Emmy Winner Onstage At Florida Rep

Plorida Repertory Theatre is presenting Harmonic Collage, its annual benefit concert given by Emmy Award-winning and Grammy-nominated flutist and composer Kat Epple.

Joined by a number of world renowned musicians and performers, Epple will take the stage at 7 p.m. on Monday, February 15 in the historic Arcade Theatre.

Epple will perform on flutes from around the world, electronics, and keyboard, and will be joined by special guests including Chuck Grinnell (keyboard), DL Turner (harp/guitar), Darrell Nutt (percussion), Ray Nesbit (guitar), David Johnson (bass) and Nicole Long and Christar Damiano (movement).

Also featured will be two performance art ensembles Epple is a part of, Sonic Combine (with Laurence Getford and Lawrence Voytek) and Katalyst, as well as a few surprise guest performers.

Harmonic Collage is a benefit for Florida Repertory Theatre.

Admission is $20 for this one-night-only event. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are available through the box office at 332-4488 and online at www.floridarep.org. Florida Repertory Theatre is on Bay Street between Jackson and Hendry.

National Christian Choir To Perform

The National Christian Choir

The Village Church at Shell Point Retirement Community will present the National Christian Choir (NCC), with Dr. C. Harry Causey, on February 13 and 14 as part of the Season of Praise concert series. Tickets are still available.

"We are very excited to welcome The National Christian Choir and Dr. Causey to Shell Point for this performance," said Randy Woods, minister of worship and music for The Village Church. "Residents and visitors have thoroughly enjoyed the concerts we have offered in this year's Season of Praise series, and we know that all who attend this performance will be impressed by the proficiency of this highly skilled choral group."

Community Garden At Lakes Park Opens Saturday – Plots Available

The grand opening of the Community Garden at Lakes Park will be on Saturday, February 13 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Fragrance Garden.

Among those present will be Lee County Extension Agent, aka the Plant Doctor, Roy Beckford, Lee County Natural Resources agent.

Among the attractions and events:

- The public will be able register for a plot in the Community Garden
 - Children's crafts
- Plant sale by the Lee County Master Gardeners with proceeds to benefit the Fragrance Garden
- Performances by Southwest Florida Youth Orchestra Brass Ensemble.
 - Vegetables for sale
- Gulf Coast Palm & Tree display Admission is free though a parking fee is required ($1 an hour, $5 a day).

The garden plots are rented for $50 a year with all proceeds benefiting the Lakes Park Enrichment Foundation and being reinvested in Lakes Park. The garden beds will be available to local citizens wishing to cultivate produce or flowering species within the Community Garden. This is an effort to revive the practice of growing produce and plantings close to home.

Garden Supervisor Austin Tincher is directing the Community Garden operations. Each gardener will be required to sign an agreement to uphold the regulations, namely restrictions on the use of pesticides and fertilizers, pledge to maintain the Community

Naples Five-Year-Old Creates Signature Art For Wine & Food Fest

Joseph West of Naples, a five-year-old cancer patient at The Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida, is a dedicated Florida Gators fan. He even dressed up like Albert E. Gator, the university's mascot, for Halloween, and decorated his Christmas tree in all things Gator. So when local artist Ellen Sheppard was planning her painting session with Joseph, the hospital's child artist selected to create the Southwest Florida Wine & Food Fest signature poster, her husband John had just the right idea. Known to many as the steadfast bearer of teddy bears to every young patient of The Children's Hospital, John headed out to find a bear dressed up like University of Florida quarterback Tim Tebow.

Not only did Teddy Bear Tebow, as he became known, lift Joseph's spirits, but he also provided the perfect inspiration for the painting to be featured on this year's posters. Ellen has been offering her guidance to the hospital's child artists for the signature posters of the Wine & Food Fest since nearly its inception over six years ago.

"Joseph loves his Gators, so Teddy Bear Tebow couldn't have been a better pick for him," said Joseph's mom, Tiffany. "He loves art projects almost as much as he loves the Gators."

Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now: The Post Office Arcade On Broadway

by Gerri Reaves

his historic photo of Post Office Arcade was taken soon after it opened in 1925. Constructed by George R Sims for a cost of $125,000, the mixed-use structure in the center of the west side of Broadway was the first building to open on the short street named for New York City's famous thoroughfare.

The structure is still thriving and proudly displaying its name over the entrance.

Recently it has embarked on a new phase in its history, as the main entrance to Hotel Indigo.

As we can see in the historic photo, one of the arcade's first tenants more than 80 years ago was Silver-O'Brien Realtors, which occupied the storefront where Vino Di Notte Restaurant is today. Judging from the signage, a pharmacy might have occupied the space where Southwest Capital Bank is now.

The neighboring Colquitt and Kress buildings were yet to go up when a photographer snapped this wide-angled shot, but they would be constructed before the decade was out, on the arcade's south and north sides, respectively.

Instead, to the left of the newly constructed arcade, we see an alley that still borders the Colquitt Building today. In the mid-1920s, it would have led to the rear of the Hotel Kenmore that faced Main Street.

To the right and behind the car, we see a private home that would soon be demolished to make way for the yellow-brick Kress Building, completed in 1927.

In its new role as the entrance to Hotel Indigo, the originally open-air building retains its beauty, leaving no doubt that historic preservation is worth every effort.

Hotel Indigo has enclosed it with glass doors and preserved one of its most distinctive features, the rubble-random tile floor of a "pique assiette" design.

Inventor's Summer Camp

egistration for the fifth annual Edison & Ford Winter Estates Inventor's Summer Camp is now open and this year the Wild Wizard will be offering classes all summer.

The estates is a living lab where every project engages the campers in the sciences, arts, and history to ask questions and discover the answers for themselves while having fun.

Weeklong camps begin the week of June 8, and continue to the final week, August 13. Camp hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday to Friday. Camps are open for grades 1 to 6 and sessions are separated by grade levels.

Cost for members is $200; non members $230. Scholarships will be available.

The schedule is as follows:

Session 1: June 8 - 11: Edison Invents A five-day adventure that captures the Edison and Ford experience.

Step back in time and investigate the inner workings of a light bulb, discover trees and plants brought here from around the world and create inspired works of art.

Sessions 2 and 7: June 14 - 18, July 19 - 23: Movie Making Magic Act, direct, operate the camera and build sets. Campers will study Foley art (sound effects), movie magic (special effects), and script writing.

Sessions 3 and 8: June 21 - 25, July 26 - 30; Kitchen Chemistry This mind-boggling camp is a combination of the best experiments the Wild Wizards have to offer. Campers will learn how to take everyday things found in the kitchen and make them do amazing things. Top it all off with a solar cookout with hand made ice cream and root beer float party!

Session 4: June 28 - July 2: Animation The perfect mix of science and art. Campers will develop original characters, write their own story, choose between many different animation styles, and make a short film.

Sessions 5 and 10: July 5 - July 9, August 9 - 13; Spaceships & Rockets The final Frontier! Campers will explore the outer reaches of the universe with the resident spaceman. Campers will visit planets, collect samples and float on a Lunar Lander. Sessions 6: July 12 - July 16: ESI - Edison Science Investigation Thomas Edison, known for his ability to turn normal objects in amazing inventions, made bamboo glow and tinfoil talk. Now it's your turn!

Science experiment

Each day, campers will be presented with a different mystery and will only be given normal everyday items to solve it.

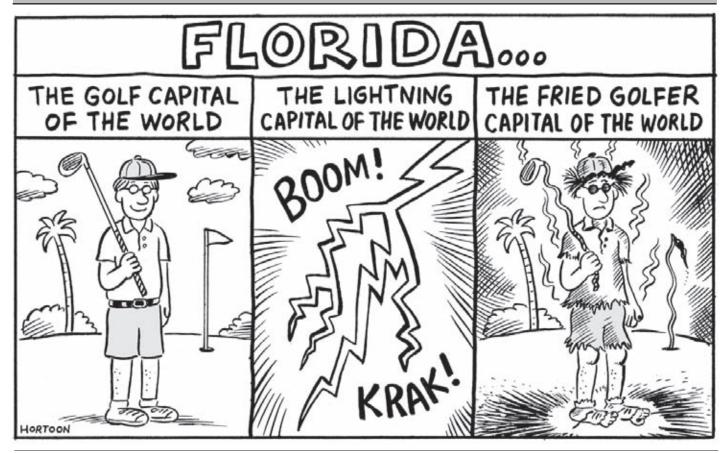

Session 9: August 2 - August 6: Eager Engineers "To be a good inventor you need a good imagination and a pile of junk," said Thomas Edison. The estate will supply the junk and jump-start the imagination. Campers will use recycled materials and develop green inventions such as robots, conduct science experiments, participate in balloon car races and build bridges.

Registration forms are available online at www.efwefla.org. or at the Edison & Ford Winter Estates at 2350 McGregor Boulevard. For more information or to sign up contact the Estates Education Coordinator at 334-

Historic Downtown

Broadway was the brainchild of Sims and two other progressive developers, Henry Colquitt and LC Curtright, who strove to bring a contemporary urban aesthetic and business model to Fort Muers.

After buying properties between First and Main streets along what became Broadway, they obtained permission from the city to create the new street at their own expense.

In order to generate pedestrian traffic and business, Sims leased a large space in the arcade to the government as a post office, complete with lock boxes and equipment, for one dollar per year.

A scarcity of downtown office space made it possible to rent the remaining 20 stores and office spaces at premium rates prior to construction.

Over the years, many businesses have called the arcade home, including the beloved Snack House, which opened in 1947; the Fort Myers News-Press; Geraci Travel; Bara Bread; and today's Company Hair and Ichiban Japanese & Chinese Cuisine.

In 1934, Barron G. Collier bought the arcade, renamed it the Collier Arcade, and established his bus terminal there. But it's the original name one still hears used today.

If Sims, Colquitt, and Curtright could see the redeveloped arcade, perhaps they would wander up to Indigo's rooftop pool and lounge to see one thing that hasn't changed since Broadway was a mere plan on paper: the sunset over the Caloosahatchee River.

Walk down to Broadway to see the historic Post Office Arcade, now transformed for 21st century use.

Garden Hat Project To Benefit Estates Education Programs

ina Edison loved hats as did many of the fashionable ladies of her time. They were beautifully adorned with lace, feathers, jewels, veils and other additions which were crafted of straw, organdy, felt and other materials.

In honor of the first Garden Brunch at the Edison & Ford Winter Estates on February 12, several notable women in the community decorated hats.

Nearly 20 women from the community created hats including: Pamela Cronin, Lee County Tourist Development Council, co-owner of The Shell Factory; Michelle Gouley, architect, Parker Mudgett Smith; Debbie Hughes, estates horticulturist; Nicole Long, Saks Fifth Avenue; Leoma Lovegrove, artist, Lovegrove Gallery & Gardens; Rachel Peacock, Pure Love Soap; June Pekol, Edison Restaurant, June Pekol Reality: Chris Pendleton, estates president & CEO; Piper Rudlich, artist, Art & Soul; Anita Singh, jewelry designer; Lois Thome, anchor, WINK TV News; and Margie Willis, community volunteer.

The designers named their hats reflecting the personality of their creations including, A WINK and a Smile, Black Magic, Turquoise Sunbeams, Belly Dancer, Not the Edison's Peacocks, Calla Lady, Lady in Red and Purple, Orchid Lady and the Country

The hats will be auctioned off February 12 at the Brunch with Mrs. Edison, Living with a Genius event at the estates.

A WINK and a Smile hat

In addition to the hat auction and brunch amidst the beautiful historic plantings, professional actress Nan Colton will present Living with a Genius, a witty, one-woman show that engages the audience in what it is like to live with a genius - in this case Mina Edison and husband, Thomas Edison. Colton is well known for her charming representation of historic women and includes storytelling and audience involvement. Two performances are scheduled: February 12 and 13 at 11 a.m. Attendees are encouraged to wear hats.

Reservations are required by calling 334-7419. Estates members are $50, nonmembers $60. The project benefits the estates education programs.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

The Immokalee Foundation's Mission Takes Flight

Then three World War II fighter planes took to the picture perfect cloudless skies in Fort Myers, they provided the thrill of a lifetime for passengers and the opportunity of a lifetime for dozens of Immokalee children.

Among those who purchased rides on the Boeing B-17G Flying Fortress Nine-O-Nine and the North American Dual Control P-51C Mustang Betty Jane are some enthusiastic supporters of The Immokalee Foundation, a not-for-profit organization that provides educational opportunities for Immokalee's children.

The Collings Foundation, who brought the fully restored World War II B-17, P-51 and B-24J Liberator to Page Field, is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to helping Americans learn more about their heritage through the restoration and exhibition of historic aircraft, cars and other modes of transportation.

The airplane below is known as Betty Jane, the only dual control North American P-51C Mustang plane 1938, these men detail their Flying Fortress and paint yellow bombs under the cockpit to signify the number of sucessful missions the team has completed. This plane has 63 yellow bombs on it.

Marie Stonesifer returning from flight

While the public could purchase rides in any of the planes, 20 people made sure to secure their spots last year during The Immokalee Foundation's Fiesta of Fun dinner and auction. The group traveled together from Naples on Tuesday, January 26 for the flights. Following the afternoon of high-flying fun, they gathered for dinner at the Bay Colony Golf Club, aka the "Officer's Club," for dinner and flight stories and the viewing of vintage video of B-17s.

Foundation board member Louise Penta is friends with Bob Collings, who founded The Collings Foundation with his wife, Caroline. Penta and Collings worked together on charitable events in the Boston area.

After seeing the interest generated there in B-17 rides, Penta asked Collings to secure a couple of seats in the plane during its Southwest Florida visit. They wound up with enough bidders to fill the plane twice.

Ex-warbirds Jack Morgan, Donna Kletjian, Dick Stonesifer and Jack Myatt

The Immokalee Foundation flyiers, gathered in front of a Flying Fortress

"We got a tremendous response," Penta said. "Everyone's (auction) paddle went up. We had 20 people riding. A lot of people going on the flight know the history of the B-17 and P-51. Some are veterans. It has a lot of meaning to them.'

Marie Stonesifer was one of the lucky B-17 flyers. She flew in the plane's radio compartment. "It was a terrific flight and a wonderful view," said Stonesifer on the tarmac after the flight. "All I could think about were the pilots and crew and how grateful we are to all the people who fought in the war."

In addition, two more experienced what it's like to fly the P-51, the world's only dual-control fighter aircraft. The two-seat modified P-51 afforded one passenger a chance to fly in a second cockpit behind the pilot.

The collaboration between the two foundations made perfect sense to Collings. "We are an educational foundation and as such are interested in educational issues, particularly those pertaining to children," Collings said. "Part of our mission of taking World War II aircraft around the country is to teach younger Americans about the sacrifices made by veterans to ensure the lifestyle we have today.

In teaming up with TIF, Collings said, "I'm pleased and honored to try to help contribute to the success of the auction and raise awareness of The Immokalee Foundation's efforts and what we do as well.

The 2010 Fiesta of Fun dinner and auction will be held in November at The Ritz-Carlton Beach Resort in Naples.

The Immokalee Foundation provides educational opportunities for Immokalee's children from early childhood through the start of their professional lives through mentorship, after-school activities, college scholarships, vocational skills and incentives for educational growth. Passion For Historic Preservation Began In Childhood Play

Gina Taylor, executive director of the Lee Trust for Historic Preservation

by Gerri Reaves

ina Taylor says that her interest in historic preservation began in early childhood, long before she understood what it was.

The executive director of the Lee Trust for Historic Preservation has vivid, happy memories of weekends and holidays spent at her grandfather's house in New Jersey, where she and her numerous cousins would play and explore in his 1920s house.

She recalls the big porch, the solid claw-footed furniture, the bay windows, and the big yard with large trees.
"That's where it all started," she says, because I loved that feeling of a large family, being in a large home, of having all these nooks and crannies in a home, with an attic and a fabulous basement."

Years later, her connection to history deepened when she married someone with an imposing historical lineage and moved to New England. Her former husband traced his roots to the Mayflower, and the family still owned the colonial house, now a house museum. She is especially drawn to such histories, for most of her own family, from Germany and Russia, died in the Holocaust. So she doesn't have deep genealogical roots.

When she lived in Cape Cod, Massachusetts, where historic preserva-tion is the order of the day, she became fascinated with architecture and the sense of place that a respect for history can create.
Where's The History?

Thoroughly immersed in a preservationist mindset, she was in for a jolt when she moved to Fort Myers in 1986.

One of the first sensations she had was of loss. She wondered, "Where's the history?" All she could see was strip malls and new construction.

She was yet to learn that historic neighborhoods did indeed exist in Fort

Seeing a newspaper article about the effort to preserve the 1901 Murphy-Burroughs home on First Street was a turning point for Taylor.

She journeyed downtown to see the home that Jettie Burroughs had bequeathed to the City of Fort Myers a few years earlier.

That was only the beginning of her passion for that historic home. In 1989, she learned that the city was looking for a director to open the home, applied for the position, and four months later began the exciting job of turning the site into a profitable venture.

By that time, the home had been placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1988. Taylor credits Bill Grace with spearheading that daunting project. At that time, he was the chair of the board of the Burroughs Home.

In 1993, Grace, along with other preservation-minded people, founded the Lee Trust for Historic Preservation. Taylor was among the founding members.

During her tenure as department head director of the Burroughs Home from 1990 to 1998, a massive renovation was completed, with the support of the Burroughs Home Society, a fundraising

A design specialist in historic-preservation restoration was hired. Thousands of hours were spent in reproducing the wallpaper, draperies, carpet, furniture, and other features in the house to historic specifications.

The result was "absolutely exquisite," recalls Taylor.

The historic site opened as a house museum. Starting in 1991, the site offered tours as part of the Ticket through Time program. The successful tours of 20 to 25 participants were scheduled five days per week, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., every hour, on the hour.

The tours were led by guides impersonating Mona and Jettie Burroughs, the daughters of Nelson T. and Adeline Phipps Burroughs, who in 1918 had purchased the 1901 house.

For her efforts, Taylor received an American Associations of Museums award in 1995 for the Burroughs Home

Living History Tour.

Buses and trolleys made their rounds to the site, and many local groups held luncheons on the large porch overlooking the Caloosahatchee River.

She also marketed the historic home and gardens as a wedding destination.

Every year, we were booked-out about a year, year and a half... sometimes five on a weekend.

From 1995 until 1998, she took on two more positions, director of the Fort Myers Historical Museum (now the Southwest Florida Museum of History), as well as the Imaginarium.

Several years ago, an inquiry from then Lee Trust President Grace led her back to the work she's so passionate about. Asked if she would be interested in part-time work on the organization's newsletter and other tasks, Taylor took it on, although she had a busy and successful mortgage business.

In 2007, she assumed her current position as executive director.

Money To Be Made

Taylor is greatly encouraged to see that the Lee Trust's work is really paying off. Gradually, people are beginning to understand the relationship between historic preservation and a revitalized downtown.

She talks to countless people as she goes about her work downtown - in meetings, one-on-one while distributing newsletters, and in chance encounters. She senses an excitement about down-

The main comment she hears? "This downtown is beautiful."

When she asks people why they come downtown, they say it's because they love the old buildings.

The thrust of her work, as she sees it, is to help decision makers see that visitors are not coming here because of the weather or to see high-rise buildings.

"They are coming here to have an experience of the way it used to be. That's what historic architecture can provide for people."

The smart thing to do, she advocates, is to capitalize on historic-cultural tourism. There's a financial opportunity in doing so, she strongly believes.

Fort Myers has the largest concentration of historic buildings in Southwest Florida, so why not follow the lead of other historic cities such as Savannah, Key West, and St. Augustine?

She also senses a nostalgia among baby-boomers who remember the 1950s as she does, and that longing for what seems lost in part propels historic preser-

"Our culture is a hard place to live," she surmises, and historic-cultural tourism provides a respite from modern life. In February 2008, the Lee Trust opened an office in the historic Starnes Arcade (now known as Peeple's Court) in the downtown historic River District.

Since then, they sponsored various events, including receptions and book signings, last November's Heart of Hendry Celebration, the Parade of Trees recognizing Fort Myers' founding families, the city's recent 20th Anniversary of Historic Designation, and others.

Currently, the Lee Trust is working as a catalyst to preserve the Hall of Fifty States on Edwards Drive.

In May 2010, the Lee Trust is bringing Florida Trust for Historic Preservation to Fort Myers, the second time that the conference has been held in the city, the first being 1991.

Find out about the Lee Trust's work and membership by visiting leetrust.org or calling 939-PAST (7278). Or, email Taylor at leepreservation@embarqmail.

People began lining up at 9:15 a.m. for the 11 a.m. opening, where they donated $10 and were able to select a handmade ceramic bowl from the 1,350 made by local students under the direction of Donna Torrance, Barron Collier teacher. The bowls were all selected within 45 minutes.

Twenty five local restaurants provided a different soup, along with three restaurants providing bread. Professional artists donated a variety of bowls for the silent auction and the Barron Collier drum line provided entertainment.

Seminar On Ancient Egypt

he public is invited to attend a seminar titled Ancient Egypt and Us presented by Professor Adrian Kerr, sponsored by The Academy at Shell Point. The event will take place on Thursday, February 11 at 7:15 p.m. in the Village Church Auditorium.

Kerr travels twice a year to Egypt keeping up on the latest discoveries, giving talks, and sharing his wealth of information with traveling scholars. He is regularly invited to give talks on the ancient Middle East internationally and has participated in TV and radio programs relating to the race against time to save ancient Egyptian monuments.

Egypt was the dominant civilization in the Middle East for over 2,000 years, its kings are household names and many of its monuments are classified as World Heritage Sites. This presentation is an interactive talk for those interested in what we have learned from the ancient Egyptians and still use today. The talk will be extensively illustrated by photographs from his visits to Egypt.

This event is free, and open to the public. For more information, call 454-

12 | THE RIVER FEBRUARY 12, 2010 Low Water Basics

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

It's great to see that fishing is slowly getting back to normal out in the sound. We are still experiencing cold fronts every week to 10 days but they do not have close to the punch of the epic cold temperatures of January. Action out on the bay has really picked up with lots of trout and redfish in the mix. Most of the fish I am catching are on the small side right now but what they lack in size they make up for in sheer numbers.

The low tides of winter really offer some great fishing opportunities out there. Big minus tides are caused by a big or new moon and add in a north or northeast wind and the water can get super low out there. If you know where to look during these low water conditions you can find some great winter action.

There are many different areas to target on low water. Making the choice just depends on the weather conditions and which kind of fishing you prefer.

During winter months the water in the sound is as clear as it gets all year. Combine this clear water with super low tides and we have prime conditions for shallow water sightfishing. Push poling or wading are the two basic ways to go if you want to do what I call "hunt fish." Fish are very spooky in shallow water and need to be approached with stealth if you want to be successful at this. Sure, you have to put in your time and learn which flats are productive and hold fish but nothing is more satisfying than landing a well placed cast at a tailing redfish or laid-up trout and watching the fish eat the bait.

The best conditions to fish these shallow areas are on low wind days with bright sun and no clouds. The higher the sun the better your visibility.

Weedless baits, either soft plastic or weedless rigged live shrimp, are best for this shallow water action. Gold spoons work great for this along with powerbaits rigged on a bass-style weedless bait hook. Some things I look for to give me a better idea if a flat is going to be productive or not are wading birds/feeding birds and mullet working. Generally flats that have more life and bait on them hold more gamefish.

As you slowly check out and explore a flat, look for the natural tidal channels, drop-offs and sand holes in the flat to hold laid-up fish. These channels and holes only need to be a few inches deeper than anything else to be used by the fish. As the water slowly comes up higher with the tide, gamefish will push up further onto the flat to feed. I generally start out on the lowest part of the tide by working the deeper edges of the flat until the tide starts to flood in and I can move up more on top of it.

Boat basins and canals are not often the prettiest places to fish but can and do hold tons of fish all winter long. Low tides are a great time to give these areas a try. Deep dead-end canals and deeper channels let the water stay warm longer and are areas the fish really bunch up in. Seawalls in canals work like solar panels and warm up the water during the day. Having a water temperature gauge on your boat is a real fish finder this time of year. Three to five degrees warmer water temperature than any other water around can make all the difference in finding active fish. I like to target these areas on the coldest days just after a cold front has passed through. They are also great places to hide from that strong north wind of winter.

Natural mangrove channels and deeper mangrove shorelines hold fish all year long but in the winter they hold more than ever. Shorelines that are more than three feet deep on a low tide with a high and dry flat in close proximity are a winter time hot spot. As the flat dries out on the low tide, all of the fish from the flat have to fall off into the deeper water or channel. Add in some good tide movement either the last part of the outgoing or the first part of the incoming tide and the fish will feed. The "Ding"

Darling Refuge is loaded with shorelines and channels like this.

Deep holes and channels around and through oyster bars can be very productive too. Any place there is an oyster bar there is always really good tide flow and usually a ton of life. Learning the layout of the bar and how the fish relate to the bar and the stage of the tide is the key to catching these fish.

Get out and take advantage of these winter low tides. If you have never tried shallow water sightfishing before it will only take stalking and catching one spooky redfish to be hooked.

Capt. Matt Mitchell moved to Sanibel in 1980 and has fished local waters for more than 25 years. He now lives in St. James City and has worked as a back country fishing guide for more than 10 years. If you have comments or questions email captmattmitchell@aol.com.

Plant Smart: The Cabbage Palm

by Gerri Reaves

Tt's almost impossible to go wrong with Florida's state tree, the cabbage palm (Sabal palmetto). The robust tree has evolved for thousands of years to survive Florida's rainy and dry seasons, storms, and even fire. A strong, deep taproot equips the tree to weather the worst of storms.

Also called sabal palm, it's low-maintenance, drought-tolerant, and suited to almost any soil conditions. It does best in a sunny location.

This iconic hardy tree readily selfseeds. If you're so lucky as to have one appear in your yard, usually all that's required to cultivate this desirable tree is to let it be.

Avoid over-pruning the cabbage palm, for it's a self-pruner and naturally spherical in shape.

Stress from over-cutting weakens palms and robs it of nutrients, thus making it more vulnerable to storm damage. However, if a little shaping is desirable, trim only the lower fronds.

Note that the cabbage palm appears on Lee County's Protected Tree List. County codes prohibit "carrot-topping" or drastic "hurricane cuts."

In the spring, it's wise to leave the creamy flower clusters, for they produce black berries that are a valuable food source for birds and other wildlife.

Cabbage palms usually grow to about 30 feet, but can reach up to 50 or 60 feet. The distinctive crosshatched "boots" on the trunk make it easy to identi-

Guard against the threat posed by two exotic invasives: the Queensland umbrella tree (Schefflera actinophylla) and the Cuban or Indian laurel (Ficus retusa), a type of fig tree. They root in the canopy, send down aerial roots to establish themselves, and eventually kill the palm.

Two natives threaten the cabbage palm in a similar way, the strangler fig (Ficus aurea) and autograph or pitch apple tree (Clusia rosea). But that scenario takes years to occur, so an attentive landscaper has time to decide whether to intervene in the competition between native trees.

Open House At SCCF

Last year's SCCF open house offered plenty for children to do anibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation will hold its annual Open House on President's Day, Monday, February 15, and for the first time ever will be offering bus tours of SCCF preserves. The tours will be at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. and will leave from the SCCF Nature Center. The route includes the Johnston and Periwinkle Preserves with a stop at Frannie's Preserve. This will be a chance for everyone to learn about and access a preserve that is generally not open to the public. Narration will be provided by an SCCF habitat manager and will give an overview of the history and ecology of the preserves.

Advance sign up is requested. Call 472-2329 or email dmoyer@sccf.org. From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. SCCF staff and volunteers will have face painting, live snakes, guided trail walks, mask making, seedling planting and free refreshments for people of all ages. It is an opportunity to learn what SCCF is doing to preserve natural resources on both the land and water.

Start practicing your favorite animal/nature sounds for the nature sounds contest which begins at 11:30 a.m. for both young and seasoned animal impressionists.

The day continues with a presentation about the marine lab research and a chance to see and touch live marine and estuarine critters.

The Nature Center is one mile west of Tarpon Bay Road, on the left-hand side of Sanibel-Captiva Road.

CROW Case Of The Week: Wild Turkey

by Brian Johnson

he wild turkey who arrived at CROW on November 17 last year, just days before Thanksgiving, has been

It was only the second wild turkey CROW Veterinarian Dr. PJ Deitschel had seen at the clinic since taking over in 1998. Staff were elated by the success story, as the turkey arrived in grave condition from a probable dog attack. The bird had four puncture wounds across his back, one of which fractured his pelvis.

For the first two weeks the turkey sat quietly in his cage, unable to walk much. With many of his tail feathers pulled out, he had a forlorn look. Staff cleaned the wounds, applied SSD cream, and changed his bandage daily. Pain medications, herbs and antibiotics facilitated his recovery.

On December 3 staff transferred him to the large walk-in cage in the Bailey quiet room. "He perked up then," said Dr. Amber McNamara. "He stood up, making use of the space. We didn't have to handle him every time we cleaned his cage."

The wild turkey dined on duck chow, seeds, scrambled eggs, and worms.

By the middle of December some new feathers were starting to grow in as the wounds healed. "They looked nice," said Dr. Amber.

Next staff moved him outdoors to the Cannon Flight Cage. "He liked to peck the dirt, though he still did not move very much, you could still see the lameness," said Dr.

One month later they took him to the Large Flight Cage, where he thrived. He spent much of his day preening or relaxing on a shelf; eventually, he flapped up to the 25-foot high perch to "roost." His gait improved, and his spirits brightened.

"When he vocalized you could hear the turkey gobble all around the property – that was a treat for everyone," said Dr. Amber.
On February 4 the wild turkey was released back to Alva to a property belonging to a friend of CROW's. The bird will have plenty of acreage to roam, and other wild turkeys are seen regularly on the land.

Prizewinning Comedy At Florida Rep

by Di Saggau

Tou Can't Take It With You, a Pulitzer Prize winning comedy by Kaufman & Hart, is hysterically funny. Robert Cacioppo has this fast moving, zany comedy moving in all the right directions.

The story is about a young woman who invites her fiancee and his family home to meet her family of very odd ducks. A number of people make up the household. There's grandpa, Martin Vanderhoff, (David S. Howard) the eccentric patriarch, who loves to attend commencement ceremonies and also collects snakes. Penelope Sycamore (Carrie Lund) has written plays for eight years because a typewriter was accidentally delivered to their home. Paul Sycamore (Bruce Somerville) and his sidekick Mr. DePinna (Chris Clavelli) assemble fireworks in the basement. Essie Carmichael, (Jackie Schram) studies ballet and is perpetually dancing around the stage. Her husband Ed (Adam Jones) likes to print things, play the xylophone and make masks.

Boris Kolenkhov (Avi Hoffman) is a colorful, bearish Russian dance instructor. Rheba, (Christine Peete) is the house cook who loves to serve cornflakes, watermelon and some kind of meat. Her boyfriend Donald (John Archie) is on relief. The only seemingly sane member of the family is Alice, (Christine Perez) who falls in love with Tony Kirby, (John West) a Wall Street broker.

Their wedding plans are threatened when Tony's mother (Kim Ostrenko) and father (Dick Boyd) arrive for dinner on the wrong night. They walk into a maelstrom of characters that would challenge any relationship. Ostrenko also plays the Grand Duchess Olga Katrina. When I saw the play, Leah Thomas was cast in the role of Gay Wellington, a very drunk would-be actress. Brava, Leah.

The year is 1936. All of the action takes place in the Vanderhoff house, a riot in itself. It's an organized mess, that you'll love to look over. There's a wild boar's head on the wall with a bridal or first communion veil on its head. A very large marching band drum sits atop a piece of furniture.

John West and Christine Perez

The play runs a little over two hours with two intermissions and there's never a dull moment. You'll love all of the characters for giving you one of the best times you've ever had.

The play also makes you think about what's really important in life.

You Can't Take It With You will be revived on Broadway this November.

Florida Repertory Theatre is in the Historic Arcade Theatre on Bay Street between Jackson and Hendry. For tickets call 332-4488. The play runs through February 26.☼

A Glorious Production

by Di Saggau

The comedy Glorious, by Peter Quilter, is delighting theater goers at Theatre Conspiracy. It's based on the true story of Florence Foster Jenkins, the worst singer in the world. In spite of her lack of talent, Jenkins played to full houses, including Carnegie Hall.

Diandre McGee is wonderfully cast as the tone-deaf, eccentric, charming diva, who sings so badly. I can only imagine the hours it must have taken to learn how to sing so off-key. Leo Wolfe plays Cosme McMoon, Jenkins' pianist.

The play opens in 1944, with McMoon applying for the job in Jenkins' apartment. He plays and as she starts to sing the look of utter shock that comes over his face is absolutely priceless. The audience is roaring. Jenkins is totally oblivious to how she sounds. It's not only the fact that she's tone deaf, she also has terrible timing. In her mind she's singing perfectly.

As the play progresses we see how McMoon comes to respect and understand Jenkins. Even the audience is taken in by her charm.

Among her many admirers are Cole Porter, who always brings a group of young men to her concerts, and Tallulah Bankhead. Florence Foster Jenkins is a star. It doesn't bother her that people are laughing and carrying on during her performances. "My audiences are very noisy,", she says. However, she compares them with those who go to hear Sinatra.

She feels they are just overcome with her beautiful voice. She has guts and gusto. In between acts we hear songs sung as they should be and the audience has to keep in mind that's how Jenkins hears herself. McMoon is very diplomatic in answering her many questions. I loved the dialogue in this play. When she sings the Habanera from the opera Carmen it's enough to make Rise Stevens rise from the grave. The audience is howling with laughter. She says after Enrico Caruso heard her sing, he replied, "This hall will never hear a sound like that again." Jenkins herself says, "There are people who say I can't sing, but no one can say I didn't sing."

Diandre McGee and Leo Wolfe in a scene from Glorious

Both McGee and Wolfe are excellent in their roles. June Koc plays various parts, including a Spanish speaking maid who Jenkins can't fire because she doesn't speak Spanish.

All in all, Glorious makes for a great evening of entertainment. For tickets, call 936-3239. Theatre Conspiracy is located in the Foulds Theatre, Alliance for the Arts, 10091 McGregor Boulevard, in Fort Myers.

A Naughty, Delightful Show Set In Florence

by Di Saggau

Jomen Beware Women being performed by More Crinoline Productions fuses a domestic tragedy into a revenge tragedy. The 17th century drama written by Thomas Middleton, was written only a few years after William Shakespeare's death. Middleton, was a friend of Shakespeare.

The play is a moral tale showing the tragic results of the search for wealth, power and lust. The show opens with a tight-knit Florentine family: Leantio (Cash Decuir); a clerk, Bianca, (Ashley Graziano) his gorgeous and well-born bride; and Leantio's mother (Louise Wigglesworth). Leantio has eloped with Bianca, and that concerns his mother for several reasons.

The plot thickens as the Duke of Florence, (Shawn Holiday) seeks out Bianca, seduces her, and then keeps her as his mistress. The seduction scene appeared more like rape and went on a tad too long. Bianca chooses the life of luxury with the Duke, much to Leantio's dismay.

In another plot line, the young Isabella, (Nykkie Ptaszek) is faced with entering a loveless marriage and is appalled when her uncle Hippolito (J. Mitchell Haley) confesses his love for her. Her aunt Livia (Joann Haley) persuades Isabella that she isn't related by blood, so a relationship with her uncle would be acceptable. Haley is superb as the conniving Livia.

It is the vengeance of women that mostly propels the play's final tragedies. However, it's also made clear that women did not have many options in those days and were often thought of as chattel.

However, in this setting, the fairer sex is sometimes not so fair, nor are the men.

The play is co-directed by Louise Wigglesworth and Michael Dunsworth.

The cast is large, and everyone does a great job. The costumes are also noteworthy.

Women Beware Women continues through February 13 at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center in downtown Fort Myers. For tickets call 333-1933.❖

Call For Artisits

The Alliance for the Arts is calling for artists to celebrate Southwest Florida Symphony's 50th anniversary by creating a piece of art that frames the past and inspires the future through music. Cash prizes, courtesy of the Southwest Florida Symphony, will be awarded to four artists who will display their pieces at Barbara B. Mann Performing Arts Hall after being displayed in the Alliance for the Arts exhibition. Three of those artworks will be featured on the front of the 50th anniversary season program and published on the cover of a history book, coming out soon.

The exhibition will be on display in the Alliance main gallery March 5 to 27. An opening reception to reveal the work and announce the winners is scheduled for March 5 from 5 to 8 p.m.

For the past 50 years, the Southwest Florida Symphony Orchestra and Chorus have been the foundation and the framework of classical music in Fort Myers and Southwest Florida. As the Arts Agency in Lee County, the Alliance for the Arts has been striving to fulfill its mission to facilitate and nurture the creation, development, promotion and education of arts and culture for 35 years. It seems only fitting these two organizations, deeply rooted in community's cultural development, partner for such a monumental event.

Together the Alliance and Southwest Florida Symphony Orchestra and Chorus are proud to create a program that provides support to local artists and continued arts education in the area.

The opportunity is open for all artists residing in Southwest Florida to create an original artwork in any medium. An entry will consist of one to three artworks. Entry fees are as follows: non-members $35 for three entries, $15 for one entry. Alliance members $10 for one entry, $25 for three entries. Annual membership to the Alliance for the Arts is $50.

Close Encounters: Art By Caribbean Women Exhibition

Survival As Motivation by Elsa Mora

Norida Gulf Coast University's art gallery opens Close Encounters: Contemporary Art by Caribbean Women, an exhibition organized by FGCU Associate Professor of Art Patricia Fay. The exhibition opens with a reception 5 p.m. Thursday, February 18 in the art gallery located within FGCU's Arts Complex. The exhibition runs through March 19.

Yunia Pavon's self titled work

The show is part of the College of Arts and Sciences' Caribbean Spring 2010, an interdisciplinary exploration of Caribbean topics including four linked courses in the art, literature, history, and ecology of the region with accompanying speakers, films and special events open to the public. Through proximity and demographics, Florida is inextricably linked with the Caribbean region. The gallery exhibition is the visual springboard for the series, and provides an engaging forum for discussion of contemporary regional

Zen by Babette Wainwright

"In the 20th century, a visual canon was established for Caribbean art that focused on male artists making iconic paintings defining and illustrating sweeping issues of newly emergent national identity," said Fay. "In the 21st century, women artists from the region are producing intensely personal interpretations of Caribbean heritage in a range of media including photography, video, performance, mixed media, sculpture and installation of art. These works highlight an acute awareness of the social and psychological complexities of this post-colonial landscape, whether as perspectives on island life or reports from the diaspora."

FGCU's ArtLab will also open the same night featuring the textile works of artists Muffy Clark Gill and Nuch Owen in an exhibition of their work titled Dyeing Arts: Batiks and Silks.

Gulfshore Playhouse Presents Comedy For The Entire Family

Lori Wilner

Stephen Berger

Zolan Henderson

ulfshore Playhouse will present its production of Beau Jest by James Sherman February 19 through March 7. This wildly popular comedy is a hilarious and heart-warming off-Broadway sensation for and about the entire family.

The story centers around Sarah Goldman, an independent young teacher living in Chicago. When her parents, Miriam and Abe, don't approve of her choice of boy-friend because he is a gentile, she begrudgingly hires an out-of-work actor, Bob, to portray their idea of an ideal mate - Dr. David Steinberg. The twist comes when it is revealed to Sarah that he isn't Jewish as she had assumed. But it's okay, he's toured with Fiddler on the Roof and is sure he can pull it off. Hilarity ensues in this charming comedy as the the two try to keep the charade going.

Lori Wilner and Stephen Berger will play the parents, Miriam and Abe respectively. Florida actor Zolan Henderson will play Bob, the actor and stand in boyfriend, while Sarah Baskin will play Sarah Goldman.

Sherman, the playwright and member of the Victory Gardens Playwrights Ensemble, will be in attendance on February 25 and 26 to participate in a talk-back after the show.

He will also be offering a workshop on February 27 to explore the building blocks for creating a play. Through the use of lectures and demonstrations, Sherman examines the process of play writing. Examples of classic and contemporary plays will be viewed, in-class exercises will be utilized, and Sherman will be available to discuss his decades long career in theater and the life of a playwright. The workshop will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Gulfshore Playhouse performs at the Norris Center, 755 8th Avenue South in downtown Naples. Single tickets are on sale now. Tickets start at $30 and are available by calling 866-811-4111 or online at www.gulfshoreplayhouse.org.

North Fort Myers Teen Night Movie In The Park: The Blind Side

he North Fort Myers Teen Night on Friday, February 19 from 6 to 10 p.m. will be a trip to Hancock Park for a movie in the park. The movie showing will be Teenager Michael Oher is surviving on his own, virtually homeless, when he is spotted on the street by Leigh Anne Tuohy. Learning that the young man is one of her daughter's classmates, Leigh Anne insists that Michael -- wearing shorts and a T-shirt in the dead of winter – come out of the cold. Without a moment's hesitation, she invites him to stay at the Tuohy home for the night. What starts out as a gesture of kindness turns into something more as Michael becomes part of the Tuohy family despite the differences in their backgrounds. As the family helps Michael fulfill his potential, both on and off the football field, Michael's presence in the Tuohys' lives leads them to some insightful self-discoveries of their own.

The cost is only $3 for teens ages 12 to 16. The concession stand will be open to purchase treats. Bring a blanket or chair to sit on. Transportation will be provided to the movie in the park for any teen between the ages of 12 to 16. There are only 25 spots available. RSVP soon as spots fill up fast.

Art For Wine & Food Fest

The Naples family makes several trips a month to visit Joseph's pediatric oncologist at the Chrissy Brown Cancer Unit at The Children's Hospital for regular rounds of chemotherapy. Two years into his treatment, Joseph is doing well. Now his painting will help other ill children in Southwest Florida get well.

Joseph's original acrylic painting, along with four tickets to the 2010 University of Florida vs. Kentucky game on September 25 in the Swamp, will be auctioned off at the Wine Fest's grand tasting on February 27. Wine Fest Chairman Dr. Steve Machiz says the children's artwork is typically one of the highest-bid lots.

The Southwest Florida Wine & Food Fest is a signature event of the SWFL Children's Charities, Inc., a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization that provides funding to local charities serving local children. It begins the evening of February 26 when 19 families will host 11 dinners at private homes around Southwest Florida for invited guests, donating $500 to $2,500 per seat. Each dinner will feature wines by featured vintners and Southwest Florida's finest local chefs, including: Marbin Avilez Sr., Bayfront Bistro; Nick Costanzo, Angelina's Ristorante; Reiner Drygala, Bistro 41; Caroline Hostettler, 55 Degrees; Ryan Leto, Roy's; Jeffrey Lucas, Ruth's Chris Steak House; Thomas Pedit, Miromar Lakes Beach & Golf Club; Michael Ragusa, The Sandy Butler; Jayson Rydell, Flippers - Lover's Key Resort; Andreas Singer, Hyatt Regency Coconut Point; Jesse Souza, LaPlaya Beach Resort; Gil Suarez, Capital Grille; Eric Truglas, French Bread Oven; Christian Vivet, Blue Windows Bistro & Catering; Shannon Yates, Cru.

Special guests include: Norman Love, Norman Love Confections; Keegan Gerhard, Food Network; Casey Thompson, Top Chef Season 3.

The signature vintner is Juelle Fisher, of Fisher Vineyards of Napa Valley. Other wineries represented are Ponzi Vineyards, Willamette Valley, Oregon; Teachworth Winery, Calistoga, California; Bodega Catena Zapata, Mendoza, Argentina; Tablas Creek Vineyards, Paso Robles, California; Anderson's Conn Valley Vineyard, St. Helena, California; Turnbull Wine Cellars, Oakville and Calistoga, California; Castello Banfi, Montalcino, Italy; Silver Oak, Napa Valley, California; V Madrone Winery, St. Helena, California; Honig Vineyards and Winery, Rutherford, California; and Peter Lehmann Wines, Barossa Valley,

On February 27, the chefs, vintners, dinner guests and others come together at the Miromar Lakes Beach & Golf Club for the Grand Tasting and Auction. Participating chefs prepare their favorite dishes to accompany signature champagne reception sponsor Piper Heidsieck's Champagnes.

The auction features exceptional packages of special and unique wines, exclusive trips, and amazing dining experiences. All proceeds from the auction and ticket sales will benefit three causes benefiting children's health care in the area:

The Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida, Edison State College's Pediatric Nursing Program and an endowment to Florida Gulf Coast University to establish a pre-med student scholarship.

Last year's event netted $753,000, resulting in a $600,000 donation to The Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida and $50,000 to Edison State College.

Smart Growth Design Competition

That should Smart Growth and transit-oriented development in Lee County look like? That is the question in the Creating Better Places design competition. "We are challenging local citizens and design professionals to rethink sprawling development patterns and help visualize better prototypes for our future, said Tammy Hall, chair of the Lee County Board of Commissioners. Entry information is available on the Web site www.swflregionalvision.com and the deadline for entries is

The competition will compare various transit-oriented designs for a specific site in the City of Fort Myers near Terry Park with access to potential light rail service. The purpose is to solicit creative ideas and provide information about better alternatives for the physical form of the community.

Transit-oriented developments are typically defined as higher density, mixed-use developments within walking distance - up to a half-mile - of existing or future transit stations. Transit-oriented design is about creating attractive, walkable, sustainable communities with energy-efficient housing and transportation choices that reduce reliance on car trips and increase social interactions among residents.

Competitors will submit three items: 1) a generalized site plan showing streets, blocks, and buildings, 2) a simple illustration showing the arrangement of buildings, and 3) a short narrative that describes the most important attributes of this proposal's response to the factors listed on the competition Web site along with the submittal format requirements.

The competition is sponsored by Lee County in cooperation with the City of Fort Myers, Reconnecting Lee County, Florida Gulf Coast University's Center for Public and Social Policy, and the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council.

Financial Focus Sandwich Generation In Financial Squeeze

by Jennifer Basey

re you a member of the Sandwich Generation? This designation - which applies to people caring for their aging parents while supporting their own children – may be applicable to you if you're either a younger baby boomer, born in the late 1950s or early 1960s, or an older member of Generation X, born in the mid-1960s. But any way you slice it, being in the sandwich group is probably going to present you with some challenges, particularly of the financial kind - so you'll need to make the right moves.

Basically, you should consider two areas of decision-making: those affecting the future of you and your children; and those affecting your elderly parents' lifestyle and legacy.

Regarding your future, and that of your children, you'll need to prioritize your goals. Some people, when weighing the merits of investing for retirement versus saving for their children's college educations, conclude that while loans are available for college, none are offered to retirees. Consequently, they focus more heavily on retirement. If you're in this camp, you'll probably want to contribute as much as you can possibly afford to your IRA and 401(k) or other employersponsored retirement plan.

However, if you feel strongly about helping your kids go through college relatively debt-free, you may want to explore some college-savings options, such as Section 529 plans and Coverdell Education Savings Accounts, both of which offer significant tax advantages.

In any case, these goals don't have to be mutually exclusive - but if you're going to address them both, you will have to make some key decisions regarding allocation of resources. And while you're handling these issues for yourself and your children, you'll need to juggle the needs of your elderly parents. With luck, you won't have to contribute financially, but you may be required to put in some time and energy to help make sure your parents' situation remains positive.

This means you'll need to ask some questions. Where do your parents bank? Do they have a brokerage account? If so, do you know the name of their financial advisor? Have they taken steps to remain financially independent if they ever need to go to a nursing home or employ home health care assistants? Have they drawn up a will, a living trust or other estate plan documents? Would they be willing to have you or another family member assume power of attorney should they become incapacitated?

In raising these questions, you will have to approach your parents with tact and sensitivity. However, you may be pleasantly surprised at their willingness to talk about these issues. After all, they almost surely want to avoid burdening you with extra financial responsibilities.

The best time to approach your parents is when they are healthy, both mentally and physically. It's especially important to be aware of even minorseeming cognitive impairments, such as memory lapses, which can result in paying the same bills two or three times, forgetting to record checks or even falling prey to fraudulent investment schemes. If you suspect your parents may be having these troubles, you'll need to step in immediately.

It's not easy being a Sandwich Generation member, but through diligence and proper planning, you should be able to help avoid getting "squished" while improving the outcomes for all your beloved family members.

Paulette Burton Citizen Of The Year Finalists

The Lee County Board of County Commissioners announced the four finalists for the 19th annual Paulette Burton Citizen of the Year Award for 2009. The finalists are: Samira Beckwith (Fort Myers), Mary Miller (North Fort Myers), Roxie Smith (Fort Myers Beach) and George Szymanski (Lehigh Acres).

The winner will be announced at the 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, February 16 Lee County Commission meeting in the second floor chambers in the Old Lee County Courthouse, 2110 Main Street in downtown Fort Myers.

A Board of County Commissioners appointed a committee of seven individuals who narrowed the 16 nominations to the four finalists. The commissioners will select the winner from that list of four.

The award was created in 1991 to honor Mrs. Burton, a long time Sanibel Island resident and government watch dog. She spent many years serving as a voice of the people to the Lee County Board of County Commissioners as well as playing an active role in Sanibel politics. She died in a 1991 car accident.

World's Best Skier Lindsey Vonn A Top Attraction In The Winter Olympics

by Ed Frank

he Super Bowl last weekend in Miami, the Ace Group Classic golf tournament this weekend in Naples, the Daytona 500 this weekend in Daytona; Boston Red Sox and Minnesota Twins players start arriving next week – it's a jam-packed sports calendar in Florida.

But we turn our attention nearly 3,500 miles away to the distaff side of athletics and today's start of the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver where the world's greatest skier, Lindsey Vonn, is certain to capture the hearts of Olympic enthusiasts.

Just as Danica Patrick, who will be making her NASCAR debut tomorrow at Daytona, has stirred the emotions of race car fans, Vonn is out to prove to the world that she is much more than a pretty face. Congenial, attractive and oh so talented, she could be to the 2010 Winter Olympics what Michael Phelps was to the 2008 Summer Games.

She has recently appeared on the cover of Sports Illustrated and has advertising deals with at least 10 corporate sponsors including Rolex, Proctor & Gamble, Vail Resorts and Alka-Seltzer.

Here's what David Neal, NBC's executive producer for the Olympics said:

"Lindsey is authentic. She's very telegenic. She's the best woman skier in the world. Lindsey has the whole package – athletic ability and personality.

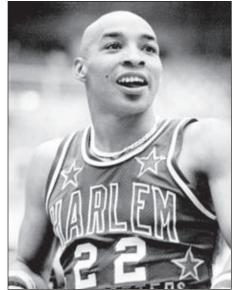

She is considered a medal contender in five events – downhill, super-G, combined, giant slalom and slalom, and is the prohibitive favorite in downhill and Super-G.

The 25-year-old has already been called the greatest woman skier in U.S. history. She has 31 World Cup victories and an amazing nine just this season.

Yes, she's America's sweetheart of the slopes, but like all great athletes it didn't come easy. When 13, her family moved from Minnesota to Colorado so she could have better training. She commits to a brutal daily workout program explaining that "talent can only take you so far."

She has been severely injured on the slopes a number of times, but always came back with grit and determination.

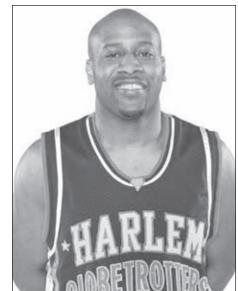

In a 70-mile-an-hour downhill training crash two days before the 2006 Turin Olympics, Vonn suffered serious back and pelvic injuries, but she returned to compete in four events. Her tongue was cut open when her knee bounced up into her chin as she won a World Cup title just last December.

Globetrotters To Bring Magical Memories

he Harlem Globetrotters will bring their 2010 Magical Memories Tour to the Germain Arena, Estero, on Wednesday, February 24. Two of the players are Fred "Curly" Neal and Hot Shot Branch.

One of the truly magical shooters and dribblers in basketball history, Neal embraced the imagination of fans all over the world for 22 seasons as a key member of the Harlem Globetrotters. He played in more than 6,000-plus games in 97 countries from 1963 to 1985 with the Globetrotters. He had a knack for hitting shots from virtually anywhere on the floor.

Hot Shot Branch

On February 15, 2008, Neal became just the fifth Globetrotter in the team's illustrious history to have his number retired, as his number 22 was lifted to the rafters during a special ceremony at New York's Madison Square Garden.

He received the Globetrotters "Legends" ring on June 25, 1993.

ear Pharmacist: Could you give us quick tips that can help improve health? Don't get me wrong, I love your informative columns, I just wish you could talk about more topics in each column so I could find myself in them more frequently.

TD, Gainesville, Florida Great idea. As a journalist, I get press releases about new studies every few minutes and there are always interesting topics. I'll share some news that I've received in the last three weeks. Here goes:

- Fish oils aren't just for your heart. They reduce symptoms of psychosis and may prevent the onset of full-blown schizophrenia or psychosis in people with emotional disturbances according to a study published in the Archives of General Psychiatry. Omega 3 fatty acids nourish the brain, they are inexpensive and well-tolerated.
- Curcumin can reduce the risk of Alzheimer's disease and cancer. It works even better when taken with vitamin D3. Speaking of curcumin, it is known to lower blood sugar and prevent kidney damage associated with diabetes!
- Pomegranates may prevent breast cancer, especially the type that is estrogen-driven. They contain a compound called "ellagitannin" which gets broken down in the body to "urolithin B" and it acts like our "aromatase blocking" drugs (think tamoxifen, raloxifene).

- You won't remain healthy for very long if you don't get up and jog, go to spin class, Pilates or Zumba! Two welldesigned studies now prove that excessive body weight increases a person's risk for stroke, and nearly doubles the risk of developing cancer.
- Drinking "white tea" helps encourage weight loss!
- Green tea may reduce risk of lung cancer. People who do not drink green tea appear to have a five-fold increased risk of lung cancer! In a related new study, pistachios were found to increase gamma tocopherol (vitamin E) and slash the risk of lung cancer, without causing
- Apples, more specifically, "apple pectin" was shown to increase the number of friendly bacteria (probiotics) in the gut. So they improve digestion.
- If you are counting calories, you may be misled. A new study found that nutrition labels on restaurant and packaged food labels may be grossly underes-
- The controversy persists about non-stick cooking pans which contain PFOA. For the first time a study found that people who have higher blood concentrations of PFOA have higher rates of thyroid disease. Newer brands of nonstick cookware are PFOA-free if you are concerned.
 - Men with the highest blood levels of the B vitamin folate are 50 percent less likely to experience depression compared to men with the lowest levels according to the European Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

• A drug company is making a prescription pill to help you live to 100, by targeting longevity genes. Natural supplements target the very same genes and I'll tell you about those in my new book Diabetes Without Drugs due out in a few weeks.

Preventing Heart Disease Is Easier Than You Think

taying heart healthy and preventing cardiovascular disease doesn't need to be hard. That's Dr. Jesus Mendiolaza's message for Lee County at Lee Memorial Health System's February 23 Well Informed lecture from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Place Coconut Point, . 23120 Via Viĺlagio, in Estero.

Heart disease is a very serious problem to be sure. It causes more than 630,000 deaths each year," Mendiolaza said. "But we could prevent so many of these deaths if people at risk made some easy and different lifestyle choices.

Since February is American Heart Month and devoted to heart disease awareness and education, there's no better time to take action. With each minute that passes, another life is lost to heart disease, and it's just as likely to strike women as men.

Mendiolaza advocates a simple approach to prevent cardiovascular disease in adults with four parts, all of which he will discuss during his lecture.

- Education on basic, primary ways to prevent cardiovascular disease that everyone should know
- How to be proactive in preventing disease
- Identifying risk factors and lifestyle modifications to improve your overall

Dear Mom & Me,

On a recent visit to my parents, I realized that they are now starting to develop serious health problems.

I suggested that they move to be closer to me, but they seemed very reluctant to do so. They are fearful that they will be unable to find a doctor who will take them on as patients.

I inquired around my area and find it is a very real problem because so many of the doctors here will not take Medicare patients.

Do others complain about this prob-Agatha

Dear Agatha,

This is a real problem and also a national problem. With the new administration we do not know yet what the final solutions to what our health care problems are going to be like. Many doctors complain that they cannot pay rent and staff and are forced to take patients that are private pay only. Your parents could also ask their present physicians if they have any contacts in your area and possibly there could be a referral.

In the meantime they could go to the hospital emergencyroom if a crisis devel-

Lizzie

Dear Agatha,

Moving to a new area does present problems and can be very difficult and being on Medicare just compounds the problem. You could talk to the medical society in your area and they may have some valuable information and, who knows, they may have a wonderful referral service. Best of luck to you. Pryce

Grande Dames Tea Honors Three

hico's FAS has signed on as the title sponsor of the Grande Dames Tea for 2010, which will honor three more of the community's most revered women.

In recognition of their accomplishments, Mark Loren of Mark Loren Designs will design a special piece of jewelry to present to the three Grande Dames. The honorees for 2010 are Jeanne Bochette, Helen Hendry and Veronica Shoemaker.

The event will take place Tuesday, March 23, at the Broadway Palm Dinner Theatre on Colonial Boulevard in Fort Myers. Tickets may be purchased by calling 278-4422 or the Lee PACE Center for Girls at 425-2366, ext. 25.

The Grande Dames Tea was started by the Lee PACE Center for Girls last year to honor women who have played major roles in Lee County history through decades of service, philanthropy and helping others. The theme is The Wisdom of Age – Honoring the Female Spirit.

The first Grande Dames to be honored were philanthropists Berne Davis, Eleanore Kleist and Barbara B. Mann.

The PACE Center for Girls is a non-residential delinquency prevention program targeting the unique needs of girls, ages 12 to 18, who are faced with challenges such as foster care, domestic violence and declining grades. Many girls also experience abuse and neglect, death of a parent, substance abuse, and/or a family history of incarceration.

Island Gala To Aid Man's Best Friends In County

he first Onyx & Breezy Island Gala is set for March 14, hosted by the Onyx & Breezy Foundation. Onehundred percent of the proceeds will go to the welfare of domestic animals in Lee County.

The Onyx & Breezy Foundation was named in honor and in memory of two beloved black Labradors owned by parttime Sanibel residents Mark and Wanda Shefts. A non-profit foundation, it has raised money for the welfare of animals nationwide and will focus this event to raise support for Lee County's animals and the organizations that work for their Comedienne Elayne Boosler will be joining guests, entertaining them with her comedy and helping with the auction. Boosler is an animal lover and when she heard this event was being held on Sanibel, she offered to come from California and be a part of it.

Island residents and owners of the Over Easy Café' and Island Paws, Trasi Sharp and Liza Clouse, encourage island residents to join with them in attending this evening of fun. "We are thrilled that Mark and Wanda are putting their efforts toward raising money for our local animal organizations right here in Lee County. We know this event will be great" they

Trasi Sharp, Wanda Shefts, Mark Shefts, Liza Clouse, Birgie Vertesch and Peter Beck are planning the Onyx & Breezy Island Gala

The gala will be at Ellington's Jazz Club & Restaurant. Tickets are $150 which will include hors d'oeuvres, a full open bar, four-course gourmet dinner, silent and live auction, dancing to Ellington's jazz band and a special performance by Boosler.

Other sponsors include Bailey's General Store, Ellington"s Jazz Club, Karen Bell Team, Kay Casperson Beauty Inside Out, Lily & Co., McMurray/ Nette VIP Realty, Myra Roberts, Sanibel Captiva Community Bank, Sanibel-Captiva Trust Company, and Tribeca

Attendance is by reservation only. There are 160 tickets available. All proceeds will for medical equipment and research, spay and neutering, disaster relief, puppy mill rescue and many other efforts in Lee County to help the animals.

That same month she received a deep bone bruise in her left wrist in a giant slalom crash in Lienz, Austria, when her skis caught in the snow and threw her into the air. For the average skier it would take months to recover, but not for Vonn.

And there was one comical injury that she would like to forget. She nearly severed her right thumb when grabbing a broken champagne bottle after winning two gold medals in the 2009 World Championships in France. She bristled at comments that she was a party girl.

"It was a freak accident. It was 6 p.m. right after the awards ceremony. I had zero alcohol," she was quoted as saying recently.

Spay Day USA

yth: Cats have nine lives. Fact: Cats are lucky if they have just one life. In Lee County over 3,000 cats were euthanized in 2009 due to pet overpopulation. Spaying and neutering can prevent the unnecessary and tragic deaths of thousands of cats every year.

During February Lee County Domestic Animal Services (LCDAS) will join the national organizers of Spay Day USA in promoting the importance of spaying and neutering to save the lives of millions of pets each year. Locally, Lee County residents are fortunate to have programs available year-round that will help reduce pet overpopulation. LCDAS would like to draw particular attention to Lee County's cat overpopulation problem and "bust the myths" associated with spaying and neutering

Information is available online at www. LeeLostPets.com about LCDAS's free spay/neuter services for owned and outdoor community cats. For those who do not qualify for this program, other lowcost options are available. To schedule an appointment or for additional information about spay/neuter programs for both cats and dogs, call 533-9234. Making a call today can save the lives of animals tomor-

Tax-deductible donations are gladly accepted to offset the costs of spay/ neuter programs so more animals may benefit from these life-saving programs. It is estimated that Lee County has 98,000 feral and community cats. Your $25 donation will help spay or neuter one more. Donate online at www. LeeLostPets.com or mail your tax-deductible donations to: Animal Care Trust Fund, 5600 Banner Drive, Fort Myers, FL 33912. A

Rain Barrel Workshops

Florida Yards and Neighborhoods rain barrel workshop will show how rain barrels can collect water from your roof. Only a quarter inch of rain on a typical roof will create over 600 gallons of

During the class 55-gallon recycled barrels will be transformed into rain barrels that you can take home. The class is taught by Lee County Extension Service Master Gardeners.

Benefits are water conservation, preventing storm water run-off, and money saving.

The workshops are on Saturday, February 27 and Saturday, March 27 from 9 to 11 a.m. at Rutenberg Park, 6490 South Pointe Boulevard, Fort Myers. The cost is $45 per rain barrel.

Call Pam at 533-7523 to register.

YARD SALES AT THE SANIBEL SCHOOL

The Sanibel School middle schoolers will be having two yard sales again this year to raise money for upcoming field trips. The next yard sale is February 27 from 8 a.m. to noon in the school pavilion. These events are open to the public. All middle school families are invited to participate. Each family is responsible for their own set-up, clean-up and money collection. Call Sandy Messinger at 395-9207 for more information.

The Sanibel School is located at 3830 Sanibel-Captiva Road.

SUDOKU

To play Sudoku:

Complete the grid so that every row, column and every 3x3 box contains the numbers 1 through 9 (the same number cannot appear more than once in a row, column or 3x3 box.) There is no guessing and no math involved, just logic.
