Correction

The item in the July 9 edition of the Holmes County Times-Advertiser "School board debates live vs. virtual Spanish teacher," the following comment was erroneously attributed to school board member Shirley Owens: "This estimate was based on a $40,000 salary figure which could vary depending on the number of years they teach ... Then there's health insurance that we absorb. I don't think we should jump into it quickly." The comment was made by school board member Debbie Kolmetz, who also moved the issue be tabled until the board could better explore their options. The Times-Advertiser apologizes for the error.

Local business requests to extend liquor store into a full-service bar

By CECILIA SPEARS

BONIFAY — Owner of Stateline Liquors, located at 1065 State Road 179A in Westville, Mike Joshi came before the Holmes County Board of County Commissioners during their June 8 meeting to request expanding his liquor store into a full-service bar.

"I have a liquor store in Westville that has been open for almost 40 years," said Joshi. "I am now trying to open a bar and I need permission with the county as rules and regulations follows. I have letters signed by the local residents that say they do not have a problem with me opening a bar."

County Attorney Jeff Goodman requested Holmes County Building Inspector Roger Williams to speak to the Board on what information he had on the matter.

Williams informed the Board there is an ordinance in place with restrictions near churches and schools, which he is not and not within a 1,000 feet of a residential home, which can be waived if the resident agrees. Another condition owner must have a valid Florida restaurant license and a restaurant that serves food "prepared on the premises."

Williams said one of the concerns Joshi has is putting expenses into a restaurant and not have the assurance that the Board will give their permission.

Larry Sawyer, claiming to own 90 percent of the land around the store, came to protest Joshi's efforts.

"There's not enough law enforcement to have a restaurant/bar in that area," said Sawyer. "I talked with the local people in that area and they say they're not interested in having people drinking in that bar and then riding down public roads. Putting a bar

A search warrant was obtained for the residence, and officers from the HCSO and BPD executed that warrant, recovering more than two pounds of marijuana and other narcotics and drug paraphernalia.

James Arthur Poh of Bonifay was arrested and charged with possession of controlled substance with intent to sell.

Bonifay receives welcomed news

By CECILIA SPEARS

Cspears@chipleypaper.com

BONIFAY — City Auditor Hilton Galloway returned to Bonifay for the city's annual audit with news that brought nods of approval during their regular scheduled meeting on July 14.

"After all the accounts are put together it actually shows the city with a $20,000 surplus, which is very positive," Galloway said. "There is still a lot of leg work ahead to do some reclassification for the city. All paperwork is in accordance and there is no discrepancies."

He said that as of last year the City of Bonifay had $7.1 million in on-going debt. However, he commended Mayor Lawrence Cloud on his success in negotiating away $525,000 of that debt and his continued efforts, with the latest amount being $1.2 million. He said the debts that are unable to be negotiated away should be refinanced for a lower interest rate.

The income generated from gas taxes and expenses for day-to-day operations "break even," Galloway said.

"Next I would like to touch upon your due diligence on finding the reason for the 34 percent of city water lost per year," he said. "Whether it is uncharged water or a lot of leaks, there is no account where that water is being lost. The average amount unaccounted for is an average of 8 percent to 25 percent for uncharged water; like for fire fighters to use, water fountains at parks, etc.; 34 percent is just too excessive."

Galloway also recommended that the city increase their

The arrests come after investigators received information connecting the suspects to a June 11 burglary that took place in the area of Bonifay Gritney Road and Jim Bush Road in which approximately 20 firearms were stolen.

out there would be detrimental to the people in that area because we don't have a police patrol."

Board approved Goodman's request to table the matter until the next meeting and he would use those two weeks to sit down with the owner and review what some of his options are.

Approved:

- Emergency Services Director Interim Roger Dale Hagan requested permission to use up to $3,000 of 911 funds to allow 911 Director Cliff McGowan to receive additional training, explaining there are "points not covered by the previous director due to the pressing needs after the state of emergency the county was under due to the rains."

- Consent Items: June 24 Regular Session Minutes; Insurance Committee Recommendations; Notice to Proceed Sidewalk Phase II; Metcalf Road headwall; Preble Rish Agreement Sidewalk Project FPID 429661-1-68-01, 429660-1-68-01 NS 429664-1-68-01; Release of Lien with Legear; and FDOT Road Closure of Whitaker and Red-dick Mill Road.

- At the request of Commissioner Bill Parish the Board pulled Consent Item: Opportunity Florida Letter of Commitment to discuss the annual membership dues of $2,000. Commissioner Kenneth Williams explained that it afforded the county opportunities to expand that they would not have had otherwise, using the latest tower agreement as an example. Opportunity Florida has an agreement with the County to build a new tower and gave it to the County under the condition that as payment Opportunity Florida is allowed to use it for a certain amount of years, leaving a space for County usage. Chair Monty Merchant suggested inviting the Holmes County Development Commissioner to the next meeting to inquire about the benefits Holmes County is receiving from being a member of Opportunity Florida. Board approved to table the matter until the next meeting.

- Lease Purchase Agreement/Resolution 14-05 Hancock Bank. Goodman explained that the resolution was passed at the last meeting and the Board is now approving of which bank bid they will go with for purchasing a grader.

- Borrow Pit Subsurface Exploration and Geotechnical Engineering Evaluation. Merchant explained that the county was interested in a piece of property for another dirt pit and presented the Board with a quote of $5,000 for dirt samples to be tested for quality. He said the land was 40 acres of clear-cut land to help with the county's steady dirt shortage, "especially with FEMA work coming up." The vote was approved 4 to 1, with Parish voting "no."

- LAP Sidewalk Bid FPID Bonifay Elementary School, Sandpath Road and State Road 90. County Engineer Cliff Knauer explained that he put these projects out for bid and had a large response at the Pre-bid conference. He also explained that the lowest bidder did not send in an addendum when requested, which caused them to become unqualified to be awarded the bid. Knauer then recommended that the Board approve to go with the next lowest bidders. Board approved Knauer's recommendation to award the Bonifay Elementary School sidewalks to Marshall Brothers in the amount of $330,683.78; Sandpath Road from Holmes County High School to State Road 10/U.S. 90 to GCUC in the amount of $104,668.10; and State Road 90 from the entrance of HCHS to State Road 79 to Marshall Brothers for $143,575.71.

- District 2 Road Foreman Position. The former District 2 Road Foreman retired and Board approved of hiring Jeremy Benton.

rates. He explained that the income for water usage and expenses to replace the water and sewer lines were too far apart to make a difference.

"The audit went very well this year," said Galloway.

After much discussion Council approved of City Attorney Lucas Taylor writing an ordinance to raise the water rates by 10 percent and sewer by four percent this year and four percent every year for three years, which at that time would be readdressed by the council to either increase or decrease.

- Council agreed to allow the Bonifay City Garden Club to rearrange the large flower pots in downtown Bonifay in the club's recent efforts to continue beautifying the city. Attending the meeting on behalf of the Bonifay Garden Club was President Adonna Bartlett. Bartlett thanked the city for allowing the garden club to service the city and informed them that the club is possibly going to plant crape myrtles in the large pots.

- Council approved of FRDAP Work Plan in the amount of $50,000 complete reimbursable money to fix and improve the water park at Middlebrooks Park as well as the basketball court, restrooms, playground and to build an exercise trail.

- Council held the first reading of Ordinance 388, which prohibits residents and lawn care professionals from dumping excessive yard clippings and debris into storm drains and ditches. Taylor explained that he emphasized on "excessive" because the purpose of the ordinance was to stop people from clogging the drainage ways and causing massive flooding issues. He used a recent example of a ditch clogged with debris caused water to overflow into someone's residency. He also recommended that a letter be sent out to all licensed lawn care professionals to give them a chance to voice their opinions at the next council meeting.

- City Clerk Jeri Gibson explained to the Council that local business owner Henry Pitts was refusing to pay a deposit for water and sewer to his place of business on the grounds that his business does not have water or sewer. Council member Richard Woodham said he begged to differ, stating that Pitts used the water and sewer from the business adjacent him. Council agreed to discuss the matter further with the business owner in hopes of that an agreement be met.

The next scheduled meeting of the Bonifay City Council is set for 6 p.m. on July 28.

Burglary report leads to child abuse arrests

Special to The News
 A Marianna couple is facing child abuse charges after what began as a burglary.
 The Jackson County Sheriff's Office responded to the reported burglary at a Cedar Lane residence near Marianna at 11:40 p.m. Friday.
 Upon arrival, deputies learned the intoxicated complainants had went out for a night of drinking and told their 13-year-old son not to enter their residence. The 13-year-old reportedly had been residing next door with his adult sister because of family problems, but he still has all his belongings and a bedroom at the parents' house, according to police.
 The child entered the residence and retrieved his PlayStation 3 to "keep himself occupied." When the parents returned home and realized he had been in the house, they went next door, and an altercation ensued.

 During the course of the disturbance, the father, Norman Cooper, 49, of Marianna, reportedly punched the child in the stomach and slapped him twice. The child subsequently fled the residence.
 Cooper then armed himself with a claw hammer and began chasing the child around, attempting to strike him, according to police. Deputies say when Cooper was unable to catch him, he threw the hammer at the boy, missing him. Cooper then attempted to tackle the child but missed and fell into the side of the trailer causing damage to the skirting, according to police.
 Deputies say the mother, Patricia Cooper, 47, of Marianna, became involved in the affray by grabbing the child in a chokehold from behind, eventually throwing him to the floor. Despite the lengthy altercation, the child was relatively unharmed.

 After the parties returned to their respective residences, the parents contacted law enforcement to report the child had burglarized their home. A witness confirmed the child's account of the incident.
 Norman Cooper was arrested on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, domestic battery and child abuse. Patricia Cooper was arrested on charges of domestic battery and child abuse.
 Both parents were placed under arrest and lodged in the Jackson County Correctional Facility to await first appearance.

Letters to the EDITOR

PLEASE WITH DOCTORS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL'S I-STAT MACHINE

Dear Editor,
Are you one of those people who must get a regular pro-time to check the clotting of your blood? If you are here is some very good news for you.

Did you know that that our own Doctors Memorial Hospital of Bonifay now has an I-STAT machine? Well, they do! You no longer have to ride to Dothan or Panama City to be able to have this service performed.

The I-STAT machine can get all the blood needed for testing by making a pinprick in the end of any finger, and all it takes is just a few drops. If you have rolling veins, or it is difficult to draw blood from your veins, then this is the test for you! The technician in charge will call in test results to your physician. Your doctor will then call you back, same day, with results and adjust Coumadin dosages as needed. This has proved wonderful for my wife, Celedia.

Gary Ayres is the technologist in charge of this service. He is assisted by Nancy Ayres, Irman Suva, Arthur DeSampardo and Emelyn Elumir. Services are provided from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m., and arrangement for working people can be provided by calling the laboratory to set up the appointment.

Since the program is located in Doctors Memorial Hospital, it is especially convenient for Bonifay and Holmes County residents. Others in the surrounding area should check out this program it can be of service to you. Being able to get this service in Bonifay can have many benefits for the people who use it. Examples being, less wear and tear on your vehicle and the time it takes to commute, also you'll be able to save on gasoline; we travelled to Dothan for 18 years to have my wife, Celedia's PT. tested, at times we went up to once a week.

You will find the people in the laboratory very professional, kind, caring and interested in helping you, the patient.

Must go now - We're on our way to Doctors Memorial Hospital to get Celedia's PT. tested now. Thank heavens they're so near to us!

IT'S TIME TO PROTECT OUR BORDERS

Dear Editor,

The issue of immigration law change is one that needs to be put to a stop, except to make the law require that out borders be protected more and totally closed to all illegal crossing. The Obama administration and the liberals and free loaders want to keep violating our current border laws. Legal immigration is ok as it has always been, but not illegal. If it is ok to cross the border illegally, then why not drugs, murders, and etc.?

Did you know that if one crosses the North Korean border illegally one gets 12 years of hard labor? If one crosses the Afghanistan border illegally you get shot. Two Americans just got eight years for crossing the Iranian border. If you cross the U. S. border illegally, you get a job, a driver's license, food stamps, a place to live, health care, housing, child befits, education, and a tax free business for seven years. No wonder we are a country deep in debt. Legal immigrates ok. Illegal immigrates no, no.

The Rev. Billy Bruner, Th. D.
Cottondale

Finding an unexpected connection

I fully expected to enjoy working with Pat Aukema Dickson recently to learn more about restorations going on now at the First Methodist Church in Chipley,

CAROL KENT
Editor

as well as more about the church's rich history. What I didn't expect was to learn I have a couple connections of my own to the century old church.

My only memory of the church was of field trips taken as a Kate M. Smith Elementary student before the Christmas holidays to learn about the Chrismon Tree - field trips that I'm told still take place today.

As Dickson showed me several old photographs, one from 1907 - the first year the current church held services - caught my eye. The photo showed the original parsonage, as well as another building standing next to the church. One was the original parsonage, which as it turns out, later served as the childhood home of my mother's best friend, Patricia Harden Hardy.

According to church records, Rev. G. N. Winslett began building that first parsonage, and construction was completed during the tenure of Rev. R. C. Williams, who served as minister from 1907-1910.

The new parsonage was built in 1956. After a short time being used to house Sunday school classes, the old parsonage was purchased by A.C. and Lizzie May Harden.

A.C. and Lizzie May's daughter, Patricia (Pat) Harden (now Hardy), and my mother, Martha Bowen (now Kent), became friends sometime while attending junior high in Chipley. From then on, the families would be forever intertwined.

I have many fond memories of sitting at the Hardens' dinner table, having both southern cooking and conversation. Both were served warm and with love.

I marveled as a child at the many nooks and crannies, including a rather odd-shaped closet in the sitting room Ms. Lizzie May kept filled with books and toys for us kids. I stopped by for a visit when my oldest daughter was around three and noticed happily that many of those old toys were still there, awaiting the newest generation of children.

My conversation with Mrs. Dickson stirred a desire to visit the home again soon and look at it with a fresh vision, one filled with knowledge of its rich history.

a lesser connection, but one that thrilled just the same. My daughter, Taylor, became good friends with a young lady named Kimberly Butler soon after we moved back to the area. The home belonged to an uncle and aunt of Brett Butler, who is her father. Their names were Oscar and Sallie Addie Butler, and Sallie Addie is honored by her name appearing in one of the church's iconic art glass windows.

When I think of the many prayers that have been said for loved ones below those beautiful windows, I understand how their value is far from monetary, and I'm sure the Butlers, like so many others, would be pleased with their preservation.

I know as soon as they're back in their rightful - but more structurally sound - place, I'll look at them each day on my drive to work. And I'll smile as I remember the love, work, and dedication shown to this community by the original parishioners, as well as the wonderful relationships that were connected to or born from a church that had a vision.

That slippery slope

It is a case of Supreme hypocrisy.

The adjective refers to that nine-person tribunal at the top of the American legal system, the noun to its latest act of judicial malpractice. Meaning not the notorious Hobby Lobby decision handed down at the end of June but a less-noticed ruling a few days later.

We have to revisit the former to provide context for the latter. On June 30, the court ruled that a "closely held" corporation can deny employees health insurance covering any contraceptive method that conflicts with the company's religious beliefs. Writing for the majority, Justice Samuel Alito faulted the government for failing, under the Affordable Care Act, to choose the "least restrictive" means of ensuring women access to all FDA-approved methods of birth control. He pointed out that the ACA already makes an exemption for nonprofit groups with religious objections; simply fill out a form certifying those objections and they are relieved from having to provide the disputed contraceptives.

LEONARD PITTS JR.

Columnist

Alito saw this as a win-win. Employees get the birth control they want — they pay directly to the insurance company — but the government does not "impinge" the organization's religious beliefs.

Three days later, the court issued an injunction freeing a Christian school — Wheaton College in Illinois — from having to fill out the certification form. The school had argued that simply doing the paperwork — the form asks only for name, contact information, signature and date — infringed upon its religious liberty because it would trigger the employee's ability to get the disputed contraception. So the same form that the court held to be a reasonable compromise on Monday was judged an unreasonable burden on Thursday. Or as Justice Sonia Sotomayor put it in a withering dissent, "Those who are bound by our decisions usually believe they can take us at our word. Not so today."

Indeed, the malleability of the court's logic suggests these rulings are based less in law than in the personal beliefs of the men on the tribunal. One gets the sense they chose the desired result first, then backfilled whatever "reasoning" would get them there.

Which is not just Supreme hypocrisy, but also Supreme faithlessness. And, yes, Supreme sexism.

I once saw a protest sign to the effect that if men gave birth, contraception would be bacon flavored and dispensed from vending machines. Can anyone argue the truth in that? Would we even be having this debate if some company had a religious objection to Viagra — or vasectomies?

And how far down the line must a company's religious scruples be honored anyway? If it is too much to ask Wheaton College to fill out a form because an employee will be "triggered" to buy contraception on her own, does the school also have a right to scrutinize and approve other purchases made with the salary she earns from them? If she buys whiskey or pornography with "their" money, does the school have a right to object?

Not to mention the frightening precedent the court is setting in the name of religious liberty. It makes faith a potential get out of jail free card exempting the holder from any law he finds onerous. Given that Mormons once embraced a theology of racism and evangelical Christians still deny basic freedoms to gay people, the danger of this is obvious.

In its rush to confer personhood on organizations and constrain women's choices, the court steers us toward a day in which corporate rights would trump human rights and you no longer could take for granted that you would be served by a given business without first checking to make sure you didn't offend the owner's religious sensibilities. It's hard to imagine what that world would be like.

Pretty soon, we might not have to.

"The family who bought this company was renowned for buying mom-and-pop stores to push them into the bigger industry," he said. "You may have heard of a couple of the businesses they've pushed forward, such as Waste Management and Blockbuster." After getting into the salvage business and adding companies like Keystone and DuPont the company, LKQ, now has over 630 facilities, 6,000 employees and is worth more than $5.1 billion. "We're about creating revenue," Ponds said. "You can sell anything on a vehicle but the busted glass and plastic. Everything is revenue." Building Beauty

Styles of Architecture

As you walk through a city, you might notice that every block has a different feel. The types of buildings can make each part of a city feel like a separate world. Different building designs, or architecture (AR-ki-tek-chur), create a different mood.

The Mini Page talked with an architectural historian from the Savannah College of Art and Design to learn more about some of the main architectural styles.

Classical

Thousands of years ago, ancient Greeks designed buildings so beautiful that people are still modeling buildings after them today. Ancient Romans based their own architecture on ideas they learned from the Greeks.

The architecture style of ancient Greece and Rome is known as classical. Greek and Roman architecture had clean, simple lines.

The design elements, or features, in their buildings have become a kind of architectural alphabet. Architects through time have built their own designs using this classical alphabet.

Some of the most admired elements are the massive stone columns that help support Greek buildings.

The Parthenon (PAR-thuh-non) is a temple built in Athens, Greece, to honor the goddess Athena. This example of classic architecture was built around 2,500 years ago.

Column sculpture

Each column is a piece of sculpture. Grooves often run up and down the columns. The grooves thicken or thin in special patterns. Decorating with grooves is called fluting.

The columns themselves were spaced in a strict pattern. The Greeks had rules for the column design and spacing. For example, the space between each column was slightly wider than the column itself.

Three patterns

The Greeks created three different styles of columns: the Doric (DOR-ic), Ionic (eye-AHN-ik) and Corinthian (kuh-RIN-thee-uhn). Each style was decorated differently at the top, or capital, of the column. "Capital" comes from the Latin word for "head."

Column styles

Doric

The Doric is the simplest capital style. It looks like a square cushion sitting on top of a round cushion.

Ionic

The Ionic capital looks like a square cushion with a curving spiral on each side.

Corinthian

Corinthian is the fanciest style. Its capital has sides that flare out. Sculptured leaves decorate it.

Meet Brady Rymer

Brady Rymer and the Little Band That Could create rock music for kids and families. Their latest CD, with guest artists such as Elizabeth Mitchell, Laurie Berkner and Recess, is "Just Say Hi!"

Brady began playing guitar when he was about 5. When he was in junior high, he, his brother and two friends formed a rock band, which stayed together through high school.

He went to an arts college, and then began playing with his band again, touring the country. He recorded with them for 13 years before quitting the band to stay home with his kids.

Brady co-founded a preschool music program at his son's school and began composing and playing music for kids. He supports charities for children, especially kids with autism.

Growing From the Classical

Ancient Rome

Ancient Romans added arches and domes to buildings. They played with shapes, creating circular and oval buildings as well as rectangles.

Romans were more interested in what buildings looked like from the inside than from the outside. Ceilings were high and vaulted, or formed with arches.

They decorated floors and walls with mosaics (mo-ZAY-iks). Mosaics are pictures and designs made of small pieces of colored stone, tiles or glass.

Oval buildings such as the Roman Colosseum (kal-uh-SEE-uhm) allowed people to see and hear no matter where their seats were. Many modern sports stadiums use the same design.

Minarets surround the Hagia Sophia museum in Istanbul, Turkey.

Eastern styles

The Byzantine (BIZ-uhn-teen) Empire covered much of what is now Eastern Europe and Turkey for about 1,000 years, until 1450 A.D. For a long time, it was part of the Roman Empire. Its architectural style was influenced by the Romans.

Byzantine architecture is known for its huge circular domes. Buildings were decorated with mosaics.

Arab and Islamic buildings were influenced by Byzantine style. They are known for their minarets (min-uh-RETS), or tall, thin towers reaching into the sky.

Into the Middle Ages

In the late 300s and 400s, northern tribes called Goths invaded the Roman Empire. These raiders destroyed much of the art, buildings and literature in their path. The centuries after the invasions were known as the Dark Ages. Little art or architecture was created then.

After several hundred years, around 1000, people began to rebuild. Longing for a return to the past glories of the Roman Empire, they brought back classic styles. This return to classical is called Romanesque.

Romanesque looked like super-powered classical Roman architecture. Buildings such as Vézelay Abbey in France had higher ceilings with taller vaulted arches. Arches were more complicated.

Maria Sharapova

It's shaping up to be an eventful 2014 for tennis player Maria Sharapova. In February, she participated as a torchbearer in the opening ceremonies of the Winter Olympics held in Sochi, Russia. It was a homecoming for Maria, since she and her family had lived in Sochi when she was a child, before moving to the United States.

Another thrill came on the tennis court in June, when she captured the women's singles title of the 2014 French Open, one of the sport's four Grand Slam events, along with the Australian Open, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. In her career, Maria has won each Grand Slam tournament at least once, along with an Olympic silver medal in London in 2012.

It was Maria's third straight appearance in the finals of the French Open, and her second title there in three years. It's a remarkable accomplishment for this former No. 1 player in the world, who has enjoyed success on and off the court for the past decade.

Designing With Light

Gothic

Decorative Romanesque styles grew even more focused on splendor, growing into what is now known as Gothic architecture. It is known for its height, light and color.

Around the 1100s, architects discovered they could make even taller arches by making them pointed at the top. Ceilings were built higher than ever.

Using pointed arches allowed architects to reduce the amount of wall space and fill it with glass, especially colorful stained glass. Some churches were basically made with walls of glass. Stained glass often pictured religious stories.

Support from the outside

In order to help support the mostly glass walls of Gothic cathedrals, architects built arches on the outside of the buildings. These supporting arches are known as flying buttresses (BUH-tris-ehz).

Flying buttresses add support to the walls of the Washington (D.C.) National Cathedral.

Sainte Chapelle in Paris and other Gothic cathedrals and chapels were filled with light and color. Church officials believed the high ceilings and pointed arches of Gothic architecture drew people's eyes to God. Stained glass added beauty. Architects wanted the churches to remind people of the beauties of heaven.

Rose windows

A special kind of stained glass window, the rose window, was shaped like a rose, a symbol of the Virgin Mary. Rose windows are often a centerpiece of Gothic cathedrals.

This rose window is in Sainte Chapelle in Paris.

The Mini Page thanks Dr. David Gobel, architectural history professor, Savannah College of Art and Design, for help with this issue.

Next week, The Mini Page continues its exploration of architectural styles.

Gargoyles

Today, when we think of Gothic cathedrals, we often think of the weird, spooky sculptures, or gargoyles (GAR-goils), that loom over buildings. Gargoyles acted as rain spouts, carrying water away from the building.

Gothic architecture did not get its name until after the 1300s. As an insult, a group of Italian artists labeled this architecture after the invading Goths of centuries before. The Gothic revival in the 1800s was sometimes a rebellion against the rules of society. Today "gothic" often means something creepy.

This gargoyle guards the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Ostend, Belgium.

Look through your newspaper for pictures of buildings. Can you name the architectural styles or mix of styles?

Former 'Nole Wade named new Gulf Coast softball coach

By BRAD MILNER

BETH WADE
Assistant at Troy

PANAMA CITY — Gulf Coast found another Seminole to lead its softball program.

Beth Wade was named the school's second head coach on Friday, with the former Florida State standout inheriting a program that hit a rough spell in 2013. Former coach Susan Painter also played softball at FSU of the slow pitch variety and departed in May after her contract wasn't renewed by the GCSC Board of Trustees. Wade has accepted the position, effective on Wednesday pending board approval.

Wade spent the past two seasons as an assistant at Troy University, where she was the hitting coach and aided in recruiting. The Colquitt, Ga., native also was an assistant at Florida schools Lynn University and Tallahassee Community College for one season at each stop. She also assisted at Appalachian State from 2009-2011.

At FSU, Wade played first base and was among the team's top power hitters from 2000-2004. She led the Seminoles in doubles (12) and was tied in home runs (eight) and fourth in RBIs (34) as a senior, as FSU finished 62-19. FSU won three Atlantic Coast Conference titles and made two Women's College World Series appearances in her tenure.

Wade was unavailable for comment on Friday and will likely be formally introduced next week. A GC press release made no mention of possible assistants under Wade.

GC finished fourth in the Panhandle Conference last season and was ousted in the state tournament after four games.

The Lady Commodores were 28-33 and posted their first losing season in program history. Painter led GC for 20 seasons and amassed 895 wins, six conference titles, three state crowns and finished runner-up at the national tournament on three occasions.

There was a time when I thought guys were well off when they used a disposable razor once and then threw it away.

I can get about two weeks of use out of one of those puppies, though by then they can't draw blood from a scab.

The recent money giveaway in the NBA shows just how dull-witted I have become. Chris Bosh was offered $88 million last week by the Houston Rockets. His response was something along the lines of "I'll get back to you."

Yeah, me, too, at least until the ammonia capsule kicks in to revive my senses. Then my first response would be, "Anybody have a pen handy?"

Eighty-eight million? Maybe? This from a guy who might be the 25th-best player in the league.

So what happened was that Miami tossed an extra $30 million on the pile and now Bosh has a five-year deal. If he wants to, he can buy Gillette and throw away the company.

It was revealed on Friday that the best player in the NBA is going back to his roots in Cleveland. That prompted the immediate thought that Pat Riley probably isn't about to write an open letter in the Miami Herald condemning the move, ala Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert four years ago.

Neither should the basketball fans in Miami get too demoralized over King James' decision. He helped take them to four consecutive NBA Finals and tripled the amount of titles that franchise has brought home during its existence.

These are the same Heat followers who customarily arrived late for games and left early, if anyone remembers them trying to get through locked doors to return to the arena one night when Miami staged a memorable rally.

This much, too: thank gawd it's over. And where are those idiots among Cavs' fans who burned James jerseys in disgust when their superhero first decided to leave.

Nothing lasts forever, whether it's a lifetime or players' or fans' allegiance.

It's not as if anyone in Miami, or Cleveland for that matter deserved to have LeBron James playing for their favorite team.

The most difficult part of the scenario for James most likely is leaving Riley, who is a bit of an alchemist when it comes to the mad science of concocting NBA titles. James departs for a head coach who has never led a team in the league and a front office that hasn't exactly distinguished itself over five decades.

There also is the Gilbert factor. I would advise against him sending another open letter to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, as he'd come off as just as big a creep for fawning over his latest addition.

So much for the era of the Heat, which provided the South Beach set with more than its share of highlights. They can go back to their pina colodas with the assurance they aren't missing anything.

And finally, here's a parting thought that Riley is left with some extra money now James is gone, unless he decides to give it all to Bosh and Dwyane Wade. Could there be a new "Big 3" in Miami?

Celebrating the Fourth of July hasn't changed much for me

Hope everyone had a Happy Independence Day and celebrated in a special way. We don't usually do anything different and since bodies of water is where most people want to be on that hot holiday, we avoid the crowds and stay home. I think we pretty much did that when our children were growing up. Perhaps we went to a Sand Hill pond some years. The blueberry business is not usually very busy on the 4th itself, but since we don't have plans, we stay home and mind the "store" and get ready for the next day. Since the next day was Saturday, we had our pickers working that day, so with the help of son Hiram, we did celebrate by having some of the workers for a hamburger cook out. I reneged on the home-made ice cream, though, and made a blueberry crisp with store-bought ice cream. We will celebrate a belated birthday for daughter Cindy this week with home-made ice cream.

A special treat on the 4th came when Ralph and Martha Harris brought us a nice mess of bream which they had caught while celebrating the 4th. Neighbor Paul Segers cleaned them for us in his fish scaler and while waiting for that chore to be completed, I sampled some delicious home-made ice cream which Betty Segers was making in preparation for their family's celebration the next day. She even sent some home with me for Jack.

I had visited with neighbors Fudgie and Syble

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

Middlebrooks too while delivering them some blueberries. I ran into neighbor Brad Baxter at the grocery store and gave him a late invitation to join us for the cook out, but he declined.

However, with all this neighborly contact, I resolved that next year I am going to plan a neighborhood cook-out, if not on the 4th, then somewhere around that time.

Looking back on July 4th celebrations of my youth, there are none that stand out. As we were produce farmers and our Dad had a regular Panama City and the Beaches route on Tuesdays and Fridays in the summer, I know that any celebration we may have had was determined by how many hampers of peas or dozens of roasting ears of corn had to be gathered. One thing of which I am sure: we had watermelon. Of course that was a part of our daily diet in the summer. I am also sure that we had neighbors or friends drop by too for a slice of the juicy treat. Another thing I am sure of is that Mama was cooking fig preserves on the wood stove in the hot kitchen.

I recall a lot of outings when we went to the creek or the river along with other families for fishing and cooking and eating on the banks, but whether that was the July 4th celebration or not, I'm not sure. I think that was more likely when the crops were "laid by" that farmers could take a day off to fish. That meant that the main crops like corn or peanuts or cotton were plowed for the last time before they were left to grow and produce. Since most of our farming operation was green beans, squash, potatoes, peas, sweet corn, butter beans, okra, tomatoes, cucumbers, and fall crops like sweet potatoes, turnips, and all kinds of greens, there was no such thing as "laid by" crops at the Wells farm. So we were more likely to take a holiday whenever the river was "right."

The celebration planned by the Ministerial Association where churches offer free food and entertainment has grown into a major event with thousands attending. It is a good opportunity to mix and mingle with friends while listening to some good music and inspirational messages which culminates in an awesome fireworks exhibition. Of course, in an election year it is an excellent opportunity for politicians to "count a few votes."

In my growing up years, I don't recall fireworks being a part of Independence Day celebration. I can see, though, why it is more appropriate for that than it is for Christmas. But that is when we had firecrackers. In fact, until the Judge Helms Family moved to Tallahassee in 1968, our Christmas Eve tradition was to have our Tison Christmas celebration with them and shoot fireworks.

How ever you choose to celebrate, those two holidays are very deserving of recognition and celebration. May we always enjoy the privilege of doing so.

'A real blessing'

Doctors Memorial Hospital makes a difference for one local couple BONIFAY — Celia Howell, 82, married almost 62 years to Frederic Howell, said she was 32 when she found out that she had a bad heart. She said she died on that day.

"I haven't talked about it until now, but on the day I was taken to the old Bonifay hospital almost 50 years ago I died due to cardiac arrest," said Howell, voice shaking and tears falling as she recalled the event as though it were yesterday. "It's true what they say about going down a tunnel with a bright light at the end. There were noises that I've never heard before and haven't since and I knew the light was the Lord; the experience was indescribable."

It was that day she found out she had atrial fibrillation (irregular heartbeat), ventricular tachycardia (rapid heartbeat), leaky heart valve and a couple more heart complications.

She said the symptoms were manageable until over 18 years ago when she became ill and her doctor put her on blood thinners. Eight years ago, she had to have a pacemaker inserted to help work all four valves of her heart. She said she was temporarily off blood thinners until there was a brain-bleed scare, where tests showed she might have been experiencing a brain-bleed.

Eight tests later showed she was having difficulty with blood coagulation and not a brain-bleed. Because of these complications, Howell found herself having to test her blood on a regular basis for coagulation and medication dosage adjustments. She said this had her traveling to Dothan several times a month and sometimes once a week.

"It was so hard to go to Dothan so many times and it was becoming increasingly difficult to draw blood from my veins," Howell said. "After drawing from them for so long my veins began to roll and large lumps began to form in my arms. It was scary and frustrating."

One day, while visiting a hospital in Tallahassee, the Howells found out about a machine that could test a blood's coagulation with amazing accuracy with just a prick of the finger. The machine is called an I-Stat.

"The I-Stat Point-of-Care Analyzer can be used for several things, such as troponins and basic metabolic profiles," said Doctors Memorial Hospital's Clinical Laboratory Supervisor Gary Ayres. "Basically it starts with a lancet prick on the finger for a drop of blood into PT cartridge loaded into the I-Stat with results in a couple of minutes. From there we load the information into the computer and the information is sent to the attending physician where medication dosage can be adjusted as needed."

Ayres explained that the entire process could take less than five minutes as opposed to the usual method, which takes five minutes to draw the blood, 15 to 20 minutes to spin and analyze the blood and several minutes to process the information to be sent to a physician.

"It's the difference between drawing a whole vial of blood and a pin prick on the finger for instant results," Ayres said. "Mrs. Howell requested the machine and we're hoping that we'll have other people who will use it."

Frederic said he was relieved for both him and his wife.

"It cut down on so many round trips to Dothan," he said. "Any miles you can cut off by coming to Doctors Memorial Hospital for the same thing is recommended because of travel being so expensive. Not to mention the relief on my wife not having to take a full vial of blood every time and just a drop or two."

Ayres confirmed that he works around schedules if someone is interested in using the machine and Celia said that all expenses are covered by her insurance.

"At first I couldn't get used to the Bonifay hospital because I was so afraid but I have yet to meet a grouchy person at Doctors Memorial Hospital, which is very rare these days," Celia said. "They're so confident in what they do and it is so reassuring. I would recommend this to anyone."

Craven attends chancellor's leadership seminar

Special to the Times-Advertiser

Dr. Bryan Craven, Chipola College Director of Public Relations, was among 35 faculty and administrators from the Florida College System's 28 community colleges, state colleges and colleges who recently graduated from the 2014 Chancellor's Leadership Seminar.

Florida College System Chancellor Randy Hanna offered his congratulations at a ceremony in historic downtown St. Augustine. "We are excited to once again provide this leadership development opportunity to administrators and faculty within the Florida College System who may be interested in a leadership role," said Chancellor Hanna. "The impetus is to promote individuals who may be primed to move into administrative or other leadership roles and are committed to Florida's college system."

The CLS participants attended an all-encompassing four-day seminar, which was held at the St. Johns River State College St. Augustine Campus Tuesday, June 17 through Friday, June 20. Since 2001, the seminar has marked a significant phase in each participant's professional development. This nomination-only event indicates that each class member has been recognized as an individual with the potential for professional advancement within the FCS. Speakers at the seminar included state legislators, CLS alumni, and college presidents, one of whom was Chipola president Dr. Jason Hurst.

Florida's colleges remain the primary point of access to higher education in Florida, with 65 percent of the state's high school graduates pursuing postsecondary education beginning at a Florida college, and 82 percent of freshman and sophomore minority students in public higher education attending one of Florida's 28 colleges.

More Florida schools earn 'A' grades as state prepares for new grading system

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The number of elementary and middle schools earning a preliminary "A" grade increased by 195 (7 percentage points) over last year in the final year of the current grading system, according to preliminary data released today by the Department of Education. Overall, 962 elementary and middle schools statewide earned the top grade.

The number of schools earning a preliminary "F" grade this year also increased. The Department is focused on ensuring all low performing schools are provided the necessary assistance and support they need to help their students achieve.

"The increase in the number of schools earning an 'A' this year is great news for students and teachers who have worked hard for this success," said Commissioner Pam Stewart. "I appreciate the work by the educators and families and students and know they will continue to improve in the future even as we transition to a new grading system."

This is the final year school grades will be calculated using the current formula. The new grading system next year will support the more rigorous Florida Standards and the Florida Standards Assessment which will replace the FCAT. The new school grading formula will be more simple and transparent.

"The new grading system that will start next year will continue to be crafted with input from parents, teachers and educators," said Stewart. "Its focus on student achievement and gains will help ensure a fair accountability system that helps measure student knowledge of the new Florida Standards."

The Stevenson Companion Animal Life-Care Center

The Stevenson Companion Animal Life-Care Center, located at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences (CVM) is a facility quite unlike any other. This unique center provides for the physical, emotional, and medical needs of companion animals whose owners find themselves no longer able to do so. Whether they are entering a retirement home, being hospitalized for an extended period of time, or predeceasing a pet, they can take assurance in the fact that their beloved pets are being well cared for at the Stevenson Center.

"I believe the Stevenson Center is extremely unique in that it is the only life-care facility for pets that is an integral part of a College of Veterinary Medicine," said Dr. Sonny Presnal, director of the Stevenson Center. "This means that companion animals that are living with us at the Stevenson Center will receive the ultimate in veterinary care which is provided by our Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital."

The Stevenson Center has veterinary students who live at the center to care for the resident pets at night and on weekends and holidays. "It is unique in another way because four veterinary students live at the center to provide around-the-clock care and companionship whenever the staff is off duty," said Dr. Presnal. "This is an excellent learning opportunity for the students and ensures a high quality of life for our pet residents."

Situated on three acres beside the CVM campus, the total space of the center, including a recent second expansion since its opening in 1993, is about 11,000 square feet and will be able to house nearly 100 pets. A stable behind the main building houses the center's resident llama, with space for other large companion animals when the need arises. Residing in the center at this time are 19 cats, 14 dogs and the llama. There are a total of 480 animals currently enrolled to enter the program, with 173 owners from 26 different states.

"Over the more than 21 years which we have been in operation, many donors have supported the center by making contributions to our building fund, unrestricted gifts, and in many cases creating an endowment from their estate plans in excess of the minimum required endowment to enroll their pets," said Dr. Presnal. "We are extremely grateful for this support, and this support is what has enabled us to create the exceptional facility and care that our resident pets receive at the center."

Enrollment is not a complicated process, and interested donors can contact the center by phone (979-45-1188) or email (<http://vetmed.tamu.edu/stevenson-center>). "We highly encourage anyone that might have an interest in enrolling their pets in the center to visit the center to fully appreciate the compassionate care that their pet would receive," said Dr. Presnal.

Center staff will pick up enrolled animals anywhere in Texas when necessary. The first stop for the pets—before they even enter the Center, is the CVM Small Animal Hospital, where they go through a thorough examination before joining the others. The hospital and its veterinarian's also comprehensive care when a center resident is sick or injured, ensuring the animals get the best care available.

"We believe that the Stevenson Center provides the ultimate in life-care for companion animals comprised of exceptional, compassionate care and the very best veterinary care available anywhere," said Dr. Presnal. "We highly encourage anyone interested in the program to schedule a visit to see the center 'up close and personal.'"

Pet Talk is a service of the College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, Texas A&M University. Stories can be viewed on the Web at vetmed.tamu.edu/news/pet-talk. Suggestions for future topics may be directed to editor@cvm.tamu.edu.

She touched the lives of countless others in many ways with her tender kindness, gentle goodness, joyful laughter and selfless service. She harbored no resentment, jealousy, bitterness or envy. She was virtuous, caring, forgiving and sweet. Her whole life was like her work at the nursing home where she would hold the hand of someone needing comfort, read a scripture to someone needing faith and say a prayer for someone needing grace. Her deep love for her husband, daughters, grandchildren and all her family and friends was unconditional and never-ending. She was a lovely flower in this world and now she blooms in

'Let It Go, Let It Go, Let It Go'

This year I celebrate my 20th year as a practicing grandfather. I am not sure that after 20 years I know anything more about being a grandfather than I did before. I have not found any books written on how to be a grandfather, maybe I should write one. I have enjoyed those 20 years and it just seems to be getting better.

One of the interesting things about a grandfather is spending time with the grandchildren, especially when they are trying to watch a movie.

I enjoy a movie every now and again, but when it comes to little girls, they do not seem to have the same taste in movies as their grandfather. This is something I will never understand. What is a grandfather to do? The only way to get them to sit still and be quiet is to show one of their movies.

One of the movies so important to little girls these days is the movie called Frozen. As it happened, we had to have a special night set aside to watch this movie with the granddaughters. I figured, how hard could it really be?

I consented on this movie because I thought this would give those tired, overworked little gray cells upstairs a chance to relax and not work so hard. After all, how can you think when you are watching something like a movie for children?

I also thought it would be nice to rest my body as well as my eyes, if I can get away with it.

After all, who wants to follow the plot, if there is any such thing, in a children's movie.

We had settled down to watch this exciting little girl's movie, I was half dozing and then I began to think about the manuscript I was working on. I had been having trouble with a certain aspect of that manuscript and as I sat there, I begin to think about how I could fix that problem. It almost came to me, but then I heard, "Grandpa, grandpa, grandpa look at that, look at that!"

The cheering granddaughters brought me back to the land of the living and the reality as they were watching it. Both of them at the same time begin to explain to me what it happened and what was going to happen.

Out to Pastor

Between the two little chatterboxes, I had no idea what they were talking about. What is a grandfather to do but smile broadly and pretend you are listening. After all, they are only little once.

They soon quieted down and were fixated on the screen watching the movie unfold. I sighed a deep sigh of relief and went back into my previous stupor.

I try to follow the movie, but then I remembered that in the afternoon I had to write a column for my newspapers. As of yet, I did not have an idea what that column would be. I like to start with the title and then following that develop a story line. As yet, I did not have an acceptable column title. As I mused about this, thoughts were beginning to gel and that little light bulb began to flicker. Thoughts were beginning to come into place, and then I heard some loud screaming and clapping and two little girls were jumping up and down singing, "Let it go, let it go, let it go."

I sat up in my chair, looking around trying to figure out what in the world they were trying to let go. It is at this point that grandmothers are no help to grandfathers. Grandmothers can say, "You girls watch the movie with grandpa while I make supper."

Personally, I do not think it is fair: I would like to make supper one night while grandma joins the little girls watching a movie. The problem is, nobody would eat the supper that I would prepare, not even Yours Truly.

What these little girls were all excited about was something I was trying to figure out. It did not make any sense to me, but as I watched the little grandchildren, they were excited, laughing, shouting and singing. Of course, it is hard to tell the difference between shouting and singing, especially in today's musical world. They were absolutely enjoying themselves and I tried to focus in on the source of their enjoyment.

"Grandpa," both of them yelled at me in absolute delight, "sing the song with us."

What grandpa's go through while entertaining their grandchildren.

I made a deal with them at that time, "I will sing with you, but I certainly will not dance with you." A grandfather has to draw the line somewhere. And so, I joined in singing, "Let it go, let it go, let it go." I got those words down pretty good, but the rest of the song was a mysterious blank to me. They were excited about singing it and soon I was excited about watching them sing it.

That evening when the little ones were snuggled into bed, I remember what David said. "For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favor is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning" (Psalms 30:5).

In the Hebrew, so they tell me, the word "joy," also means singing. My faith in Jesus Christ has brought me to a wonderful place where I can sing, "Let it go, let it go, let it go."
