IN BRIEF

Holmes County 4-H launches new livestock club

The Holmes County 4-H program through the University of Florida and IFAS Extension will host an open meeting for youth interested in raising 4-H animal projects and showing their animals in upcoming local fairs at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 12, at the Holmes County Ag Center. Youth ages 5 to 18 and their parents will have the opportunity to explore the different animal focuses such as beef cattle, horses, poultry and rabbits being offered within the 4-H Livestock Club and meet with the 4-H Agent and volunteers. Youth also will be able to enroll in the new 4-H year which begins, Monday, Sept. 1. Volunteer information will be available for those adults interested in getting involved in this new 4-H livestock program.

For more information regarding this event or for additional 4-H information, please contact Niki Crawson at 547-1108, ncrawson@ufl.edu or check out our website at <http://holmes.ifas.ufl.edu>.

Back to school fair

CHIPLEY — Northwest Florida Community Hospital will host the annual The Back to School Fair from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, Aug. 14, on the front lawn. This is a free event to help school age children prepare to return to school, looking spiffy and equipped with the necessary school supplies. There will be a back pack drawing as well.

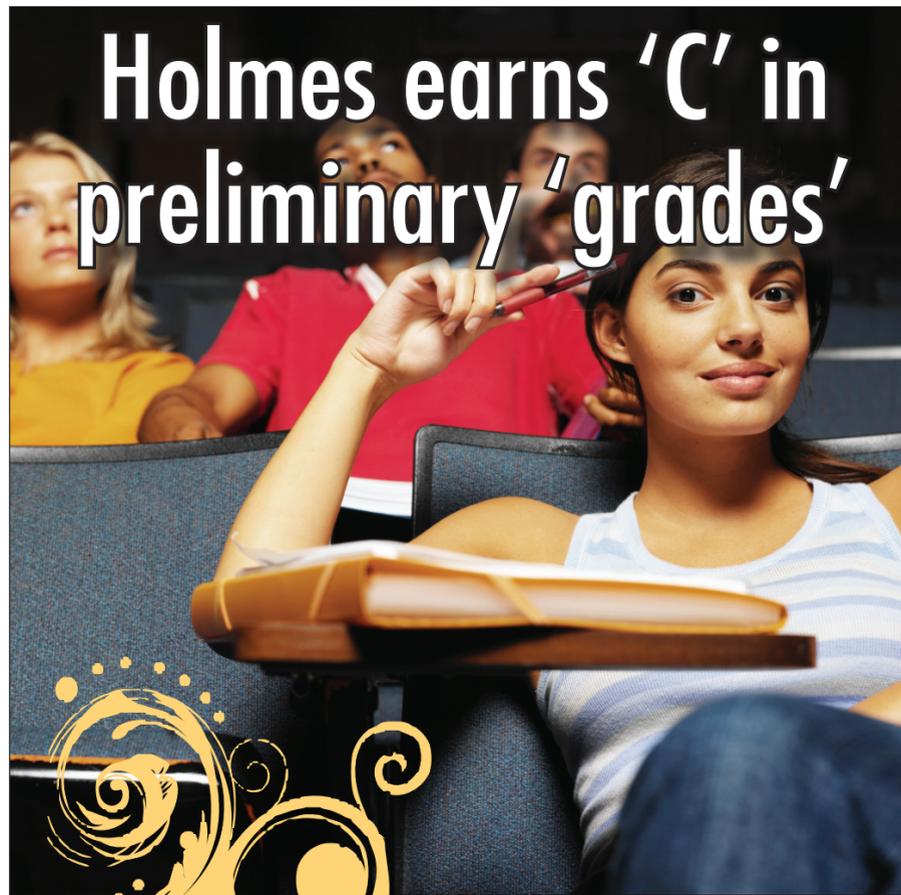

For more information, call Joanie Beard at 415-8104.

Holmes earns 'C' in preliminary 'grades'

Majority of schools remain unchanged from last year's scores

HOLMES COUNTY — Florida school grades and preliminary grades are in, recently released by the Florida Department of Education, with Holmes County averaging a "C" from the state.

The majority of grades remain unchanged from last year.

Final grades are in for local elementary schools, however, for middle and high school grades, there still are multiple factors involved for reaching a final grade, which will not be available until the end of December or beginning of January.

"Bonifay Elementary and Middle schools did a great job this year, and Ponce de Leon Elementary School had a significant gain from last year," Superintendent of Schools Eddie Dixon said. "They actually had a 40 percent increase from last year but due to the odd scoring they appear as though they dropped a grade. High school and middle school grades are pending until the end of course exams and possible bonus points based on percentages."

Ponce de Leon Elementary School dropped from a C to a D, but the school's principal states there was still some improvement.

Early voting for county begins Aug. 16

From staff reports

HOLMES COUNTY — Supervisor of Elections Debbie Wilcox Morris has announced early voting dates and locations for this year's primary elections.

"Being an involved voter has become more and more important in today's world," Morris said. "It is important for today's voters to be well informed in order to participate effectively in the elections process. The more you know in advance of Election Day, the more pleasant your voting experience will be."

Voters who still have a conflict with the designated voting times for Early Voting or Election Day, still can vote using a mail absentee ballot. To request an absentee ballot, call the Elections Office at 547-1107.

Voters who want to vote early should remember to bring an acceptable form of photo and signature identification with them.

Rudd also tells voters her staff is ready to help and answer any questions voters may have about early voting.

"Early Voting provides a more convenient alternative to traditional Election Day voting and for those who are unable to make it to their polling place on Election Day, they have the option to vote early when it better fits his or her schedule," said Morris. "At least 30 days before Election Day, the Supervisor of Elections will announce the locations and times for Early Voting. If the voter still has a conflict with the designated voting times for Early Voting or Election Day, he or she can still vote using a Mail (Absentee) Ballot."

'We can do a better job'

County meets with crews to discuss road maintenance

By CECILIA SPEARS

cspears@chipleypaper.com

BONIFAY — Holmes County Board of County Commissioners called a workshop to speak with road workers and foremen to discuss concerns about road work and maintenance.

"Mostly you could say it's my fault," Commissioner Bill Parish said. "I just think it's a good idea for us to get together every now and again to talk openly about areas of concern so that everyone has an idea of what we are facing together as a county. I appreciate all you do; all the long hours and stress you have and yet you get a lot done with very little to do it with."

Residents: We're still waiting for answers

By CECILIA SPEARS

BONIFAY — Some residents were back in front of the Holmes County School Board when they met in regular session last week seeking answers they say they still have not received.

Resident Veronica Williams spoke, stating she and several others addressed the board during the June 17 meeting and asked specific questions, to which they have not yet received answers, including if certification of administration a concern of the school board, alleging Superintendent of Schools Eddie Dixon falsified records concerning his years of being principal at Holmes County High School.

Williams also said Dixon strategically posted jobs to ensure "who he wanted was hired" and that teachers were posting comments on social media sites indicating job decisions before they are voted on.

She also demanded to know how was Edgenuity software was chosen as the delivery method for online students in the county, as opposed to using Florida Virtual School, pointing

Alan Justice announces candidacy for District 3 school board seat

From staff reports

Bethlehem native Alan Justice formally has announced his candidacy for Holmes County's District 3 School Board seat.

A 1990 Salutatorian graduate of Bethlehem High School, Justice attended Chipola College, followed by earning his Bachelors of Health Science in Physical Therapy from the University of Florida. Since then, he has served the community as a physical therapist, most recently through co-ownership of Restore Therapy and Wellness in Holmes County. He currently serves on the advisory board for Bethlehem School and Wallace Community College Advisory Committee for the Physical Therapist Assistant Program.

ALAN JUSTICE

Justice and Alison, his wife of 23 years, have three daughters who attend Bethlehem School and mark the fourth generation of family educated in Holmes County schools, giving Justice what he says is a vested interest in the school system from a parent's perspective.

"I have a vested interest in our school district," Justice said. "It is my goal to see that every student in Holmes County receives the highest quality education possible. This can be accomplished through effective communication between our administration and staff, making sure our educators have the tools and support necessary to perform their jobs, providing a safe and cultivating environment for our students to learn and fostering community support to propel our schools forward."

Justice said if elected, he hopes to "bring fresh vision and a desire to help create effective and lasting change that will further improve the quality of education."

Justice will face District 3 incumbent Jason Motley in the Aug. 26 election.

County Courthouse at 201 N Oklahoma St., Suite 102 in Bonifay, with a note informing voters that the entrance and parking are in the rear of Court House for Early Voting. Sample ballots are available for review before casting your ballot.

Voters who want to vote early should remember to bring an acceptable form of photo and signature identification with them.

"Do not hesitate to ask if you have questions on procedures for casting your ballot or using the voting equipment," said Morris. "If you need assistance to vote, notify the poll worker and you may bring someone with you who can help you or you can request that two poll workers provide you with assistance. If you need to change your residence address, notify the poll worker; they will assist you with completing the necessary paperwork to update your record or in determining if you are at the correct polling place."

out Dixon's former boss, Janis Williams, was the sales representative for Edgenuity. Williams then requested the school board provide an assessment of the Edgenuity program in writing concerning the procedure, validity, and performance of the students using the software, stating she also stating she was concerned with the estimated amount it would take to get all the documentation related to the questions provided, which was estimated to be $4,200.

Dixon responded by assuring Williams his actions were transparent. "Me, as a superintendent, and us, as a board, our first concern is what is right for our children," Dixon said. "The choices I make every day affect children and I take those decisions to heart. I will continue to work for the betterment of the children."

In other action, board members approved opening a position for a Spanish teacher, whose time will be split equally between Ponce de Leon High School, Bethlehem High School, and Poplar Springs High School. The motion carried with a vote of three to one, with Board member Debbie Kolmetz voting "no" and board member Jason Motley being absent.

"Cost is not the only consideration in making this decision; however, the least we will save is $8,210.75, and the most is $27,760.75," Dixon said. "The students at Ponce de Leon, Bethlehem and Poplar Springs deserve to have a Spanish teacher like those at Holmes County High School if it is possible. Florida Virtual School was never intended to replace the face-to-face teachers in Florida; it was originally started to help students with unique needs and smaller schools fill gaps in instruction due to limited personnel and scheduling issues."

Kolmetz repeatedly and adamantly voiced her opposition to hiring a Spanish teacher.

"I don't think we should have a Spanish teacher when we're already in the red," Kolmetz said. "I feel virtual school is the best way to go."

The first topic of discussion was from Chair Monty Merchant, explaining that county road workers and foremen need to be "careful about ditches."

"We have no problem with ditch work," Merchant said. "We just have a lot of ditches out there with culverts done by other folks and people expecting the county to maintain them. We need to go through all proper procedures when dealing with ditches and culverts."

Parish brought up concerns about maintaining county equipment.

"We're entrusted by the citizens of this county and every little thing makes a difference," Parish said. "Nasty filters are just one example and I believe we can do a better job than what we're doing now. Even if the equipment is from someone else's district, you must take the time to do the proper equipment check before you even use it; that at least covers your butt."

Commissioner Kenneth Williams agreed with Parish.

CECILIA SPEARS | Times-Advertiser

Holmes County Board of County Commissioners held a workshop with county road workers and foremen on July 15.

"Money spent on preventative measures prevent costly expenses down the road," Williams said.

An employee requested information about the next potential raise for county employees, stating that the last raise was a cost of living raise almost four years ago.

"(Raises) are something that we have in consideration during budgeting and we do what we can to keep it in mind,"

Merchant said. Parish commended road workers on the road improvements after the two recent disasters caused by excessive rains throughout the county.

"It wasn't us that put those roads back in shape and get them back to driving standards," Parish said. "You get all the credit for that and I believe I speak for all of the commissioners in saying we appreciate all that you do for the county."

"Although the state scored us at a D, we improved by 98 points from last year," PDLES Principal Anissa Locke said. "Last year, we were at 333 points and this year we improved to 431 points, only 4 points from a C. I look for our school to make even more improvements next year. The teachers and students are highly devoted to meeting all the new requires FLDOE has in place for the upcoming school year."

Bonifay Elementary School maintains their A.

"Out of the last seven years we've had five As and two Bs," BES Principal Rodd Jones said. "At our school the teachers do a phenomenal job, as does the faculty and staff but I also have to say it has a lot to do with the parents, too.

Parents play an intricate part in our success; we are very proud of our school's grade."

Ponce de Leon High School, Bonifay Middle School Poplar Springs High School and Holmes County High School grades are still pending.

"In the past it has taken until November or December before we received our grade," HCHS Principal Mickey Hudson said. "We are always striving to improve, and will continue to work on analysis to determine where we need to change and what we need to replicate. With that being said, the formula is changing and we are attending some training this week that I hope will help us to better understand the new information."

Holmes County 4-H is seeking more volunteers

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The Holmes County 4-H Program is looking for caring adults to get involved in their community as 4-H volunteers to make a positive impact on local youth. Whether you have a couple of hours a month or just a couple of hours a year to spare, Holmes County 4-H can find a great, fun place for you to serve.

4-H is a "learn-by doing" youth development program for children ages five to 18 that provides young people with many different opportunities to develop life skills, a sense of belonging, and a spirit of generosity toward others.

Time served as a volunteer will provide youth the safe environment they need to pursue whatever interests, causes, and leadership roles that are most important to them and help to direct them into healthy, productive citizens.

4-H Volunteers serve in a variety of capacities based on their interests, skills, and time constraints. In Holmes County, 4-H volunteers help in many ways. Some serve as club leaders and co-leaders for our community 4-H clubs. Other volunteers help with organizing events, judging competitive events, and supervision. Because 4-H offers such a wide variety of events and activities, there is room for many different types of volunteers.

At this time, Holmes County 4-H is seeking new volunteers to serve as club leaders and co-leaders in areas such as livestock, horses, archery, air rifle and shotgun disciplines. These volunteers have the flexibility to determine the amount of time given, location of meetings, and subject area they prefer in working with youth. Volunteers will receive full assistance from the Extension and 4-H Office to include trainings, office support, and resources and materials. Individuals interested in becoming volunteers in archery, air rifle, and shotgun disciplines will also receive training to become certified instructors.

Volunteering is fun, easy, and requires little to no specialized knowledge other than being able to work with youth ages five to 18 in an area of interest to the individual. An individual interested in becoming 4-H volunteer will need to complete a volunteer application and background screening, at no cost to the individual. Make a difference in your local community today, call the Holmes County 4-H program to begin your path as a 4-H Volunteer, a positive adult role model that will help shape our youth's development and lead the path to a safe, fun, and brighter future.

For more information on how you can become a 4-H Volunteer in Holmes County, please contact Niki Crawson at 547-1108 or email her at ncrawson@ufl.edu.

PET OF THE WEEK

These are just a few animals looking for a good home. Animal Control of West Florida serves Washington, Holmes, and surrounding counties and has many more in need of adoption. For more information on how to adopt or volunteer, visit the shelter, located at 686 Highway 90 in Chipley, or call 638-2082. Hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Saturday.

The Summertime Blues kittens are two eight week old litter mates, one gray and one gray and white. They are very sweet, well socialized and love to be held and cuddled. Both are happy, playful and appear very healthy. This adorable pair of kittens would be the purr-fect cure for a case of the summertime blues.

Furby is a 10 month old male Border Collie mix, about 65 pounds. He was adopted as a young puppy by an elderly couple who didn't realize what a large dog he would be and now they are unable to handle him. He was not a bad dog, he walks fairly well on a leash and is very friendly, he is just young and playful and strong. They need a much smaller dog and Furby needs a younger and more active family. Can you give Furby another chance to have a forever family?

NOTICE OF TAX FOR SCHOOL CAPITAL OUTLAY

The Holmes County School District will soon consider a measure to continue to impose a 1.5 mill property tax for the capital outlay projects listed herein.

This tax is in addition to the school board's proposed tax of 5.757 mills for operating expenses and is proposed solely at the discretion of the school board.

The capital outlay tax will generate approximately $689,202 to be used for the following projects:

Construction and Remodeling

New Bonifay K-8 School

Maintenance, Renovation, and Repair

Reimbursement of the maintenance, renovation, and repairs paid through the General Fund as permitted by Florida Statute

Roof repairs and replacement
Paving

Motor Vehicle Purchases

Purchase of Seven School Buses

New and Replacement Equipment

Purchase school furniture and equipment district wide
Lease-purchase of Data Processing Equipment

Payment of Costs of Leasing Relocatable Educational Facilities

All concerned citizens are invited to a public hearing to be held on July 28, 2014, at 5:05 P.M., at the Holmes County School District office located at 701 East Pennsylvania Avenue, Bonifay, Florida.

A DECISION on the proposed CAPITAL OUTLAY TAXES will be made at this hearing.

Letter to the EDITOR

Grateful to good Samaritans

Dear Editor,
This is to express appreciation to four good Samaritans and to acknowledge to all that there are still good people out there who help others.

My sister and I were returning home via I-10 at the Ponce de Leon exit when our vehicle died on us. Fortunately, we were exiting I-10 when this happened, so we coasted to the side of the highway. We raised our hood, and I got on my cell phone to call for assistance. It was 5:30 in the afternoon. Some travelers passed us by; however, Josh and Tia Redman stopped to help us.

My transmission fluid was on the pavement, and the vehicle would not move, so obviously, I wasn't going anywhere in it. It was getting later, and still no response from AAA, so Josh, a firefighter in your community, called someone he knew and trusted to come and tow us to his shop. I told Josh and Tia we would be fine since help was on the way, but they would not leave us until the tow arrived.

A short time later Dustin Seale, of Deuces Automotive showed up with a wrecker and towed us to his shop. His lovely wife Jessica gave my sister and me a ride. We retrieved our luggage at the shop where the vehicle had been taken, and Jessica took us to a motel and made sure we had a place to stay.

We stayed the night at your Holiday Inn Express, and they were kind enough to allow late checkout until our truck was repaired. At 1 p.m. we received a call from Jessica that our truck was good to go, she came and picked us up, and we were able to continue our trip home safely.

Dustin and Jessica Seale went over and beyond to help us. He could have taken advantage of us in that situation but he did not; he treated us most fairly and I wouldn't want to embarrass wither he or Jessica by going overboard here, but I will sat that I know they and the Redmons will get stars in their crowns for their kindness to two mature ladies on June 17, 2014. It really is a wonderful reflection on the folks over in Ponce de Leon and Bonifay. I thank God smiles on all of us that day. I want this in the paper because I want to tell everyone about their kindness. It restores ones faith that there are still good people out there and I'm thankful for them.

Gratefully,

Eunice Higgs
Perry

Speak up if you want officials to listen

Government is a business that should serve the shareholders: its citizens. Moreover, as citizens, we should reclaim our status as the foundation for our local government. We have an important stake in making sure elected and appointed officials operate in the most efficient and effective manner possible.

How do we do that? A good start would be to pay closer attention. Attend more civic meetings and become informed about what decisions these officials are making.

Would you give your employees a percentage of your income, ask them to make vital decisions affecting your family, and then never check in to see how they are handling that responsibility?

Many of us will take the time to show up when "hot topics" are on the table, but few attend for agendas that are more uneventful. Many rely on the newspaper, of course, to keep them filled in on current events, but sometimes the community may not be aware of issues on the horizon. Too often, we find our input is given too late in the process.

ChIPLEY City Council was inundated with comments from Chestnut Hill Street residents a few weeks ago who objected to a proposed access road that will affect traffic - and possible property values - in their neighborhood.

Many said they felt they weren't given the opportunity to express their feelings, despite the city's advertisement of the proposal and local news coverage.

It later was obvious that Mayor Linda Cain and council members had little reason to suspect how much the community would oppose the road's location at the time it was approved.

Cain listened with apparent concern and empathy to the residents' objections, but the council's hands were tied, bound in the form of an agreement with the property owner.

Granted, while not required by law, the council could have sent letters to Chestnut Hill residents as a courtesy and likely avoided some of the conflict, but if they took all the required steps, how were they to know public sentiment?

The Sunshine Law ensures accountability, but are we just assuming since meetings are open to the public, our officials will make decisions with which we all agree?

Vernon City Council is also dealing with an issue on which not everyone agrees, but one young woman attended the July 14 workshop and impressed those on both sides of the peddlers' ordinance issue.

When Avery Hodges of Vernon found summer employment working at a roadside fruit stand, the teenager also found herself in the middle of a local debate.

Some argue such operations take revenue away from local businesses,

CAROL KENT
Editor

SPECIAL TO TIMES-ADVERTISER

Upcoming college student Avery Hodges recently spoke with conviction about her concerns with regards to a proposed peddlers' ordinance and offered suggestions about the issue to members of Vernon City Council.

and the City of Vernon is currently attempting to develop an ordinance that will allow roadside stands to operate with a license while also protecting the interest of local "mom and pop" businesses.

Avery came before the council and asked that they not let her young age fool them, as politics and current events are discussed often in her home.

She then explained how working at the fruit stand was helping her earn money for college, going on to make suggestions to the council on ways to generate revenue in the city, including imposing a one-cent sales tax.

"Why should Panama City be the only town to benefit from all the tourists coming through our town?" she asked. "Everyone gets gas and shops at the dollar store."

The teenager's pride and love for her community was apparent in her well thought out presentation as she expressed her desire to help the small town grow, and she was truly an example of her own words: "Vernon is small in people and finances, but great in heart." Hodges made sure her voice was heard.

Isn't that what more of us should do? Wouldn't our community be better off if we did? Most of our officials take the trust we put in them seriously, but they still need - and want - to hear from us. Being in the know is not only our right, but also a checks-and-balance system for better government - if we do our part as responsible members of our community.

After all, how can officials listen if we don't step up and speak?

Coloring outside the lines

If my world is black and white, then those in my life are the brilliant shades of color.

I was the kind that thought that you had to color within the boundaries of the lines and by the guidelines of nature; the sky is always blue, the grass is always green and if there are no clouds outlined on the paper then it is a clear day. I was often intimidated by a blank page, overwhelmed by the lack of guidelines or perimeters.

That was until my life was flooded by people who thought "outside the box" and "colored outside the lines." At first I thought these were dangerous people disrupting order with their wild ideas but then I saw those ideas were not entirely without merit.

They were with the authors I read, spending time on deserted islands looking for treasure or 20,000 leagues under the sea. It started the "what if?"

It also started the difference in perspective. The Twilight Zone helped there. Just what if the standards of reality were altered just a bit? What if you could look at things from another angle? I once had an art teacher that touched on the irony between black and white. "In physics darkness or black is the absence of light and white is light containing all the colors of the spectrum," said the teacher. "In art, the color black is actually the presence of all colors and white is devoid of color." Astounding.

Little by little those blank white sheets of paper began to excite me instead of overwhelm me because the lack of parameters, the lack of guidelines actually meant limitless possibility.

My mind opened up and craved for new ideas and I found the best teacher was just what was around me. The people I met, the everyday encounters, and just life in general.

This way of thinking helped me to actively look for the new in everything and has helped with problem solving.

If you really think of it, there is too much in the world for you to take in all in one lifetime.

You may pass the same scenery to and from work, every day but the scenery will never be the same from day to day. The wind changes the position of the tree branches from minute to minute, the trees are growing so they are different lengths over time, and vegetation has different lifespans based on the species of plant so they may be there one day, grow, bloom, and die within a week. That is just the simple, everyday occurrence of the scenery right outside your car window.

Things always stay interesting because I have an interest in everything. Sometimes, when things are quiet and I have to wait, it will appear as though I'm starring off into space, when in actuality I could be looking at the contrast in color on the walls dividing texture and altering color based on varying exposure to light.

It's sad really, when I think that there's so many eye-catching scenes that I can't take pictures of because it'll never capture the full perspective of the moment and there's not enough time to paint them all. I guess my memory will have to suffice.

Problem salving is stepping away from the issue and looking at it from another perspective, another angle. Sometimes it becomes apparent at the beginning and other times it just takes time and distance.

I think statistically, most common problems deal with elements tied closely to the proximity or area of the problem therefore it is reasonable to assume the solution is also found within the proximity or area of the problem. If you know the problem and are trying to solve the problem then the elements of the problem are tied with every aspect of your day to day life. Sometimes it does well just to put the problem down and walk away. Statistically speaking the variable related to the solution can be found within your area. Funny enough, I usually find my solution when not thinking of the problem at all, but when I'm engaged in another matter.

I painted this life-size Olaf for the youth group at church. Painting is a fun way for me to open my thoughts to the possibilities beyond what is currently evident; to really dream.

It can become awkward because I figured out the solution and I'll be in a position where I can't do anything about it.

Another aspect of thinking outside the box has helped reduce stress because I've learned to appreciate the irony. There are things that happen and they can be frustrating and upsetting at times but I find a good deal of it comes with buckets and buckets of irony. Laughing has been known to physically reduce stress. Laughing off those situations doesn't reduce the seriousness of it but it does alleviate some of the stress associated with it and actually primes you to better handle the situation.

Life is so full of these baffling, mind boggling and frustrating moments that can be overwhelming or can be appreciated for something that is solely your own because you can view yourself as a unique witness; someone who is one of only a few to witness these areas of your life, committee it to memory and write the tale from whatever angle you so choose.

Thank you for sitting with me again; I'll see you again next week.

Building Beauty

Styles of Architecture

As you walk through a city, you might notice that every block has a different feel. The types of buildings can make each part of a city feel like a separate world. Different building designs, or architecture (AR-ki-tek-chur), create a different mood.

The Mini Page talked with an architectural historian from the Savannah College of Art and Design to learn more about some of the main architectural styles.

Classical

Thousands of years ago, ancient Greeks designed buildings so beautiful that people are still modeling buildings after them today. Ancient Romans based their own architecture on ideas they learned from the Greeks.

The architecture style of ancient Greece and Rome is known as classical. Greek and Roman architecture had clean, simple lines.

The design elements, or features, in their buildings have become a kind of architectural alphabet. Architects through time have built their own designs using this classical alphabet.

Some of the most admired elements are the massive stone columns that help support Greek buildings.

The Parthenon (PAR-thuh-non) is a temple built in Athens, Greece, to honor the goddess Athena. This example of classic architecture was built around 2,500 years ago.

Column sculpture

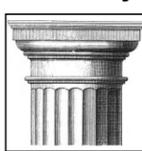

Each column is a piece of sculpture. Grooves often run up and down the columns. The grooves thicken or thin in special patterns. Decorating with grooves is called fluting.

The columns themselves were spaced in a strict pattern. The Greeks had rules for the column design and spacing. For example, the space between each column was slightly wider than the column itself.

Three patterns

The Greeks created three different styles of columns: the Doric (DOR-ic), Ionic (eye-AHN-ik) and Corinthian (kuh-RIN-thee-uhn). Each style was decorated differently at the top, or capital, of the column. "Capital" comes from the Latin word for "head."

Column styles

Doric
The Doric is the simplest capital style. It looks like a square cushion sitting on top of a round cushion.

Ionic

The Ionic capital looks like a square cushion with a curving spiral on each side.

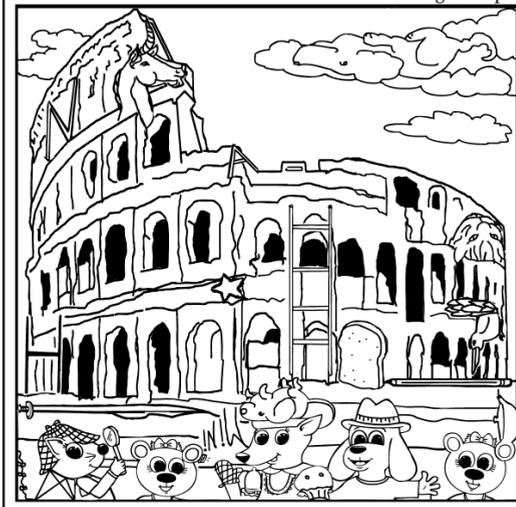

Corinthian
Corinthian is the fanciest style. Its capital has sides that flare out. Sculptured leaves decorate it.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe Tasty Turkey Burgers

You'll need:

- 1 1/4 pounds lean ground turkey
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 (1-ounce) package dry onion soup mix

What to do:

1. Mix all ingredients in a large bowl. Refrigerate for 10 minutes.
2. Form into patties (medium to thin rather than thick).
3. Spray grill or pan with cooking spray.
4. Cook 20 minutes on medium heat, turning after 10 minutes. Do not press on the burgers with a spatula — it will dry them out.
5. Burgers will be white inside when done.
6. Serve with lettuce, tomatoes, ketchup, mustard and any other condiments of your choice on whole-wheat buns. Makes 4 to 6 burgers.

You will need an adult's help with this recipe.

Meet Brady Rymer

Brady Rymer and the Little Band That Could create rock music for kids and families. Their latest CD, with guest artists such as Elizabeth Mitchell, Laurie Berkner and Recess, is "Just Say Hi!"

Brady began playing guitar when he was about 5. When he was in junior high, he, his brother and two friends formed a rock band, which stayed together through high school. He went to an arts college, and then began playing with his band again, touring the country. He recorded with them for 13 years before quitting the band to stay home with his kids.

Brady co-founded a preschool music program at his son's school and began composing and playing music for kids. He supports charities for children, especially kids with autism.

Growing From the Classical

Ancient Rome

Ancient Romans added arches and domes to buildings. They played with shapes, creating circular and oval buildings as well as rectangles.

Romans were more interested in what buildings looked like from the inside than from the outside. Ceilings were high and vaulted, or formed with arches.

They decorated floors and walls with mosaics (mo-ZAY-iks). Mosaics are pictures and designs made of small pieces of colored stone, tiles or glass.

Oval buildings such as the Roman Colosseum (kal-uh-SEE-uhm) allowed people to see and hear no matter where their seats were. Many modern sports stadiums use the same design.

Minarets surround the Hagia Sophia museum in Istanbul, Turkey.

Eastern styles

The Byzantine (BIZ-uhn-teen) Empire covered much of what is now Eastern Europe and Turkey for about 1,000 years, until 1450 A.D. For a long time, it was part of the Roman Empire. Its architectural style was influenced by the Romans.

Byzantine architecture is known for its huge circular domes. Buildings were decorated with mosaics.

Arab and Islamic buildings were influenced by Byzantine style. They are known for their minarets (min-uh-RETS), or tall, thin towers reaching into the sky.

Into the Middle Ages

In the late 300s and 400s, northern tribes called Goths invaded the Roman Empire. These raiders destroyed much of the art, buildings and literature in their path. The centuries after the invasions were known as the Dark Ages. Little art or architecture was created then.

After several hundred years, around 1000, people began to rebuild. Longing for a return to the past glories of the Roman Empire, they brought back classic styles. This return to classical is called Romanesque.

Romanesque looked like super-powered classical Roman architecture. Buildings such as Vézelay Abbey in France had higher ceilings with taller vaulted arches. Arches were more complicated.

Maria Sharapova

It's shaping up to be an eventful 2014 for tennis player Maria Sharapova. In February, she participated as a torchbearer in the opening ceremonies of the Winter Olympics held in Sochi, Russia. It was a homecoming for Maria, since she and her family had lived in Sochi when she was a child, before moving to the United States.

Another thrill came on the tennis court in June, when she captured the women's singles title of the 2014 French Open, one of the sport's four Grand Slam events, along with the Australian Open, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. In her career, Maria has won each Grand Slam tournament at least once, along with an Olympic silver medal in London in 2012. It was Maria's third straight appearance in the finals of the French Open, and her second title there in three years. It's a remarkable accomplishment for this former No. 1 player in the world, who has enjoyed success on and off the court for the past decade.

Designing With Light

Gothic

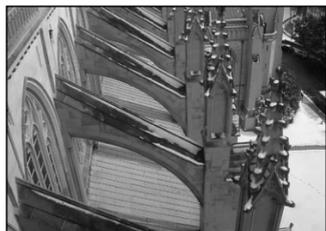

Decorative Romanesque styles grew even more focused on splendor, growing into what is now known as Gothic architecture. It is known for its height, light and color.

Around the 1100s, architects discovered they could make even taller arches by making them pointed at the top. Ceilings were built higher than ever.

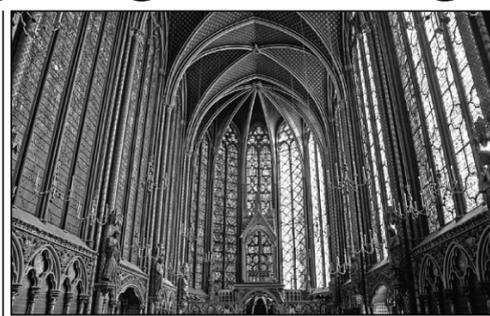

Using pointed arches allowed architects to reduce the amount of wall space and fill it with glass, especially colorful stained glass. Some churches were basically made with walls of glass. Stained glass often pictured religious stories.

Support from the outside

In order to help support the mostly glass walls of Gothic cathedrals, architects built arches on the outside of the buildings. These supporting arches are known as flying buttresses (BUH-tris-ehz).

Flying buttresses add support to the walls of the Washington (D.C.) National Cathedral.

Sainte Chapelle in Paris and other Gothic cathedrals and chapels were filled with light and color. Church officials believed the high ceilings and pointed arches of Gothic architecture drew people's eyes to God. Stained glass added beauty. Architects wanted the churches to remind people of the beauties of heaven.

Rose windows

A special kind of stained glass window, the rose window, was shaped like a rose, a symbol of the Virgin Mary. Rose windows are often a centerpiece of Gothic cathedrals.

This rose window is in Sainte Chapelle in Paris.

The Mini Page thanks Dr. David Gobel, architectural history professor, Savannah College of Art and Design, for help with this issue.

Next week, The Mini Page continues its exploration of architectural styles.

Gargoyles

Today, when we think of Gothic cathedrals, we often think of the weird, spooky sculptures, or gargoyles (GAR-goils), that loom over buildings. Gargoyles acted as rain spouts, carrying water away from the building.

Gothic architecture did not get its name until after the 1300s. As an insult, a group of Italian artists labeled this architecture after the invading Goths of centuries before. The Gothic revival in the 1800s was sometimes a rebellion against the rules of society. Today "gothic" often means something creepy.

This gargoyle guards the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Ostend, Belgium.

Look through your newspaper for pictures of buildings. Can you name the architectural styles or mix of styles?

Efforts under way to make racing illegal

Articles by JOHN HENDERSON

522-5108 | @PCNHjohn | jhenderson@pcnh.com

EBRO — As part of his trip to Florida each year to watch greyhound racing, Bob Feijo was making a round at the Ebro track Wednesday night.

The New Bedford, Mass., resident, who was enjoying the races with his friend's grandson, said there's nothing like it.

"The kids love to watch this," he said. "And it's not promoting them to want to throw away all their money. They just love to watch it. They really do. You see the smiles, and it's a good family thing. It really is."

As he sat in a chair watching the races, children in front of him clung to the track railing in anticipation of dogs busting out of the gate. Several mothers had babies in their strollers. One parent kissed her little girl as she held her in the air.

Feijo said he lost the enjoyment of watching the races in his home state in 2008, when opponents to greyhound racing in his home state were able to get a ballot question to eliminate racing that passed by a narrow margin.

The same organizations are at work in Florida to eliminate the sport, which they say is a form of animal abuse.

But Feijo and other greyhound racing enthusiasts beg to differ.

"These dogs are treated well," he said. "There is a 95 percent adoption rate. It's documented."

Betting on live racing has fallen from almost $1 billion in 1990 to $258 million last year in Florida, home to 12 of the 21 U.S. tracks that regularly hold live dog races. At the Ebro track, the handle for dog racing has declined from $5.78 million in fiscal year 2005-2006 to $1.72 million in fiscal year 2012-2013, which runs from October through November, figures from the state's Department of Professional Regulation shows.

The most recent 2012-2013 numbers show the Ebro track lost $2.63 million on dog racing when expenses were factored in, and made $2.22 million in the poker room, for a net loss of $409,834.

"Our poker room has been the bread and butter," said Rick Hess, whose family owns the track. He said the track might have had to close if it weren't allowed to have the poker games.

"You go to the dog races in the 1980s, and you would have seen it was way better," he said. "When they brought the lottery into the state, everything has gone down, down, down."

Hess said the track is making a slight net profit when a more than $600,000 tax credit is factored in.

"On paper it looks like (the track is losing money), but we get tax credits that keeps us going," Hess said.

And he said his family is committed to keeping the live dog races as long as the track remains profitable.

The track employs more than 100 people, and had a payroll of more than $1.4 million in fiscal year 2012-2013.

"(The payroll) goes back in the community," he said.

Some experts are predicting that dog racing may be on its last leg in Florida, with conservative legislators in leadership positions who are opposed to racing at a time when handles for live racing are declining. Even though Washington County voters approved of a referendum to allow slots at the Ebro track — a move that Hess said could revive dog racing — the state refuses to grant the permits needed to get them operating.

In his office at the track, Hess has a rendering of what the track could look like if slots were allowed. The project, which would hire 1,000 people, includes a hotel, gaming center and amphitheater, retail shopping and five-star restaurants.

"The slots would bring more people out," he said. "We're just holding out as long as the racing is profitable."

Laws currently require tracks that have poker also have dog races, but there have been bills proposed to "decouple" them.

Florida, which in 1931 was the first state to legalize wagering on greyhound racing, opted against a measure in its most recent legislative session that would have allowed tracks to keep poker and slots and ditch the racing. The plan, which proponents hope to revive in the session next year, is seen as an expansion of gambling and faces opposition from gambling opponents and other competitors.

The "decoupling" movement has created an odd alliance between racetrack casino operators, who see the races as a burden, and animal rights groups out to end greyhound racing altogether.

"When decoupling passes, it will lead to a slow and gradual end" of the industry, said Carey Theil, executive director of the anti-racing group Grey2K USA.

That would be a sad day, said people watching the races at the Ebro track on Wednesday night.

Tracey and Tracee Pope of Rockmart, Ga., came to the track with their young children.

Tracey Pope said they have no dog racing where he lives, and the Ebro track is the reason they come here as opposed to another vacation spot like Myrtle Beach.

"I love it," he said. "My daddy passed away about 13 years ago, but it's why he came to Florida."

Dan Avery, who was visiting from Kentucky, took his young children to the races on Wednesday night.

He said his family was enjoying their first experience at the dog track.

"I think it's pretty entertaining to watch these dogs bust out of the gate," he said. "It's amazing how quick they run."

Bobby Thrasher of Atlanta decided to stop by the Ebro track Wednesday night. He said it would be a real loss for the local economy if the dog track went away.

"I'm sure it means a lot to the economy because there are a lot of people who work here, and a lot of people who train dogs," he said.

PATTI BLAKE | The News Herald

Dogs chase a "bunny" down a track on Thursday. Racing season for the Ebro Greyhound Park runs from May 16th through Sept. 20.

Track owners: Greyhounds 'born to run'

EBRO — Animal rights groups continue to push for legislation that they believe will spell the end for dog racing in Florida.

In other states, such as Massachusetts, they helped abolish the industry.

And they said they are making headway in the Sunshine State.

It rubs Rick Hess, whose family owns the track and whose grandfather started it, the wrong way.

He said greyhounds are born to run.

"If greyhound racing was ever to be abolished, people will still continue to breed and race them," he said. "The difference is it will encourage illegal racing, gambling and unregulated breeding activity."

He added if that happened the state would lose thousands of job opportunities and many other indirect services related to the industry.

"It would cost the state to prosecute and police the illegal activities," he said.

It is unfair to stereotype anything, especially making a blanket statement that greyhound racing is "inhumane," Hess said.

"There are bad people in all forms of business, and all it takes is a few of those bad guys to really hurt an industry's image," he said. "There are many wonderful people in this business taking excellent care of these animals. Greyhounds love to run, they are bred for this purpose. It's how people treat them during and after their racing career is what we should focus on."

Even though the greyhounds and kennels are not owned by the racetrack, the track's presiding judge, along with state officials, perform weekly kennel inspections to ensure the safety and well being of the greyhounds, Hess said.

"We also have veterinarians on-site to ensure the greyhounds are fit to race and assist with any health-related issues that may come up during the races," he said.

"Their diet and nutrition is better than the average house pet, and they have plenty of companionship during their racing career."

He said some may argue that the greyhounds are confined to small kennel quarters and compare their lifestyle to the average house pet.

"The fact is, these greyhounds do not know any difference for them to compare a day at the beach or park, so they are happy with what they are used to," he said.

"If someone really wanted to label and compare, they could think about the reality of what goes into making a steak or burger the next time they order one of those."

Certain "extremists" have painted ugly pictures against greyhound racing over the years, he said. "The truth is, it is a very unique and beautiful sport where the many people involved are honored and privileged to be a part of," he said. "Over 95 percent of the greyhounds are adopted into loving homes. Nearly 1,000 greyhounds were placed into adoption programs last year here at Ebro."

Many greyhounds that race throughout the country start and finish their career at Ebro. We are considered a gateway to the racing world."

Were the state to allow slots at the track, a proposal that Washington County voters approved, it could have the revenue to upgrade the kennel facilities, and perhaps provide larger kennels and therapeutic amenities like those offered to thoroughbreds, he said.

"I would like to add a therapeutic pool and ultrasound muscle therapy, along with many others on my wish list," he said.

Carey Theil, the executive director of Grey2K USA Worldwide that led the effort to get rid of racing in Massachusetts and is leading the lobbying effort in Florida, said greyhound racing is animal abuse on many fronts.

He said state records show that between Aug. 10, 2013 and May 31, 2014, 10 greyhounds died at the Ebro track.

One of the dogs was "Emily Sharp, a one-year-old brindle greyhound who died at Ebro on May 22, he said.

"Emily died after she fell during a training race and suffered a broken right front leg," he said. "When she died, she was preparing to officially race for the first time."

He said greyhound racing dogs are kept in small kennel cages for 22 hours a day, with four, 30-minute bathroom breaks. He said they are fed meat from downed animals that has been declared unfit for human consumption, and the female dogs are given steroids so they don't go into heat.

Many dogs die from injuries sustained during racing, Theil said.

Starting on May 21, 2013, the state began requiring that all greyhound deaths be publicly reported for the first time. In total, between May 31, 2013 and May 31, 2014, a total of 141 greyhound deaths have been reported.

"This averages out to a racing greyhound death every three days," Theil said.

Theil said Hess was correct in one of his comments.

"Greyhounds do love to run. We certainly agree with that that," he said. "That's why it is so cruel to keep them in a cage for 20 hours a day."

Theil also said greyhound racing is costing the state money. He said the state spent between $4.1 million and $6.4 million in 2012 regulating dog racing. During the same year, state revenue from greyhound racing amounted to only $3.1 million.

Theil said his organization has been pushing for the passage of a bill that would allow tracks to have poker rooms and not force tracks to offer live dog racing.

He said the votes are in the Legislature to have this pass, and it will eventually. He expects bills calling for decoupling to be introduced again this year.

"We have the votes in both chambers and both parties," he said. "The challenge with decoupling is twofold: Number one, it gets caught up in a bigger debate about casino gambling and slots and tribal casinos, and the politics become complicated; and number two, track owners fight with each other. Some track owners want to use decoupling as an opportunity to get something else every year."

A Year Older but Not That Much Smarter

I think I am in a rut. No matter how hard I work, I do not seem to be getting any further along in life. Could it be that somewhere in my past, I peaked and did not realize it? If so, I wish I knew about it so at least I could have the consolation that I have peaked.

This week I celebrate another birthday. This is a rut I am talking about. After all, I celebrate my birthday every year on the same day. The only reason I celebrate it on that day is because my mother said that was the day I was born. What if she lied about my birthday? After all, there is that issue with Santa Claus!

I cannot prove one way or the other that I was born on a particular day because knowing what I do know now it is very easy to manipulate paperwork and birth certificates. It might be old age, but I just do not trust anybody about anything these days. I do not even trust myself.

In the early days of my life, my parents told a few things that have proven not exactly true. I would not say they were lying to me they were just protecting me from the gruesomeness of truth.

I mentioned Santa Claus. The thing that irks me about Santa Claus is that now that I am older and have children and grandchildren I am supposed to be Santa Claus. Who in the world made up that rule?

Then there is the whole issue about the tooth fairy.

It took me a long time to figure out that the tooth fairy did not really exist. Several times I extracted teeth ahead of time in order to get some cash from the tooth fairy. I frequently questioned why the tooth fairy was so stingy with his giving until I figured out that the tooth fairy was none other than my father, known for his closed cash policy.

Growing up in Pennsylvania one of the big factors had to do with Punxsutawney Phil. It took me a long time to figure out that that little rodent was not who my parents said he was. If he was who they said he was, he sure was not very good at predicting the future.

A lot of things my parents told me turned out not to be true, so why should I put a lot of stock in believing that my birthday is the exact day I was born?

According to them, I get to celebrate my birthday one day out of the year and a specific day that I believe they picked out. Now what I want to know is, why can I pick my own birthday? After all, it is MY birthday!

While I am on that subject, why can't I celebrate my birthday whenever I want to, why can't I celebrate my birthday every month? After all, nobody gets tired of eating birthday cake.

Now that I am older (I am not quite sure how old I really am because I am not sure my parents were exactly forthcoming in telling me the year I was born) what am I supposed to do?

Personally, I would like to establish a set of rules associated with "my birthday." I do not care what other people do about their birthday, it is my birthday and I should be able to set the rules.

I think the first rule I would establish is, there should be no "surprise" birthday parties. If it is my birthday, I know when it is. If it is my birthday, I should be in charge of planning the party. After all, I know what I would like.

Who in the world started putting birthday candles on a birthday cake. I have been to several birthday parties and watched the "birthday boy" blow out those candles. After seeing him blow out those candles, I had no desire to eat the cake subjected to his spit-laden breath. After all, germs and I are not amigos.

Do not let this get around, but when there are candles on my birthday cake, I make sure my tongue is well lubricated before I start blowing out those candles. After all, I love to share.

Another rule I would like to put in place has to do with birthday presents. It seems quite hypocritical for somebody to go out and buy a birthday present, wrap it up in fancy birthday wrapping paper and then bring it to me so that I can unwrap that paper to get to the birthday present.

If I am going to have birthday presents I think I should be the one to buy those presents. Everybody who wants me to celebrate my birthday could slip me a fiver and let me go out and buy what I really want. Nobody knows what I want better than I do.

Finally, I think if it is my birthday and I am celebrating it, I should get to pick what year I am celebrating.

Good old King Solomon had it right when he wrote, "The glory of young men is their strength: and the beauty of old men is the grey head" (Proverbs 20:29).

You are only young once but you can be old for a very long time. I am learning to live with it.

- BODY RECOVERED AFTER BOATING ACCIDENT: Recovery teams discovered the body of a missing boater. He was found about 30 yards from where the initial incident took place on the Choctawhatchee Bay according to a news release from the Walton County Sheriff's Office.

Former Pastor Sheppard's wife, Gina, is a miracle in progress

Every year when First Baptist Church Choir prepares and performs the Passion of The Christ, invariably someone requests that we sing "Listen to the Hammer Ring" for the crucifixion scene. This moving song puts the believer "on the scene" of that event. Most of us old-timers think of that song as Gina's song, remembering the first time it was used in our production. Gina Cumbaa Sheppard, wife of Pastor Lee Sheppard, did a beautiful job as the soloist. Those of you who keep up with Facebook know that for several weeks, Gina was lingering near death due to a stroke and a reaction to the clot-bursting drug that caused a brain bleed. She has experienced several miracles since April 22, 2014, when she was first stricken.

HAPPY CORNER
Hazel Wells Tison

I am grateful to Dan and Poca Mae Hatcher for bringing me a copy of the Monroe County (Georgia) Reporter, which carried a story on the miraculous strides which Gina has made since April 22. Dr. Lee Shepard is now pastor of Mable White Baptist Church in Macon, Ga., where Gina works along-side of him as his executive assistant. They were at work in his office when she noticed that she had suddenly lost sight in her left eye. After consulting an optometrist whom they knew, he suggested that she seek immediate treatment.

In the emergency room at a Macon, Ga., hospital, Gina was given the clot-busting drug, but she had an adverse reaction and a brain bleed led to a worsened condition throughout the night. Lee was told that she would be brain dead by afternoon if things continued as they were. Her heart did stop and she was revived with CPR. He was cautioned that he could be facing some tough decisions.

The members of their church, Mable White Baptist, rallied and started a vigorous prayer campaign. By afternoon, Gina rallied and her condition was upgraded to critical but stable. But another large clot on the left lobe of her brain was discovered and was surgically removed. She began to show improvement, but another Wednesday came and her condition deteriorated until another surgery was contemplated. With prayers by her church family and widespread friends, she rallied again. Later, however, surgery to remove the skull cap and relieve brain pressure was required. Over the next several weeks Mrs. Sheppard, age 52, made steady progress and on May 27 she was transferred to the rehab unit at Shepherd center in Atlanta. She astounded the therapists and doctors the first day. When asked to sit up without help, she not only sat up, she stood up! Within three days she was moving up and down halls without a walker. With the removal of the tracheotomy she is able to swallow and speak now. She recognizes people, especially Lee, son Matthew age 28 who is an executive chef for Gaylord Hotels in Washington D.C. and 19 year old twins Micah and Megan who are college students. They have rallied around their mother's support.

In Feb. 1988 Lee and Gina came to Bonifay with son Matthew, having served as pastor at Mexico Beach, a mission of First Baptist Church Panama City, Fla. Since 1991 when they left us to go to Jacksonville, Lee has earned his doctorate, planted two churches in Jacksonville, pastored three churches, and written extensively including one book, Before You Leave the Locker Room. He serves as the Chaplain for the high school football team. Through-out the ordeal with his wife's illness and recovery, Pastor Sheppard only missed preaching the Sunday service twice.

Those of us who remember the Sheppard family knew Lee as an energetic, straight forward minister who loved the outdoors and sports as well as his "flock." We remember Gina for her beautiful voice as well as her inward and physical beauty. Jack recalls that he accompanied Lee to Fort Worth Texas to Southwestern Baptist Seminary to interview Durwin Kicker whom the church later called as music minister. I laugh to myself about those two masculine guys avoiding the rain at the airport with my frilly ruffled red umbrella. (I don't think either of them gave it a thought.)

We join the thousands of others who have prayed and continue to pray for Gina as she steadily makes progress. She was scheduled to go home on July 16. I am not sure that she did. Lee predicts that because of her phenomenal progress, within a year or so no one will even be able to detect that Gina has had a stroke. He attributes that to the innumerable prayers of concerned people everywhere.

SON SURF BEACH BASH

By Miranda Glass

Special to The Advertiser

Northside Assembly of God recently had a "Son Surf Beach Bash" for their second annual Vacation Bible School, coordinated by members Derrick and Amanda Marshall.

More than a hundred children from around the area have come to learn about a Savior named Jesus.

Each evening was filled with Bible stories, crafts, and songs. After Jill Cook kicked off the night with worship songs with dance moves, Associate Pastor Chuck Glass, Youth Pastor James Craft, and Rusty Williams lead the night off with Bible verses and lessons as a large group.

The children also were given an opportunity to give offering going to support a mission called Project Rescue that seeks to end slave trade around the world. From there, an overwhelming number of volunteers came together to teach individual classes, help children with crafts and games, and provide meals for the children.

What do I do now to prepare for a storm?

Submitted by ROGER DALE HAGEN
Special to Textra

With the 4th of July, most of the Vacation Bible Schools and much of the student summer break behind us. It might seem as though we have nothing to do. No is a very good time to be sure we have finished all out preparation for hurricane season. The Holmes County Board of County Commissioners is encouraging the public to be sure they are as prepared as possible as the calendar heads toward the most active part of the season.

"It has been relatively quite since the most active seasons on record in 2004 and 2005. With this time without severe threats it is possible for us to be lulled into a false sense of security," Commissioner David Whitaker said. "We always need to keep our guard up. It takes only one bad storm even in a quiet season to cause lots of damage and injuries."

If you haven't completed your personal protection plan now is the time to do so. Be sure you have a plan that is known and understood by all the members of your household. Included in your preparations should be things like your evacuation plan, a to go kit, stockpiling supplies and means of securing your home and businesses.

"Pre-planning is a proactive thing. Too many times, we are reactive and try to prepare or recover after an event is in progress. By then time is against us and supplies could be running short. Pre-Planning is like buying insurance; you have to have it before you need it," Whitaker said.

The best approach to hurricane season as with life is to prepare for the worst and hope for the best. Planning and exercising your self-protection measures are key to your survival. While many people expect local, state, or federal resources such as FEMA to be available these resources are not as plentiful or as easily accessed as in the past. The new state and federal guidelines are that you need to be on your own for the first 72 hours.

With a hurricane there are usually days to a couple of weeks to watch. Sometimes that time frame is shortened by where the storm develops or how quickly it moves. Now is the time to stockpile some non-perishable foods and bottled water. If not used soon, these can be rotated out or used in your home after hurricane season. Battery powered lamps, radios and the necessary batteries need to be on hand. In the event of a disaster strikes while your family is separated a pre-planned evacuation route and destination should be exercised.

"While now seems to be a good time to try and stay cool and relax it is also a good time to prepare with pressure," Whitaker said.

Anyone needing information on hurricane safety may contact the Holmes County Emergency Management Office at 547-1112 or by stopping in at 1001 E. U.S. 90. You can also go online at www.floridadisaster.org/DEMpublic.asp and click on get a plan.

SACS approves Chipola for mid-point accreditation

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) has informed Chipola College of its approval of the institution's Fifth-Year Interim Report. This means the college has been found in compliance with all core requirements, comprehensive standards, and federal requirements addressed in the report.

"SACS accreditation is vital to our institution, so this is great news," said Chipola President Dr. Jason Hurst. "Our faculty, staff and administrators work together every day to ensure that our students receive a quality education. I am proud of the diligent work that resulted in a positive outcome from this fifth year report."

Chipola submitted its Fifth-Year Interim Report to SACS in 2013, five years after the college's most recent reaffirmation of accreditation in 2008. According to Chipola's SACS Liaison Gail Hartzog, the Fifth-Year Interim Report is considered accreditation at the mid-point. It required the college to submit 17 reports on specific SACS Principles ranging from institutional effectiveness to student achievement.

The college was required to include a QEP Impact Report on the success of its Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP), which SACS approved in 2008. A Chipola committee developed the five-year plan entitled "Learning to Persist." The overall goal was to increase student persistence and graduation. The plan was implemented from 2008 through 2013. Since 2008, three-year graduation rates at Chipola have increased by over 28% among all AA degree students.

The QEP Impact Report outlined the QEP's impact on the student learning environment and lessons the institution has learned as a result of the QEP. The college has received national recognition for these efforts. Chipola has been named among the top 10% of the nation's community colleges (120 colleges) and eligible to compete for the Aspen Prize for the last three years. Also, last year Washington Monthly ranked Chipola 14th among the top 20 community colleges in the nation.

The ACE (Academic Center for Excellence), an on-demand tutoring center, was established as part of the QEP. Student enthusiasm for the ACE has been overwhelming over the last five years. ACE provides free academic assistance for all students. The ACE operates with administrative staff and more than a dozen students, peer-tutors who have excelled in the courses in which they tutor. Nearly 900 students made about 8,000 visits to the ACE during the 2013 fall semester.

Chipola is serving as a model as other institutions learn of the success of the QEP. Visitors to campus have included a team from Missouri, which established a similar effort to increase persistence. A group from Florida State University established an Academic Center for Excellence on their campus. College personnel have also been asked to present at state and regional meetings.

College officials have learned a great deal from the QEP process. Hartzog said, "We learned that some students cannot be retained with academic support alone. Though three-year graduation rates have increased by over 28 percent among all AA degree students and much more among developmental/remedial students, the fall-to-fall persistence rates of entering students have not increased during the same period. This means that, while the college's efforts have helped many students, some entering students face issues which cannot be addressed by academic support. Life situations often prevent students from remaining enrolled into the second year."

The QEP also included workshops and guest speakers to help faculty and staff learn to retain students. Hartzog says that changes facilitated by faculty development occurred gradually over the last five years. "Faculty came to realize that they were the only real link to the students. Other college personnel interact with students periodically, but the teachers in the classrooms must engage students and help them feel connected."

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools is the regional body for the accreditation of degree-granting higher education institutions in the Southern states. SACS is one of five regional accrediting organizations that have regularly conducted a comprehensive review of member institutions every 10 years. The Fifth-Year Interim Report was recently implemented to meet U.S. Department of Education requirements that accrediting agencies monitor institutions more often to ensure those having access to federal funds continue to meet accreditation standards.

Chipola to offer new P.E. courses for coaches

Special to the Times-Advertiser

This fall Chipola will be offering two new Physical Education courses that, in conjunction with a third course, will satisfy the requirements for the Florida Department of Education Athletic Coaching Endorsement, Administrative Rule 6A-4.0282.

Chipola Athletic Director Dr. Steve Givens, says, "This is the first time we have ever offered this opportunity to both our students and the community at large."

Two of the courses will be offered during the fall semester: Theory and Methods of Coaching, (PET 2760) will meet Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m., Care and Prevention of Athletic Injuries (PET 2622) will meet Monday and Wednesday at 9 a.m. During the spring 2015 semester, Theory and Practice of Coaching Specific Sports (PEO 2004) will meet Tuesday and Thursday, at 10:30 a.m.

For information, contact the Chipola Athletic Department at 718-2299.

Exhibit, lecture exploring lives of 19th century physicians coming to TROY's Dothan campus

Special to the Times-Advertiser

The practice of medicine in the days before antibiotics and anesthesia will be the focus of an exhibit and lecture hosted by Troy University at the Dothan Campus.

The exhibit "The Henkel Physicians: A Family's Life in Letters," developed and produced by the National Library of Medicine, and National Institutes of Health, is currently on display inside the library at the Dothan Campus. The exhibit includes selections from the letters and writings of the Henkel family, several generations of physicians who settled in the New Market, Va., area in 1790.

The letters of the Henkel family richly document the daily life of men in medicine in the 19th century and reveal the challenges, rewards and responsibilities of the profession. Covering more than a century of life in the Shenandoah Valley, this exhibition features a selection of writings that detail local events, professional jealousies, and the national crisis of the Civil War and the dramatic testimony of the Henkel physicians in a murder trial.

of August.

Troy University history professor Dr. Karen Ross will deliver a lecture in conjunction with the exhibit, at 7 p.m., Tuesday, July 22, inside the Harrison Room in Malone Hall. Dr. Ross will discuss the historical context of the Henkel family physicians in relation to the patients and practitioners of the South.

Admission to both the lecture and exhibit are free and open to the public. The exhibit will be on display through the first week of August.

Dr. Ross joined the Department of History in 2008 and teaches American history, history of medicine, and history of science on the Troy Campus. Her research focuses on the development of American biomedicine in the early twentieth century.

For more information about the exhibit or lecture, contact Dothan Campus library director Dr. Christopher Shaffer at (334) 983-6556, ext. 1320 or shafferc@troy.edu.

The Rock Garden

Two men owned homes on rocky property. Although the boulders that covered the yards were beautiful and made a sturdy foundation, it was impossible to grow grass on the property. The first man studied the rocks and found plants that would grow among them. He worked to carve faces in the hard stone. The second man laughed and said, "Plants do not grow in rock and this stone is too hard to carve. You are wasting your time. I will dig up the rocks and find the good soil to plant my grass."

Spring arrived and the first man had colorful blossoms sprouting among smiling faces carved in the boulders. Everyone stopped to see the happy rock garden. The second man however, had a hole so deep the bottom was impossible to see. In our lives, we may feel the "rocks" are unmovable. This may be the case, but God has given each of us useful gifts to battle these times. A little "creative problem solving" may save us from a broken back and wasted time.

Weekly Bible Trivia

Who was the prophet that came just before Jesus?
(answer found in this week's scripture reading)

John V. Foster

John V. Foster, 83, of Chipley, passed away Wednesday, July 16, 2014, at his home in Chipley. John was born in Chicago, Ill., on July 26, 1931, to Marie Jeanne and Vernon Foster. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army, a retired architect, an avid nurseryman, and journalist. He enjoyed reading and spending time on his computer. He was active in a number of organizations throughout the years, but in recent years enjoyed assisting the Chipley Library, partnering with the Chipley and Wausau Garden Clubs, and working with the Washington County Master Gardeners.

He was preceded in death by his parents, along with his first wife and mother of his children, Ann Foster, and his second wife, Barbara Foster.

Survivors include his wife of 26 years Kathy Foster; a son, John Christopher (Jess) Foster of Erie, Co.; daughter, Vicki (Mike) Kelter of Green Cove Springs; son, Matthew Foster of Holmes County; step-daughter, Theresa McDonald (Tommy) of Chipley; step-son, Chris (Amy) Strawn of DeFuniak Springs; and grandchildren, Brie Weidmen, Kathryn (Luke) Strickland, Trey McDonald, John Tomkiewicz, Kaitlin McDonald, Christian Strawn, Chase Strawn and Ashton Strawn.

Family and friends were invited to a celebration of life service held Sunday, July 19, 2014, at 4 p.m., at 1365 Watford Circle in Chipley. The family received friends immediately following the service until 6 p.m. Memorialization was by cremation with Obert Funeral Home handling arrangements. In lieu of flowers, John's family requests donations be made to Covenant Hospice, Washington County Library, Chipley Garden Club or the Wausau Garden Club.

Steve M. Ward

Nelson B. Fox Sr.

NELSON FOX

Nelson Brambler Fox Sr., 100, passed away peacefully at his home on June 26, 2014, surrounded by his loving family. He was born in Proffit, Va., on March 30, 1914, to Jimmie Nell and Elizabeth Eleanor (Harlow) Fox. He was the devoted husband of Gladys "Marie" (Johnson) Fox for 68 years. His was a life well lived. He followed his dreams, tried to do what was right, and refused to let obstacles stand in his way. "Whatever he went after, he got." He was a member of the Bonifay Church of Christ and gave God the glory in all things. Nelson proudly served his country in World War II as a sergeant in the United States Army's elite fighting unit, "First Special Service Force."

Returning home, after the war, he began pursuing his true passion as an artist and sculptor by attending Ringling School of Art in Sarasota. His paintings and wood carvings garnered him national attention and were a great source of pride and satisfaction for him. If asked about the meaning of life, Nelson would have answered, "loving one another." As he professed, so he lived every day.

He was preceded in death by his parents; six brothers, Benjamin F. "Frank" Fox, Oley G. Fox, Robert L. Fox, Steve W. Fox, Jimmie Nell Fox Jr. "Buddy" and John K. "Johnny" Fox; two sisters, Dorothy L. Fox and Elizabeth E. "Tissie" (Fox) Anderson and a son-in-law, Roy L. Dossey.

Nelson is survived by his wife, Gladys Marie (Johnson) Fox; seven children, John T. Fox, Helen (Fox) Gorsuch, Nelson B. Fox Jr., Wendell J. Fox, Jimmie F. Fox, Melody M. (Fox) Dossey and Mary M. (Fox) White; 13 grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; three great-great grandchildren.

He will also be dearly missed by his extended family members and many longtime friends.

Following a private service, with military honors, Nelson was laid to rest in the Sarasota National Cemetery in on July 3, 2014.

Gladys M. Adams

Gladys Mary Adams, age 86 of Graceville, passed away Sunday, July 13, 2014, at her home. Gladys was born Sept. 16, 1927, in Gadsden, Ala., to the late Marvin and Josephine (Rhodes) Qualls. She had been a resident of Graceville since 1989 coming from Ellenton. Gladys loved her family as well as, crocheting, cooking, working with flowers and fishing.

In addition to her parents, she is predeceased by one son, Royce Lee Findley and a brother, Floyd Qualls.
