HYPER BULLY DEFENSE

Area students proactive in fight against bullying

By CAROL KENT

The school year is coming to an end in Holmes and Washington counties, but local students and officials say they will continue to step up efforts to combat bullying beyond the span of the academic year.

"Cyber bullying is one of the most difficult issues we deal with in the schools today," said Holmes County Superintendent of Schools Eddie Dixon. "It can occur anywhere and at any time of day. Our teachers and administrators are continuously reminded of the dangers of cyber bullying in an effort to keep all Holmes County students."

Holmes County schools have begun reserving a week in the Spring to show age appropriate videos to all students and teachers about the dangers of cyber bullying.

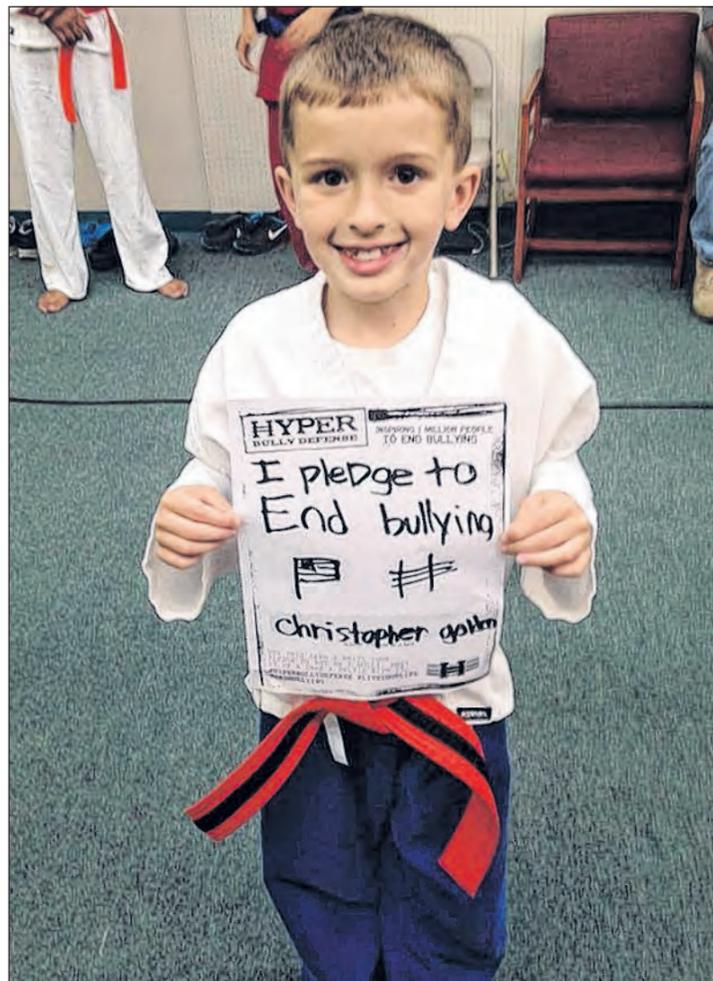

"This week is promoted on our website and on posters in the schools," he said. "(Bullying) is also addressed in our policies, code of conduct book, website, and personnel handbook. We have an anonymous online form available to report bullying and cyber bullying and tips available for students and parents on how to handle and prevent all forms of bullying."

Holmes County schools have also teamed up with the Holmes County Sheriff's Office in preventing cyber bullying, which hosted a student created video contest initiated by School Resource Officer Greg Johnson. "Our students were very creative in conveying a positive message preventing cyber bullying," said Dixon.

Holmes County Sheriff Tim Brown says prevention and education is a key priority for his office.

"The Legislature has addressed cyber bullying and is awaiting the vote for the law to pass," said Brown.

"The impact of bullying has been well documented, and studies have shown that difficulty making friends, loneliness, low self-esteem, depression, poor academic achievement, and truancy are all associated with being bullied. We must instill in our youth the ideals of civility and respect, and we must create environments that prevent bullying where our children live, learn and play."

Christopher Golden is among area students pledging to help stop bullying. Golden signed the "Hyper Bully Defense Pledge" as a student at Trinity Martial Arts in Chipley.

Washington County Sheriff Bobby Haddock shares Brown's concerns and has also worked with the Washington County School District to provide education about the issue. Haddock says a key component of the success to any anti-bullying campaign is parental involvement, however.

"We have to start education at home," said Haddock. "We need to teach our children that we are all different, and that's the way God intended it — but we always need to

Use of food stamps rises

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The use of food stamps in Holmes County increased during the recession, assisting families in stretching their food dollars, contributing to local spending and helping spark a national debate about the future of the federal nutrition program.

The proportion of Holmes County residents receiving food stamps hit 27.0 percent in 2011, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Food and Nutrition Services. That's an increase of 12.5 percentage points since 2007, the year the recession started.

Across Florida, 17.2 percent of residents in 2011 received support from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, as the food stamp program is officially known. Nationally, 14.8 percent of the population receives SNAP benefits.

Places like Holmes County, which are located outside metropolitan areas, tend to have a higher percentage of the population receiving SNAP benefits. That's because incomes are generally lower in nonmetropolitan counties.

The inflation-adjusted median household income in Holmes County in 2011 was $34,397, compared to the Florida median of $45,830 and the national median of $52,306 (in 2013 dollars).

Food stamps may play a larger role in the local economy in rural areas and small towns, according to federal data. In Holmes County SNAP

- Kolmetz requested an update on the progress of replacing the lights at Ponce de Leon High School's parking lot, which Dixon said they are in process of replacing the bulbs.
- Kolmetz also requested that the light in the Ponce de Leon High School's sign be fixed.

- Kolmetz requested that the timer on the snack machine be fixed so that the students cannot purchase snacks during lunch time.
- Kolmetz informed the Board that Washington-Holmes Technical Center had over 300 students recently complete their studies.
- Kolmetz also informed the Board that Wausau held a Veterans' program recently where the Bethlehem High School Culinary Academy provided a meal to the visiting veterans.

"Now is a good time to be a student in Holmes County," said Chair Rusty Williams. "We've got so many talented students and teachers. Our students are going to go far."

During the previous meeting on May 6, Kolmetz once again motioned to place audio recordings of the Board meetings on the district website, which died due to lack of a second, which makes the third time Kolmetz' request for audio recordings on the district website has died without a second.

Kolmetz also moved to change the agenda format and list unfinished or new business on the agenda, which was passed and after discussion Kolmetz amended her motion to request the superintendent to place unfinished or new business on the agenda, which passed.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Holmes County District School Board is set for 9 a.m. on June 3.

benefits are 1.1 percent of personal income. Nationally, the figure is 0.6 percent.

In 2011, residents of Holmes County received a combined $8,040,242 in SNAP benefits. The USDA reports that each $5 in SNAP benefits generates $9.20 in spending.

Places like Washington County, which are located outside metropolitan areas, tend to have a higher percentage of the population receiving SNAP benefits. That's because incomes are generally lower in nonmetropolitan counties.

The inflation-adjusted median household income in Washington County in 2011 was $36,254, compared to the Florida median of $45,830 and the national median of $52,306 (in 2013 dollars).

Food stamps may play a larger role in the local economy in rural areas and small towns, according to federal data. In Washington County SNAP benefits are 1.1 percent of personal income. Nationally, the figure is 0.6 percent.

In 2011, residents of Washington County received a combined $7,388,779 in SNAP benefits. The USDA reports that each $5 in SNAP benefits generates $9.20 in spending.

SNAP benefits start to circulate in the economy quickly. Participants spend nearly all their food stamps within one month of receipt, according to a study by the University of New Hampshire Carsey Institute.

Grocers say they feel the impact of SNAP and other USDA nutrition programs like Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

"Without SNAP and WIC, we wouldn't be able to make it," wrote the owner of the Mill City Market in the small town of Mill City, Ore., in a survey of rural grocers conducted by the Oregon Food Bank and Kansas State University Rural Grocery Initiative.

Owners know they have to stock the shelves to prepare for more business when SNAP benefits hit the streets, said David Procter with the Rural Grocery Initiative.

It's not just the mom-and-pop stores that see a bump from food-stamp spending in small towns and rural areas. Walmart reported in a recent Securities and Exchange Commission filing that a decrease in SNAP benefits last year could affect the retail giant's bottom line.

Average SNAP benefits nationally fell about $30 a month per family in November after a temporary increase that was part of the 2009 economic stimulus package. More funding decreases are on the way.

This summer, Congress agreed to trim about $8 billion from SNAP over the next decade. Backers of the cuts said the program had expanded too much in recent years and was creating too much reliance on government assistance. SNAP expenditures increased 135 percent between 2007 and 2011.

U.S. Rep. Eric Cantor (Va.-R) backed a measure that would have removed SNAP from the farm bill entirely.

"While [SNAP] is an important part of our safety net, our overriding goal should be to help our citizens with the education and skills they need to get back on their feet so that they can provide for themselves and their families," Rep. Cantor said during congressional debate.

Food stamps have been part of the farm bill for the past 50 years. The legislation's combination of farming and nutrition programs has helped ensure the bill receives broad backing from farm-country representatives and more urban-based members who support anti-poverty programs.

That alliance was tested but held with the passage of the 2014 farm bill.

provide as much education as possible through our school system and teach students to stand up and say no to bullying."

Students in Roulhac Middle School's 6th grad Critical Thinking Skills Classes are ahead of the game in that department. The students launched their own anti-bullying campaign, showing a video and providing education material for other students.

Washington County School Superintendent Joseph Taylor says districts are monitored by the Department of Education for bullying.

"We just had a monitoring session on-site with a representative from the department to make sure that we are following law and to ensure that we have mechanisms in place for reporting and procedures to handle any and all allegations of bullying," said Taylor. "As a district, we take bullying allegations seriously and want to make sure all schools are safe for everyone. During the monitoring on May 22, the representative was very impressed by the safeguards and procedures that we have in place."

"We are continuing to improve and implement safe procedures for our students and staff. When we do not have on-site reviews, we do self monitoring each school year. If we have bullying cases, they are reported to the state through the School Environmental Safety Incident Reporting (SESIR) System."

Not just school systems and law enforcement are taking a stand. Other organizations, like Trinity Martial Arts in Chipley, are being proactive in the fight against bullying, too. TMA students recently signed the "Hyper Bully Defense Pledge" to do their best on a personal level to stop bullying when they see it happening.

School owner and Head Instructor Jason Smith says nearly all of those enrolled took the pledge.

"It's a good thing to train them early in both right and wrong and compassion," said Smith.

A bill intended to make bullying punishable by up to one year in jail was approved by a state Senate committee last month but died in the Criminal Justice Subcommittee on May 2. Some legislators have vowed to keep working on anti-bullying legislation similar passed.

WHTC in Chipley graduates 342 students

Special to The News

A standing-room-only crowd packed the Washington County Agricultural Center in Chipley, Tuesday, May 12, as Washington-Holmes Technical Center proudly graduated several hundred students.

Eighty six of the graduating 342 students chose to walk the graduation ceremony and, accompanied to cheers from friends and family, proudly accepted their diplomas and certificates from their respective programs.

"You are going forth with the prospect of real jobs," said Joe Taylor, Superintendent of Schools for Washington County. "We are proud of you and you should be proud of yourselves."

Scott Crum, 2013-14 Vice-President of SkillsUSA Leaders addressed the graduates in a moving story about his challenges and his ultimate success made possible by the technical center.

Welding Instructor Eddie Beckworth introduced his graduates, relating the story of one of his recent graduates returning to his shop and proudly displaying check stubs for over twenty dollars an hour. "You can do this," proclaimed Beckworth, "all you need is the desire and a little sweat equity."

Students from Roulhac Middle School in Chipley, Blountstown High School and Altha High School recently visited WHTC, taking in the options available and the stories of really well-paid jobs available to qualified

"The Place To Shop, If Money Matters!"

My youngest brother and mom came to visit me this week. This is my zany brother, Joshua Alderman Spears.

CECILIA SPEARS | Times-Advertiser

Family: more than blood

Hello again. I'd like to start off with confessing that I was torn between apologizing about last week's column about honoring your veterans because it seems that as the time draws near to all holidays involving veterans, there's a huge bombardment of information to get people to honor their veterans when most of the time, for citizens and other veterans, it is an everyday thing.

CECILIA SPEARS
Cecilia's Sit Down

I feel strongly about it, I think because some of the best people I know are military, law enforcement or emergency response. Though we are not blood, we are family. I also wanted to add that part about my grandfather failing in his duties to his family yet served his country was only a small part of a bigger issue. Family is always complicated, distinguishing between love and enabling, not to go all Dr. Phil on you. My grandfather had his issues, but we always knew when it came down to brass tacks, he would move Heaven and Earth for us.

There was no doubt he loved us, it was just ... complicated. It took me a long time to realize that in spite of how everyone made it appear, everyone has complicated family issues. I was fortunate to have several families adopt me along the way: the Riffles in Martinsville, Ind.; the Manns and Mashburns in Chipley; the Lambs in Graceville; the Fenders in Vernon; the Holmes County Public Library staff in Bonifay; they all took me in as a part of their family at one time or another and treated me no different than one of their own. It is so very hard to stay down in the pits of despair when you've got such a wonderful community of people who make you feel at home. I wish I could name all the ones who've touched me so deeply; I never want to take advantage of the blessings I've received from just knowing this people on a regular basis. Family is so much more than blood. We adopt one another, take each other in and love and support one another in times of need. It's funny, the ones who give us the most don't realize that they do. So many times I hear how people say they can't repay what someone's done for them, not realizing that just being themselves is more than enough. Life is crazy, beautiful and messy, and people just enhance that by so much.

The only thing I can say is to take it in stride. People are brought into your life for a reason, even if it is just to smooth you with their rough edges. I've had a rough couple of weeks where nothing has made sense, but I wouldn't change it for anything because good or bad, I've learned something about myself and about others. It's just like how you'd deal with family.

I don't know about you but family can bring out the best and worst of me. It's facing those things you don't like about yourself and setting the goal toward positive change, with a lot of practice in between. Thanks again for your time. See you next week.

Senior adult fish fry celebrates many years of service

When the senior adults from First Baptist Church gathered last week, it was just to enjoy the beautiful spring weather and the hospitality of James and Iris Wells.

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

Their lovely home grounds rival any park with its well-stocked fish ponds and manicured dams surrounded by stately pine trees. With the help of Jeep Sullivan, the senior adult minister and men's ministry coordinator at FBC, lawn chairs, fishing tackle, wigglers and crickets were readily available as well as golf carts to transport those of us who needed help getting set up to fish in this idyllic setting.

When lunch came, prepared by Jeep and his team of helpers including Sonny Johnson and I'm not sure who else, not too many fish had been caught. But a sumptuous meal of fried bream supplied by Carlton Treadwell and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission along with all the trimmings and homemade desserts was enjoyed by almost 60 adults, mostly in the 60 or older age group. As Pastor Shelly Chandler visited among the "best generation," he observed that five Deacons Emeritus were in attendance. Those are men who have served as deacons for a number of years and because of infirmities of aging are no longer able to fulfill the duties of the office.

The youngest among the group is 77-year-old C. Hildon Barton (Bart), a retired pharmacist who operated a drug store in Bonifay, worked for a number of years as a prison pharmacist and retired from Doctors Memorial Pharmacy. Hildon's main area of service was in the ushering ministry. He was always there Sunday morning, Sunday night, Passion Play, special events, with a team of men ready to greet and seat and make comfortable our guests. Bart's wife is a Bonifay "girl," Marianne Dannelley. They have two sons, Scott Barton and wife, Babs, and Dr. Phillip Barton and wife, Tina. There are three granddaughters and one grandson. Bart served 38 years as a deacon.

Doyle Taylor, 84, owner and operator of Jerkins Inc., often assisted Bart in ushering. He was on the finance committee, the prayer ministry and other places of service. His life mate is the former Betty Strickland of Bonifay, and they have two daughters, Terri McCormick, who is married to Shay, and Tracy, who is married to Tim Scott. They have two grandsons and one granddaughter. Doyle served as a deacon for 52 years.

W.W. (Bill) Watson, 87, is a World War II veteran who spent most of his working years as a full-time employee of the Florida National Guard. He has been part of the usher committee, the finance committee and various other church activities. His wife, Margaret Williams Watson, is deceased.

They have two children, Matt and Suzanne Durco, and two grandsons. Bill served 50 or more years as a deacon.

Jack E. Tison, 88, also a WWII Veteran, spent 34 years teaching vocational agriculture in Bethlehem and Holmes County High School. As a deacon, Jack was involved with the financial affairs of the church as well as ushering. He was also a pastoral confidant, as are many who served in this office. Jack's wife is the former Hazel Wells, and the couple has three children, Hiram and wife, Judy, Cindy Webb and husband, Orrin, and Glen and wife, Sheila. There are six granddaughters and one grandson. Jack served 58 years as a deacon.

James A. (Jim) Clemmons, the elder statesman, age 93, served in many capacities. We all looked to Jim in parliamentary matters. He has served as an usher, on the finance committee, as a teacher and in any capacity where a deacon can serve. Jim's late wife was Dorothy Tobias, and this generous couple were involved in every phase of church life. Their children are Dr. James Clemmons and Edith Prescott. There are three grandsons and one granddaughter. Jim served as a pilot in WWII in the Army Air Corps. His career involved the operation of a large beef cattle operation. He served as a deacon for 63 years.

These men represent 261 years of service to their Lord, their church and their community. All have been involved in "family ministry," where they pay special attention to the needs of a given group of church families. They have responded to specific needs as they have arisen. They have served as Sunday school and church training teachers. They have served on pastor search committees, on building and properties committees, on nominating committees, on youth committees, as church trustees or in any capacity within the church body.

Younger men are now fulfilling these responsibilities, but Pastor Shelly Chandler and the body of believers represented by the First Baptist Church are indebted to these five men whose faithfulness sets an example for coming church and community leaders.

Our thanks to James and Iris for sharing their lovely home so that we older adults may have an outing to enjoy the beautiful spring and fellowship with our friends. The champion fishermen for the day were Ricky Thames and Mary Henry.

The Class of 2014 is a product of community

Comedy writer Robert Orben once said a graduation ceremony is where a well known commencement speaker tells hundreds of graduates, all dressed exactly the same, that individuality is the key to their success.

Despite a personal aversion to events involving tassels, I recently took a trip to Tallahassee to watch my younger sister, Marsha, graduate from college.

As I lined up at 6 p.m. to wait for the doors to open (which were marked "will open at 6:30") for the 7:30 ceremony, I thought of the impending graduation of the seniors in Holmes and Washington counties and longed for the simplicity of those ceremonies — and more so, the shorter lines.

A nostalgic atmosphere settles while members of a small community experience not only their child's graduation, but also that of friends, neighbors and co-workers.

There is a sense of pride in the accomplishments of our neighbors' grads because we recognize they were the community's children yesterday and will be its leaders tomorrow.

Because most colleges, like Marsha's, hold only one commencement ceremony a year, that close-knit experience is hard to come by among so many strangers.

Hundreds may be graduating from towns all over the state and nation. It isn't likely the spectators watched the graduates grow up, play ball or get in trouble together.

At 6:28, the facility's security guard, an elderly man armed with a radio and permanent marker, slowly walked to the first of three sets of double doors and paradoxically penned "6:30" on each entryway.

I had suspected he was wielding the power of his security status, and when he started back at the first door to remove the signs (for it was 6:30 by time he had completed his first task), I whispered to my dad, "Now he's just messing with us."

The flood gates opened, and a sea of proud family and friends were able to enter the arena, most of whom were ready to leave after watching their loved one shake hands with the dean and grab their diploma.

Because Marsha graduated with honors, she was one of the first to walk, but my parents and I stayed for the remaining two-and-a-half hours out of respect for those we didn't know, who also worked hard for this day to arrive.

I watched them, grads both young and old, and wondered if there was a small community behind this latest milestone, if the graduate wished their guest list could have numbered in the thousands.

Our community's seniors will soon take their own graduation walk, hats balanced or pinned precariously on their heads, some silently praying they don't trip on their way to the podium.

Like many before and many to come, the class of 2014 is a product of more than parental guidance. They are a product of their community, which has celebrated with them as they've experienced academic and athletic victories, as well as personal triumph and tragedy.

The support they've received along the way has undoubtedly made a difference, and they will surely remember we have called them all sons and daughters.

Soon, it will be time for them to give back what they've received.

For now, though, they will simply take this next step, perhaps thinking of the past, the future, and this strange moment in between.

Congratulations, Class of 2014.

Gulf Power named top employer for hiring veterans

Special to The News

Three leading military surveys have named Gulf Power Company and its parent company, Southern Company, a top employer for both active duty and military veterans.

A longstanding leader in military recruitment, Southern Company is the top-ranked energy company and No. 3 overall in the 2014 DiversityInc Top 10 Companies for Veterans. In addition, the company is the top-ranked energy company and No. 13 overall in the Military Times EDGE Best for Vets: Employers 2014 survey and has been named to the Most Valuable Employers for Military® winners by CivilianJobs.com for the fifth consecutive year.

“Veterans are very important to us at Gulf Power,” said Stan Connally, Gulf Power President and CEO. “They are a natural fit for us because the cultures of both the military and the utility industry exemplify dedication, commitment to safety, teamwork and excellence in all they do.”

About 15 percent of Gulf Power’s 1,400 employees are veterans. Currently, 10 percent of the Southern Company system’s 26,000 employees are veterans or serve in the National Guard or Reserve. Veterans account for 14 percent of the system’s new hires this year.

Southern Company’s ongoing support of military personnel has earned broad recognition, including the 2010 Secretary of Defense Employer Support Freedom Award—the highest honor given by the Department of Defense for support of employees who serve in the National Guard or Reserve—and the Pro Patria Award for leadership in providing benefits to military employees. G.I. Jobs has named Southern Company the nation’s highest-ranked utility in its Top 100 Military Friendly Employers listing for seven consecutive years.

As part of its commitment to veterans, Southern Company also is a founding partner of the Troops to Energy Jobs program, a recruiting source that links veterans to job openings in the energy industry. The company actively recruits members of the Navy as a Naval Nuclear Propulsion Program partner and has pledged to support the Joining Forces initiative. In addition, Southern Company annually participates in more than 30 military recruitment events and partners with military transition centers across the country.

JCSO charges 2 with theft

Special to The News

At about 1:08 p.m., Wednesday, May 21, the Jackson County Sheriff’s Office responded to Wal-Mart in Marianna to a reported retail theft.

Upon arrival, they learned that a member of Wal-Mart’s Asset Protection team had witnessed Shane Tolliver Whitfield, a 45-year-old male of Altha, pass the point of sale with 35 items in this buggy that had not been paid for. Among the items was a 32-inch flat screen television that the anti-theft device had been removed from. The remainder of the items was clothing, household items, etc. Total value of the stolen items was $394.63, which classifies it as grand theft. Whitfield was lodged in the Jackson County Correctional Facility to await first appearance on charges of grand theft and retail theft.

Before the officers could get Whitfield secured in the County Jail, they received another retail theft call from Wal-Mart. In that case, Zeno Scott Walther, a 21-year-old male of Marianna, was arrested after he was observed changing clothes in the men’s department and leaving without paying for the merchandise he was wearing. Walther was lodged in the Jackson County Correctional Facility on a charge of petit retail theft.

PET TALK

Treatment options for osteosarcoma

Osteosarcoma (OSA), the most common bone cancer, represents about 85 percent of bone tumors in dogs. These aggressive tumors spread rapidly, and once diagnosed, should be taken very seriously.

“OSA commonly affects the limbs of large or giant breed dogs, but can also occur in other parts of the skeleton, such as the skull, ribs, vertebrae and pelvis,” said Dr. Rita Ho, veterinary intern instructor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences.

Animals with limb osteosarcoma typically show signs of swelling at the affected side and associated lameness, depending upon the animal’s unique condition and tumor location. The tumors typically form at or near growth plates, and occasionally, the animal will exhibit a growth on their body or painful inflammation near the site of the tumor. If swelling does exist, it is likely because of an extension of the tumor into the surrounding tissues.

Depending on your pet’s specific condition, there are various treatment options you can consider, including surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation. “Limb OSA commonly causes lameness and pain because of invasion and destruction of normal bone; therefore surgery is usually the first recommendation,” Dr. Ho said. “The surgery serves two purposes: it removes the primary tumor, which is necessary for cancer control, but it also removes the source of pain and might therefore dramatically improve quality of life.”

Surgery often involves amputation of the diseased limb, which completely resolves the pain for your pet. However, for people who are reluctant to have this procedure done, there are other surgical methods to spare the limb if your pet is not a good candidate or if you aren’t comfortable with the surgery. Just keep in mind that amputation is almost always well tolerated with the dogs, and a three-legged dog can do virtually everything four-legged dogs can. Chemotherapy is administered to a pet following amputation to kill off any remaining cancer cells, and radiation is recommended primarily for relieving bone pain and discomfort. “The average dog with OSA will live only four months if treated with only surgery,” Dr. Ho said. “With chemotherapy following surgery, usually the life expectancy is 10-12 months.”

As with any surgery, activity and mobility after the operation will be restricted and pain management programs as well as various medications are typically prescribed for the animal after surgery. However, it is important to remember that you should never administer any pain medication without first consulting your veterinarian.

Unfortunately, osteosarcoma has not been found to be preventable. With thorough examinations and early recognition of the symptoms, however, it can be caught soon enough to take the necessary measures to stop the cancer from spreading and to keep your pet healthy and happy for as long as possible.

SPRING FOOTBALL JAMBOREE

SPRING IN THEIR STEP

PATTI BLAKE | The News Herald

Rutherford's Quinn Jones tackles Mosley's Devontia Wilson.

Mosley stands tall in county clash

By BRAD MILNER
AND JASON SHOOT
The News Herald

PANAMA CITY BEACH — As is the case with any jamboree, there were mixed results among the four Bay County schools playing at the Mike Gavlak Sports Complex on Friday.

Arnold hosted Bay, Mosley and Rutherford in four halves of play to close spring football practice. The Rams debuted new coach Rob Armstrong, while Jimmy Longerbeam continued as the dean of county coaches at Bay.

Arnold held back Bay 15-8 in the opener and Mosley blanked a struggling Rutherford 14-0 in the second half. Bay shut out Rutherford 18-0 and Mosley bested Arnold 21-6 to complete the jamboree.

The teams now enter summer drills with fall practices set to open in early-August. The four teams again are matched in District 1-5A with Mosley securing last season's county title.

Arnold 15, Bay 8

Torri Cotton set the tone for Arnold with a 73-yard touchdown run on the first quarter's second play. He was held to minus-2 yards on his last four carries, but the Marlins' offense surged behind quarterback Cody Saunders.

Saunders completed 9 of his 13 passes for 110 yards in helping Arnold control the clock. Arnold added two Austin Peffers field goals, the long of 41 against a defense that wasn't allowed to rush. The Marlins also sacked Bay quarterback Xavier Longerbeam in the end zone for a second-quarter safety.

Bay scored its touchdown on its last possession, Longerbeam finding Zavian Everett down the left sideline for a 35-yard score on first down. Raekwon Webb added the 2-point conversion run with 2:39 to play. Longerbeam finished 4 for 6 for 50 yards while adding 37 yards on the ground.

Saunders spread out his completions to six receivers with Paul Patterson grabbing a team-high three receptions for 23 yards. Nicholas Bergman gained 50 yards rushing on four carries in a reserve role.

Mosley 14, Rutherford 0

Neither team impressed on offense, with Mosley earning the victory on the strength of two big plays. Rutherford continued to run the Spread with Armstrong expected to install the Wing-T in the fall.

Rams quarterback Justin Davis attempted only three passes despite the wide formation. He completed two passes, one for no gain and the second a 42-yarder to Aaron Hamilton on the Rams' third possession.

Rutherford elected to punt five times, with the decision resulting in added yardage rather than a live play. The Rams' other possession ended on downs.

Mosley chose to punt once, turned the ball over on downs another time and lost a fumble on its first possession.

Ezra Gray provided the first highlight when he took a screen pass from Dillon Brown and raced 48 yards for a score in the second quarter. Gray added 17 yards on four carries.

Trey Trzaska also recorded a big gain for 37 yards on a reception on Mosley's next drive. Jimmy Daniel, who had 48 total yards, capped the march with a 12-yard score.

Mosley used four quarterbacks, including rotating Peyton Calhoun and Scott Whitaker on the final possession.

Bay 18, Rutherford 0

Webb spotted the Tornadoes a 6-0 lead on the contest's first play, and Longerbeam and receiver Everett connected for two passing touchdowns as Bay cruised to the victory.

Webb broke loose on the first play from scrimmage for a 75-yard romp and a near-instant 6-0 lead.

Longerbeam hit Everett with a 36-yard scoring strike late in the first quarter. Everett wrestled a contested ball away from a defender at the goal line, and he stepped into the end zone to double the Tornadoes' lead at 12-0.

Longerbeam and Everett teamed up again for a 53-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter for an 18-0 lead with just over three minutes left. Everett used his speed to get behind a pair of defenders, and Longerbeam's pass hit the receiver in stride for the touchdown.

Davis delivered a 33-yard pass to EJ Foster in the first quarter for the Rams' biggest play. The Ram offense stalled at Bay's 32-yard line, however, and ultimately turned the ball over on downs. That was the first of three Rutherford possessions that ended in Tornado territory.

Bay endured three fumbles offensively and was fortunate it lost only one. Rutherford fumbled twice but recovered.

Mosley 21, Arnold 6

Mosley's offense began the matchup against Arnold with a game of keep-away before Brown and receiver James Lovett gave the Dolphins a lead they would not surrender.

Facing fourth-and-25 at Arnold's 26-yard line, Brown heaved the ball down the left sideline. Lovett ran under the throw and jumped over a defender to cap the Dolphins' 15-play drive.

After an Arnold punt, Daniel raced 55 yards untouched through the middle of the Marlins' defense for a touchdown and a 14-0 lead for Mosley with 4:38 left in the first quarter.

Peffers kicked a 32-yard field goal on the Marlins' ensuing possession. His attempt was set up by quarterback Cody Saunders' 50-yard pass to Jovanni Perea to the Mosley 15.

Daniel posted his second touchdown with a 20-yard run and extended Mosley's lead to 21-3 with 10 1/2 minutes left.

Peffers netted another 32-yard field goal midway through the second quarter to provide the game's final margin.

The needle and the damage done

Let it be written that I have no doubt NFL teams supplied players with powerful painkillers and other drugs to keep them playing during their careers that have led to serious health complications later in life.

Perry Mason couldn't make me waver on that. Not even in black and white.

Also let it be written that I believe the basis of the lawsuit filed last week on behalf of more than 500 ex-players that the league put profits ahead of players' health.

Whereas I fully support the lawsuit filed for the thousands of retired players accusing the NFL of concealing the risks of concussions and later debilitating life issues — think that the $765 million settlement the league has agreed to pay is not enough — I'm not backing the former players on this one.

It seems hypocritical to even write as much, but I can't get the image of two former players out of my head.

Ronnie Lott and Jack Youngblood were warriors in a league of warriors. Although legend has it that Lott told a doctor to amputate his left pinky in the locker room, or maybe it was the defensive huddle, actually it was after the 1985 season when it was crushed while he tackled Dallas running back Timmy Newsome.

When told by a doctor that bone graft surgery wouldn't have enabled Lott to be ready in time for the 1986 opener, he opted to have the tip of the finger amputated.

Not quite the stuff that has morphed into lore in the decades since, but still representative of the culture that brackets the professional lives of NFL athletes.

Youngblood not only went through the entire 1979 playoffs, which included the Super Bowl, but participated in the meaningless 1980 Pro Bowl with a fractured left fibula. That's called a broken leg in the real world.

Which the NFL isn't. It is comprised of men who not only have incredible physical gifts, but a capacity to endure pain that dwarfs the average human. That they allegedly were given pain-killing drugs by their team doctors to remain on the field comes as no surprise.

Nor does this tidbit: A lot of them knew exactly what they were doing and would do so again. That's where I take a left turn with the lawsuit.

The shield of the warrior, the camaraderie of the teammate, the persona of the macho athlete all ties into this.

As a result of masking their pain with drugs, the lawsuit alleges, players developed heart, lung and nerve ailments; kidney failure; and chronic injuries to muscles, bones and ligaments.

Probably so. It's just in this case I don't know where the responsibility of the player ends, and the culpability of the team begins. I'm sure that attorneys could better explain it to me, but I'm not convinced that I still would get it.

After receiving numbing injections and pills before kickoff, players got more drugs and sleep aids after games, "to be washed down by beer," the lawsuit states.

Again, probably so.

And this much, too.

How many times have you heard NFL players talk about the necessity of learning the difference between injury and pain upon entering the league, or fearing for their job if they didn't play when hurt?

If the intention of the lawsuit is an attempt to change the prevailing culture in the NFL into a more cohesive vision of dealing with injury, then perhaps it is valid.

More likely, teams and players always will seek an avenue for them to remain on the field. What the athletes do need to be informed of, in a more positive manner, is the long-term effect of the drugs they are being given, and be granted better access to more detailed medical records of whatever their condition.

They can afford a second opinion. Then they might be able to make a more informed choice.

The bottom line is that a group of 20somethings probably would say, in large part, just give me something, doc.

Hurricane preparedness workshop held

Special to the Times-Advertiser

West Florida Electric Co-operative held a meeting for emergency operations center personnel, city personnel, fire departments and law enforcement agencies in Calhoun, Holmes, Jackson and Washington Counties on Wednesday, May 21.

During the meeting, attendees toured the cooperative's service center and saw a first-hand demonstration of how cooperative members can report outages.

They also learned about how crews are dispatched and the various ways WFEC personnel communicates with members using Facebook, Twitter and media outlets.

Electrical safety information was also shared with all those in attendance, which is especially important for first-responders.

This annual gathering allows electric cooperative personnel, EOC and city personnel, fire departments and law enforcement to collaborate and share ideas about how to best handle power outages and emergency situations caused by storm damage to the area.

"This workshop is vital to the success of restoration efforts when our distribution system sustains catastrophic damage caused by hurricanes, tornadoes, severe thunderstorms, or other acts of nature. It allows us to discuss problems that we've encountered in the past and brainstorm about how we can best communicate with emergency personnel throughout the four counties we serve," said Gary Clark, Vice President, and Member Services.

Mother Nature is unpredictable, so the proper precautions should always be taken by coastal residents and others near the coast. With that thought in mind,

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES-ADVERTISER

Gary Clark, WFEC Vice President, Member Services & Penny Hagan, Manager, Member Services speak to meeting attendees about how the cooperative handles major outage situations caused by severe weather.

Ty Peel, Vice President, Engineering speaks to EOC & city personnel, law enforcement and fire department personnel about the importance of being aware of your surroundings and downed power lines when responding to emergencies.

WFEC encourages all its members to be weather aware and begin making their annual hurricane season preparations before it's too late. The Atlantic Hurricane Season begins on June 1 and will last until November 30. The peak storm threat usually occurs from mid-August to late October.

Help for teens who stutter is as close as your library

Special to the Times-Advertiser

Stuttering is a frustrating and embarrassing problem for millions of people, but it can be especially tough on teenagers. Help is available at the Holmes County Public Library in the form of a DVD Stuttering: Straight Talk for Teens.

"It's meant to encourage teens, to tell them that there is hope out there," said Professor Peter Ramig of the University of Colorado at Boulder. Ramig is one of three nationally recognized experts appearing in the DVD produced by the nonprofit Stuttering Foundation.

David Wilkins, a high school student who stutters, narrates the DVD. It features students from junior high school through college talking about their experiences with stuttering and what they found to be helpful. They talk openly about the ridicule they faced from classmates and how their stuttering affects their lives.

"We really try to emphasize the embarrassment and frustration factor, and we think teens will relate to that," adds Ramig. He appears in the DVD along with speech-language pathologists Dr. Barry Guitar of the University of Vermont and Dr. Hugo Gregory of Northwestern University.

The three experts answer questions about stuttering, refute myths and misconceptions, and present examples of therapy sessions showing how stuttering can be reduced.

More than three million Americans stutter, yet stuttering remains misunderstood by most people," said Jane Fraser, president of the Stuttering Foundation. "Myths such as believing people who stutter are less intelligent or suffer from psychological problems still persist despite research refuting these erroneous beliefs."

Books and DVDs produced by the 66-year-old nonprofit Stuttering Foundation are available free to any public library. A library that will shelve them can contact the Foundation at 1-800-992-9392, e-mail info@stutteringhelp.org, or visit www.stutteringhelp.org or www.tartarmudez.org.

Bonifay Book Club meets in May

Special to The Times-Advertiser

The Bonifay Book Club met at the home of Dianne Smith on May 13. Present at the meeting were Brenda Alford, Joyce Brannon, Cynthia Brooks, Medea Callahan, Barbara Howell, Terri McCormick, Nancy Riley, Kyla Rushing, DiAnn Shores and Dianne Smith. The meeting was called to order by President Cynthia Brooks. The minutes were read by Secretary Nancy Riley and approved as read.

Medea Callahan reviewed "The Husband's Secret" by Liane Moriarty, published in July 2013. At the heart of this novel is a letter that's not to be read. Imagine that your husband wrote you a letter; it says to be opened only in the event of my death. John-Paul is very much alive, and Cecilia accidentally stumbles across this letter. Cecilia Fitzpatrick has achieved it all: She's an incredibly successful businesswoman, a pillar of her small community and a devoted wife. Her life is as orderly and spotless as her home. Cecilia is a devoted mother who constantly volunteers at her daughters' school while running a thriving Tupperware business. But that letter is about to change everything. The letter contains her husband's deepest, darkest secret, something with the potential to destroy not just the life they built together, but the lives of others as well.

Rachel and Tess barely know Cecilia, or each other, but they, too, are about to feel the earth-shattering repercussions of her husband's secret. Thirty-something Tess' husband breaks the news that he's fallen in love with Tess' first cousin, best friend and business partner. Tess divorces her husband and moves to her mother's house in Sydney. Enrolling her 6-year-old son at St. Angela's, Tess runs into former lover Connor. Connor is now the school's hunky gym coach and is crushed on by students, teachers and parents like Cecilia. Rachel is the school's secretary and is one who does not have any adoration for Connor. She is still grief stricken over the death of her daughter, Janie, in 1984. Rachel is increasingly convinced Connor is involved in her daughter's death. As Cecilia, Tess and Rachel confront the past and make hard decisions about their futures, their fates collide in unexpected ways.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith at the conclusion of the meeting.

Chipola welding program earns national accreditation

Special to Extra

The Chipola College welding program recently earned accreditation from the National Center for Construction Education & Research (NCCER) through the Southern Company/Gulf Power Accredited Training Sponsor (ATS) audit process.

As the accrediting body for the industry, NCCER establishes the benchmark for quality training and assessments. By partnering with industry and academia, NCCER has developed a system for program accreditation similar to those found in institutions of higher learning. This process fosters national unity among the construction industry while providing a defined career path with industry-recognized credentials. The NCCER accreditation process assures that students and craft professionals receive quality training based on uniform standards and criteria.

The Chipola welding program utilizes state-of-the-art welding equipment, hybrid learning, mobile welding units and simulation technologies. The first class of 20 students in the new program enrolled in January. New students may enter the program during Summer Session II which begins, Monday, June 23. Registration will be held, Thursday, June 19.

The program is 1,170 clock-hours which can be completed in about one year. Classes are available Monday through Thursday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Evening classes are expected to be added beginning in August.

Chipola's welding program is made possible through a grant awarded to the Alabama/Florida Technical Employment Network (AF<sup>2</sup>TEN).

Chipola, L. B. Wallace, Northwest Florida State, Pensacola State, and Wallace Community College formed the consortium that was awarded $10 million in a Trade Adjustment Assistance Community College and Career Training (TAACCCT) grant. Each college shares a portion of the grant to implement a welding technology program on their campus.

Darwin Gilmore, Chipola Dean of Workforce Development, says, "Welding is a targeted occupation that offers excellent pay and benefits. Workforce Florida projects annual growth of 13,500 jobs in advanced manufacturing and construction, with 75% requiring postsecondary training. The Alabama Department of Industrial Relations (ADIR) lists welding among Alabama's "Hot 40 Jobs" with expected annual growth of more than two percent through 2018." Byron Ward, Welding Career Coach, says, "The job outlook is very good in the area and especially for those willing to travel or relocate. Starting pay for pipe welders in ship-building is $20 per hour and higher. Local manufacturing plants offer $14-$18 per hour." Eastern Ship Builders in Panama City hires numerous welders and is expected to expand their operation in the near future. Other local employers include Rolls Right Trailers and Anderson Columbia in Marianna. Welding jobs also are available in Tallahassee, Panama City, Jacksonville, Dothan and Mobile, Ala.

Financial aid is available for students who qualify, with special consideration for veterans. Prospective welding students must earn a minimum score on the Test of Adult Basic Education. For information about Chipola's Welding program, call 850-718-2270, or visit www.chipola.edu.

Emerald Coast Hospice hosts bereavement camp

Special to Extra

Emerald Coast Hospice has announced an upcoming camp for kids who are struggling with the difficult emotions that accompany the bereavement process.

Camp I Believe is ran by clinical experts who understand the healing process. Heal, play, grow is the camp's focus. This year, the camp will be held in Marianna at Blue Springs Baptist Conference Center Friday, June 6 through Sunday, June 8.

Camp I Believe is for children ages seven to 14 years old who are in mourning, need love and support, need time to heal and like to laugh and play. No prior experience with a hospice organization is required, and there is no charge to attend the camp.

If you are interested in attending camp, you can download an application by going to www.gentiva.com/hospice. The application can be dropped off at the Emerald Coast Hospice office in Marianna.

Beloved husband, father, grandfather, brother, cousin, and friend, Clyde Stanley went to his final home May 19, 2014. His unflinching love and devotion to his wife of 62 years, Greta, was an example to his children and grandchildren. To his wife, he was her world; his sons and grandsons, a genius with the ability to fix anything or share his knowledge on any subject; to his daughter, daughters-in-law, granddaughters, and sister, he was their hero. Clyde was born Sept.

21, 1929 in Leonia, the only son of Marcus Charles and Emma Alberta Lynn Stanley. He had two sisters Anita (Jerry) Headley, who was so much more than a sister, and Mazie (deceased 1939). Married to Greta Barrow September 1951, this union brought a legacy of love through their children and following generations. Children: Diane Green, Joseph (Linda) Stanley, Mark (Dena) Stanley; grandchildren, Shanna Green, Cory (Kim) Green, Chelsea Burlison, Amber Ebersole, Ashley (Jeff) Briggs, Brydon Stanley, April (Ray Higuera) Stanley, and Marcus Stanley; step grandchildren Kevin and Brody Woodling, nine great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. volumes with a hug, a smile, a twinkle in his eyes or the raise of one eye brow. He enjoyed many activities; antique cars (having rebuilt a prize winning '56 Thunderbird), NASCAR, all sports (football being top of his list), riding ATVs on dirt or the sand dunes, even at age 84.
