blitch said she was interested in bringing it to her staff and giving it a shot," he said. "The first year they raised $2,500 and last year they raised $3,330. They saw the needs in their community and decided to make a difference in their community."

Chair Monty Merchant said that he has seen United Way successfully raise money for local agencies through a previous employer.

"This is a good opportunity to give to a local agency and make a difference in our community," Whitaker said.

Sharpe added that Covenant Hospice was also an agency that received grant money from every dollar raised.

"A lot of times people can't afford these services, and heaven forbid you should need it, but they'd never turn you away," he said. "We're in challenging times. We just need to raise awareness that these agencies are out there to help in these trying times of economic crisis."

BOCC approved Commissioner Bobby Sasnett's requested to pay a local beaver hunter for his services, saying he was charging the county $480 at a rate of $30 per beaver.

"I don't know how much of a problem we're having with these beavers, but if killing them helps then we should see about it," Sasnett said.

County employee Eddie Whitehurst verified that the beavers in Holmes County are an issue and one that the county should take note of because they've had the job of cleaning out the beaver dams, but soon their work crew will be reduced.

Commissioner Bill Parish suggested going out to bid if they find that this service is beneficial to the county, and Whitehurst brought before the BOCC an estimate to cover the new fuel tankards at Districts 3 and 4 Road Yard.

"Because of the newer and bigger fuel tankards, we're needing something bigger to cover them from the weather," Whitehurst said.

BOCC agreed to table the matter until Whitehurst found a cheaper means of covering the tankards.

BOCC approved of accepting two vehicles handed down from the Tri County Community Council for the Holmes County Public Library and the road department.

"We've never had a vehicle for the library," said Susan Harris from the HCPL. "We've been striving for a vehicle to take to the rural areas. We want to provide what services we have in the library, such as the Internet, to those areas who can't afford to make it to the library."

BOCC approved getting an assessment and a recommendation for what should be done with faulty air conditioning unit at the Holmes County Agricultural building.

BOCC approved of The Northwest Florida Regional Planning to continue offering the State Housing Initiatives Partnership program after receiving word that program has received funding for the new year.

BOCC approved Tri County Community Council representative Joel Paul's request for TCCC to submit a Transportation Service Development Grant.

"The Department of Transportation has a grant available to improve our transportation programs," Paul said. "For us, it has already been approved. We just need to show the approval of the board. We'll be using it to update our software for better scheduling, mapping, routes, GPS, etc."

County Engineer Cliff Knauer approached the board to remind them about deadlines for the Florida Boating Improvement Program grant.

"One of our former commissioners, Jim King, was trying to push for a boat ramp at the Choctawhatchee River in Holmes County on the west end of Highway 90," Knauer said. "Because it didn't score high enough, we weren't able to get the grant. First of all, we couldn't get a letter from the DOT to allow access through their right-of-way, and second of all, everyone who submitted an application and was accepted was fully prepared beforehand with survey analyses, etc."

"We didn't have any surveying or impact studies," Knauer said. "We can get those without any problem, it just takes time. So if anyone has any boat ramp, parking lot or restroom issues, we've got to get on it soon so we can get what we need for this grant."

Parish asked County Attorney Jeff Goodman what the status was for the Holmes County Comprehensive Plan.

Goodman said the county had been through the painstaking process of updating the Comprehensive Plan to meet legislative requirements, and now all that was required was to see if they are still in compliance and if they want to update their Evaluation and Appraisal Report.

Parish also said that there are issues with erosion on North and South Ride.

Knauer agreed to review the plan with Parish.

"We're ready when you are," said Knauer.

Merchant told the board a local church that is a building a new sanctuary approached him about waiving the building fee.

The board members agreed it wasn't a good idea to waive the fees.

"If we waive it for one, we'll have to waive it for all," said Williams. "Even I had to tell the same thing to my church when they asked."

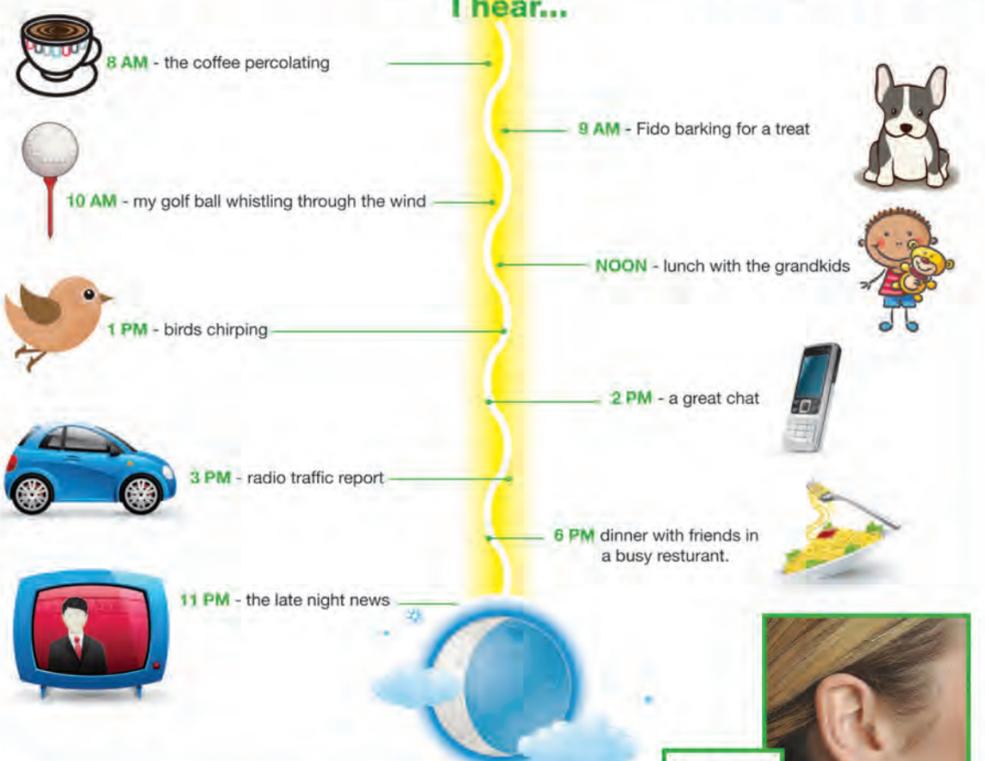

BOCC approved of consent items minutes for January 8, 2013, Workshop & Regular Session, Real Property Lease with Reba Sconiers for District 1 Road Yard, Travel Request for Wanda Stafford to go to the Annual Governor's Hurricane Conference and Miscellaneous Appropriations Agreement with the Council on Aging.

The next regularly scheduled HC BOCC meeting is set for 9 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 12 at the Holmes County BOCC Chamber located behind the Holmes County Courthouse.

The mill whistle still sounds at noon

With the threat of tornadoes in neighboring Alabama and Georgia, some of our transplanted Bonifay "children" have come to understand the sound of the familiar "mill whistle" that we hear every day at noon to have a more urgent meaning. Former residents David and Erin (Brooks) Lauen and Stephanie (Lauen) Ford live with their families in Atlanta. This past week they heard sirens several times sending school children with their teachers to storm shelters. Their mother, Christine Lauen, said Bonifay needs a dangerous-storm warning system. "Hazel, you should write an article about that."

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

Well, I don't editorialize much so this is not a suggestion that our city fathers start a warning system. That doesn't fit into my writing style. I would assume each school has some sort of storm drill just as they do fire drills. I remember when I was teaching and the sky was threatening, some kids would become quite worried. I gave them the instructions even though we didn't have a sustained siren sound. "Move to the inside wall. Get on your knees with your hands and arms over your head. And while you are down there, pray that God will keep the storm up in the sky." I am fully confident that He is able to do that.

But the idea of a siren as a severe weather-warning device brought to mind our noon mill whistle, which blows at noon every day. To those of us who live here, it is a sound to which we are long accustomed. But for newcomers to our area, it sometimes causes alarm. When our former youth minister and his bride, Jason and Nicole Stanland, moved here a couple of years ago, they were getting settled into their home about a block from First Baptist Church. When the noon mill whistle sounded, thinking it was surely warning of some impending disaster, they were almost panic-stricken. They had no knowledge of what the disaster might be nor how they were to respond to the warning. They soon became accustomed, however, to that signal telling Bonifay folk, "It's time for lunch." Many ask about the history of the whistle. I can't be sure, but I've always thought it was a carry-over from the days in the 1940s and '50s when the Bonifay Heading Company employed many Bonifay and surrounding area citizens. The "header mill" as it was locally called was located near where Jerkins Inc. is now located. They made wooden barrelheads (covers) that were used mainly in the naval stores industry. Much of their equipment was powered by steam produced by burning the wood byproducts from the shaping of the circular barrelheads. Ray Brooks, who lived near the mill as a child where both his parents worked, said the ash from the burning process often soiled the clothes, which his mother and sisters hung outdoors to dry. The steam produced by the furnace also powered the mill whistle. When we lived in town in the early 1950s, it sounded at noon to signal lunch time and again at 5 p.m. to signal quitting time. If there was one in the morning to signal starting time or at 1 p.m. to signal go back to work time, I don't recall. I actually think there was a 1 p.m. whistle and perhaps a 7 p.m. one. Ray says the fire whistle that blows today was originally located atop what was Red Alford's Western Auto Store next door to Progressive Realty on Waukesha Street. I believe it is now located atop the water tank behind the Middle School Gym atop McKinnon Hill. It was when I was teaching there. I had always assumed the noon whistle was set on a timer, but I called Elois Bradshaw who works at Bonifay City Hall. She said, "No. We ring it by hand." The job is assigned to Sabrina Peters, but when she has to go and work at the fire station, either Elois, Frances Kline, Betty Tadlock or City Clerk Jeri Gibson ring it. I suppose one of them is also assigned to push the button for the start of parades. Many visitors and newcomers to our town have puzzled over the fire alarm sounding at noon. Now you know the origin. In a future article, I will write more of the history of the Bonifay Heading Company.

David Cook's Store a casualty of 'progress of man'

On Friday, Jan. 18, my sister Muriel Wells Turner, informed me in a telephone conversation that the landmark building, known as David Cook's store, on Highway 79 south of Bonifay, had been reduced to rubble by the wrecking crew assigned to remove it from the right of way, required for further widening of the road leading to the Bay County Gulf Beaches. Ironically, Muriel's Vernon High School classmate of 1961, Sandra Hightower Miller, had the responsibility of passing this sad message to our sister. Sandra also knew the history of Muriel's two grown daughters, Maria and Meredith, depending upon a visit for candy as children to David's Store. Their grandfather, Hugh Wells, whom they affectionately called "Pa," delighted in taking them and other grandchildren for the special treat.

PERRY'S PRATTLE

The word irony is used because Sandra's mother, Fannie Lou Simmons Hightower, has already witnessed her Vernon home, falling victim to demolition by the house wrecker's "ball." Her historic home was also acquired by the state upon determining that it was also in the path of the highway's widening project through the town of Vernon. Further significance to the Hightower's home removal is the fact that Fannie Lou was reared in the home as the daughter of Frederick Houston (Fred) Simmons and Jessie Lee Spencer Simmons. She was their only child. Upon marrying Brown Doyle Hightower on August 10, 1939, an arrangement developed that allowed the newly weds to become the owners of the old home place where they continued to live their lives together. It was in this location that the couple reared their two daughters, Linda and Sandra. Brown Hightower's lifetime job was in road construction, and maybe this fact lessened the impact on family members who saw the necessity of surrendering the family home to the massive road improvement project. The David Cook combination home and business was built long after the Simmons/Hightower edifice, but its strategic location resulted in it becoming somewhat of a beacon in the community. Floyd Cook, a nephew of David, wrote the David and Carolyn Mercer Cook story for the 2006 Heritage of Washington County

Book. Floyd listed David's parents as Arthur Bennett Cook and Vera Mae Kelly Cook. School for David included Union Hill, Vernon High School and Holmes County High School, where he played football. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II, and upon discharge from the service, he soon married Carrie Hortense (Carolyn) Mercer Cook. Their two sons are Wallace and Terry Cook. The combination country grocery store/home also later became a filling station and feed store. The latter also served as a voting precinct for many years. David was a longtime school bus driver, driving a bus to Vernon High School until retirement. Residents of the area patronized the business faithfully and also relied on the stalwarts, David and Carolyn, to provide directions to travelers and strangers who had previously been told to "watch for David Cook's Store for instructions," should they be unable to find a particular home, church or other location in that community. James W. (Bill) Lee, who was reared practically on the Holmes-Washington county line, is a longtime career employee of the Washington County School System. He wrote a heartwarming, timely article on the lives of David and Carolyn in the Heritage of Washington County Book, submitted within days of David's death on Feb. 24, 2005. Bill's writing pointed out the convenience of the store whether it was to stop by for the traditional "Moon Pie and an R.C. Cola" while taking a break from hauling hay or to purchase your fish bait for a relaxing day of fishing when heading to the lakes and the Choctawhatchee River located at Hinson Cross Roads. Bill's writing mentioned David Cook's store as the place to gain information as to the happenings going on in the area. "Just hang around the store for a few minutes and you could learn who was sick, where the next hog killing would be going on and who had fresh turnips or new potatoes ready to dig". Candidates for public office knew that the country stores in the rural area were a Mecca for people to assemble and an excellent place to see the most voters by timing your visits around noontime or late in the afternoons. Before the days of modern radio communications in law enforcement, Ruth Bush, longtime employee of the sheriff's department, reports of depending on the public telephones installed in the country stores to keep in touch with the deputies, whether it be in New Hope, Ebro, Greenhead or Miller's Ferry. In 1976, Jim and Jesse's bluegrass rendition of the John Prine protest song, "Paradise," where the lyrics' objection to strip mining is outlined in the chorus to the lengthy and beautiful version of the song: "Daddy won't you take me back to Mullenberg County, down by the Green River where paradise lay? I'm sorry my son, but you're too late in asking, Mr. Peabody's Coal Train done hauled it away." In other verses, a line is used that attributes strip mining operations to "brought it all down to the progress of man." Maybe road and bridge building and others acts requiring destruction and disruption of "status quo" can be justified by attributing it all "to the progress of man." See you all next week.

had given Taylor, Taylor's then-girlfriend Kendra Dumas and her cousin Selina Cooper a ride home from the Thirsty Turtle after a evening of drinking, according to testimony. Taylor and Dumas began fighting, with Dumas punching Taylor in the face and the couple biting each other.

The Browns got involved with the fight. At one point, Washington County sheriff's deputies arrived to investigate reports of a loud argument, but no one was arrested.

According to testimony, after the Browns squared off with Taylor, they got into their vehicle and left with the girls.

About 3:30 a.m. Jan. 1, 2012, Taylor's uncle Randall Taylor called 911 to report the stabbing.

Jefcoat told the jurors in her closing arguments that Lawrence Brown had stabbed Taylor from behind while Taylor fought with Caleb Brown.

Defense Attorney David Thomas of DeFuniak

Springs noted during closing arguments that there were no witnesses to the stabbing, with Taylor testifying that he couldn't see who was stabbing him, but he identified the stabber as Lawrence Brown based on the shape of his assailant's body and his voice.

Dumas testified that Taylor was "madder than she had ever seen him" that evening and that Taylor was known for carrying a knife similar to a box opener.

No knives were recovered at the crime scene, nor were any submitted into evidence, Thomas said.

Thomas also pointed to discrepancies in Taylor's statements to police, lawyers and his doctor that suggest Taylor was dishonest in his claim that Lawrence Brown stabbed him.

"He claims he remembers better now than he did when the incident occurred," Thomas said. "There was nothing in his injuries that would have affected his memory."

Capt. Harold Staples plans to launch his 36-foot charter boat, named the Silver Hook after his dad's last boat, sometime next week at Joe's Bayou. Inset, Staples shows off one of the molds that his father, Harold Sr., made for making fishing lures. He still has them in a wooden box in his workshop.

HOOKED

Capt. Staples' passion lies in building boats

By TINA HARBUCK

654-8440 | @DestinLogTina
tharuck@thedinlog.com

He was just a teenager when he first helped his dad build a fishing boat, and now at age 63 he's still building boats in his Destin backyard.

"I'm addicted to it," said Capt. Harold Staples, who has been building the 36-footer in his backyard on Stahlman Avenue for the past three years. "Some people are addicted to some things, mine is the water and being around boats — it's my passion."

Staples hopes to launch his new boat, tagged the Silver Hook after his father's last boat, sometime next week.

"All that's left to do is paint the bottom and finish the wiring," Staples said. "It's a big thing when you put it in the water and see it floating out there. Then you get on it and make it go."

When she hits the water, the Silver Hook will be a fiberglass, six-passenger charter boat, but it didn't start out that way.

"Fiberglass boats are everywhere and you can buy them for little or nothing," Staples said. "There is nothing wrong with them; usually the engine goes bad, but the hulls are usually in great shape most of the time. So if you find one, and kind of like the way it looks, you can get it for a song and a dance. And you've got a good project to work on."

From derelict to done

Staples said the Silver Hook originally was one of a pair of lobster boats from New England.

"This one was called the Touché and it's sister ship was the Broadbill," he said.

Both boats were equipped with inboard, outboards and were rigged for long-lining swordfish.

The Broadbill was lost at sea during Hurricane Opal in 1995, and the Touché found its way around town.

"It was sitting around for several years in different peoples yards and they were going to fix it up, but nobody ever did," he said.

Staples said he had seen the boat near Industrial Park, then over in a yard off Siebert. Guy Santucci finally bought it and had it sitting at his business on U.S. 98, Coastline Tree Service.

"You could see it sitting up behind Half Hitch," Staples said. But the boat was in pretty bad shape.

Not long after, Santucci was over at Staples' house grinding stumps, when Staples asked him what his plans were for the old dilapidated boat.

Santucci told Staples he was going to rig it up for commercial fishing, but because it was going to cost about $100,000, his wife said no way.

Staples wound up buying the boat for what Santucci had in it.

"I gave Guy $3,000 for the hull and the little cabin area on the front, and it's been a three year project at the house here — just working on it in the winter time," he said.

When Staples took possession of the boat, the engine had been taken out and there were two big holes in the stern. Most of the deck was gone. Holes had been cut in the fuel tanks, which were made out of plywood and fiberglass.

"They were full of leaves and water. There was no saving them," Staples said.

The boat had had a huge fish box that would hold about 10,000 pounds of fish.

"I had to completely gut all that and take out the old fish box... and get down to the bare bones," he said.

But before any of that could take place, Staples had to convince his wife, Carolyn, of taking on the boat building project.

"It took me six months to talk my wife into letting me get it," Staples said. He finally gave Santucci the money, plus a little extra to deliver it to his 30-foot by 60-foot carport in the backyard.

Staples, along with his son Allen, Caleb Brown, Pat Meyers and others have all had a little hand in the project.

"It was basically just a hull," Staples said. "I had to fix the holes in the back. I built the strut. The engine I bought brand new from Two Tony's and the fuel tanks were built by James McArdle and it holds 300 gallons of fuel."

Staples said it has a 430 diesel engine it, "so hopefully it will scoot along pretty good."

He said his plans were to launch it this week, but because of bad weather, he's looking to put it in the water next week at Joe's Bayou boat launch.

Not his first rodeo

This is not Staples' first time to build a boat in his backyard.

"Nawh, this is my third one," he said. The first was the Striker, a 32-footer and the second was the Al-Lin, a 44-footer that he currently charters out of Fishing Fleet Marina.

The Striker took two years.

"Me and my dad put it together while I was teaching school," he said. "The Al-Lin was a seven-year project because I was still running the Striker and building my house and starting a family ... that was all in the same seven-year period," he said.

Although he had to talk his wife into letting him get this one, she said she is proud of his work.

"It's just amazing," says his wife, Carolyn. "How did you know how to do all this?" she asks him.

"I had a good teacher," he responded.

It's Harold's attention to detail that most impresses Carolyn.

"He knows where every little wire and every little screw goes," she said. "I'm very proud of him."

"My dad was the craftsman," Staples said. "He always had a boat going in the yard somewhere."

As a matter of fact, Staples has a board on the wall of his workshop with a list of 10 big boats that his father has had a hand in. Several were named after family members and one even after a neighbor.

In addition to building boats, his dad also crafted his own fishing lures. Staples still has the molds in an old wooden box in his workshop.

Staples says he learned most of what he knows about boat building from his dad, Harold Sr.

"The rest of it was from trial and error and using common sense and seeing what needs to be done," he said.

With Staples just days away from putting the Silver Hook in the water he said: "I've got another one lined up after this one — if she'll let me do it. It's a little 22-footer."

Staples says one would think it's hard to work in his workshop, but he said he knows exactly where everything is located.

Capt. Harold Staples says he's "addicted" to building boats.

The Silver Hook has been a three-year winter project for Harold Staples. He has kept the boat under a 30-foot by 60-foot carport in his backyard.

Dixon nets 38 but Dolphins can't stop Walker, Blue Devils

By JASON SHOOT

LYNN HAVEN — Nat Dixon stole the show. Holmes County stole the victory.

Dixon powered Mosley with a game-high 38 points, but Holmes County phenom Chris Walker was the difference down the stretch as the Blue Devils rallied for a 77-70 win in a matinee boys basketball game at the Jim Redfern Gymnasium on Friday.

Walker, who has committed to the University of Florida and is rated consistently as one of the dozen best basketball prospects in America, scored 11 of his 15 points in the game's final 3 minutes to cap his team's comeback from a double-digit deficit to start the fourth quarter. The Blue Devils (13-8) outscored Mosley 31-12 in the final quarter.

"When we got back in the game, we didn't need to shoot any more threes," Holmes County coach Po White said. "We could go back inside to our big guy (Walker). He helped us take the lead."

Mosley (7-17) led 58-46 after three quarters, but a 17-2 run by the Blue Devils obliterated that margin and resulted in a 61-60 lead on Walker's baseline drive and layin with 3 minutes remaining. Dixon later fired in a 3-pointer to give the Dolphins a 65-63 edge with 2:23 left, but that was the last time Mosley enjoyed the lead. Walker's steal and ensuing dunk put Holmes County on top 66-65 with 2 minutes remaining, and he added another dunk following a Mosley turnover for a 68-65 advantage 13 seconds later.

Dixon gave the Dolphins hope with a 3-pointer to trim his team's deficit to 72-70 with 36 seconds left, but Walker, Ty Russ and Jacky Miles Jr. combined to make five of six free throws in the final half-minute to seal the win. Walker also swatted away two shots in the final 40 seconds, finishing with seven blocks in all.

Lady Pirates defeat Hornets for District 3 Championship

By CECILIA SPEARS
547-9414 | @WCN_HCT
cspears@chipleypaper.com

PONCE de LEON — The Ponce de Leon Lady Pirates earned their spot as District 3 champions after defeating the Cottondale Lady Hornets 50-23 on Saturday.

Hannah Howell had 10 points and 10 rebounds to lead Ponce de Leon to its ninth straight district championship. Jordan Thomas added 11 points and four rebounds and Ashley Harper chipped in nine points and four rebounds for the Pirates (22-5). The Lady Hornets fought hard to turn the tides to the game into their favor however they were not able to maintain their gain as the Lady Pirates quickly knocked the wind out of their sails ending the second period with a score of 31-11.

The Lady Hornets started the third period aggressively, perhaps a little too aggressively as the third period was full of penalty shots in favor of the Lady Pirates and ended the third period with a score of 44-19. The game reached its climax in the last period, the Lady Hornets trying to regain ground but proved for not as the Lady Pirates pressed on their campaign to victory, ending the game with a score of 50-23.

“They played excellently,” said Head Coach Tim Alford. “To win the District 3 Championships is very important to these girls. They’ve worked so very hard to get to this point.”

Ponce de Leon opens the Region 2-1A tournament against visiting Port St. Joe Feb. 12. Cottondale opens at District 4-1A champion South Walton.

White said Walker just learned he has been invited to the McDonald's All-American Game, where he will compete against the nation's premier players at the United Center in Chicago on April 3. Although he went scoreless in the second and third quarters against Mosley, the length, talent and explosiveness all were apparent throughout the contest. Many Mosley fans who derided Walker with chants of "overrated" early in the game were the same people chanting "We want Chris!" in the waning minutes of the third quarter as Walker was catching a breather on the bench.

Mosley has its own star player in Dixon, of course. The junior scored eight points in a 20-2 run spanning the first and second quarters, and Dixon finished with 16 points in the first half as Mosley built a 35-26 lead. He shredded Holmes County's defense for 16 of Mosley's 23 points in the third quarter, and the Dolphins led by as many as 16 points (48-32).

Walker said his team was fortunate to overcome the deficit.

"Sometimes in the first half we start off slow," Walker said. "In the second half we picked it up. We showed a lot of heart."

Russ led Holmes County with 19 points and a 9-for-9 effort from the foul line, and Miles added 14 points. Additionally, Clay Keen and Chris Newton were huge off the bench. Keen dropped in four 3-pointers en route to 16 points, and Newton chipped in with 11.

Mosley's Tequan Ward flirted with foul trouble for much of the game but still managed to score 12 points. Josh Turner added nine points inside for the Dolphins.

HOLMES COUNTY (77) — T. Russ 4 9-9 19, Miles 3 6-8 14, Williams 0 0-0 0, Thompson 0 0-0 0, Martinez 0 0-0 0, Moore 0 0-0 0, Walker 6 3-4 15, F. Russ 1 0-0 2, Newton 3 4-4 11, Aronhalt 0 0-0 0, Keen 6 0-0 16. Totals 23 22-25 77.

Clara is a 2009 graduate of Robert F. Munroe Day School and is currently working on her degree in criminology. Grandparents of the bride are Betty Sue McLendon and the late Winston McLendon of Quincy and Tommy and Maxine Bush of Bonifay.

Spencer is a 2009 graduate of Holmes County High School. Grandparents of the groom are Calvin and Elaine Taylor of Bonifay and Ronald and Frances Harrison of Bonifay. The wedding date is June 22, 2013, at 3 p.m., Eastern Time, at The Garden Center of Quincy. They invite you all to join them on their special day.

Kiwanians support local Key Clubs

Special to Extra

CHIPLEY — The Chipley Kiwanis Club met for its weekly luncheon at Patillo's Restaurant at the Washington-Holmes County Technical Center. Lunch was provided by the staff of the Washington-Holmes County Technical Center.

At the Jan. 29 Kiwanis meeting, Kiwanis Club Member Garrett Martin presented a check to the Chipley High School Key Club to help support their activities. The Chipley Key Club earned the contribution by participating in the annual Kiwanis Club Fruit Sale. The Kiwanis Club supports Key Clubs in both Chipley and Vernon High Schools. The Key Clubs foster good citizenship skills and attributes.

The Kiwanis Club meets Tuesdays at Patillo's restaurant in the middle of the WHTC campus at noon. For an invitation, contact any Kiwanian or David Solger, membership chairperson, at 850-638-1276.

For more information about the Kiwanis Club of Chipley, visit www.ChipleyKiwanis.com.

Chipola Daughters learn about heart health

Special to Extra

At its January meeting, members of Chipola Chapter of the National Society Daughters of The American Revolution learned the latest thinking in women's heart health from Dr. Robin Albritton. Dr. Albritton talked about risk factors and focused on preventive measures, such as lifestyle changes, for better heart health. Ten interested guests were in attendance, including one member of SAR and two members of CAR Blue Springs Society. NSCAR president gave the CAR annual report, and Florida State Organizing Secretary Carly Miller distributed a Blue Springs Society pamphlet showing things the local society has learned about the 2012 national theme, "The Battle of Saratoga: The Turning Point."

The next DAR meeting will be on Feb. 18 at 11 a.m. at Beef 'O' Brady's. Chris Moore will speak about the Navy Coastal Systems Lab. All interested persons are invited. Reservations are not required for the Dutch treat lunch. For information, contact Vice Regent Carolyn Jordan at cdjordan@bellsouth.net or 850-638-1947.

Be sure to protect your pet during cold weather

Many pet owners love spending time with their furry friend outside, but during the cold winter months pet owners need to take special precautions to ensure that their pet stays warm and healthy when the temperature drops.

PET TALK

Medicine & Biomedical Sciences. "The thick coats of most domestic animal species are sufficient to provide protection from the cold here in Texas, but on the rare occasion of a colder day some other things could be considered."

One precaution pet owners must take is making sure dogs, cats, and other large animal species have an adequate defense from the cold when they are outside.

"Making sure blankets are available and dry can be extremely helpful for this purpose," said Diesel. "Also, as with people, turning up the heat can help keep our pets warm as well."

For smaller pets simply keeping them inside during the colder times can be the most beneficial. Nonetheless, short exposure to the outside cold can be fine and is usually not detrimental to the pet's health.

"Dogs and cats shiver a lot like people. This action is used to help generate body heat in cold climates," Diesel said. "If your pet shivers while outside, shorten the length of your trips together to help reduce this trembling. Providing extra bedding like blankets and towels will also keep your pets warm and cozy."

For larger pets that cannot come inside, making sure they have an adequate outdoor shelter is important to their comfort and safety. Shelters such as dog houses and stables can be very helpful during cold winds, and should have extra bedding (blankets, towels, hay, etc.) added for additional warmth.

"An important thing to remember for outdoor pets is to make sure they always have a fresh supply of water," Diesel said. "If it gets cold enough to freeze this should be checked regularly to make sure the water doesn't freeze over. Moving water sources like fountains are less likely to do this."

Conditions like frostbite and hypothermia, while not typical in warmer climates like Texas, are severe conditions that are common in colder climates.

"Dehydration is a possibility as well if your pet's water source freezes over," Diesel said.

Pet Talk is a service of the College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, Texas A&M University. Stories can be viewed on the Web at <http://vetmed.tamu.edu/pettalk>. Suggestions for future topics may be directed to cvmtoday@cvmt.tamu.edu.

PETS OF THE WEEK

SPECIAL TO EXTRA

Left: Rojo is a 6- to 7-year-old male red heeler cross, about 40 pounds. He is very scared in the shelter and seems sad and depressed. It seems he lost someone he cared about. Despite his fear, he is friendly and enjoys being pet and even rolled over for a belly rub. He needs a new friend to give him love, and he will give the love back. He may be a bit older than the other dogs but he still has lots of love to share. Right: Gidget is a 1-year-old female terrier/lab mix, about 30 pounds. She walks well on a leash and is very loving and calm. She is a real cutie, slightly fluffy with adorable half erect ears. She is quite laid back for her age, very curious and attentive, it should be easy to teach her most anything you would like her to do. Your command is her wish. For more information, contact Animal Control of West Florida, 686 Highway 90, Chipley or call 638-2082. Hours of operation are Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. until noon.

Breakfast will be served in the Parish Hall at 150 Circle Drive in DeFuniack Springs. All proceeds will benefit the building and grounds fund.

Bear Wrongs Patiently

The fifth spiritual work of mercy is to bear wrongs patiently. Bearing wrongs patiently does not, however, mean being a doormat for others to walk on. It simply means that, regardless of the wrongs which we suffer, we should bear them all patiently. For example, if you have had something stolen from your unlocked car, this virtue requires that you treat this with patience and equanimity, but not that you continue to keep your car unlocked. It is more about the attitude that you have concerning the wrong done to you. We might take a lesson from the ancient stoics, who counseled that every event has two handles, as it were, one by which it can be borne and one by which it is unbearable. Remember that everything here is temporary and that liars, thieves, and even murderers really have no power over our immortal souls. Finally, consider the example of Jesus in his last days. Faced with false charges and inhuman torture and suffering, he prayed for his accusers and tormentors. We should show patience by praying for those who wrong us, realizing that they are the ones who have truly been harmed by their misdeeds.

For one is approved if, mindful of God, he endures pain while suffering unjustly. For what credit is it, if when you do wrong and are beaten for it you take it patiently? But if when you do right and suffer for it you take it patiently, you have God's approval.

Carson Fender is pastor. He comes to UHBC with 55-plus years of ministry. He served the First Baptist Church of Fort Lauderdale for many years. He was minister of adult education and then minister to senior adults. He served as a director of missions in southwest Virginia with 32 churches. He also served as a church enrichment missionary with the Southern Baptist Conservatives of Virginia, one of the state conventions, before relocating to Graceville to be near to his son and family.

This is your special invitation to come check us out. For more information, contact Pastor Carson or Martha at 263-2263 or rcfender@hughes.net.

Beware, O, ye blasted hacker

Under normal circumstances, I am a rather cool, calm and collected person. I say normal because not everything in my life is normal. It takes a lot to rattle this cage of mine, but once rattled lookout, whoever rattles it.

I am saying all this to get to my point, which is, somebody hacked my computer email account this past week. If you think I will take this sitting down, oh, I guess I am sitting down right now, but I assure you I will not stand for something like this. I have never been so rattled in my life.

If a mistake is mine, I will own up to it. If it is not mine, lookout, sender.

The first thing I did was to call my cousin who is an attorney, Charles Sues-A-Lot, and laid the case out before him. My first question to my cousin attorney was very basic: "Is it still against the law to murder someone?"

As all good attorneys do, he hesitated and thought about it.

He then went on to explain that if he could prove insanity, there was a good chance he could get somebody off very lightly.

"Insanity," I said. "Is that hard to prove in a court of law?"

At this point, there was no hesitation whatsoever. My good lawyer cousin said, "Not in your case."

If insanity runs in our family, I am convinced it trotted over into his pasture a long time ago and has been milling around for years.

At this point, murder is out.

If I actually knew who this person was, I could "defriend" them like they do on Facebook. You can be sure I would defriend him with all of the sarcastic bitterness I could muster on that hot dog.

I noticed this last week when I accessed my email a bunch of different pop-ups popped up on my screen. Instinctively I tried to unpop them without any success whatsoever. Every time there was a "pop-up," I had the instinctive desire to pop someone in the nose.

At one stage, it got out of control, and about 17,000 pop-ups jumped onto my computer screen at the same time. Without thinking, I immediately turned off my computer.

If anybody knows what I did, you realize what I did was a terrible thing to do. I encrypted, or whatever the term is, these pop-ups permanently on my computer. When I opened up my computer, it was pop-up time for the hacker.

Things can be done to "unhack" your computer, which I put in full force. I really wanted to hack into this hacker's life, except he probably does not have one. I mean, after all, where are the jollies of hacking into someone's email account? I can see someone hacking into my bank account. I would love to see someone hack into my bank account and see how much money I don't have.

If I was a small government, I could see somebody trying to hack into my email accounts. As it stands, where is the payoff in doing something like this? This ghost hacker cannot see me and my frustration after being hacked. So, what is the good of it all?

These pop-ups on my computer were coming fast and furious.

Then it hit me. This is not some ghost hacker hacking into my email account; it must be the government. The government must be behind it. I remember something called "fast and furious" in the news a while back. Was this what they were talking about? Am I now a casualty of Big Brother-itis?

There were many similarities between what I was going through and our government.

First off, the whole thing was rather annoying. I am not sure there has ever been a time in our country when the government has been more annoying than now.

Then, all the hacking did not make any sense to me at all. How much of the government is really making sense to anybody anymore? I am sure there is somebody, somewhere who can make sense out of our government, but he is probably on the run.

All of this hacking of my email has interrupted my life. So has the government. The government has taken on a new phase where it is not happy unless it is interrupting my life every day of the week. I would not mind so much if the government would take at least one day a week off. But no, it is a 24/7 kind of annoyance.

A friend of mine said that everybody goes through this sort of thing, and it is kind of an equal share in the misery of being on the Internet.

Equal share? That's government lingo if ever I heard it.

After three days of torturous working at my computer, I finally got the pop-ups to stop. I changed the password of my email account and brought all of this nonsense to a stop.

I won the battle against that blasted hacker who tried to ruin my week.

With a steaming cup of coffee and my open Bible, I read some comforting words. "Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the world" (1 John 4:4 KJV).

My relationship is of such a nature with God that nobody can hack into that relationship. I rest completely in God's competent hands.

Beulah W. Perdue

Beulah Williamson Perdue passed away Monday, Jan. 21, 2013. She was born near Graceville, on Sept. 4, 1922 to Lee and LaVada Newman Wilson. She attended Poplar Springs School and graduated from Holmes County High School. In 1942 she eagerly moved to the 'big city' Pensacola with husband H.L. Williamson and their two sons. In 1947 the family moved out in the country, just off of Nine Mile Road in the Ferry Pass area. Years later she formally named their street Hillview Drive. After graduating from cosmetology school, Beulah began working at the Beauteria at Town and Country Plaza. She later moved to the 'new' Beauteria at Fairfield and Davis where she worked for over 20 years. Before becoming a beautician, Beulah worked at Riverview Restaurant. She and her family were members of Olive Baptist church and were among the worshipers who were charter members of what became Hillcrest Baptist Church. In later years she returned to Olive where she was a member of the Senior Adult seven Sunday School class. She was a member of the "Ferry Pass Four", a quartet formed by husband H.L. that performed at churches and on WEAR and WPPA. For many years she was a regular worker at the polls on voting days. She was a member of Eastern Star Chapter 253 where at one time she served as pianist.

Following retirement she volunteered as a Sunshine Volunteer at West Florida Hospital.

She was preceded in death by her parents; sisters and brother; first husband, Henry Lloyd Williamson; son, Jimmy Haynes Williamson and second husband, Ray DeVries.

She is survived by husband John Perdue; son, James (Nancy) Williamson; grandchildren, Lisa (Nick) Treglia, Kathryn (E.J.) Aufderheide, Randall (Excy), David (Carolyn) and Elizabeth Williamson; seven great-grandchildren, Nicholas and Grace Treglia, J.D. & Hudson Aufderheide and Julia, Mark and Kris Williamson, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Visitation was held Thursday, Jan. 24, 2013 from 10 to 11 a.m., at Faith Chapel Funeral Home South. Funeral services were held Thursday, Jan. 24, 2013 at 11 a.m., at Faith Chapel Funeral Home South with the Rev. Jerry Passmore officiating. In lieu of flowers memorials may be made to Regency Hospice.

Faith Chapel Funeral Home South, 100 Beverly Parkway, Pensacola, FL is in charge of arrangements. You may express your condolences online at www.fcfs.com.

Jazz Duo to perform for Chipola Artist Series

The Davis and Dow jazz duo will perform for the Chipola College Artist Series, Thursday, Feb. 7, in the Chipola Center for the Arts. The show of Jazz standards will include a request-by-favorites second half in which the audience gets to pick blues selections.

The award-winning Davis and Dow jazz duo tackles jazz and pop standards. Their style is deeply rooted in the classic jazz tradition but with a playfulness that keeps the music fresh and fun. Their arrangements are unique and inventive, always seeking a new approach to everything they do.

Julie Davis is everything from scat-singer to balladeer. She grew up listening to Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Ella Fitzgerald and others on her parents' extensive vinyl collection. She is a stylist that seeks an original twist on everything she performs.

Kelly Dow is a world-class guitarist whose primary influences are Joe Pass, Jimmy Bruno, Django Reinhardt and the modern day European gypsy jazz virtuosos. He blends Be-Bop, Blues, Flamenco and Classical styles to create a strong individual sound delivered with sensitivity, power and creativity.

Davis and Dow have toured Japan, London, and New York, composed and performed original music for the TV show "FoodNation with Bobby Flay," and produced "Divas of Jazz." Their latest CD "Naked" won Best Jazz Album-Florida Music Awards, was featured in JazzTimes Magazine and voted Best Jazz Artists by New Times Magazine.

Tickets are available online at www.chipola.edu. Click "Fine Arts" and "Artist Series." Online tickets may be printed at home or with an order confirmation, will-call tickets will be available at the box office the night of the show. The Center for the Arts Box Office will be open at 6 p.m. the night of the show on Feb. 7.

Tickets are $14 for adults and $10 for children under 18. Tickets for Chipola students and employees are $5 the day of the show.

For information, visit www.chipola.edu or phone 718-2257.

Flea Across Florida

All clubs, organizations, church groups and the general public in Washington County are invited to take part in the Spring Flea Across Florida event April 12-13. The Downtown Chipley Merchants said sale sites can range from large multi-organization sites to individual sites along Highway 90.

The sale will feature vendors selling everything from antiques, collectibles, furniture, odds and ends, as well as hand crafted items and traditional yard sale fare.

Start collecting all of those unwanted items you have around your home and put together a Flea Market Table/Booth and set a place along Highway 90 in Washington County to set up. Sales will run from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days (rain or shine).

There will be no designated flea market locations, but anyone desiring to set up a table along the route is welcome to contact the property owner for permission to set and then be sure to clean up when the event is finished.

North Florida's biggest flea market will draw visitors from throughout the region. The 272-mile-long flea market will extend along Hwy 90 from Lake City, to Pensacola, with stops in every county and community that participates.

The Alabama/Florida Peanut Trade Show set

Special to Extra

The Alabama/Florida Peanut Trade Show is Thursday, Feb. 7, at the National Peanut Festival Fairgrounds located on Highway 231 South of Dothan, Ala.

Sponsored by the Alabama Peanut Producers Association and the Florida Peanut Producers Association, the one-day event offers farmers the opportunity to view the products and services of more than 70 exhibitors. The show opens at 8:30 am central time followed by a catered lunch at 12 noon. The afternoon's events include a seed and production seminar as well as a legislative update.

"We invite and encourage all peanut farmers to attend this year's Peanut Trade Show," said Ken Barton, executive director of the Florida

Peanut Producers Association. "It's a great opportunity for farmers to see the latest, most up-to-date advances in peanut production and harvesting equipment and visit with vendors that provide products and services to peanut farmers. The afternoon seminars will provide current information that will be helpful as you make plans for the 2013 production year."

Thousands of dollars in door prizes will be offered. Cash prizes, gift cards, peanut seed, a shotgun and many more. KMC will offer the Grand Door Prize, which is one season's use of a 4 or 6-row KMC peanut combine with the option to purchase at a reduced price at the end of the harvest season.

For more information contact the Florida Peanut Producers Association office at 850-526-2590.

Hope for Tristan Fundraiser

The family and friends of Tristan Hartzog are working hard to raise money so that he can receive treatment for the Seminoma Cancer that he was diagnosed with in September. Tristan is 29 years old and uninsured. Without treatment this type of cancer would have a life expectancy of 5 years. We need all the help we can get. Please go to: www.giveforward.com/hopefortristan & help us out. To give is to love.
