NFMC seeks to improve technical education

Workforce improvement seen as key to attracting industry

By RANDAL SEYLER

rseyler@chipleypaper.com

CHIPLEY — What if you wanted to open a facility making parts for airplane engines but couldn't find any employees locally with the skills to work the machines needed to machine the parts?

Increasingly, manufacturers are having trouble finding employees capable of doing the jobs that need to be done. But now, there is a new council forming that hopes to lay the groundwork for a healthy workforce in Northwest Florida by bringing the various factions of education together with manufacturing leaders to develop a skilled workforce.

The newly formed Northwest Florida Manufacturers Council wants to bring educators and manufacturers together to work on building this workforce, making Northwest Florida more attractive to industries that might want to locate here.

Northwest Florida Manufacturers Council Vice Chairman Allan Bense and Board Member Terry Ellis were in Chipley Monday discussing the new council.

"We're getting people together and discussing the needs," Ellis said. "We want to be a voice for all industry throughout Northwest Florida."

Bense is president of GAC Contractors in Panama City and served in the Florida House of Representatives from 1998-2006. Ellis is a founding board member. He is manager of West Point Home in Chipley and serves on the Washington County School Board.

Chipola College and Washington County Chamber of Commerce are charter members of the council.

Helping manufacturing companies grow is the aim of the council, Ellis said, which consists of representatives from area employers, educational institutions and economic development and workforce organizations.

BONIFAY — Lee and Kim Miller said they couldn't be prouder of their daughter Zoie Miller, a 9-year-old fourth grader at Bethlehem School who recently received the Florida Scholar Award 2013 for achieving the highest level scores in the state on the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test in Reading. "I can't even express how proud I am," Lee said. "I'm honored to have her as my baby. Her and Jolie are my heart, and I'm blessed to have them as my babies."

Zoie said she enjoys music, reading, shooting guns, hanging out with friends, going to the zoo and spending time on her Nook.

She began studying for the FCAT last year, with the help of Reading Coach Gwynn Stafford. "I'd also like to thank Keyla Boswell, who has been a very good teacher, as well as Cheryl West, who has been a huge help," Lee said. "I wanted to thank all the teachers and her grandparents who carry them to and from school and most of all I'd like to thank God for all his blessings."

CHIPLEY — The Washington-Holmes Domestic Violence Task Force discussed upcoming awareness events during its meeting on Aug. 8 at the Washington-Holmes Technical Center.

Missy Sword Lee, Family Intervention Program supervisor for Habilitative Services of Northwest Florida, announced Doctors Memorial Hospital had partnered with the task force to host an awareness walk from 5-9 p.m. on Oct. 11 at the hospital in Bonifay.

"This will include a walk for anyone who can get pledges to raise money," Lee said. "The walk will be around the hospital's walking path. There will also be a 'walk in her shoes' event for men to participate by wearing high heels for pledge money."

She said at the end of night there would be a vigil where luminaries, which may be purchased in advance for $10, will be lighted during a special ceremony where victims and survivors are recognized while survivors are sharing their stories.

"We have sponsorship packages available for local businesses and individuals that have a nice incentive package to go with the level that they choose to give," Lee said. "We will have free food, give-

County approves new garbage franchise agreement

By CECILIA SPEARS
547-9414 | @WCN_HCT
cspears@chipleypaper.com

BONIFAY — The Holmes County Board of County Commissioners approved the recently revised garbage franchise agreement during their meeting on Aug. 13.

County Attorney Jeff Goodman explained it was basically the same agreement before only this time it added the requirement for franchises to show proof of insurance and reinforced if any franchise that did not comply with the agreement could have their contract with the county terminated.

The board agreed to allow Goodman to advertise for Ordinance 05-08.

"This is a small county surtax that was started 17 or 18 years ago," Goodman said. "For financial reasons the county has chosen to renew, and I need permission to advertise to schedule for September to get it going."

The board approved renewing their membership with Opportunity Florida in the amount of $1,992.70.

Commissioner Bill Parish asked what benefits the county receives from being a member of Opportunity Florida, and Chairman Monty Merchant replied a "solicitation of businesses."

"Their goal is bringing in businesses to the area," Goodman said. "I like the idea of being a part of them."

Merchant reminded the board there are a couple of members of the Holmes County Development Commission who have resigned.

"It's nothing we need to do right now. It's just something we need to consider and bring the names to the next meeting," Merchant said. "Shirley Hawthorn's term is up, but she has volunteered to continue serving on the board."

The board approved of reappointing Hawthorn and agreed to bring names for potential new members at the next scheduled meeting. Malinda Pollock with CDG Engineers came before the board to request a Landfill Permit Modification in efforts to save the county up to $7,000 a year.

"It is to change the gas testing from quarterly to annually," Pollock said. "This will drastically reduce laboratory fees and should save you up to $7,000 per year."

The board approved of the Landfill Permit Modification in the amount of $3,200.

meeting since January to discuss how existing manufacturers can be more successful and how to attract more companies to the region.

The result of those meetings is the formation of the council, which will help companies work together to compete in a global marketplace with a special emphasis on having a skilled workforce.

"We have to change the image of technical education," Bense said. "There is that impression that students who go to a technical campus are not as successful as their college-bound counterparts, but technical jobs are good paying jobs."

Bense said certified automotive technicians can earn $70,000 a year, for example. "A lot of the jobs begin at $30,000, and go up from there," he said. Likewise, most skilled manufacturing positions that pay well above minimum wage require math and science knowledge as well as practical mechanical ability.

"One of the problems is, if you ask a room full of parents 'who wants their child to go to college,' most of them will raise their hands. But the truth is we aren't sending all our kids to college," Bense said.

Ellis said that in Washington County, 75 percent of the graduates will not go to college. "We need to do a better job of providing that technical education or certification program for these students so they can get out of high school and earn a good living," Ellis said.

Likewise, a skilled workforce is often a prerequisite for manufacturers to build a facility in a region.

"People aren't looking at five-year plans anymore," Ellis said. "They are looking 18 months down the road, and they want to know what you can do for them right now," when it comes to providing things such as a suitable industrial site or a skilled workforce.

Ellis said there is likely to be a resurgence in manufacturing in the U.S., and to benefit from the resurgence, Northwest Florida needs to begin planning now.

The council wants to start by initiating a dialogue between public schools, colleges, universities and technical schools along with manufacturing leaders to start working toward the goal of providing essential workforce education, Ellis said.

"I've been told that if the students have a certain level of education, then they can be trained in other skills," Ellis said. "It's getting the students up to that level, and changing the perception that technical education is somehow lesser than college-oriented education, that we need to work on."

The form the education will take, and the development of the technical academies, is something to be decided, but that discussion needs to begin as soon as possible, Bense said.

The council currently has more than 25 members and is looking to grow the membership.

"This new council exists to serve the needs of local manufacturers," said Greg Britton, CEO of Fort Walton Machining and council chairman, in a news release. "By banding together we will increase our influence on a regional, state and national level to ensure our industry continues to prosper."

Manufacturing is a high value-added industry in the economy, generating the highest earnings per worker of any industry. With more than 15,000 manufacturing jobs already in Northwest Florida, this sector is projected to grow at a higher rate than in other region throughout the state, according to Britton.

"The benefits of membership include promoting job creation and helping to build a skilled manufacturing workforce in the region," Britton said. "And by speaking with one voice we can help tackle issues and address roadblocks."

Commissioner Bobby Sasnett asked how many years were left on the permit, and Pollock said that in 2010, there was 25 years left.

The board agreed with Parish's request to hold a 30-minute workshop before every morning meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, where they could discuss items with department heads.

"It's just an organizational advantage we don't usually have," Parish said. "We'll try it for a few months, and if it doesn't work out, we'll move it to once a quarter."

The first workshop is set for 8 a.m. on Sept. 10 before the regularly scheduled meeting at 9 a.m.

The commissioners agreed to hold a budget workshop during the week to finalize the budget.

Merchant reminded the board there is still an opportunity to acquire milled asphalt at no cost to the county; the only cost would be the county going and retrieving it.

Parish suggested the board hire someone to retrieve the milled asphalt, and Goodman suggested since the county's employees didn't work on Fridays, the board should use employees on a Friday to retrieve it.

"It just seems that paying our men overtime would be cheaper than hiring a company," Goodman said.

The board agreed to look into how much asphalt was being offered and evaluate the cheapest means of retrieving it.

Goodman also said the Holmes County District School Board Superintendent Eddie Dixon had sent over a letter for the board members to sign.

"It's a brief letter stating the board's support that he wants to take with him to Tallahassee," Goodman said.

The next scheduled meeting of the Holmes County Board of County Commissioners is set for 6 p.m. on Aug. 27.

Lee and Kim said she does all of her homework on her own and even takes time to help tutor her younger sister, Jolie.

"I did it myself," Zoie said.

Zoie also received a letter from State Rep. Don Gaetz.

"On behalf of the Senate and State of Florida, I'm pleased to inform you that your outstanding scores on the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test have earned you recognition as one of the highest performing students in the state," Gaetz wrote. "Your achievement in Reading is among the best of all students in all schools in all counties in the state. Your scores stood out brilliantly not only in Holmes County but helped set the standard of academic excellence in Florida.

"As your senator, I'm so proud of you. You bring honor to your family, your teachers at Bethlehem School and your community."

Zoie said she wasn't sure what she wants to be when she grows up, but she's excited about joining the school's basketball team.

always, fun for the kids, vendors and entertainment. That entertainment will consist of local talent, but we will also have an award-winning artist singing as well, which will be announced when I finalize it."

She said they are in need of vendors to set up at the event.

"If the vendor is selling an item for profit, then the vendor fee is $50," Lee said. "If the vendor is setting up to give away items to event attendees, such as popcorn, water bottles, etc., then the vendor fee is waived. I will be speaking at the Chipley Kiwanis on Tuesday, Aug. 27. On Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 9 a.m., the Holmes County Board of County Commissioners will be hearing a proclamation read to make October Domestic Violence Awareness Month for Holmes County," Lee said. "On Thursday, Oct. 26, at 9 a.m. we will be doing the same thing at the Washington County Board of County Commissioners meeting."

Water wars heat up

It turns out Sen. Marco Rubio's committee hearing Aug. 13 in Apalachicola was just the opening shot fired in the latest interstate water war. Later that day, Gov. Rick Scott announced Florida would sue Georgia for hoarding water and killing Apalachicola Bay. Scott's move made the biggest noise, but the political path — such as Rubio's hearing — likely will prove more effective at ending the tri-state stalemate.

Rubio requested a rare field hearing of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation to draw attention to the plight of the bay. Unchecked growth in the Atlanta metro area for the last 30 years has drained Lake Lanier of too much of its fresh water. That in turn has left an insufficient amount to flow downstream in the Apalachicola-Chattahoochee-Flint River Basin, which empties into the Apalachicola Bay.

The result has been an environmental and economic disaster in the Apalachicola area. Insufficient fresh water has reduced oyster harvests in the bay 60 percent in the last year, creating a 44 percent drop in revenue in the local oyster industry. Seafood industry officials estimate in just the past year, 60 people have quit the oyster business and moved away. That's a significant number in a small community that relies heavily on oysters for its livelihood.

On Aug. 12, the Obama administration made it official by declaring a fishery disaster for Florida's oyster beds on the Gulf coast, making the area eligible for economic assistance.

Florida and Alabama (which has also suffered environmental damage) have been trying for years to get Georgia to reduce its intake of water. Lawsuits go back to 1990. In 2011, Georgia won a huge victory when a federal appeals court overturned a lower court and unanimously ruled that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has authority to allocate additional water from Lake Lanier to meet Atlanta's increasing needs. The Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal.

That would seem to preclude a legal solution to the problem. But Scott, with the backing of Rubio, Sen. Bill Nelson and Rep. Steve Southerland, R-Panama City, who accompanied him in Apalachicola Aug. 13, believes one more lawsuit could do the trick. He said Florida next month will file an injunction with the Supreme Court to force Georgia to increase its flow.

That seems like a longshot. A decision probably also wouldn't come soon enough to deliver relief to Apalachicola oysterers.

The best bet is to achieve a legislative solution in Congress. The Senate in May turned away attempts by Nelson and Rubio to amend the 2013 Water Resources Development Act that would have required more water to flow to Apalachicola Bay. They should keep trying. Cobbling together enough votes to pass legislation should prove easier than convincing a Supreme Court that has already refused to address the issue, not to mention getting the three states to agree on a water compact.

Rubio admits "the strategy is to do everything — put as much out there and see what sticks." He and his colleagues on Capitol Hill are the best hope.

Historic McGee home being demolished

A landmark on North Waukesha Street is being demolished, and it prompted me to record as much McGee history as I can gather.

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

Not many Bonifay residents remember the McGee family, who were an early family active in the business community from the 1920s until the 1950s. I remember Mrs. Lilla McGee from her involvement in First Baptist Church and especially the Woman's Missionary Union. A WMU Circle bore her name for many years after I was a part of the church. A circle was also named for Mrs. Daisy Griffith and Mrs. Susan Armstrong, contemporaries of Mrs. McGee.

Ken Yates grew up next door to the McGee family, and when Mr. Claude McGee died in 1953, Ken spent nights at the home until Mrs. McGee became accustomed to being alone. She was an excellent cook, he remembers, and introduced him to salt fish for breakfast along with her homemade biscuits. Her scrambled eggs with brains, however, did not appeal to the young Yates. In the '50s, she also had a television set, which many of us did not, so he enjoyed watching T.V. with her. He described the home as very well decorated in Queen Anne and Victorian style and Mrs. McGee, a true Southern lady who originated in Abbeville, Ala., enjoyed entertaining friends in her home.

Mr. J.C. McGee, who came to Bonifay from Hartford, Ala., owned and operated McGee Oil Company on Highway 90 east. He was a wholesale Independent Oil Dealer in addition to the retail outlet, McGee's service station. His tire recapping shop was in back of the service station. His son, Jack McGee, worked with him and continued the business after his father's death. Jack moved to Fort Walton about 1962 with his wife, Majorie, and children, Phipps and Ann. Marjorie passed away soon after the family left Bonifay. Jack's brother, Howard McGee, moved to Fort Walton with his wife, Catherine, years earlier and was in the banking business.

The house itself was built about 1920, close to the same time as the

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES-ADVERTISER

The McGee Home on Waukesha Street was the home of J.C. and Lilla McGee. He was co-owner of McGee Oil Co., operated in later years by son Jack McGee.

Waits Home just up the street. The Craftsman style house featured a wide front veranda flanked with brick pillars and post columns. Wide brick steps welcomed visitors to the seven foot tall front door, which opened into the wide hall that runs the length of the main house ending in a T-shaped hall that leads to the kitchen and to the side entrance. Built with 12-foot high ceilings of heart pine, the hard wood floors have been covered with carpet. Some of the wainscoting seems to have been added covering the original wallpaper. On the north side is a spacious living room with a fireplace and a large dining room with a fireplace. The kitchen is across the T-shaped hall. An enclosed brick chimney housed a flue for a wood stove, I am sure. A bedroom with adjoining small bath is near the service entrance. That part of the house was an apartment at one time and Terry (Taylor) and Shay McCormick begun their married life there.

On the south side of the hall are two large bedrooms with a Jack and Jill bath between. They both have fireplaces. I was impressed with the small closets. I know people didn't have as much "stuff" as we collect today. And I am sure in those large rooms they had wardrobes and bureaus with lots of drawers.

It is sad to see the demise of such a well-built, once-regal home. David Lauen has salvaged the original style Queen Ann windows (not insulated). Surprisingly, few of them have been broken. Bill Parish is working to salvage the beautiful door moldings, just to preserve them for their historical value. It is unfortunate that someone could not restore the home for a dwelling, but most people don't want to live on Main Street. Jake and Alice Jacobs bought it with the idea of restoring it in the late 1980s but decided to go a different route. They sold it to a family who wanted to use it as an antique shop, but that also fell through. Alice did come into possession of a couple of pieces of Mrs. McGee's antique furniture, which she has had restored and still proudly uses in her home.

The Jacobs sold the home to Billy and Ollie Hudson, who lived there for several years. I recall their Christmas decorations, especially how they decorated the antique truck which they parked in the front yard.

Through the generosity of a late church member, First Baptist Church is the current owner of the property and offered the house for sale to be moved or torn down. Since no takers were forthcoming, the city has asked that it be removed as an eyesore. I just couldn't let it go without memorializing the McGee house as a tribute to Bonifay's early history and the people who made it the town it is today.

Local author researches Battle of Bataan

Mary Cathrin May was born in Vernon in 1938 and reared almost in the shadow of Vernon High School, where she graduated in 1956. Her parents were Evelyn May and Ruth Burdeshaw May. She has one older sister, Gilda May Morris, a 1946 graduate at Vernon. Both ladies have spent their adult lives in Tallahassee.

Mary Cathrin received a bachelor's degree and a master's degree from Florida State University and, for 40 years, taught social studies in Leon County and Florida State University School.

In 1998, she embarked on her overwhelming desire to write a book on her extensive and highly exhaustive efforts in searching for information on her uncle, Staff Sgt. Emil Russ (Billy) May, who died in Cabanatuan, a Japanese Prisoner of War Camp on January 3, 1943. He was imprisoned when Bataan fell on April 9, 1942.

The 200-page book, completed in 2003, titled "The Steadfast Line: The Story of the 27th. Bombardment Group (Light) in World War II," is filled with information this lady gleaned from a host of research, travels, personal contacts with those on the scene with her uncle and a treasured bibliography. All of this has enabled her to tell the gripping and heart wrenching story of Sgt. May's months of abuse, torture and suffering while in the hands of the enemy.

The author explains: "After the war, the U. S. government provided his parents, William W. May Jr. and Mary Alice May, with an empty, flag covered coffin, which they buried in the family cemetery plot near New Hope, Fla. At the head of his grave, they erected a modest, stone marker that bore his name, the dates of his birth and death, his military rank, bomb group and squadron."

She concluded: "With the exception of occasional visits by relatives to his grave site, the memory of Uncle Billy was lost in the past."

For many years, Mary Cathrin May reports she considered ways to record the history of Vernon but lacked the primary resources. In 2000, she met Faye Middleton, who along with her husband, John Middleton, had migrated to Vernon to make their home.

It was through their collection of photographs and artifacts from other local residents that she proceeded with her second book: "Vernon, the Heart of Old Washington County."

This popular book is filled with pictures and short stories of Vernon and its people. It is available to purchase at the Vernon Historical Museum and the Vernon City Hall. It is nominally priced and proving to be needed income for the Vernon Historical Society.

The writer and author has long been active in the political arena of her adoptive county, Leon, and the city of Tallahassee. Her last literary effort was a book written in 2009, titled "From Freedmen to Free Men — Black Political Leaders in Tallahassee and Leon County 1965-1890 and 1950-1971."

In recent days, my friend, Mary Cathrin May, has "surfaced" in the form of an email reporting that she has been skimming through the Chipley Banner (copies available 1897-1922) and was "plumb fascinated" with all the information about old Washington County. She states: "The researcher in me simply had to start compiling notes about people and events that were of particular interest to me."

She continued: "I ain't plannin' to write no more books — AND I thought that maybe you (and your readers) might also be interested in some of the stories."

Chipley Banner, May 21, 1898

"THE FIRE, A TERRIBLE CONFLAGRATION IN WHICH MUCH PROPERTY IS LOST"

On May 14, a few minutes after noon, cries of fire, church bells peal alarm: location determined, "whole populace of town at scene." Started in small building at rear of White and Williams' store, in central portion of business district, and spread rapidly, 35 buildings consumed; no wind; fire finally stopped. Origin of fire unknown, attributed to "incendiarism."

Church, entitled "Chipley in Ashes." Special adjutor rep. Providence Washington Insurance Co., and agents, R. F. And David Edrihi of Marianna, in town to configure losses sustained in fire.

May 28, 1898 — Burned businesses set up in temporary quarters; Rebuilding of burned section underway; Banner Editor, T. C. Jones, urges people to rebuilding with "brick." "Do It Right" — Town practically destroyed by fire; causes were (one) "no water supply and protection" and (two) the character of the building (old frame buildings"). Experience ought not to be repeated and can be avoided by building with stone or brick; insurance rates on such buildings much lower. Rebuild right — stone buildings and metal roofs.

See you next week.

Coley speaks about overcoming educational hurdles

BONIFAY — Representative Marti Coley visited the Bonifay Kiwanis Club as their guest speaker during the club's Aug. 14 meeting. "She may be a guest, but she's no stranger to us here in Holmes County," Event Coordinator Roger Brooks said. "As we were eating and talking about preparations for the next rodeo, she was right there with us with full understanding because she has been to the rodeo before as well as many other events right here in Holmes County." Coley said the topic of interest for this meeting was to revisit a subject that was discussed at the last meeting she was a guest speaker, which was a year ago. "It was a topic we all took to heart and has recently passed in legislation," Coley said. "That topic was the training and jobs, so students don't have to leave too far from home. Through legislation, we've created multiple pathways to gain a diploma." To be more specific, Coley explained there has been advances in schools even as soon as high school, where students can choose to develop their skills in the technical field instead of purely academic pursuits. "We've pursued classes that are more relevant and will help them prepare them if they choose to go into a career right out of high school and maybe postpone their college education for a few years," Coley said. "I taught at Chipola for many years, and a lot of my students were older students returning. They had been in the work force, and then they suddenly realized that they really need a degree to go further." She explained the legislation passed offers incentives and help to school districts to provide industry certification. "The good news to that is that you have the Washington-Holmes Technical Center right down the road," Coley said. "That suddenly becomes very relevant for your students. So I'm excited about the opportunity for us to work together and make more training available for our students and hopefully, with that, more jobs so they can come home." Coley encouraged those who have ideas, questions or opinions to contact her via email at marti.coley@myfloridahouse.gov; via phone at 850-717-5005; via mail at District Office: Chipola College, 3094

Hundreds of Florida panthers sighted

From Staff Reports

The public has reported hundreds of sightings of Florida panthers to the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission website launched a year ago, where people can record when and where they saw a panther or its tracks, FWC officials wrote in a news release.

As of August 2013, the public had submitted 790 sightings to MyFWC.com/PantherSightings.

"The public's willingness to share what they have seen or collected on game cameras is incredibly helpful and shows us where panthers presumably are roaming in Florida," said Darrell Land, who heads the FWC's panther team. "We thank everyone using the Report Florida Panther Sightings website and encourage others to participate in this citizen-science venture."

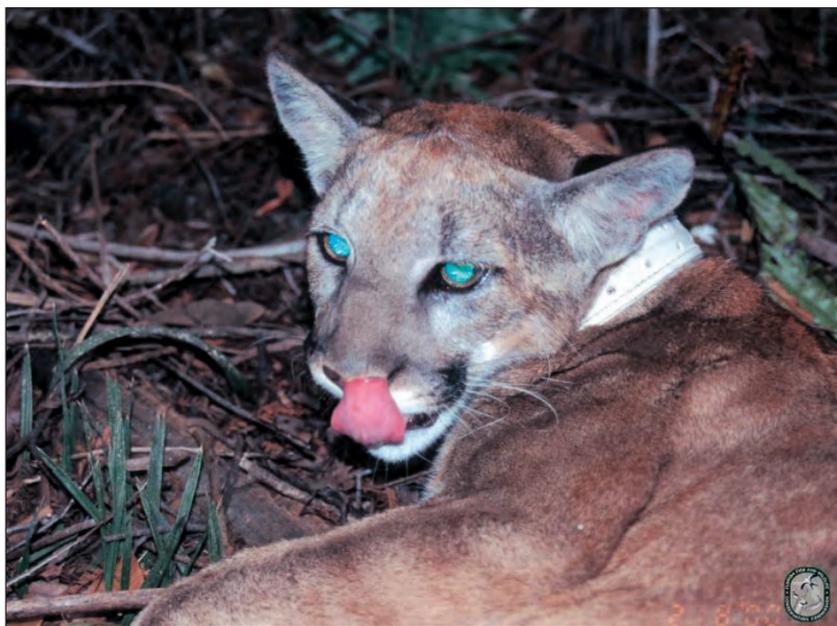

Only 12 percent of the reports included a photograph and could be evaluated by Commission biologists. Of those with photos, the majority were confirmed as panthers. Other animals identified by FWC biologists were bobcats, foxes, coyotes, dogs, house cats and even a monkey, officials wrote. Most often the reported animal or tracks belonged to a bobcat, when it was not a panther. The verified panther reports were largely confined to southwest Florida, the well-documented breeding range for panthers in the state. There also were several verified sightings in south central Florida.

"As the population of this endangered species grows, the FWC expects more Florida panthers to be seen in areas of the state where they have not lived for decades," Land said. "To properly plan and manage for the expansion of the panther's range in Florida, information about where the panthers are is vital."

The FWC has a new "E-Z guide to identify panther tracks" available at www.FloridaPantherNet.org.

The Florida panther population is estimated to be 100 to 160 adults and yearlings, a figure that does not include panther kittens. As recently as the 1970s, the Florida panther was close to disappearing, with as few as 20 animals in the wild.

Hooked on Outdoors

Factors conspire to limit fishing

I believe this is what could be called the summer that wasn't. When it comes to fishing, the last two years have been the worst saltwater fishing years I can remember.

Last year, the wind blew every single day I tried to snapper fish. I suppose the people who have no job enjoyed it because if it was ever calm it was during the middle of the week.

Outdoor Life
Scott Lindsey captainlindsey@
knology.net

This year has been more of the same, rough on the weekends and calm during the week. That is just the tip of the iceberg. We have had more rain during the past two months than we have had in the past six years it seems, and it's still coming down.

If you didn't fish saltwater you might not understand what freshwater does to our bays and Gulf. When it rains on the bay and Gulf it doesn't cause such a discoloration of the water, but let Deerpoint Lake and Crooked Creek and all the other runoff come into the bay and it turns black. The bay runs into the Gulf and turns it black.

As if black bay water weren't enough, all this freshwater has run all the bait out of the bay and Gulf. The boys who sell bait are having to work overtime just to have enough to sell. We tried to buy bait the other day and they ran out before we could get there.

All the familiar places that held cigar minnows last year are as empty as old Mother Hubbard's cupboard. I have caught exactly 20 cigar minnows around the buoys this year. It used to be we caught that many in two drops with a sibiki rig.

Just because I can't seem to catch a fish doesn't mean other people aren't, but the ones I'm talking to are not doing too well. Now we have a new pox on the land and that is this river of a current that is headed east in the Gulf. Pull up to a hole and drop a grouper bait down and you are 50 feet off the hole before your bait can get straightened out.

The hard current is good for mackerel fishing, but little else. Black water, wind, currents that put a strain on your anchor line — it's enough to make a fellow stop fishing and hunt for arrow heads.

'Duck Dynasty' star attends wedding

MARS, Pa. — A camouflage-clad bride and groom got a little advice from a bewhiskered witness on their wedding day: "Duck Dynasty" star Willie Robertson.

WTAE-TV reports Robertson told the couple to always love and forgive one another as they were wed Saturday morning at a Field & Stream store near Pittsburgh.

Robertson popped in for the nuptials of Mehgan Cook, who sported a camouflage sash on her dress, and Charlie Miller, who was completely clad in camo gear.

The two hadn't planned on marrying at the store but Cook said they were eager to meet Robertson.

"I was going to cancel the wedding 'cause I heard Willie was coming," Cook told KDKA-TV.

"Duck Dynasty" star Willie Robertson.

Instead, Cook said, her mother came up with the idea of a wedding at the store — and they got a surprise when Robertson appeared during the ceremony.

"That's a first for me, it's good to be a part of that," Robertson said. "They look like my kind of folks with the camouflage. That was cool."

On the "Duck Dynasty" Season 4 premiere, which aired Wednesday, family members threw a surprise wedding for patriarch Phil Robertson, wearing a black jacket over camouflage garb, and his wife, Miss Kay. They could only afford a justice of the peace when they married 48 years ago.

The show drew 11.8 million viewers on the A&E channel, making it the No. 1 non-fiction series telecast in U.S. cable television history in total viewers as well as all key demographic groups.

Cook said she had been engaged to another man, but he died in a car crash four years ago. But she met Miller at the scene and eventually the two started dating.

"I never thought it would happen again," Cook said, tearing up.

Sharks not the only danger lurking in the water

By SCOTT LINDSEY
Special to Halifax Media

Many who own a television know that it was recently "Shark Week."

Do you realize that the conditions in the Gulf, with the black water color, are exactly like they were in the early 1990s when we had three shark attacks in the jetties area in the same day?

A man was viciously attacked in the Gulf near the east jetties area. There are many versions as to what happened, but the one I hear the most is that he and some women were feeding dolphins from a boat and he said he was going to jump in and catch one. Remember now, they could not see their hands 5 inches under the water.

No matter which story was factual, one thing was certain. He sailed overboard and must have landed right on top of a very big (from the size of the bite marks) and hungry bull shark. Before he knew it most of one leg was gone. I understand the women on the boat tried to pull him aboard and the shark attacked a second time, almost cutting him in two. The man died at the scene.

On the same day, a woman was bitten on the leg wading near the kiddie pool, and a surfer was bitten on the foot in the same area. It is believed that more than one shark was responsible for the attacks.

Shark attacks are horrible, and they make the news, but did you know there is something else in the water that is much more likely to attack you?

It is a bacteria called vibrio vulnificus and it can affect anyone with a compromised immune system. People with diabetes are at risk simply by eating certain shellfish. On man ate oysters at lunch and by dark he was having his legs amputated.

I fished with a doctor who did extensive research on vibrio vulnificus and he advised everyone on the boat who fished to wash down with bleach after each trip, whether we got cut fishing or not. It seems that Clorox kills bacteria.

There is no way to know if you are at risk, so a person that has been in saltwater as a safety measure, especially if you have an open wound, should wash with bleach after leaving the water.

If you cut yourself while in the water, always wash the wound with bleach. That is what a doctor recommended and I always do so. I also have diabetes, and have stopped eating raw oysters even though I love them.

NOAA seeks comment on fall snapper season

From Staff Reports

PANAMA CITY BEACH

— The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is seeking comment on a proposed rule that would increase catch quotas for Gulf red snapper and possibly reopen the recreational season this fall.

The rule outlines an 8.46 million-pound increase in the total allowable catch for red snapper, which would be divided between the recreational and commercial sectors.

The supplemental recreational season would open Oct. 1 and is expected to last for about 21 days if landings do not exceed the previous quota during the June season.

Jeremy Rose back in form at Ebro

From Staff Reports

EBRO — Jeremy Rose prepped for the upcoming Juvenile Stakes with a win over highly regarded Keen Jolene Friday night at Ebro Greyhound Park.

Eliminations for the Juvenile Stakes begin this week at the track. The finals will be held in early September as the Ebro gears for 2013 closing night on Sept. 21.

All greyhounds that broke their maiden at Ebro this season and are under 2 years of age are eligible for the Juvenile. The defending champion is AJN Sweet Smoke, who currently is successfully campaigning at Southland in West Memphis, Ark.

Jeremy Rose re-established himself on Friday night as one of the early favorites for the Juvenile. The Thurber Kennel dog made a huge splash early in the season, then was on the inactive list for six weeks. He's won two straight impressively since his return and appears to have completely regained his form.

Keen Jolene ran second to him in the seventh race on the Evening card on Friday, their dominance to the extent the quiniela paid just $5.60.

Keen Jolene remained at 13 wins on the meet, one behind track win leader Diane Crump who has 14. Lori Keith also has 13 victories after being denied in the seventh race on Saturday evening's card. Boc's Sportspice was the surprise winner, paying $44 across the board and teaming with place dog Flying Henriquez for an $88.60 quiniela.

Two more noteworthy greyhounds were upset on Saturday. Mary Jo Terleski, winner of 11 races, ran second to Superior Tally and stayed put at 11 triumphs for the summer. Kristina Kelly was third to Kells Orbit and remains at 10 wins.

The track currently is in the later stages of the 2013 schedule and features live greyhound racing on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights with no matinee performances.

Among the better pay-offs late last week were Ww's Discloser and Cals Sassa Frass combining for a $228.80 quiniela on Friday and Go Bon Smokefree and Flying Stormy producing a $211 quiniela on Saturday night.

Ebro remains open for simulcasting and live performances seven days per week, and the Poker Room, with the Bad Beat Jackpot eclipsing $80,000, also is open seven days beginning at 9 a.m. on week days.

Kaplan steps downs as PCST head coach

By JASON SHOOT

PANAMA CITY BEACH — Jonathan Kaplan earned this vacation. He's earned what awaits him after it, too.

Kaplan, 33, is stepping down from his post as head coach of the Panama City Swim Team to accept a coaching position with Nova of Virginia Aquatics in Richmond, Va. Kaplan's long-time assistant with the Tsunamis, Brian Haddad, has been named as Kaplan's successor with the PCST.

Kaplan returned home early this week after a trip to Irvine, Calif., where PCST swimmers Michael Duderstadt and Jonathan Ratliff were competing in the U.S. Open Long Course Championships. The elite national meet served as Kaplan's final competition as the Tsunamis' head coach, and he was enjoying a mid-day stroll Friday as part of his self-described stay-at-home vacation.

The local swim team has enjoyed considerable success since Kaplan took over the program in 2006, but Kaplan was reluctant to tout his own success.

"Maybe the vision and direction was provided by me, but it was impossible for us to achieve what we've achieved without the help of a lot of people," he said. "One thing I'm most proud of is that we as a community has people who have come together with the same goal in mind, and that's to take this small, semi-serious team and make it serve the community in a way nobody every imagined it could."

Ken Barton Family honored as Holmes County Agriculture Innovator

Special to Times-Advertiser

MARIANNA — Thirteen Innovative Farmers and Ranchers were recognized by University of Florida IFAS Extension and Farm Credit of Northwest Florida at the Jackson County Agriculture Conference Center in Marianna on Friday, Aug. 9.

This is the third year these two organizations have teamed up to honor an elite group of innovative farmers and ranchers in the Florida Panhandle. The Ken Barton family was recognized as the Holmes County Agriculture Innovator of the Year by Shep Eubanks, Holmes County Extension.

The Barton family operates Barton Farms located near the Bethlehem Community. Barton Farms is a family business that produces cotton, peanuts, oats, cattle, and hay on approximately 1,200 acres. The Barton farm is an excellent example of utilizing best management practices including crop rotation and integrated pest management in an agricultural operation.

In 2003, in addition to his farming activities, Barton became the Executive Director of the Florida Peanut Producers Association where he represents the peanut farmers of the state of Florida in Tallahassee and Washington, D.C. He has provided strong leadership to the organization and is heavily involved in research, promotion, and education as it relates to Florida peanut production, leading to innovation in varieties, cropping systems, and youth education. Ken and Rhonda Barton are members of the Florida Peanut Producers Association, the Southern Peanut Farmers Federation, Florida Cattlemen's Association, and Florida Farm Bureau Federation. Barton has a distinguished history of working with Extension to promote timely research in peanut production, provide and facilitate funding for research, and participate in planning, promoting, and conducting producer field days and short courses. Barton is a long-time member of the Panhandle Peanut Short Course planning committee and the Panhandle Row Crop Short Course planning committee and has served in an advisory capacity for Extension Agents in most of the counties across the Panhandle who are involved in crop production Extension activities.

Locally in Holmes County, Barton has participated in Cotton Variety Trials over the years, and has been a strong supporter of local Holmes County Extension educational programs. Barton has also supported and participated in youth educational activities in Holmes County including the annual Ag in the Classroom for Holmes and Washington County 5th students.

He is also very active representing the peanut industry across the state with FFA and 4-H at events such as the Florida State Fair. Ken Barton has been a leader in the peanut industry locally, statewide, and nationally since 2003. He has worked closely with state and federal legislators in promoting the peanut industry, diligently working to insure the viability of agriculture in our local region and across the state of Florida. He has also hosted international delegations for tours of the peanut industry working to improve economic opportunities for area farmers.

From this distinguished pool of 13 farmers, an "Innovator of the Year" was selected to represent Northwest Florida. This year Stephen and Tracie Fulford, from Jefferson County, were selected as the Farm Credit of Northwest Florida Agriculture Innovator of the Year.

The Fulford family operates a commercial row crop farm in Jefferson and Madison Counties. They combine precision farming, sod based crop rotation, and conservation tillage to decrease soil erosion, reduce weed pressure, reduce nematode and disease pressure, and lower fuel use because they make fewer trips across fields. Steve Fulford has worked closely with UF/IFAS Extension: volunteering for on-farm cotton variety trials and weed control tests, hosting field days, serving on advisory committees, and participating in agriculture awareness programs in Jefferson County.

They are actively involved in Florida Farm Bureau's Young Farmers and Ranchers Program, which works to share the positive story of agricultural business in Florida. Stephen Fulford says, "I cannot sit on the sidelines and expect someone else to speak for me. I must step out and be a leader." Tracie Fulford has a blog, "The Farmer Takes a Wife," and coordinates the Ag in the Classroom program in Jefferson County. Stephen Fulford received the Commissioner of Agriculture's Agricultural Environmental Leadership Award. Truly the Fulford family is well deserving of this honor because they combine environmental stewardship, technology, and innovation to make Fulford Farms successful.

A patchwork of friends, family and community

BONIFAY — On the third Thursday of every month, starting at 5:30 p.m., 48 women gather together at the First Baptist Church of Bonifay to share their latest accomplishments, troubles and news as the Holmes Valley Quilters Club.

When the group met on Aug. 15, things were no different.

"The Holmes Valley Quilters Club was started in 2008," said President Roberta Tinkler. "We have a block of the month, which by the end of the year those twelve blocks will be sewn together to make one quilt for that year. We've got show-n-tell, were people bring their projects from home and show them to the club."

Tinkler said that there were also demonstrations held and this week Annette Lanham demonstrated how to make a four-in-one placemat. If you are interested in seeing this demonstration, visit www.bonifaynow.com.

She said there's also a charity donation, like Quilts for Guardian Ad Litem, where they make quilts and donate them to charities.

"Quilts for Guardian Ad Litem is quilts that are made and given to children who have been removed from their homes due to abuse or neglect," said Carolyn Jordan, a volunteer with the Guardian Ad Litem program. "When children are taken from their homes, especially homes exposed to meth, the children aren't allowed to take anything with them. These blankets are something that belong to the children; something for them to have and to hold on to."

Jordan said she started as a volunteer in 2006.

"All the kids that I've given these blankets to have been overjoyed to have something that is theirs," she said. "The ladies here at the quilt club are generous to give so much of their time and talent to serve these kids."

Member Gerry Steverson said that the club was so much more than the club activities and projects.

"It's more than just learning about how to quilt, it's about fellowship and networking with other quilters," said Steverson. "It gives each of us a wonderful incentive to go home and work on these projects so that we can come back and show what all our hard work has accomplished."

Pet snakes: Slithering their way into your heart

For some animal lovers, watching these exotic creatures slither across the Animal Planet screen isn't enough; you want to bring the thrill of snake ownership into your own home. Though they seem exciting and manageable through a television screen or from behind a glass wall, there are a few things every aspiring snake owner must be aware of before bringing these exotic creatures into your home.

The most common snakes kept by enthusiasts are cornsnakes, kingsnakes and ball pythons. Many of these snakes, like the corn and king, are well-suited for older children and first-time snake owners because of their simple feeding methods and docile temperament. However, some species reach very large sizes in captivity, and their considerable space requirements must be anticipated.

"Other popular snakes like boa constrictors and carpet python are better for an owner comfortable with larger snakes, as they often get 7 or more feet long," said Dr. Jordan Gentry, zoological medicine resident at the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. "Green tree python, rainbow boas and tree boas have slightly more specialized care and are less tolerant to handling but can make great pets for an owner that has researched the species."

Large constricting snakes, venomous snakes and snakes with difficult care requirements do not make suitable pets and should only be kept by experienced herpetologists. Doing research on the individual snake species you are interested in will provide you with husbandry recommendations, including environmental, sanitation and dietary considerations.

"The habitat for the snake depends entirely on the species of snake, as some are from an arid environment that does not require as much humidity as a snake from a tropical environment," said Gentry. "Most captive habitats attempt to mimic the natural environment of the animal with sand, rocks and live plants; however, less natural paper substrate and plastic hide containers allow much easier cleaning and may actually be more beneficial to the animal's health."

As for feeding requirements, almost all pet snakes should be on a whole prey diet of pre-killed rodents, such as mice or rats.

Health and sanitation are also considerations that shouldn't be overlooked when choosing your pet. "Hygiene is important," Gentry said. "Salmonella is a bacteria that can be carried by pet reptiles and can be transmitted to humans; so washing hands is recommended after handling a pet snake."

Though there are many snakes that make suitable pets for adults and children alike, the safety of owning a snake as a pet is sometimes called into question by events that are widely reported in the media. Just recently, two young boys were allegedly strangled to death while they were sleeping by an escaped pet python.

However, Gentry noted isolated tragic incidents involving large constrictors or poisonous snakes shouldn't discourage people from choosing an appropriate snake species as a pet.

"It is significantly less common for a snake to harm its owner in any way than for a dog; in fact it is almost unheard of outside of rare misguided media reports," Gentry said. "Approximately 2 percent of the U.S. population is bitten by a dog every year, leading to more than 30 deaths per year. Large constrictor snakes have killed fewer than 20 people in the United States since 1978."

Gentry explained the most common causes of a pet snake to bite is a feeding error; where the snake missed the food item and bit the owner's hand, or a handling mistake where the snake clearly demonstrated its intent to bite but was handled anyway.

Whether you're a dog lover, cat fanatic or reptile enthusiast, there will always be risks to consider when bringing a pet into your home. It is your responsibility to thoroughly research them and be aware of the requirements and necessities that they entail.

"The human animal bond with any pet should not be underestimated," Gentry said. "The risks of owning a pet snake are no greater than owning a dog or cat and absolutely do not outweigh the benefits."

Financial Tip of The Week: Pay Attention

Enjoying a casual evening at home, I reclined in my favorite easy chair reading, while the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage was chatting on the telephone. I rarely pay attention to telephone conversations. After all, I only get one side of the conversation, which may be misleading at the very best. I've been caught in that trap before with some pretty dire consequences. I'm not going to get caught again.

Then an odd phrase caught my attention: "plastic surgery." My ears perked up and I heard my wife say, "I certainly agree with that article and I'm going to do some plastic surgery myself."

Well, you can imagine what thoughts were racing through my head. When she hung up the telephone, I queried her about it. In my book, plastic surgery is a big step.

"You do support me in this plastic surgery plan, don't you?"

There are times to disagree with your spouse, but as a husband for over 40 years, I have never discovered that time. Forcing a smile, I nodded in the affirmative and told her she had my full support in whatever she decided.

I had to admit that the "time" had finally come to our humble abode. Who am I to fight it? I go by this motto, "He who smiles and agrees with his spouse lives to smile another day."

I plan to smile until the day I die.

I never really thought about plastic surgery, but perhaps my wife was right. Perhaps she could use a little face-lift. For me to get a facelift, the surgeons would need a huge construction crane. Then comes the awkward part, what do they do with my face after it was lifted?

Women, more than men, are a little sensitive about their appearance. For a man, "appearance" means he showed up. A woman has an altogether different approach to the term "appearance."

Some women look in the mirror and see where some improvements could be made. For example, they see bags under their eyes that could not get through the airport carry-on luggage size requirement.

Then there is the problem with their nose, which could stand a little tweaking. For all practical purposes, one of those double chins has to go. Moreover, what woman couldn't use a tummy tuck and other snippings of the flesh?

Believe me; I never would have brought it up, but if that makes my wife happy, then whatever it costs, we can put it on a credit card. The only problem with putting something like this on a credit card is that by the time you pay it off you need another procedure.

She is worth it in my checkbook. I have no compunction whatsoever of writing out that check. Each day I checked the appointment calendar hanging on our refrigerator to find out when she would be going in for the surgery. Daily I looked, but could never find any appointment.

I supposed she was sensitive about the whole thing and did not want it staring at her day after day on the appointment calendar. Whatever the reason, she had my silent support, for all that was worth. I am sure she would do the same for me. That is what marriage is all about. Supporting one another in the developments of life, whatever that development might be.

I decided to tuck this little bit in the back of my mind and, however it developed would be all right with me.

One day this week, I went to the Slurp N' Burp Café for a quiet lunch. The issue was far from my mind as I enjoyed a delicious repast. As I finished my last cup of coffee, the waitress brought my bill and I pulled my wallet out to pay for it.

In searching my wallet for a credit card I discovered, much to my double chagrin, that there were no credit cards to be found. Somehow, I'd lost my credit cards. Perhaps, in the morning when I was getting dressed, they dropped out of my wallet as I was placing it in my trousers.

The problem with that theory was that all the other cards in my wallet were intact. Fortunately, I had my cell phone and called my wife.

"Honey, I've lost all my credit cards. I'm here at the restaurant and I can't find any credit cards in my wallet. Do you have any idea what I did with my credit cards?"

"I cut them all up."

"You did what?"

"You said you supported my plastic surgery plan, didn't you?"

"But, I thought..."

"You, thought what?"

Oh boy.

Dear reader: please disregard the first part of this column. If you happen to read my obituary in next week's newspaper, you will know that my lovely, vivacious, eternally youthful wife did not disregard the first part and I'm currently Resting In Pieces.

I must confess that my hearing is good; it is my understanding that falls so far short. The only exercise I am really good at is "jumping-to-conclusions."

This is common among many people who call themselves Christians. Their hearing is good but their "doing," is not up to par. The apostle James understood this truth quite well. He writes, "But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" James 1:22 (KJV).
