Celebrating Memorial Day With Veterans

By: Guadalupe Monarrez

Memorial Day, a federal holiday observed annually in the United States, is a day to remember the men and women who have died while serving in the United States Armed Forces. While Memorial Day did not become an official federal holiday until 1971, many Americans have commemorated fallen soldiers since the Civil War, World War I, and World War II. In celebration of Memorial Day, many observe the holiday by visiting cemeteries and memorials, while cities across the United States host large parades that brings civilians and military personnel together.

The Veterans Speakers Forum of Palm Beach County, established in 2010, is an organization that hopes to educate students about the importance of veterans in our community and their history in the United States Armed Forces. Corporal Burt Richards, creator and founder of the Veterans Forum, was able to have all Palm Beach County Schools close on Veteran's Day as of November 11th, 2011.

"Our mission is to educate the school board and have them see our programs, and to continue using our programs. By hiring war veterans, they will not only have a job, but they will be able to discuss their history during these programs. I hope to see that all schools in Florida are closed on Veteran's Day from Nov 11th 2012, and there after," proclaimed Cpl Richards.

Cpl Richards recognizes that there is a strong need for educational programs about war veterans within the Palm Beach County school curriculum.

"Not to take away from our dedicated teachers, but many are baby boomers," said Richards, "the school curriculum depends on the Veterans Speakers Forum for students to benefit from our educational programs that we present at our own expense."

Cpl Richards praises all the veterans that are a part of the Veterans Forum and acknowledges that they do such a tremendous job sharing their stories.

Some of the members that make up the organization include lieutenant Jacob Goldman of Boca Raton, who was part of the Air Force and involved in the atomic bombing of Japan. Sergeant Elliott Lichtenstein of Boca Raton, who was a combat medic and aided injured service men. Stanley Saltz, who is a Battle of the Bulge war veteran. Harry Zaslow, who is a World War II combat veteran and a liberator of the Dachau concentration camp. Corporal Bob Everson, who is a Vietnam veteran that was pronounced dead on the battle field, but was miraculously revived while being taken to the morgue. Sergeant George Fisher, who is the founder of the 67th year of the Battle of the Bulge Veteran's Organization. Erne Greenblatt, who was a paratrooper that landed in Germany to liberate hostages and war prisoners. Tom DeCicco, who uses therapy dogs to aid military personnel. Hank Goldman, who was a navigator on a B-25 attack bomber in the South Pacific during World War II. Michael Kelsey, who served 20 years in the United States Army as an infantryman and a Senior Intelligence Analyst.

On May 29th, Cpl Richards held a Veterans Speakers Forum seminar, honoring Memorial Day, at Boca Raton Middle School. The seminar addressed 1,377 students in all social studies classes, which gave them the opportunity to listen to war veterans from Iraq, Afghanistan, and Vietnam.

"We expect to have those who attended, to write an essay and turn it in to their teachers as to what they learned with our appearance and what they did on their day off, Memorial Day May 28th," said Cpl Richards.

Master Sergeant Michael Kelsey, who has served for nearly 20 years in Iraq and Afghanistan, talked to students about his experiences in the United States Army as an infantryman and a Senior Intelligence Analyst.

"I hope students gain an understanding of the sacrifices made by past, present, and future veterans," said Kelsey, "Freedom is not free, we should live a life worthy of their sacrifices."

Sergeant Tom DeCicco, a Vietnam War veteran, spoke to students about his work in the Armed Forces and brought his therapy dog, which he uses to help veterans and patients at Boca Raton Regional Hospital.

"We usually take him to Boca Raton Regional Hospital for visits," said Sergeant DeCicco, "the therapy dog is used to lift spirits and boost morale."

The Veterans Speakers Forum hopes to build relationships with other organizations as well. By providing educational programs, they hope organizations will be able to raise funds for themselves.

"We are almost like a professional Broadway show, but we are veteran history educators," said Cpl Richards.

Anyone who is interested in the Veterans Speakers Forum's programs can contact Cpl Richards at (561)734-7263 or at pr.group@juno.com.

Seventh Annual Océ Future Authors Project Writing Workshop Begins June 11 in Boca

BOCA RATON – Océ, a Canon Group Company and an international leader in digital document management, announced that Robert Forbes, children's book author and president of ForbesLife magazine; and Mary Monroe, a high school teacher and young adult book author, will be the featured speakers at the 2012 Océ Future Authors Project writing workshop.

In its seventh year, the program begins on June 11 with an intense eight-day writing workshop held at Don Estridge High Tech Middle School, 1798 NW Spanish River Boulevard, Boca Raton. Forty middle and high school students will be selected to participate from 85 applicants.

The program is a partnership between the School District of Palm Beach County and Océ North America, and is made possible with grants from the Lawrence Sanders Foundation; Maroone, an AutoNation Company; and Xplor International, a not-for-profit educational and networking association serving users and suppliers of document technologies.

The authors will be donating their time to provide insight and advice to the budding artists and complement the curriculum offered by the staff of three certified Palm Beach County language arts teachers.

The teachers for the 2012 class are: Nicole Adamo, who teaches at Don Estridge Middle School; Katrina Sapp Holder, a playwright and short story author who also teaches at Don Estridge Middle School and Cartheda T. Mann, the chair of the English department and writing coach at Glades Central Community High School. Secondary Literacy Program Planner Dianna Fedderman supervises the program for the District.

The Océ Future Authors Project writing workshop is designed to help students become published authors. Students improve their writing and critical thinking skills, develop an understanding of how authors are published, and learn about today's digital print and publishing opportunities.

Students gain insight into the process of writing, editing, and digitally publishing books through interactions with Océ executives, the published authors, and the teachers. Writings from each student are then compiled, professionally published and digitally printed in final book form by the Boca Raton-based Océ North America Production Printing Systems division.

The finished book is then unveiled at a book signing hosted by the city of Boca Raton at the Spanish River Public Library. Since the program's inception in 2006, nearly 300 students have participated in the Océ Future Authors Project writing workshops.

"Without support from companies like Océ North America and the other sponsors of the program, partnerships like this would not exist," said Mary Kay Murray, the executive director of the Palm Beach Education Foundation. "Creative public-private partnerships, like the Future Authors program, give our students extraordinary experiences they otherwise would not have."

Francis McMahon, vice president of marketing, Production Printing Systems at Océ North America, says his company remains committed to this program, which enriches the educational experience for so many budding authors.

"We continued to be impressed by the students who choose to spend their summer vacations as Océ Future Authors because of their passion for writing," he said. "Our hope is that this experience will result in a group of young adults with lifelong commitments to writing, reading and learning."

McMahon added that the age of digital publishing has opened up more opportunities for these aspiring authors. "Digital printing technologies are revolutionizing the business of book publishing," he said. "Publishers can now cost-effectively print books in run lengths anywhere from 1 to 10,000, creating exciting opportunities for new talent—like these future authors—who now can get their works published. As a leader in providing digital printing solutions for the book industry, we are delighted to support the Océ Future Authors Project and to help make the students' dreams to become published authors a reality."

The Proper Affair Raises $140,000 for Achievement Centers

BOCA RATON -- Fashion, fun and flair highlighted the glamorous 4th Annual Proper Affair which raised a record $140,000 in support of the Achievement Centers for Children & Families, a non-profit agency that supports over 700 low-income and at-risk children and families in Delray.

In unprecedented style, Boston Proper and the Achievement Centers joined together to host an evening that was truly an affair to remember.

"What a spectacular evening! The turnout was inspiring. It was great to see so many people coming together to make a difference for those in need locally. One of the reasons we love the Proper Affair is because we get to see firsthand the lives we touch," said Sheryl Clark, president of Boston Proper.

The Boca Resort's Great Hall was transformed into an ultra-chic, hip space where 325 guests gathered to enjoy upbeat music, delectable food and great fun! Attendees posed along the red-carpet for photo ops, vied for high-end silent auction, and "got on the bus." New this year, guests were able to purchase "pieces" of a virtual bus in support of a much-needed school bus for the Center.

The highlight of the evening was an electric runway show featuring the hottest trends of the season —donated by Boston Proper. Eleven Spa in Delray donated their services to style the models' hair and make-up. Models then graced the runway presenting head-to-toe ensembles which were auctioned to the highest bidder near the conclusion of the event.

Nancy Hurd, CEO of the Achievement Centers commented, "Without conscientious corporate citizens like Boston Proper we would not be able to help the hundreds of families that we do. The im-

Boca Children's Museum, Offering an Interactive Summer Camp for Children

By: Guadalupe Monarrez

With the school year ending and summer quickly approaching, the Boca Raton Children's Museum is offering a six week "Adventure in the Arts Summer Camp" for children in the months of July and August. Campers, ages 6 to 10, will engage in interactive adventures in the visual and performing arts.

Each week campers will learn how to work with clay and paint, create multicultural crafts, and construct 3-dimensional art. Campers will enjoy performances by special entertainers and participate in dance and theater workshops. Parents are encouraged to attend the camp on Fridays, where campers will participate in a small performance for them. The Children's Museum will also incorporate a culinary program, where campers will learn different recipes and create snacks every Friday.

Parents have the option of enrolling their students in the camp for only a certain amount of weeks or for the whole 6 week camp.

Week 1 and 5 will consist of creating a miniature construction with artist Katie Hahner, clay sculpting, cooking with Chef Christopher Fread, and drumming with Buckley Griffis.

Weeks 2 and 4 will feature Italy's Adriani Teatro to demonstrate their acclaimed mask-making and drama workshops, camper's performances, and dancing with DJ Big Smile.

Weeks 3 and 6 will include a festival of dance and music, performance by violinist Amber Leigh, and Bob the Balloon Guy will join the festival.

"We try to embrace every culture, including all the cultures that make up the city of Boca Raton," said Debbi Lahr Lawlor, Operations Director of the Children's Museum.

The camp will be held in Jason's Music Hall inside a newly built replica of the 1897 Rickards House, which was the first home built in Boca Raton for Captain T.M. Rickards.

"Our space is very functional and we try to make use of all the space we have," said Lawlor.

Sanding Pines Grocery Store, activity center located inside of the museum.

Children will also have the opportunity to play in Singing Pines, opening in 1976 as a historical museum.

"This museum is very hands on, interactive, it is operated very differently in comparison to other museums," acknowledged Lawlor.

The museum features several activity centers for campers and visitors, including Ricketts Corner Store, KidCents Bank, FACES Multicultural Room, Dr. Big's Back Porch, and a Children of the Wilderness exhibit.

"Each of the activity centers located within the museum also embrace the history of Boca Raton," added Lawlor.

The museum is also open throughout the year for visitors. Currently, there are other programs that children and parents can enjoy. Those programs include Art Infusion and Baby Steps classes. Parents can also celebrate their child's birthday in Rickards House, where children will enjoy games, activities, and the opportunity to play in the museum and outdoors.

Boca Raton Children's Museum is located at 498 Crawford Boulevard. For more information on the Adventure in the Arts Summer Camp, please contact Jayne Morrison at (561)368-6875. Volunteers for the Children's Museum are greatly needed, includes volunteering for 4 hour shifts. If interested, contact Debbi L. Lawlor at Debbi@cmboca.org or (561)368-6875. see pics on pg. 16

Office Depot Recruiting Vets

gram will provide Office Depot with a source of highly qualified applicants for potential employment following their service in the military. It also serves as an additional recruiting incentive that increases the Army's ability to man the force.

To commemorate the partnership, Office Depot held a ceremonial signing at its global headquarters in Boca Raton.

"We're very excited about our alliance with the U.S. Army PaYS Program," said Robyn Tyler, vice president of Global Talent Management for Office Depot. "This program will provide us with a steady stream of great candidates who are motivated, experienced, and qualified, and can be placed in a variety of positions at Office Depot, whether in our headquarters, stores, or in the field."

The U.S. Army PaYS Program, which began in 2000, guarantees a soldier an interview with a PaYS partner employer once he or she decides to re-enter the civilian workforce.

The Army is confident that the soldier will be an asset to any company or organization since the tangible and intangible traits of the Army soldier are desirable attributes that are heavily sought after.

"Our partnership is a win-win for both the soldiers and Office Depot," said Lieutenant Colonel Jose F. Melgarejo, Jr. "Office Depot has a need for certain skills that our soldiers can provide, such as integrity, loyalty, and dedication; and for soldiers transitioning out of the Army, they get to go right into another great organization where they can add value."

We got an email a few weeks ago from Carol Connors, a singer, songwriter and frequent visitor to Boca Raton. She is very good friends of artist-sculptor Yaacov Heller (of Gallery 22 fame) and his wife, Sue, and we have come to count her as one of our friends as well.

Anyway, Carol was notifying us from her home in Beverly Hills that Carroll Shelby, the famous auto racer and designer of the Ford Cobra and the Mustang Cobra, had passed away at the age of 89.

I recalled the name of Carroll Shelby from my teen years when his creations of the Ford Cobra racing car and the Mustang Cobra street vehicle were hailed in story and song. Shelby had been a race car driver, even after suffering from heart disease. He had a heart transplant in 1990 and was one of the world's longest surviving heart transplant patients.

It was only recently that I found out that Carol Connors actually wrote the song, "Little Cobra," celebrating the accomplishments of the Shelby-designed vehicle. It became a top five hit in the mid-1960s for a group called The Rip Chords.

Regular readers will remember that the era of surf songs and car songs coincided with my teenage years, so I was very familiar with the tune and have checked it out on YouTube since then. Viewers can hear the song and watch a series of slides on the computer screen showing models of the Ford Cobra in black-and-white and color shots.

I didn't realize the very close connection that existed between Carol Connors and Carroll Shelby. I found this account in her email.

After smashing the front of her then-boyfriend's AC Bristol car, Connors was sent to find Shelby to see if he could put a Cobra front on an AC back.

"So there I am in his office...I said 'Mr. Shelby...is there any way you can put a Cobra front on a Bristol back?' Well, he became hysterical. He just couldn't stop laughing," remembers Connors.

"He looked at me and said, 'You know little girl, if you write a song about my car and it goes to number one, I'll give you one'...and the rest was history," she added. (You can find a photo of her and the car Shelby gave her on the Internet.)

The Rip Chords' 1964 recording of "Little Cobra" peaked in the top five on the Billboard Charts. The famous lyrics "Hey, Little Cobra/ Don't you know You're gonna shut'em down" became a phrase synonymous with Shelby's racing wins during his career.

When the song was at the peak of its popularity, Connors remembers a funny meeting with The Beach Boys' Brian Wilson, who came up to her and said, "We knew that song was written by a girl."

"I said, 'Brian, how did you know that?' and he said 'because you can't take your Cobra out of gear and coast to the line!'" remembers Connors. "I said, 'if you're that far in front, you can do that.'"

Connors has had a long career in music, one that includes co-authorship of "Gonna Fly Now," the theme from "Rocky." She was also lead singer of the 1950s group, The Teddy Bears, best known for its song, "To Know Him is to Love Him." The tune was written specifically to showcase Connors' voice by another member of the group. That man - who is still well known today - is Phil Spector.

Dear Editor,

Thank you for, "Intersection Safety Program Red Light Cameras" in Boca Raton. The program contains a severe problem. Vehicles which speed up to the Red Light but stop before entering the Red Light Crossway, nevertheless set off the "flash" which falsely indicates a violation. The "Flash" is only 80% accurate, thereby falsely indicating a violation 20% of the time. This is unfair and requires immediate remedy.

Sincerely,

THOUGHTS FROM THE PUBLISHER

By Douglas Heizer

Warren Buffet and the Capital Grille

When the Boca Raton Tribune celebrated its 100th edition last week, it made me think about the state of newspapers in America today. When we started the newspaper more than two years ago, we knew it was a gamble. We knew it was a difficult time to get into the newspaper game because many papers were suffering advertising and circulation losses due to the economy and competition from electronic media.

In the past week, I have seen two sides of the newspaper issue. I have read about a very rich man who has developed tremendous faith in the industry – so much so that he is investing millions in the trade.

On the other hand, I saw how a business with a location in Boca Raton has decided to shun newspaper advertising altogether. To me, this shows a total lack of faith in this medium.

The man who has faith in the newspaper system is none other than billionaire Warren Buffett. His company, Berkshire Hathaway Inc., has agreed to buy 63 newspapers from Media General Inc. for $142 million.

An Associated Press article said Berkshire Hathaway is also extending a loan to Media General and taking a 19.9 percent stake in the company, which will still own 18 TV stations. Media General also owns some websites, such as coupon provider DealTaker.com.

Media General said the deal includes all of its newspapers except the Tampa Tribune and smaller newspapers in that market. It's in talks to sell those newspapers to other buyers.

Berkshire Hathaway is buying the Richmond Times-Dispatch in Virginia, the Winston-Salem Journal in North

Warren Buffett

Carolina and the Morning News of Florence, S.C., among others.

Berkshire Hathaway has owned the Buffalo News of New York for decades and bought its hometown paper, the Omaha World-Herald, in December. The company is also the largest shareholder of Washington Post Co., with a 23 percent stake.

Buffet is a believer. He has long defended newspapers, saying that they will have a decent future if they continue delivering information that can't be found elsewhere.

"In towns and cities where there is a strong sense of community, there is no more important institution than the local paper," Buffett said. "The many locales served by the newspapers we are acquiring fall firmly in this mold and we are delighted they have found a permanent home with Berkshire Hathaway."

That's the same message the Boca Raton Tribune has been declaring since we first began as a website in early 2010, and then expanded into the Boca Raton Tribune newspaper a few months later. The Delray Beach Tribune has just come out in print after developing as a website for many months.

So, it was a little disappointing when our restaurant reviewer, Marc Kent, and I went to the Capital Grille the other day – after being invited to lunch by the higher-ups at the elite restaurant.

Marc was intent on reviewing the lunch, but when they restricted our menu to only a few items – morsels which were somewhat less than inviting – Marc ended up doing the review, and I decided to pay for my own meal.

At the end of our meal, the managing partner came to our table and was very nice. We talked for a while and I asked the restaurant operators if they would consider buying an ad in our newspaper.

I was told that the Capital Grille does not do newspaper advertising.

Why, I asked. Why not? A lot of advertisers help keep this newspaper going by advertising. Many are restaurants. Does the Capital Grille have no faith in ANY paper—or just the Tribune?

He told me that that the corporate offices don't believe in community newspapers to place ads, they only use magazines.

I do want to say something about the Capital Grille. It is a wonderful restaurant; in fact it's one of my favorite restaurants. The food is excellent, and I fully intend to go there again.

But I have a question. If the Capital Grille doesn't believe in community newspapers to place ads, why are they asking us to write a food review? Something must be wrong, or maybe I just don't understand.

POSITIVE LIVING

By Dr. Synesio Lyra, Jr.

Acceptance Which Leads to Contentment

Some people live a perpetually unsatisfying life because their expectations are so unrealistic. They tend to overanalyze what people say and do, while applying the same rigid rule to themselves, and to every experience they face.

A child of God, very especially, should know in advance that there is no perfection to be found in the world; everything has been adversely affected by the reality of evil. Even the philosopher Jean Jacques Rousseau had admitted that "all things are good as they come from the hands of God; all things degenerate when they fall into the hands of humans."

To make the best of any situation you need to learn to accept things as they are, while employing every effort to improve conditions and all situations you are faced with. As it often occurs, where one person is incapable to accomplish certain things, many more will become available to fill that gap, and take care of that situation. There will also be times when you shall be the one to meet the need of another, and heal a hurt you may encounter along life's journey!

Don't be overly preoccupied with the life you didn't live. Instead, concentrate on improving the life you still have, and make the best of it, with God's help! Rather than being conditioned by circumstances, you should be affected and motivated by certainties, for only these give direction to a life of fulfillment. Even so, the road to joy and fulfillment, is not devoid of obstacles!

You cannot have it all, necessarily, but you can learn to deal effectively with what is apportioned to you in life; the good may be magnified, while the bad experiences can be acknowledged and often removed. Author Lisa Engelhardt addressed this issue when she remarked that "contentment doesn't mean getting all you want, but enjoying what you have. Don't postpone enjoyment!"

When confronted by any impediments or difficult challenges in the course of your earthly journey, face them not as paralyzing barriers but simply as signals to a better way to follow! After all, the best is always ahead of you, and only gradually will you grasp it, and enjoy it!

If you condition yourself to be a treasure hunter, you shall surely encounter happy surprises in life, even if by looking back, and recognizing previous experiences as golden nuggets you may not have noticed when they first happened to you.

You have only this one life to live. Thus, you should make the most of it; no one else can live the life given to you, nor can you live your life through somebody else. Remember also, for making the right decisions, there is no time for delays!

Pap Corps Donates $3.2 Million to Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center

BOCA RATON -- The Pap Corps' Recognition and Installation Luncheon, held at Boca West Country Club was especially festive this year as the all-volunteer organization celebrated 60 years of raising funds for cancer research.

This year's donation of $3.2 million was presented to Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center at the luncheon. Speakers included Donna E. Shalala, president of the University of Miami; Pascal J. Goldschmidt, M.D., senior vice president for medical affairs and dean of the UM Miller School of Medicine; and Joseph Rosenblatt, M.D., past interim director of Sylvester.

The multi-million dollar donation represents one year of fundraising by the Corps' more than 20,000 volunteers located in the tri-county area. The outstanding efforts of these dedicated men, women and teens were praised by all of the speakers at the luncheon.

Dean Goldschmidt announced an array of accomplishments that Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center recently achieved, including the recruitment of world-renowned cancer specialist Stephen D. Nimer, M.D., who leaves Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center to join Sylvester as its new director. Goldschmidt called the $3.2 million gift "awesome" and said, "This annual gift allows us to continue funding research that leads to new treatments and diagnostics. I know that with The Pap Corps behind us, we will beat cancer."

Dr. Nimer, who was in transit to Florida, also sent his congratulations saying, "Knowing the importance of research funding, I cannot overstate the value of having such a dedicated group of volunteers behind us at Sylvester."

Outgoing chapter presidents were recognized and new executive board members were installed. President Naomi Prever passed the gavel to JoAnne Goldberg, the Corps' new president.

The Pap Corps has donated over $43 million to cancer research since 1952; more than $32 million in the last eleven years alone. These funds provide the seed money for vital research programs at Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center at the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine, South Florida's only university-based cancer center. Boca Raton Looking for a "Sister" City in Brazil

BOCA RATON -- Boca Raton is looking for a "sister" city -- and has called upon the publisher of the Boca Raton Tribune to help out.

Deputy Mayor Susan Haynie told the Boca Raton Tribune that the idea of finding a sister city in Brazil came up for discussion during goal-setting sessions held by the mayor and City Council earlier this month.

"It was decided to reach out and find a sister city in Brazil," she said. Everyone on the council agreed with the proposal.

The idea of having a sister city is "to stimulate economic development," said Haynie and Councilwoman Constance Scott, who chairs the Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA).

Publisher Heizer, who is a native of Brazil, was asked by Haynie and Scott to suggest some communities that would make good "sister" cities for Boca Raton. Haynie said Heizer is working on that now and will come back to the council with suggestions.

"This is something we are excited about," said Haynie.

She said this idea actually ties in to something that has been discussed by the Boca Raton Airport Authority. "They are thinking of having a customs office at the airport so planes from other counties can come to Boca. We want to know what the city can do to help them."

Boca Raton once had Spandau, Germany, as a sister city, but that relationship faded away many years ago.

Haynie said the council approached Heizer because he is active in the large Brazilian community in Boca Raton, and also founded a Brazilian Rotary Club in West Boca Raton.

Sachs Comes Out Fighting in Preparation for Two-Incumbent State Senate Battle

DELRAY BEACH -- In a vocal blast that officially kicked off her bid for reelection to the State Senate, Maria Sachs told fellow Democrats Monday night she was ready to "take down the last person who doesn't represent our principles."

She tossed those barbs at fellow senator, Ellyn Bogdanoff. The two officeholders will face each other in a rare two-incumbent race forced on them through redistricting.

Sachs is currently the state senator from District 30. Republican Bogdanoff represents District 25. With the lines redrawn, both candidates are running for the newly created District 34 seat. The new political territory runs from Harbor Isles in Fort Lauderdale to the city of Boynton Beach and hugs mostly coastal areas until it reaches Palm Beach County, where it jogs west and takes in Democratic strongholds like Kings Point.

Fronting a bevy of powerful Democrats at the South County Civic Center, Sachs promised that "that person Bogdanoff will be defeated."

Following the session, Sachs told the Boca Raton Tribune that the new District

34 is skewed slightly in favor of Democrats.

Stepping to the podium before Sachs were such Democratic heavies as Chris Smith, the incoming party leader of the Florida Senate; County Commissioner Burt Aaronson; Democratic Party Chairman Rod Smith and state Rep. Joseph Abruzzo, who is also running for a Senate seat.

Speakers characterized Sachs as a tough competitor. "Maria has done a phenomenal job," said Chris Smith. Aaronson pointed out that "I know Maria is a fighter."

Party Chairman Rod Smith made some predictions and said, "You can hold me to them." He said President Obama and Sen. Bill Nelson will win re-election. He said Sachs will defeat Bogdanoff and Democrats will "end 14 years of domination by one party Republicans in Tallahassee."

In her address, Sachs said she favors women's rights, including a woman's right to choose, and she also backs proper funding of education. She said she also stands four-square in favor of care for the disabled, seniors and veterans.

Preparation for Presidential Debate at Lynn Heating Up

By Dale King

BOCA RATON - As the campaign for the 2012 presidential election in November begins to heat up, so also is the planning for the final debate between the two presidential candidates scheduled for Oct. 22 on the campus of Lynn University in Boca Raton.

Palm Beach County recently came up with $150,000 in tourism tax dollars for the university to market the debate as a destination. Tourism officials say the event is expected to attract 1,000 journalists and fill at least 3,000 hotel rooms in the area.

That decision comes a month after Gov. Rick Scott vetoed $250,000 in state money that was meant to help local communities cover security costs related to the debate.

Although county commissioners approved the tourism tax disbursement unanimously, Commissioner Paulette Burdick questioned university and tourism officials on how the county would benefit.

But Commissioner Burt Aaronson likened the debate to the "Super Bowl," and said it would give the county considerable exposure.

In addition, the Greater Boca Raton Chamber of Commerce is getting into the act.

At a recent business awards luncheon, Chamber President and CEO Troy McLellan announced that the organization "is launching an initiative in conjunction with Lynn University where your company can become an official small business partner to the 2012 presidential debate."

"As a partner, your company will enjoy the benefits of having the eyes of the world on Boca Raton on October 22," he said. "You will be featured on both the Chamber's and Lynn University's debate website pages, receive tickets to an exclusive VIP debate viewing party at Mizner Park - in addition to an official Debate Partner certificate, lapel pins, and much more."

McLellan said, "This is a great opportunity to be a part of something that is very unique and rare - and perhaps once in a lifetime! And although we all might not be watching the debate on Lynn's campus, our community will rally and demonstrate our strengths and special attributes. So, when 3,000 members of the national media descend on our great city in October, let's show them how Boca Raton is unified in our efforts to support our success.

For details and to become an Official Small Business Partner for $255, visit www.bocaratontribune.com/2012debate.

Looking forward to the general election, Lynn has also launched its official "http://debate2012.lynn.edu/" 2012 presidential debate website.

The site will be the university's central repository for all things related to the debate. It will allow users to find out the latest information on student events, classes, community happenings, lectures and other activities related to the event.

"We are thrilled to be a part of this signature event for American democracy," Lynn University President Kevin M. Ross, said. "And this site will help us share information about all the exciting on- and off-campus happenings coming this year that are related to the debate. It will be a springboard for anyone who wants to share in this amazing experience."

The presidential debate will be held in the Wold Performing Arts Center Oct. 22 on the campus of Lynn University in Boca Raton.

The site was designed for easy navigation and quick access to information. As such, it offers two large buttons on the right side: "Become a Volunteer" and "Maps and Directions," and a simple menu along the left side that may expand as more information becomes available.

To help everyone keep track of how long until the event, the site also offers a countdown clock in the upper-right of the site. The clock is visible no matter what page the user is on.

Operation Neighborhood Watch Nets Over a Dozen Arrests

Boca Raton, FL - Over the last couple of weeks, members of the Boca Raton Police Services Department devised Operation Neighborhood Watch to stem the rising number of residential and automobile burglaries in the city. The project involved shifting officers from other areas of the department to undercover assignments, stepped-up intelligence briefings, targeted marked patrols to areas of concern and neighborhood education efforts.

The impact was immediate. Since the start of Operation Neighborhood Watch, more than a dozen people have been arrested for Automobile Burglary, Residential Burglary, Loitering & Prowling and other charges. In all cases the individuals arrested were not from the City of Boca Raton and were in possession of burglary tools or stolen property.

Effective crime prevention starts with alert and involved neighbors. During neighborhood surveys following crimes, many citizens reported that they saw suspicious activity, but did not call the police. The Boca Raton Police Services Department encourages residents to report suspicious activity immediately to 561-368-6201 or 911. If it doesn't look right, it probably isn't right.

Citizens can also find tips to protect their homes on our web site at http://www.ci.boca-raton.fl.us/police/home_security.shtm. Residents may request a home security survey from our Crime Prevention Unit by calling 561-347-3938.

Commission OKs Revenue Bonds for Lynn University Improvements

The Board of County Commissioners approved the issuance of up to $12 million in revenue bonds by the Palm Beach County Educational Facilities Authority for water and electrical infrastructure improvements on the campus of Lynn University in Boca Raton.

Commissioners noted that no county funds are involved.

In other business at its May 15 meeting, the commission took the following action:

Efficiency study - discussed an efficiency study conducted by Gerstle, Rosen & Goldenberg, PA, CPA. The board agreed to hold separate workshops in June to further discuss the report's recommendations and set cost-saving goals and objectives, and to discuss with constitutional officers the feasibility of participating with the county for central services.

Clerk & Comptroller - heard a presentation of the county's annual financial report by Clerk & Comptroller Sharon Bock.

Financial Management & Budget - approved a transfer of up to $200,000 from Pollution Recovery Trust Fund reserves to fund a two-year staff position or consultant to provide climate change action planning and environmental sustainability coordination.

Island Way - continued to the July 10 meeting consideration of an alignment for Jupiter Park Drive/Western Corridor, to be known as Island Way. This road section is located within an unincorporated area of Jupiter between Jupiter Gardens Blvd. and 68th Terrace. Board approval will allow for establishment of the overall alignment from Jupiter Park Drive to Indiantown Road.

Vehicles for hire - adopted a series of amendments to the Palm Beach County Vehicle for Hire Ordinance. They include extending through June 2013 a moratorium that prohibits any new vehicle-for-hire companies from operating in Palm Beach County. Staff will return in three to six months with specific standards mirroring those in effect at Palm Beach International Airport.

Property maintenance - approved a series of amendments to the property maintenance code to create consistency, correct spelling and grammatical errors, and to provide a means to recover the cost of abatement of nuisances via a non-ad valorem assessment.

Pride contract - agreed to extend the county's current contract with Pride Integrated Services for misdemeanor probation services for up to six months. A termination for convenience clause will be added. The extension allows time for the RFP process to be completed without disruption of services.

Boards and committees - approved the removal of one member of the Public Art Committee and one member of the Overall Economic Development Program Committee for non-compliance with the revised Palm Beach County Code of Ethics Ordinance training requirements.

Meet Your Legislators and Community Leaders

BOCA RATON - The Greater Boca Raton Chamber of Commerce and the Junior League of Boca Raton invite the public to honor members of the Palm Beach County legislative delegation and community leaders at a cocktail reception Thursday, May 31 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Vegso Community Resource Center, 261 NW 13th Street, Boca Raton. This event is free and open to the public, but RSVPs are required by Friday, May 25. Please call (561) 620-47781, ext. 1, or emailinfo@jlbr.org.

A Magnificent "Les Misérables"

By Skip Sheffield

If ever there was an epic stage musical, "Les Misérables" is it.

Theater-lovers have a unique treat available only through May 26 with the 25th anniversary edition of "Les Misérables" at Kravis Center in West Palm Beach.

This is a somewhat scaled-down version of the musical I first saw more than 20 years ago in Miami Beach, but it is no less powerful.

This stage musical is based upon Victor Hugo's 1862 novel of the same name. Many consider it the finest work of literature of the 19th century.

"Les Misérables" is a massive work of five volumes, 365 chapters and 1,400 pages unabridged. Obviously it could never fit in a two-and-a-half-hour musical, but producer Cameron Mackintosh and original director Trevor Nunn, working from a French script by Alain Boublil and Jean-Marc Natel, worked miracles in 1985 by shoehorning the sprawling 1815-1832 story into a workable show.

This 25th anniversary Cameron Mackintosh production is faithful to the music by composer Claude-Michel Schonberg and lyricist Herbert Kretzmer, and it is distinguished by amazing new set design and projections by Fifty-Nine Productions.

The story centers on Jean Valjean (Peter Lockyer), a luckless young man who is arrested for stealing a loaf of bread to feed his starving sister and her family. The story begins in 1815 in Digne, France after Valjean has been released from 19 years in prison. In those days an ex-prisoner was forced to carry a yellow passport, which branded him as an offender.

The story moves forward to 1823 in Montreuil-Sur-Mer, where Valjean has been taken in by the kindly Bishop (Joseph Spieldenner). Valjean shows his gratitude by stealing the Bishop's silverware. He is shocked when the Bishop covers for him to the police, forgives him, and even gives him two valuable candlesticks.

While it delves into French history, politics, moral philosophy, anti-royal sentiment and justice, "Les Misérables" is ultimately a tale of redemption, both for Valjean and the man who torments him, Inspector Javert (Andrew Varela).

Valjean earns his redemption by loving the destitute

Fantine (Betsey Morgan) and her out-of-wedlock daughter Cosette (Lauren Wiley as the adult Cosette).

Cosette is in turned loved by Marius (Max Quinlan), an idealistic student who hates the monarchy.

This production is enlivened by the comic antics of the corrupt innkeepers the Thenardiers, played by Shawna M. Hamic and Timothy Gulan.

All of the cast are wonderful singers, but the sound is mixed unmercifully loud for those who are not hard of hearing. Still it is a grand and glorious production. I defy you not to be moved by Lockyer's beautiful "Bring Him Home."

Tickets start at $27 and may be reserved by calling 800-572-8471 or going to www.kravis.org.

Spectacular "Lion King" Exclusively at Arsh Center
Speaking of grand spectacles, Disney's "The Lion King" is the grandest pageantry and puppet show of them all, but you'll have to drive to Miami to see it exclusively at the Arsh Center through June 10.

Tickets start at $25. Call 305-949-6722 or go to www.arshcenter.org.

Nearly 500 People Attended With Funds Raised That Will Add 150 Families into the Drops of Hope Family of Services

Drops of Hope is a 501 (c)(3) non-profit charity that benefits children and families in South Florida. Our mission is to provide transportation for pediatric cancer patients and their families to and from hospitals. The transportation isn't just any ordinary transportation. Drops of Hope, Inc. sends a limousine equipped with the latest video games, kid-friendly movies, snacks, beverages and more. This specialized service provides relief for parents who can enjoy the ride with their child and not worry about traffic, congestion, parking or any other concerns. This is a special service for these special children. The newest addition to our COMPLIMENTARY services is the room makeover. This allows for a child to live a fantasy in their very own room.

The children we assist come from different backgrounds and many are underprivileged. Forced to take public transportation, young patients often ride the city bus, or wait for a taxi to take them to the hospital. Even more heart-wrenching is the ride home. Imagine what it's like just after a chemotherapy treatment, to wait in the extreme South Florida heat or pouring rain at a bus stop.

Since its inception in 2006, Drops of Hope has raised money to benefit pediatric cancer patients and their families. With the help of generous volunteers, sponsors, and donors, we are confident that we will be successful in creating a legacy that provides much-needed relief and assistance to these patients and their families. In 2012, we plan to expand our services to other hospitals and patients. see pics pg.17

Women's Theatre Project Finds New Home in Boca

BOCA RATON – The Women's Theatre Project has found a new home in Boca Raton.

The acclaimed 10-year-old company will move from their performance space in Fort Lauderdale to the Willow Theatre in Sugar Sand Park.

Incorporated in 2002, the Women's Theatre Project is a company of professional female theatre artists dedicated to producing theatrical works exploring the female voice, and the move from their previous intimate 50-seat venue to the Willow's state of the art 155-seat theatre is an exciting step forward in the company's continuing evolution.

"A unique opportunity presented itself at The Willow Theatre," said founding member and Artistic Director Genie Croft. "I've directed The Tale of the Allergist's Wife and several other plays for The Boca Raton Theatre Guild at the Willow, and have imported The Women's Theatre Project's productions of The Year of Magical Thinking and Bridge and Tunnel into the theatre – it's a natural progression to make our home here - a perfect union of theatre, creative growth and venue to expand our productions and mission."

Actress, founding member, and company treasurer Jacqueline Laggy agrees: "This move provides us with the opportunity to continue our work and expand our audience base. We're very excited!"

Carol Sussman, TWTP secretary, and another founding member of The Women's Theatre Project, said she is thrilled the company's mission will continue. "The Willow Theatre is the perfect venue for TWTP to further our vision of telling women's stories," she says. "We have worked long and hard to be able to share our passion with the community and we look forward to many years in our wonderful new home."

The Women's Theatre Project was incorporated as a 501c3 not-for-profit organization in May of 2002. The company was founded from a need for women's voices to be heard, a desire to break down the stereotypes of women propelled by the media, and to create more professional theatrical opportunities for women of all shapes, sizes, races, and ages. The young company quickly drew praise from critics and audiences alike, received numerous Carbonell nominations, and built a strong and loyal following throughout South Florida.

The Women's Theatre Project has presented staged readings, one act, and full length plays. Works by local, national, and international female playwrights have been featured throughout TWTP's 10 year history. Over the past few years, TWTP has run a lesbian play festival in conjunction with the Pride Center.

Two productions are planned for the company's 2012-2013 season at the Willow Theatre, Delval Divas, a comedy by Barbara Pease Weber will run November 2-18, and Faye Sholiton's powerful memory play, The Interview will run January 4-20, 2013. A third production is "not an impossibility," says Croft.

The Willow Theatre at Sugar Sand Park is located at 300 South Military Trail in Boca Raton, just south of Palmetto Park Road. Tickets for Delval Divas will be on sale August 1st and can be purchased at the Willow Theatre Box office: 561-347-3948. Tickets for all performances are $25.

Quality Chinese Cuisine at Old Place Bistro

The Old Place Asian Bistro and Bar centers on standard and unusual Chinese offerings plus a few tastes of Thai.

Located at 2885 Federal Highway in Delray Beach (561-266-9298) they offer dining inside for 150 and another 20 on their patio.

10 sections of the menu total 108 dishes, their combinations another 35 and their chefs selections 14 more – spicy dishes well marked.

This reviewer and 3 foodies enjoy sampling such standards as plump, well filled egg rolls and spring rolls, both with above average taste. Both pork steamed dumplings and the shrimp steamed dumplings were light pockets of fine flavor. My soft shell crab was tasty but not crispy, which I much prefer.

Owner Michael Chang suggested the “House Special Wonton Soup” – a very nice broth with vegetables, shrimp and more! Their hot and sour soup was great with a discernible bite and after bite – a must try. We sampled a sweet Pad Thai shrimp – full flavored with good size shrimp in the excellent sauce.

Chicken with ginger root then chicken with eggplant were both enjoyable. There is a special menu with dishes described in Chinese for their Chinese following. Michael described and presented a great Chinese style basil chicken which we feasted upon.

Ask your server about the extra treat.

We enjoyed the duck with plum sauce – true duck taste comes through and is delicious! A must try.

The average Chinese food goer orders a shrimp with lobster sauce, scallops with snow peas, chicken chow mein and the like. We found them average in taste but we encourage all to seek out their signature dishes. A case in point was the wonderful sliced lamb with garlic sauce, their flavors blended perfectly. Ask your server for suggestions.

Old Place, in addition to dine in or take outs, does catering and banquets.

Their true Chinese dishes are a cut above with nice sized portions for both lunch and dinner. Luncheon from 11:30PM to 3PM daily, a sunset dinner menu to 6:30PM and full dinners from 5PM to 9:30PM Sundays through Thursdays, 10PM Fridays and Saturdays. Established a year ago, they have a following who appreciates true Chinese foods in liberal portions and at attractive prices. Why not- Go and Enjoy!

Excessive consumption of white rice linked to diabetes

A study from Harvard University with more than 350,000 people discovered that excessive consumption of white rice increases the risk of type 2 Diabetes. The results were consistent among people in Asia (Japan and China), and also among people in the United States and Australia. The risk of type 2 Diabetes has increased by 11% for each serving of rice per day This study examined subjects for 22 years that had no diabetes at the beginning of the study. It is extremely important to control the body weight for prevention of type 2 diabetes, including weight loss for those who already are carriers. (British Medical Journal, March 15, 2012)

Child Obesity is an issue in the US and the world

World Health Organization data show that in 2010, 43 million children between 5 and 19 years (35 million in developing countries) are overweight or obese; and 92 million are at risk of becoming obese. The global prevalence of children above the ideal weight and obese increased from 4.2% in 1990 to 6.7% in 2010. If we continue at this pace it is estimated that we will achieve the mark of 60 million in 2020. In 2010, the number of children under five years of age considered to be overweight was estimated at 42 million, with about 35 million of these children living in developing countries. The World Health Organization estimates that 92 million children are at risk of becoming obese worldwide. It is important to stimulate your child to exercise. Avoiding fast foods and sodas is crucial to their health and behavior, not only due to their contribution to obesity but due to the excessive amounts of preservatives and artificial sweeteners present.

High heel shoes and calf pain

Women who used high-heeled shoes for at least two years experienced calf pain when did not wear heeled shoes – this according to an Australian study. High heel shoes shorten the calf muscles by at least 13 percent, but also cause hypertrophy, so these muscles have demonstrated the capacity to produce the same amount of force on the shortened position which produced in elongated position. Women who wear high heel shoes frequently must do stretching exercises for the calves regularly to lessen the pain when using shoes without heels. (Science Daily, July 16, 2010)

Will and Anthony Nunziata Bring Happiness to Royal Room Cabaret

To that good end the 27-year-old singing and joking twins will be headliners for the next four weeks starting Friday, May 25 in the Royal Room Cabaret of the Colony Hotel, 155 Hammon Road, Palm Beach.

"Make Someone Happy" is the duo's new show and also the title to their debut CD. It is done in tribute to the "Rat Pack" era of Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis, Jr.

"It is timeless music," offers Anthony. "We just try to give it a fresh spin."

"It kind of makes sense because we were brought up with this music," adds Will. "While other kids were listening to Madonna and New Kids on the block, we were listening to the great American Songbook. We love visiting Palm Beach because it lets us get out and meet people. Rob Russell (Royal Room manager) discovered us in New York three years ago and he has been very good to us. He took a risk and he's watched us and our audience grow."

In addition to their fresh, handsome appearance, the 27-year-old twins bring a playful sense of humor to their act. In fact the brothers got their start doing stand-up comedy while they were students at Boston College. In New York they performed stand-up at Caroline's Comedy club and the Upright Citizen's Brigade Theater.

"I can be silly but it's a cool silly," Anthony stresses. "Will is just silly. Seriously, we just play off each other."

Since taking their act on the road around four years ago, the New York natives have been all over the world; most recently Singapore. After the Palm

Will and Anthony Nunziata in New York

Beach gig they will be the featured act at Feinstein's July 10-14 in New York City.

Since this is the brothers' longest engagement to date in Florida, they intend to do some exploring and sightseeing.

"Palm Beach and the Colony is our second home," Will declares. "This time we want to get out and see some other places, like Delray Beach and Boca Raton."

When asked if he was more like Sinatra or Dean Martin, Anthony said he leans more toward Sinatra, but it really doesn't matter.

"At the end of the day what we do is music that hopefully touches hearts," he says. "It is lyrics and music that have a universal quality. We may sing older songs, but we want to bring a 20-something spirit to them."

Tickets are $90 for dinner and show or $60 show only. Call 561-659-8100.

Take That,
Israel Bashers!

"Follow Me: The Yoni Netanyahu Story" is a dramatic documentary by Ari Daniel Pinchot ("The Life and Times of Hank Greenberg") about one of Israel's proudest moments: the midnight July 4, 1976 rescue mission to Entebbe, Uganda, where the "Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine" was holding 103 hijacked Air France passengers hostage.

Director Jonathan Gruber has worked from real footage of the then 30-year-old Lt. Colonel Yonatan Netanyahu as well as words drawn from Netanyahu's personal letters and writings along with remembrances by his ex-wife, three Israeli prime ministers and recently-released audio of the daring raid itself.

There is a good reason why Israeli commandos are the most highly-regarded soldiers in the world. The film is tangible proof of their bravery, loyalty and sacrifice. This is a bittersweet story.

Like all men Netanyahu had his shortcomings, which are duly noted. However, his achievement will always be remembered and celebrated. This film is a great way to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the state of Israel.

On The Budget

Transformation

This project was so fun to do, my clients were very open to my ideas. This time I got a little help from a new Brazilian designer Lara Anizio. My clients this time were not scared at all about the colors and so that's why we pushed a little to be doing two tone of grays and petroleum blue as an accent color for a big wall right on the center of the house. This is how it turned out:

The foyer was not attractive. We decided to change a chandelier, add a bench with some colorful pillows, and add an art wall to give charm and elegance. The candle holders were black before so we painted them white. The chandelier is from Z-gallerie, the art wall is from Bed Bath and Beyond, the bench is from Home Goods and the pillows are from Target. The beautiful and elegant chandelier looks like a waterfall.

The dining room is not that big, so we decided to move some furniture around to have more space around the table. We added a thin, long chandelier to bring balance and harmony to the room. Before, the small pictures make the wall seem too big and flat, so we moved the mirror and buffet piece from the room and placed them in front of the dinning space.

The color pallet is very clean and modern. The chandeliers bring elegance, modernity, and harmony to the house, making it inviting and warm. Stencil by On The Budget.

THE CITIZENS VOICE

By Al Zucaro

Fiscal Responsibility or Irresponsibility That is the Question.....

By now everyone in town has seen the Boca Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility's email attacking the City's Fire and Police Pension Plans and arguing that that the City Council should immediately address the unfunded portions of these pensions before it is too late....

This communication begs the questions of....

Why now? Why the sudden urgency? Why this group?

The situation that is being complained of actually dates back at least two decades perhaps three. Firefighters work 42 hours a week, including weekends. This formula was imposed by the city council some 30 years ago and the benefits being complained of were negotiated over many years by former city council members who are no longer in the public eye.

In the 2012 election cycle, one of the charges leveled against Councilman Majhess was that he was a shill for the unions and that he is responsible for the unfunded pension issues now being highlighted by this group. That assertion was and is simply untrue.

Of today's elected body, only the Mayor and Deputy Mayor have been on council long enough to be held, at least, partially responsible for this economic boondoggle. The others ought not be held to answer for the errant ways of past councils. In fact, within the last few years, this council has seen the unions voluntarily agree to reopen contracts resulting in give backs in excess of 1.7 million dollars.

Hence, one can argue that there is already a movement for fiscal responsibility by the unions themselves rather than by this shallow effort to demonize the city's unions as the villain....

Why the urgency?

Could it be to cover up other areas of fiscal irresponsibility?

On May 2, at the city's goal setting session, both founders of Boca Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility spoke sternly against the City Manager's suggestion that the "city could save up to $5 million a year if it turned over its two libraries to the Palm Beach County library system." Both spoke in favor of reducing firefighter pensions claiming they are rising at an unsustainable rate and are the real "elephant in the room."

Perhaps that is so. Perhaps there is good argument that these contracts are 'rich' and need to be modified. But these obligations are contractual and not negotiable at this time, a fact that could not have been overlooked.

Finally, why this group?

One should never attack the messenger because of the message but, this group's founders are far from fiscally responsible. They are also the founders of Friends of the Library and in 2003 pushed the referendum to build a new downtown library. That library just broke ground last week and is estimated to cost in the neighborhood of 12 million dollars with an annual operating budget of 2.5 million. Certainly not a fiscally responsible action in these times and considering that there is a brand new library on Spanish River Blvd, a mere 4.0 miles away.

So one can argue that the Boca Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility are anything but....it is fiscally irresponsible to point fingers towards one set of financial challenges while diverting attention away from the set of financial challenges that your pet project creates.

Of course, politics' can always be seen as rearing its ugly head!

Point the blame for the City's pension boondoggle where it belongs. Place it with past councilpersons and with the two current council members still holding onto their seats of power. Those elected officials that agreed to these 'rich' pension benefits and who gladly accepted the unions' backing in the next election cycle to retain the power and notoriety of elected office.

Should negotiations work to right these perceived excesses? Of course they should.....

Do we need the 12 million dollar library and the 2.5 million in additional annual overheads? I think not....

Do we need to hold onto the Wildflower site and tie up 7 million dollars that could be better utilized to provide services like reopening parks and recreational facilities? Of course we don't....

Do we need to be placed in a situation where some people win while others lose?

I think not.....but then, I don't have a vote....

West Boca Seventh Grader Turns Anti-Bullying Campaign into Successful Business

By Dale King

BOCA RATON -- Rebecca Zerbo, a 7th grader at Eagles Landing Middle School in West Boca, knows that bullying in school is a serious problem. But when it happened to her, she put her anti-bullying response into overdrive.

What came of it was the "Positive Pocket" anti-bullying campaign that has now grown to be an award-winning business. It includes a card with a list of positive affirmations that a person can keep in his or her pockets, lunchboxes, cars or desks to read when things aren't going well – or after an incident of bullying.

The cards are free and available on Rebecca's website, www.positivepocket.org. Zerbo is also launching a line of bracelet-pens that will be sold as a profit-making product for her business.

Zerbo's enterprise got a shot in the arm when she became part of the Young Entrepreneur Academy sponsored by the Greater Boca Raton Chamber of Commerce. As a participant in this year's YEA class of 24, she was selected to compete in the national YEA! Bright Ideas Competition in Rochester last month and won the national title.

She earned a $30,000 scholarship and a trip to Washington D.C. to attend the U.S. Chamber's Small Business Summit this week to be recognized by business and community leaders from all over the United States.

Zerbo told the Boca Raton Tribune that her business "has blossomed" since she joined up with the YEA program.

She remembers the bullying incident well. Another girl walked up to her and "it just started." The bully "took my band folder and threw around the papers. She made a scene. I ran into the bathroom and cried."

After getting so upset by the bullying incident, Rebecca failed a math test, she said.

She spent that night working on the computer to come up with a bullying remedy. It resulted in the creation of the "Positive Pocket."

Rebecca took the card with positive messages inscribed on it to school the next day. When she left at the end of the day, she said, she felt great. And her mother, Laura, noticed the change. "When I pulled up to the school, I saw a complete difference."

Rebecca at national competition in Rochester with Chamber representative Sarah Pearson.

Her mother knows something about the problem as she is a special education teacher. She said she was also aware in the days before the incident when Rebecca did not seem to be herself.

"You could see it in her face. She wasn't bubbly," Laura said.

When Rebecca created the "Positive Pocket," her mother drove her to her grandmother's house where a lot her grandmother's friends asked to bring some of the "Positive Pockets" home for themselves and their friends.

When Laura and her husband, Christopher, saw the success of the "Positive Pocket," they had the name copyrighted.

Rebecca said the people she met through YEA helped her create a website, write a business plan and offered other assistance in setting up the business. "If it were not for YEA, I don't know where Rebecca might be," said her mother. Now, the 7th grader runs her own business, and has spoken about it at several schools, including Sunrise Park Elementary, which she attended. Her 8-year-old sister is a pupil there now.

She said she plans to begin accepting donations that she will turn over to charity. Rebecca held a fundraiser with music and raffles on April 29.

The anti-bullying businesswoman also met with Brett Loewenstern, the Spanish River High School student who finished in the top 24 last year on "American Idol." During his stay on the popular national show, he talked about his experiences with bullying and wrote songs with anti-bullying themes.

"He loved them," she said. "He took some and will share them with his friends."

Rebecca is also working on an app for anti-bullying messages. She also plans to sell advertising on the back of the "Positive Pocket" cards.

Laura Zerbo said her daughter is getting calls from hospitals and rehabilitations looking to spread her positive message among patients. She even got a call from a hospital in Massachusetts where a friend, Chad Kidd, is chaplain. "He responded and thanked her for the help."

Five Bookkeeping Tips for Small Business

BOCA RATON -- Eileen P. Gunn of Entrepreneur.com shares bookkeeping tips that will help you set goals, plan for the future, and stay out of trouble.

Plan for major expenses. You're less likely to miss business opportunities or have to scramble for a loan when the expenses become unavoidable.

Track expenses. A credit card that you use solely for business can be a basic accounting system.

Record deposits correctly. Adopt a system for keeping your financial activities straight, whether it's a notebook you use consistently, an Excel spreadsheet or software such as Quickbooks.

Set aside money for paying taxes. Systematically put a portion of money aside throughout the year for taxes. Then note tax deadlines on your calendar. The IRS can levy penalties and interest for not filing quarterly tax returns on time.

Keep a close eye on your invoices. Late and unpaid bills hurt your cash flow. Assign someone in your organization to track your billing.

BOBBIN' FOR DOLLARS & SENSE

By Robert Child

Inheritance

I just received a seven-figure inheritance from my late aunt's estate. The inheritance is the largest sum of money that I have ever handled. I would like to make sure I have a good plan in place to manage this inheritance. What do you suggest?

You are wise to be cautious and not give into the urge to spend and shrink your inheritance to nothing. A little planning will go a long way toward making the most of your money.

In many cases, receiving a large sum of money carries a "price tag" in terms of taxes. Although income taxes generally are not due on inheritances, there are exceptions. (e.g. for withdrawal from an inherited IRA). So the first thing you should do is find out what the tax consequences will be. Next, put together a sound, long-term strategy for investing and spending.

Sit down with an experienced financial advisor and identify your needs and investment goals.

- What is your current financial situation?
- What is your risk tolerance?
- Age is also a factor to consider.

Since your wealth has increased substantially, you will also want to review your estate plan. You may have an opportunity to control estate taxes and you will want to make appropriate provisions for your family.

Receiving a large sum of money can be thrilling, but it can also be overwhelming. Having a plan for handling the money can help ensure that wise financial decisions are made. Bobbin' for Dollars and Sense is based on a hypothetical situation. (The solutions we discuss may not be appropriate for all investors.)

Bobbin for Dollars and Sense is written by Robert Child, President of Boca Raton-based financial company, Child Group Wealth Management. Bob is known for his common sense perspective. He understands how to think and act during critical times. Few of today's active financial advisors have lived through the NYC Bankruptcy Crisis of 1975 or the Washington Public Power Supply System debacle of 1983. Bob believes both financial catastrophes have strong similarities to today's economic quagmire. When economic times and financial markets were tough, Bob was there and learned from those financial tragedies, first-hand. Advising clients for almost 40 years, Bob has a team of seasoned and disciplined professionals working aside him servicing retirees and soon-to-be retirees, for over eight decades, combined, by carefully assessing the personal needs and financial goals of their clients.

FAITH

Living According To Your Values

Everything we do is influenced by our values. Even if you have never actually sat down and compiled a list of what is important to you, your actions in life are largely determined by the values you hold dear and important. Every time you make a decision, you are relying on your values to tell you what to do.

Unfortunately, some of the values you operate by might be counterproductive to your success and serve as a hindrance to your sense of satisfaction and fulfillment in life. Many of the subconscious values we live by we didn't choose. They were imposed on us by parents, friends, peers, and the culture around you. For instance, studies have shown that today, television programming has become the foremost shaper of values in our society. As a result, if we are not careful, we could find ourselves acting according to incorrect information and values that do not stand up under pressure.

Just as the 'set of the sail' determines the direction of a sailing vessel, your values guide or even dictate the course for your life. If that is true, we must intentionally and often ask ourselves questions such as:

In what direction are my values leading me?

Are they going to deliver what I hope or expect, or will I eventually be disappointed?

Here is another fact about values: They can cause us tremendous amounts of stress. Stress occurs when what we claim to believe and what we truly do believe do not line up. For instance:

When we SAY, "My family is important to me."

But we are always too busy or too tired to enjoy them.

When we SAY, "I value my health."

But we overwork, overeat or eat poorly, and rarely or never exercise.

When we SAY, "I'm not materialistic."

But we become so heavily in debt that we worry constantly about our personal finances.

When two of your values conflict, that's called a dilemma. A study by a prominent research organization recently revealed that conflicting values are a leading cause of emotional tension among business and professional leaders. What, then, is the solution?

1. IDENTIFY WHAT IS REALLY IMPORTANT IN LIFE. We need to articulate a personal definition of success – not someone else's definition, but your own. Remember this: Success is the feeling I get when I live out my values. It is not a destination. You can be successful at any stage of your life, based on your own personal values and goals. Begin by making a list of what you value most in life. Ask yourself, "What is most important; what is going to last?" "...We should choose to follow what is right. But first we must define what is good" (Job 34:3-4).

2. BEGIN BY ELIMINATING THOSE THINGS THAT REALLY ARE NOT IMPORTANT. The culture around us, pressure from friends and peers, and other factors can tempt us to act counter to our best judgment. However, clearly understood values can serve as a helpful, reliable guide. "Do not copy the behavior and customs of this world, but be a new and different person with a fresh newness in all you do and think. Then you will learn from your own experience how God's ways really satisfy you" (Romans 12:2).

Thief on the Phone

My wife and I are both lucky enough to have our mothers around in their mid ninety's. Both have retained their mental acuity and both are revered by our family members, especially by their grandchildren and great grandchildren. These feelings go both ways.

This week, one of the ladies received an unexpected phone call in the middle of the afternoon that went somewhat like this:

"Granny, I'm in trouble," said the voice on the phone.

"Billy, (name changed to protect the innocent) is that you?" she replied, although no grandmother in our family had ever been called "Granny" by any grandchild.

"It's me and I'm in trouble. I've been arrested, I need your help," said the voice. "I was in a car accident, and the other person is in the hospital. They say I was drinking, but I wasn't."

"What do you need?"

"Five thousand to make bond. They would have taken a credit card, but I don't have one on me."

"I'll call your mother."

"Please, don't call anyone, I'd be so embarrassed. Just give me your credit card number and I'll pay you back tomorrow."

By that time it was clear to our mom that something was not quite right. "Billy", the real one, was a totally responsible professional who has never been in any trouble and was on a business trip out of the country. Mom asked for a phone number, and said that she would try to get some money together. The voice said he would call back.

Mom called me and a conclusion was immediately resolved that our "Nonnie" was the intended victim of a scam. The scammer never called back.

The scammer probably continued down some list of senior citizen's phone numbers that he had somehow collected off the Internet and before the day was over successfully completed his thievery.

Just another day in paradise.

High School Football Spring Recap PART 1

Despite Growing Pains, Boca Raton Christian Continues to Build Program

By: Malcolm Shields

As Boca Raton Christian completed its final walk-through practice in preparation for its May 19 spring jamboree in Miami, the Blazers were a focused and loose group on the field. The feelings around the program at this time last year was the complete opposite for the Blazers.

Last April, head coach Clay Shiver inherited a Blazers football program that had fallen on hard times. Reeling from winless season and not having enough players to field a team for a spring game, Shiver went to work to put together a roster. By last fall, the Blazers had 14 players on the team. The fruits of their labor in 2011 produced a three win season.

The three wins were small steps, but for Boca Raton Christian, they were the steps of improvement. "This is a rebuild for this program," coach Shiver said. "The program as far as numbers is increasing. When the numbers increases it gives us the opportunity to do a lot more for the kids."

Entering this spring, Boca Raton Christian has better depth and cohesion as a team. The Blazers will have 19 players dressed for the spring jamboree. By this fall, Boca Raton Christian expects to have close to 25 players on the roster.

With the small roster, the majority of players have to play both on offense and defense. One of those players is senior Caleb Hood. Along with playing linebacker, Hood is a dynamic running back for the Blazers. In 2011, Hood scored 12 touchdowns and nearly rushed for 700 yards in nine games. "He is our stand-out running back," Shiver said. "We are excited to see what will happen with him next season."

Another two-way player is senior Heber Michel. Michel is versatile player who plays tight end, full back and linebacker. "On defense, he really is kind of our lead guy. [He is] the captain of the defense," Shiver said. "He is a big hitter and a big playmaker." His ability has not gone unnoticed as college programs Indiana, Florida Atlantic, FIU and smaller schools have shown interest in Michel.

The spring jamboree will provide an opportunity for Boca Raton Christian to gauge how they matchup against a team that runs the spread offense like Northwest Christian. "It gives us an opportunity to see how we matchup and how we play against that type of offense, but also their type of athletes," Shiver said. "We're excited to get on the field."

Head Coach: Clay Shiver

2011 Record: (3-6 Independent)

Spring jamboree: May 19 at Miami Northwest Christian versus Miami Northwest Christian and Princeton Christian School

Fleury Begins the Process of Turning Around Olympic Heights

By: Malcolm Shields

After being the defensive coordinator at Cardinal Newman for the past three seasons, Kevin Fleury is back on the sidelines as a head coach for Olympic Heights in 2012. One of the first tasks for Fleury was to change the atmosphere that surrounded the program after a losing season in 2011.

"We talk about is accountability," Fleury said. "We're making sure that these kids are accountable, whether it's in the classroom or on the field." His formula for success has worked before as Fleury led Palm Beach Garden to a state championship in 2005.

With the departure of senior quarterback Matt Kelly, the Lions have had a close quarterback competition between Nick Brooks and Richard Thompson throughout the spring. In Olympic Heights spring game against Wellington High School, both quarterbacks will get significant playing time.

Although both quarterbacks are talented, each brings a different skill set under center for the Lions. "Richard has a bit more of an advantage as far as athleticism with Nick having more of an advantage as a thrower," Fleury said. "We are pretty much looking at 1 and 1A right now."

In the backfield, running back John Clerister will have other backs to help him carry the rushing load. "He will be one of our guys with Wesley Innocent and Emilio Fernandez," Fleury said. Degaulle Sama will also get some carries for the Lions. Clerister is familiar with splitting carries.

In 2011, Clerister spit carries with four other runners. He received the most carries with 99.

On defense, Andy Bien-Amie and Walvenski "Wally" Aime will anchor the defensive line for the Lions. In the secondary, cornerback Gaetan Dolbrice and Sama have been solid throughout the spring.

With its matchup against Wellington High School on May 30, there is one main goal the Lions want to accomplish. "We got to pull a win out. Everything is about winning," Fleury said. "We've been practicing since May 1. We got to see where we are at. A lot of guys are going both ways. We're also facing an option team that is going to be tough. We got to be very discipline."

Head Coach: Kevin Fleury (First season at Olympic Heights)

2011 Record: (3-7, 3-2 District 14-6A)

Spring Game: May 30 at Wellington Community High School

Saint Andrew's Balanced Team Production Will be Paramount in 2012

By: Malcolm Shields

As Saint Andrew's wrapped up its spring practices, the Scots have a good balance throughout its roster that will provide production on both sides of the ball in 2012.

Along with its upperclassmen, Saint Andrew's will also rely on some of its underclassmen. "Our juniors and seniors are an experienced group. We got a lot of young guys who played last year for us," McCartin said. "We have a good nucleus of freshman and sophomores."

One of the players that is apart of that young nucleus is quarterback/wide receiver Sean Downes. As a freshman, he started for the Scots first four games under center until an injury knocked him out of the lineup. "I've been feeling pretty good," Downes said about is progression during the spring. "I'm just trying to get better in all facets of my game."

He is in a competition for the quarterback position with Sean Mooney. Mooney led the Scots in the final five games of the season in 2011. "I'm been doing pretty good," Mooney said. "I know that I have a lot of work to do. I just want to keep working." Regardless of who gets the starting nod, both players will be contributors for the Scots in 2012. "They are both neck-and-neck for our starting job," McCartin said. "It's as close a race as you can get."

With the departure of key seniors from last season, the Scots will rely on young core of players at the skill positions to make up for the lost production. One of those players is Jake Bargas. Last season Bargas was one of Saint Andrew's top wide receivers as he ranked in the top five of all the major receiver categories for the Scots.

On defense, the Scots are led by linebacker Jesse Kolinac "Our defense is going to fly around a lot this year and make plays," Kolinac said. "We are really aggressive and fast." The defensive line is also made strides during the spring. "Our D-line has done a great job this spring. We have got a lot of young guys playing," McCartin said. "They seem to be handling it pretty well."

David Rowe has been the leader on both the offensive line and a young defensive line for the Scots. "We got a lot bigger, stronger and we are faster this year," Rowe said. "Defense, we are going to be great."

For the upcoming spring game against Forest Hill, the Scots will be prepared to face the Falcons 3-4 scheme. "We just have to take care of the [defensive] ends and get up to the middle linebacker, make hole for our running backs and give time for our quarterback," said Rowe.

West Boca Raton, Spanish River Limits Gulliver Prep's Running Game in Jamboree

By: Malcolm Shields

On a wet and muddy field at West Boca Raton on May 18, the Bulls faced a Miami Gulliver Prep team that had multiple Division I prospects. One of those prospects is senior running back Bo Ellis. In 2011, Ellis rushed for over 1,200 yards and nine touchdowns for the Raiders.

Although Gulliver Prep was a tough test for the Bulls to conclude its spring football season, West Boca Raton's defense was up to the challenge as they held Ellis in check for most of the scrimmage. The Bulls ended its matchup with Gulliver Prep in a 0-0 tie. "We stopped a real good running back," West Boca Raton coach Willie Dodaro said. "We are real pleased about that."

Offensively, the Bulls had its ups and downs. The Bulls did connect on 44-yard pass play in the final minutes of the game by quarterback Zach Miner to get West Boca Raton in field goal range. With no time out remaining in the final seconds of the game, West Boca Raton was unable to get its field goal unit on the field to attempt a game-winning field goal.

"It was the first time that we ran that offense," Dodaro said. "We moved the ball in certain keys situations and we are seeing some things are lacking. The backside blocking wasn't too good, but that is why we have the spring game for."

Spanish River 0, Gulliver Prep 0

The Sharks also had an opportunity to test themselves against Gulliver Prep's top players. Although they were able to keep the Raiders out of the end zone, Spanish River committed multiple penalties and missed assignments on both sides of the ball.

"Defensively, I thought the effort was good, but with any young team, kids were not lined up in the right place," Spanish River coach Rod Payne said. "I was happy with the effort, but we have a lot of things to go over."

One of the bright spots in the game for Spanish River on defense was Tyler Cousino. He intercepted a Gulliver Prep pass and returned it inside the Raiders red zone in the first quarter.

West Boca Raton 3, Spanish River 0

In a matchup between rivals in District 13-7A, neither side played their starters long as Spanish River played some of its starters in the first couple of possessions and West Boca Raton had most of its reserves on the field against the Sharks from the beginning of the scrimmage. The only points in the game came on a 28-yard field goal by Mike Jaffee with 5:56 remaining in the first quarter.

Why The Miami Heat Should Worry as They Go Deeper in the Playoffs

By: Steve Rawnsley

After riding the historic game four performances by LeBron and Wade in the game four win, the Heat now have home court advantage, and have the momentum heading into what is now a best of three series against the Pacers. On the surface, everything is all good heading into game five. However, there are some major concerns for the Heat heading into the rest of the series, and beyond.

The biggest concern is the same concern that has been there since they formed their trio. That problem is the supporting cast. As great as Wade and LeBron are, they cannot win this series by themselves. The Heat's supporting cast must play better than they have been playing.

Game one was tied going into the fourth quarter. Joel Anthony made a layup a minute into the fourth, and then made one free throw with about a minute left after a loose ball foul. Outside of those two events, nobody on the Heat scored other than LeBron and Wade in the fourth quarter.

In game four, it was the same story, only more extreme. This time Haslem made two free throws with 2:50 left in the second quarter. Only Wade and LeBron scored for the next thirteen minutes before Haslem again hit two free throws with 1:30 left in the third quarter. Then nobody on the Heat scored other than LeBron and Wade, until Haslem made a jumper with 5:56 to go in the fourth. For about twenty one minutes, the Heat's supporting cast had a total of two points. Nobody on the Heat scored other than Haslem, LeBron, and Wade for the final thirty minutes. For the most part, in the two wins, LeBron and Wade have had to win it by themselves.

In game two, outside of LeBron and Wade, the rest of the team had twenty-three points on nine of thirty-four shooting. Mario Chalmers had a great game three, but that was in a blow out, so you can take that with a grain of salt. So far Shane Battier is shooting 10.5% this series. He shot under 40% for the year also, and he is starting in place of Bosh, as they move LeBron to the four. Mike Miller is not much better at 33%, and only averaging 2.5 points per game. These are the guys that the Heat decided to use the mid-level exception on to surround their big trio. They simply have to play better.

LeBron's game four performances was simply historic. According to the Elias Sports Bureau nobody has gone for at least 40 points, 18 rebounds, and 9 assists in a playoff game since Elgin Baylor in 1961. Not to be outdone by LeBron, Wade made eleven straight field goals starting late in the second quarter and ending early in the fourth. As great as these guys are, they cannot play like they did in game four. It is just not sustainable. LeBron left Cleveland because he wanted help, but this looks like Cleveland 2.0 right now.

The other thing to be concerned about is the Pacers just gave game four away. The Pacers missed a lot of open shots in the first quarter. They went 3-11 from downtown and they were all open shots. They Pacers were sixth in the league in three point shooting during the season. The Heat dodged a huge bullet.

The Pacers tried outshoot the Heat to the brink of elimination, instead of going to their strength, post play. Roy Hibbert has been the best player for the Pacers in the series. The fact that the Heat have used a different starting center in each game tells you how much they are hurting in the post, and this is where the Pacers have a huge advantage over Miami. However, in game four Hibbert only got nine field goal attempts in thirty-two minutes. Meanwhile, Leandro Barbosa got ten field goal attempts in nineteen minutes. The Heat did not really double Hibbert all that much either.

David West was also silent, due to the fact that the Pacers fell in love with the outside shot. They did not feed him enough, especially with Battier guarding him. He only got eight field goal attempts in the game. Granger had more three point attempts then West had field goal attempts. This is a very easy fix.

The Pacers played into the Heat's hands, and it still took unsustainable performances by LeBron and Wade to tie up the series.
