Chapman welcomed as new county administrator

Potential. Loads of it.

With just a little over a month in his new position, that’s what has struck new County Administrator Charles Chapman about Hendry County.

Economic and commercial development possibilities, along with a population he feels is “hungry” to make positive change happen, are the catalysts that will spur the county’s future success, using the “raw materials” Hendry County has too often overlooked. His vision for the county isn’t clear right now, but it’s beginning to form as he digs in and learns about his new home. So far, he said he sees about 50 percent of Hendry residents - the “internal drivers” - have the will to get it done.

And, yes, he sees a meaningful conversation between LaBelle and Clewiston as crucial to a successful future - understanding that it won’t be easy. He sees this process as “hands across the glades and groves” - a focus on the common ground so important to underpin the county’s success.

“A win for Clewiston is a win for LaBelle, and a win for LaBelle is a win for Clewiston,” he points out. Hendry County residents need to learn to “celebrate our wins.”

“We need to fall in love with who we are and where we are and what we want to become,” he added. Mr. Chapman was born in Oxford, MS, moved to Crestview

Firefighters respond to two blazes

LaBelle firefighters were kept busy recently with two structure fires. The first was June 30 at 835 Francis Court, off Avalon. An unknown factor caused an outbuilding to catch fire. The family was safe, but unfortunately lost their dog, which was in a kennel. Glades County provided mutual aid with water and personnel. Four fire apparatus were called to the blaze, three from LaBelle and one from Glades. On Saturday, July 6, fire did “substantial” damage to the home at 1336 Apache Circle in North LaBelle. Called in at 11:15 a.m. the residence was occupied but no one was there. As well as LaBelle, units arrived from Pioneer Plantation, Alva and LeHigh Acres to help quell the fire. Chief Clint Walker reported that one LaBelle firefighter sustained a minor facial injury fighting the fire. He was treated and released. Three trucks from LaBelle Fire Department, and one each from LeHigh, Alva and Pioneer Plantation, fought the fire. Chief Walker wants to remind everyone of the importance of having and keeping up smoke detectors in your home. Pictured: Two firefighters struggle to subdue the blaze on Apache Circle.

Florida, when he was 15, and was home-schooled until the ninth grade. Coming here from Gadsden County, outside of Tallahassee, he sees a fair comparison between the two, since both are strong in ag-business and have an ag based economy. Of course Gadsden’s proximity to the capitol gives it a more diverse character.

His experience in North Florida includes achieving a BS and Masters’ degrees in science from Florida State University.

His career successes include selection to chair the College and University Relations Committee for the Florida Recreation and Parks Association Board of Directors, a promotion to the Gadsden County Manager position and oversight of five county department heads, information technology, solid waste, animal control and public relations. He is credited with increasing production and employee satisfaction in those areas, while reducing costs up to 15 percent in 2009.

He revitalized curbside recycling there and helped garner over $5 million in state and federal grants. He earned the Emerging Professional Award from the Florida City/County Manager’s Association; the Star Performer Award for Gadsden County and was appointed to the Florida Rural Broadband Alliance Board of Governors. He became Gadsden County’s Public Works Department Director in 2010.

From 2007-12 he consolidated legislative advocacy programs and developed concensus among his commissioners.

He sees Hendry on the forefront of a contracting ag economy, but ready to launch into a new future.

No surprise, unemployment is the Number 1 problem here, he said, with the need for appropriate job training at its core. He is looking forward to addressing this with our school board partner.

There is a turnaround coming, he said, and Hendry County needs “smart planning” to be ready when it comes.

The other side of that coin is that locals want to preserve the area’s identity rather than be overwhelmed by growth.

Hold on to our unique character is also an integral part of Hendry County’s successful future, he noted. That future will be about being who we are, while still moving forward.

He said he hopes to draw residents into the process by taking advantage of many opportunities to get involved.

He’d love to get the community to commit to a program with at least one project per quarter that would expose unique local artists, craftsmen, farmers and others to a larger audience for their talents and wares. “Get a buzz going about what Hendry County has to offer, he said.

As a whole, the county needs to identify its local legends - its shiny pearls that have been overlooked. “We need to brand ourselves,” he said, to draw others in. The idea is to “reconnect” with ourselves and increase interest from the outside.

To date, Mr. Chapman said he has encountered no real negatives, although there is always some resistance to change by those not open to new ideas.

He commended the county commissioners on being “open and positive” and said he is very encouraged by a “wonderful county staff” that is focused on people.

He said he has found the board of county commissioners to be remarkably unified in its desire to be of service to the county and in its openness to building relationships.

The privatization of Airglades Airport is, of course, the county’s premier economic development project, poised for growth. Still a few years shy of being implemented, it holds the promise of job opportunities with good salaries for local folks.

Airglades is an opportunity for locals to learn to take pride in and celebrate themselves, he noted.

Airglades is the keynote project at this time. Selling a county airport to a private entity - to Airglades International Airport (AIA) in this case - has never been done before by county or the FAA. It’s a new and delicate process that both sides are feeling their way through.

When complete, AIA will attract contracts with distributors and light manufacturing. There are lots of positives in LaBelle as well. It’s a nice small town, where people know everybody.

Mr. Chapman’s idea is to play “small ball.” Building relationships, “putting feet to good ideas,” and finally learning to tell Hendry County’s story will earn big dividends in the end.

The commissioners are looking forward to a good relationship with Mr. Chapman, that will benefit the entire county.

Commissioner Al Perry said that, halfway through the Skype interview with Mr. Chapman “I knew he was my choice.” He said he’s been looking for an ethical leader that makes everyone proud of our great county.

He added, “Charles is a good leader that will serve Hendry County for a long time is a very tough process. Mr. Chapman has my full support and I hope he has a long prosperous career in Hendry County.”

Commissioner Karson Turner echoes those feelings. “I feel that Charles possessed a confidence that I easily detected from the moment he began his interview and his detail for answering questions and giving specific examples of how he would measure and assess success versus failure was a huge positive for me personally. I also feel that he has a level of professionalism and understanding of a county like ours and the variables that you have to consider in doing the job.

He added that he looks forward to the county administrator “leading our county employee base into the future” and bringing the county together with some small successes which turn into big victories countywide.

He said there’s a “hunger in staff already” for someone who worked his way up through the system and was a standout. He said he believes Mr. Chapman is the person that will build the correct team to manage the job within our financial constraints.”

He concluded, “This was a great process that our entire board and some key staff members engaged in. I think that while it was difficult for some to watch as we passed on other viable candidates I was extremely pleased and so proud of our board and Hendry County for choosing the right candidate. Charles is going to have a tough job ahead of him but we are looking toward building a better Hendry for generations to come. I like where we are moving. Our entire board felt good about this decision because it was the right decision. Now we have to pick up the pace a bit and get on this new path.”

For Commissioner Darrell Harris, it was Mr. Chapman’s answers that made him a standout. He said he believes Mr. Chapman can bring together county employees to improve morale that has been sapped by a lagging economy. “I expect him to lead staff with new ideas in savings and budget and work with the EDC to attract more business and jobs.” He added that Mr. Chapman will have a good working relationship with staff and work for the good of the county.

“He’s a good communicator and people person who worked his way up through the ranks.”

Commissioner Harris concluded that, with his experience and work background, the new administrator will be a good fit to address Hendry’s problems.

Talks of HCSO takeover of Clewiston Police Dept.

by Melissa Beltz
The Clewiston News

Rumors about a possible absorption of the Clewiston Police Department by Hendry County Sheriff’s Office (HCSO) have once again surfaced as of late. These rumors were confirmed by City Manager Al Perry on July 2.

Early budget discussions have led to talks about the Clewiston Police Department being “overtaken” by HCSO as early as October 1, when the new fiscal year begins.

While these sorts of discussions have come up in years past, the numbers are currently being crunched to see how much an absorption of the Clewiston Police by HCSO, or at least consolidation of certain services would save the city of Clewiston, according to City Manager Perry. Shared services could include dispatch and communications.

If the numbers come out in HCSO’s favor and the city saves a large amount of money as a result of the takeover, certain aspects of the deal still remain a cause for concern; namely, if HCSO will absorb not only Clewiston Police’s territory, but its employees. HCSO is also its own entity. Save for the Board of County Commissioners setting its budget, the buck stops with Sheriff Whidden, and no one else. The Clewiston Police, on the other hand, answers to the Clewiston City Commission and the City Manager.

Clewiston Police Chief Don Gutshall is not keen on the idea of HCSO possibly taking over his department. “I, of course, do not think it’s a good idea. ... I don’t think you’ll find the support for this in the community. I have full confidence in the [city] commission to do the right thing for the community,” said Chief Gutshall, adding: “I still think [the Clewiston Police] is the best, most efficient law enforcement group around the Lake.”

Regardless of the possible issues that could come with the takeover, until the numbers come back as to how much the city will save, the HCSO takeover will remain a whisper about town. Sheriff Steve Whidden was not immediately available for comment.

Arrest Reports

LaBelle
Ronald Francis Daniels, 52, was arrested July 6 and charged with battery domestic by strangulation. G. Rodriguez was arresting officer.
Reuben Marquez III, 22, was arrested July 7 and charged with battery touch or strike and grand theft motor vehicle. G. Rodriguez was arresting officer.
Ricky Allen Nealy, 52, was arrested July 5 and charged with possession of a weapon or ammo by a convicted felon. R. Maldonado was arresting officer.
Cathavius Lenard Adams, 18, was arrested July 5 and charged with burglary of an unoccupied conveyance unarmed and grand theft motor vehicle. J. Coney was arresting officer.
Paul David Church, 44, was arrested July 4 and charged with hit and run - failing to stop and remain at a crash involving injury. Reports indicate he struck another vehicle from the rear as it was stopped on CR 78 at a stop sign, then sped away. The victim called 911 and followed. Deputies stopped Church on MLK at West Seminole Ave. The victim said a child was complaining of pain but refused treatment. R. Maldonado was arresting officer.

Clewiston
Luis Francisco Fuster, 28, was arrested July 7 and charged with burglary of a structure unarmed no person inside and resisting an officer - interfering with a law enforcement officer without violence. OPD Officer Malley was arresting officer.
Owenya Aquaria Evans, 22, was arrested July 7 and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon no intent to kill. M. Brawner was arresting officer.

Robert Brian Caryl, 50, was arrested July 7 and charged with simple assault with threat to do violence, burglary of an unoccupied structure unarmed and grand theft $300-$5,000. A. Campbell was arresting officer.
Javier Pelon Rodriguez Jr., 18, was arrested July 5 and charged with possession of a weapon - short barreled gun, rifle or machine gun, contributing to the delinquency of a minor - causing a minor to commit an act of delinquency and resisting an officer - interfering with a law enforcement officer without violence. R. Shepherd was arresting officer.

Robert Morris McGee, 63, was arrested July 3 and charged with hit and run leaving the scene of a crash with property damage and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon - no intent to kill. According to the sheriff’s report, the victim was driving south on CR 833 when a Chevy Suburban with Wyoming tags struck his F-150. The victim followed and saw McGee in the Suburban turn into a dirt road with a gate. When he pulled up, McGee approached his truck and struck it with his hand, accused the victim of hitting his side mirror and pulled a gun out as he threatened to shoot. The victim was on the phone with the sheriff’s office and was advised to back away, deputies were on their way. At the scene deputies found a Springfield semi automatic 40 caliber weapon in McGee’s vehicle. EMS personnel treated facial laceration for McGee which he suffered shortly before the incident between McGee and the driver of the F-150. McGee’s mirror was apparently stuck in that other incident and parts of it flew inside McGee’s open window, striking him in the face. R. Garcia was arresting officer.

Things never change: Ten ways to kill a church

Recently I read a church newsletter that was written in 1959 entitled, “10 Ways to Kill a Church.” I don’t remember that year – as a two year old, I was in the church nursery that year. I was intrigued as to what was happening in the church world back in the last year of the 50’s and wondered how things would compare to today.

The thing that interested me the most is how this list of “church killers” written in 1959 looks so much like the usual suspects in many church deaths today. See if you can note the resemblance.

1. Don’t come. One of the biggest church killers is waning attendance. Many people simply can’t find the time to spend an hour or two in the Lord’s house. We find excuse after excuse as to why we can’t make it.

2. Find fault. When things are great and they have a difficult time breaking in new people or difficult to get there,” they’re ready to “curse God and die” (Job 2:9). The only thing that dies with that kind of attitude is the church.

3. Be late. A lack of punctuality when it comes to church attendance.

4. Find fault with everything and everyone. Most homicide investigations begin by researching those who had something negative to say about the victim. Similarly, when a church dies, you can be sure that the fault finders are prime suspects. These are the folks who sit “in the seat of the scornful” (Psalm 1:1).

5. Never accept a leadership role or responsibility. Many people have a “renters” mentality when it comes to church; they take no ownership.

6. Get mad. When you rent an apartment, if something breaks, you call the landlord to fix it. Since you don’t own it, you have no obligation to fix it.

7. Never give your opinion in a meeting … wait until AFTER the meeting. A sure fire sign to criticize those who are doing the most!

8. Don’t reach out to the unchurched. The primary purpose of the Church is to introduce people to Jesus.

9. Hold back on your giving to the Lord. Where no one voices their opinions, the church is dying because of a lack of financial support.

10. Don’t reach out to the unchurched.

The people in the pews must take ownership of that responsibility and become “mini-churches” that reach out to the unchurched every day and bring them to the house of the Lord to be discipled. Churches need regular and consistent “transfusions.”

When new people are brought into the church, they bring new life and vibrancy. They ensure that the church doesn’t get stuck in the old way of doing things. They bring fresh perspective, and they help keep the church alive.

Don’t kill your church! Go and bring in some new people today!

Dr. Les Morgan is pastor of Caloosa Baptist Church, located on Highway 80 across the street from City Hall in Labelle.

Letter to the Editor

Where’s the justice?

Editor:

I recently saw on TV a man walking across Florida or maybe the US. He was wearing sandals, protesting the death penalty. I believe he has the right to voice his opinion.

My question is: Has he ever had a close person to him murdered? This person lost his life. There are no deals to make in the death penalty. There are always circumstances involved in a death.

Anyone committing a crime who kills a person should be put to death. Any pre-meditated killing should be dealt the death penalty. Any killing where there is no doubt who did the killing should carry the death penalty. A killing in self defense should be legal with no penalty.

The justice system in the US is in need of major change. Any person who is too lazy to work to feed themselves gets arrested and put in jail. There they get free room and board for however long they are there. It used to cost $85 a day to house a minimum security prisoner. I’m sure that has changed.

You and I pay that bill. Where is the justice in that?

There should be work the prisoners can do to help pay for their room and board, medical expenses, etc., but that’s only my opinion. This old citified country boy could be wrong.

Youth group to have movie night for Compassion International

by Sarah Lapp

On Sunday, July 14, the youth group of Carlson Memorial United Methodist Church will host a showing of “Monsters Inc.” on the lawn near Upthegrove Elementary School (directly across from the church on 310 Campbell Street) beginning at 8 p.m. All proceeds go to Compassion International, a Christian organization which sponsors less fortunate children in third world countries.

Admission is free. The EDGE youth group will be offering concessions including snow cones, nachos, popcorn, cotton candy, and soda for purchase. Anyone in the community is invited and encouraged to bring lawn chairs, pillows or blankets.

Jessica Smith, a 2013 graduate of LHS and leader of the EDGE youth group, has taken charge of the fundraiser and dubbed it “Mission: Compassion Christmas.” The goal of the fundraiser is to raise money for Compassion International so that they may purchase Christmas gifts to children that could use some cheer.

“My motivation behind this project is to give children joy through gifts. I want to provide them with just one day that they can forget about all the poverty and hardships that they face in their everyday lives,” Smith said.

The EDGE youth group has first-hand connections to Compassion International, as they have a sponsored child of their own.

“We have sponsored a six year old boy named Cristian Sanchez, who lives in the Dominican Republic, for two years. Our donations have helped him receive a better education and standard of living. This year we wanted to provide a Christmas present to Cristian. Any monies raised over that will go to Compassion International; they will distribute the revenue to various children, both sponsored and unsponsored,” Greg Gunter, Interim Youth Director at Carlson said.

Sponsorship packets will be available at the fundraiser. The EDGE youth group and event coordinator Jessica Smith will be present to answer any questions and share their experiences with Compassion International. The invitation is open to all who wish to attend on Sunday, July 14. If you have any questions contact Greg Gunter at (863) 517-1088.

The scholarship is available to Felda residents who are graduating seniors or continuing their education.

Rep. Hudson: Distinguished Advocate

The Florida Chamber of Commerce has named Florida District 80 Representative Matt Hudson as one of 29 legislators who earned the 2013 Distinguished Advocate award. Five of those 29 live in the Fort Myers/Naples area. There are 9 senators and 20 representatives on the list. Along with Rep. Hudson, other area legislators honored include: Representative Kathleen Passidomo (Naples), Senator LizBeth Benacquisto (Fort Myers), Senator Garret Richter (Naples) and Representative Matt Caldwell (Lehigh Acres). Each elected official on the list fought to put Florida in position to become the number one job creator in the nation. Representative Matt Hudson led the charge to reduce workers' compensation costs (HB 605/SB 662). Florida Chamber Distinguished Advocates are named annually and are special awards presented to legislators who go above and beyond in advocating pro-jobs legislative priorities to make Florida more competitive. The Distinguished Advocate award announcement is in addition to publishing grades earned by all 160 legislators on the Florida Chamber’s Legislative Report Card in May, and naming Representative Larry Metz as the Florida Chamber’s 2013 Most Valuable Legislator in June. Rep. Hudson (yellow shirt) is pictured receiving an award from the PACE Girls Center in Immokalee.

HRMC announces new ER Nurse Manager

Hendry Regional Medical Center is proud to announce the selection of Kara Helvey as the hospital’s new ER Nurse Manager.

Kara was born in Pahokee Florida. She spent much of her childhood in the sweet town of Clewiston, visiting back and forth with her grandmother. Kara graduated from Glades Day School in Belle Glade. She attended Palm Beach State College and, in 1999, received her associate degree as a Registered Nurse.

Choosing a career in the medical field wasn’t a big surprise for those who knew Kara. She comes from a family of doctors and nurses. Both Kara’s paternal and maternal grandmothers were nurses. Her maternal grandfather was the renowned Dr. E.C. Johnson, a general practitioner and one of the founders of Everglades Memorial Hospital that was formerly located in Pahokee.

Having been employed at Hendry Regional Medical Center since 2002, Kara initially started on a per diem basis and later became a full-time employee. She has worked as an emergency room nurse, critical care nurse and operating room nurse at Hendry Regional. Kara assumes her new position with much experience and professionalism.

Kara is very excited about making positive changes in the emergency room at Hendry Regional Medical Center. Her goal is to increase patient flow and decrease patient wait time in the emergency room. She states that her personal vision aligns directly with the hospital’s mission statement - To Excel in Quality, Compassion, and Innovation to make our Community Healthier. “I want the people in our community to be very proud of Hendry Regional Medical Center,” says Kara.
Sunday evening family movie night

Sunday evening July 14 at 6 p.m. everyone is invited to see the movie “Meant To Be.”

This is a Christian movie dealing with 20-year-old Nathan Burr (Bradley Dorsey) who loses his career and his girlfriend. He questions his purpose in life. Compounding his struggle, Nathan grew up in a foster home and never met his birth mother. He sets out on a quest to his birthplace to find his mother and come to terms with her rejection of him. Upon his arrival, Nathan checks into a hotel and meets Mase (Delia Reese), the hotel’s housekeeper. With the help of Mave and his new friend Shelly (Kristen Renton), Nathan embarks on a journey to uncover the answers to his clouded past. Nathan will soon realize that God’s plan for his life is much greater than he ever could have imagined.

LaBelle Assembly of God is located on Fraser Avenue across from the Edward A. Updegrove Elementary School. For more information call 675-0900. There is no charge for the movie and even the popcorn is free.

FWC seeks public input on south Florida deer management

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) will host a series of public meetings in July to help shape the future of deer management in Zone A of south Florida.

“We are working on an exciting project to establish deer management units (DMUs) throughout Florida,” said Cory Morea, the FWC’s Deer Management Program coordinator. “We are moving to a new model of deer management in the state in which hunters and other stakeholders will have a greater impact on deer management decisions.”

DMUs will, where needed, divide the state into smaller geographic areas where deer population characteristics are similar. Right now, the state is divided into four management zones that are used to set hunting season dates based on deer breeding chronology.

One DMU is proposed for Zone A, which would include all or portions of Broward, Charlotte, Collier, Miami-Dade, DeSoto, Glades, Hendry, Highlands, Lee, Martin, Monroe, Okęchobee and Palm Beach counties. The new DMUs are intended to allow the FWC more flexibility with deer management based upon the deer population, habitat conditions and public preference within each of the units.

“We surveyed hunters, farmers and other members of the public to determine attitudes and opinions regarding deer management, and we will be sharing the results of that survey at the public meetings. We will present information on the DMU model and will be gathering public input on deer management preferences,” said Morea. “We are also proposing a change for the northern boundary of Zone A so that it better matches the existing chronology of the deer.”

For people who cannot attend any of the meetings, there will be other opportunities to learn about this project and provide input.

“We have information on our website and we will be accepting comments online,” said Morea, adding that public input will determine what changes may be made in managing deer based on public preference.

“Of course, we wouldn’t do anything to risk the sustainability of this valuable public resource, but deer densities and other deer management preferences, such as antlerless seasons, can be adjusted to accommodate public preferences using the DMU model.”

A technical assistance group (TAG), composed of members of the public, will be established to review all available public comments and make recommendations to the FWC on the DMU within Zone A. The public meetings and the TAG will be facilitated by a third-party vendor, Normandeau Associates, which will submit a summary report to the FWC.

TAG members will be chosen based upon their expertise, their representation of an important interest group, and their willingness to dedicate some time to better deer management in Zone A. Anyone interested will be able to apply for TAG membership at the public meetings or on the FWC’s website.

More information about the meetings, the proposed DMUs and the Technical Assistance Group and meeting information is available online at MyFWC.com/Deer. Click on “Deer Management Units.” For more information, contact Cory Morea at 850-617-9487.
New York, NY (July 2, 2013) – With the school year over and summer officially here, kids are spending more time outdoors. Exposure to the sun’s harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays increases skin cancer risk, which can be dangerous and even deadly. Suffering one or more blistering sunburns in childhood or adolescence more than doubles a person’s chances of developing potentially deadly melanoma later in life. However, skin cancer is highly preventable, and adopting a complete sun protection regimen can drastically reduce skin cancer risk. There are many things parents and caregivers can do to keep children sun-safe, whether they are at camp, the beach or just in the backyard.

“Children are more sensitive to the sun, and the sun’s rays are strongest during the summer months, when children tend to spend ample time outdoors,” says Perry Robins, MD, President of The Skin Cancer Foundation. “Teaching children to adopt a sun-safe lifestyle when they’re young will prevent skin cancer and encourage them to begin lifelong healthy skin habits.”

Help children enjoy outdoor activities safely this summer with these tips from The Skin Cancer Foundation:

At Summer Camp
- Remind kids to seek the shade: Tell kids to play in shaded areas in order to limit UV exposure. Check with counselors to see if there are adequate places for campers to seek shade during outdoor activities taking place between 10 AM and 4 PM, when UV rays are most intense.
- Dress kids in sun-protective clothing. For optimal protection from the sun, send kids to camp in tightly woven or knit, dark- or bright-colored fabrics. Don’t forget wide-brimmed hats (though a baseball cap is better than nothing) and wraparound, UV-blocking sunglasses.
- Practice sunscreen application beforehand. Teach children to apply 1 ounce (2 tablespoons, or about the size of a golf ball) of sunscreen to all exposed areas, 30 minutes before outdoor activities. Remind them to cover easily missed areas such as the back of ears and neck, and the tops of feet and hands. If camp rules allow, ask counselors to help children reapply sunscreen every two hours, or after swimming or excessive sweating. For extended outdoor activities, a broad-spectrum (UVA/UVB) sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher is best.
- At the Beach
  - Dress kids in sun-safe swimwear. Look for high-UPF (Ultraviolet Protection Factor) swim shirts or rash guards, and choose bathing suits that cover more skin, like one-piece suits and long trunks.
  - Take extra precautions. Remember that water and sand reflect the sun’s rays. Help children reapply sunscreen frequently, cover them up with clothing, and bring a beach umbrella for kids to play under. The most effective beach umbrellas provide a minimum UPF of 30.
  - Talk to your teens about tanning. Teenagers may be tempted to “lay out” or visit tanning salons. But there is no such thing as a safe tan. Because tanning itself is caused by DNA damage to the skin, remind teens that tanning increases skin cancer risk, and leads to wrinkles, blemishes and age spots later in life.
- Additional Skin Cancer Prevention Tips
  - Avoid sunburn. It may seem like a temporary irritation, but sunburns cause long-lasting damage to the skin.
  - Keep newborns out of the sun. Sunscreen should be used on babies over the age of six months.
  - Practice what you preach. Incorporate these tips into your own lifestyle. You’ll not only set a good example, but you’ll reduce your risk of skin cancer, sun damage and skin aging.

About The Skin Cancer Foundation
The Skin Cancer Foundation is the only global organization solely devoted to the prevention, early detection and treatment of skin cancer. The mission of the Foundation is to decrease the incidence of skin cancer through public and professional education and research. Since its inception in 1979, the Foundation has recommended following a complete sun protection regimen that includes seeking shade and covering up with clothing, including a wide-brimmed hat and UV-blocking sunglasses, in addition to daily sunscreen use. Edison State College building to be renamed

July 8, 2013 – FORT MYERS, FLA. – Following a licensing agreement between Edison State College and Presidio, Inc., Building G on the Edison State College Lee Campus will be renamed The Presidio Information Technology Center.

The new name went into effect July 1 and will remain for at least five years in exchange for a $500 thousand reduction in the cost of a new Voiceover Internet Protocol (VOIP) phone system, its software and hardware, and its installation and implementation at all three Edison State College campuses and its center in LaBelle.

In preparation, the college will increase its bandwidth and the internet technology and network infrastructure at the Collier Campus will be enhanced. Installation will be complete in spring 2014. A ribbon cutting to celebrate the new name will be planned at the Lee Campus in the fall.

“it’s a win-win when we can reduce the amount of money we have to spend,” said Dr. Jeff Stewart, vice president, Research, Technology, and Accountability. “The new phone system will replace the antiquated system we have now. Instead of using a regular phone system, it will run over the college’s internet network and provide a backup to the incoming calls. It will have caller ID and a missed call log, and can convert voicemail messages to email. It will be a more efficient system for our students, faculty, and staff.”

Celebrating 50 years of excellence, Edison State College is Southwest Florida’s largest, most accessible and affordable institution of higher education. Proud to provide tobacco-free campus, Edison State serves more than 24,000 students across five counties and through Edison Online. For more information please visit www.edison.edu.
Corps helps make Florida panther corridor a reality

By Erica Skolte
U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

Sometimes it really does take a village to accomplish an important goal. Numerous partner agencies, non-governmental organizations and ranchers came together in La-Belle recently to celebrate the acquisition of the American Prime property one year ago, and to chart the path forward. The purchase of this “keystone tract,” now known as the Lone Ranger Forge, preserved a vital corridor for natural expansion of the endangered Florida panthers. The movement of the animals northward is considered to be one of the keys to the continued recovery of the species.

Panther scientists estimate that there are only 100 to 140 Florida panthers remaining in the wild, and the last remaining breeding population of Florida panthers is in south Florida, south of the Caloosahatchee River.

Though their home ranges are fairly large, female panthers tend to stay close to where they were born. When males mature, they naturally disperse. Historically, this was a wonderful natural strategy for maintaining genetic diversity, as males could introduce fresh genetic material as they bred with small pockets of related females throughout the southeastern part of the country. With breeding populations in more than one area, there is less competition for prey, mates and territory, and intra-specific aggression, a leading cause of death second only to vehicle collisions, is reduced. And if there are separate populations in different locations, it is easier for the species to recover from the effects of a natural disaster or a disease outbreak.

Though there have been numerous stories of panthers with kittens north of the Caloosahatchee, none have been confirmed by panther scientists. However, maintaining a path for panthers to migrate to other areas is of the utmost importance.

The areas east and west of Lake Okeechobee were not previously connected; today, one may cross the state from the Atlantic Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico on the Okeechobee Waterway. In the late 1800s, the headwaters of the Caloosahatchee River were connected to the west side of Lake Okeechobee via a three-mile canal at the Moore Haven Lock and Dam. On the east side of Lake Okeechobee, the St. Lucie canal was cut at the Port Mayaca Lock and Dam, connecting the lake to the St. Lucie River. This presented a problem for the northward movement of panthers, in that they had to cross a wide body of water and climb steep banks caused by channelization.

Still, panther biologists have tracked the movement of male panthers with radio collars across the Caloosahatchee River in one key area. Animals don’t move randomly through the wild; even creatures of different species tend to move through certain areas more frequently than others, sometimes even creating trails. The panthers coming out of south Florida seemed to be traveling along the edges of a natural waterway, and then following an agricultural ditch to a narrow spot along the Caloosahatchee River.

It was this area that was identified as most important to preserve and protect, so that panthers could continue to move northward in the future.

Just how special is this spot? During the meeting, neighboring ranchers Chris Asplundh and Dwayne House, provided some perspective on just how important this area is – though few people have been lucky enough to get a glimpse of a Florida panther in the wild, House and Asplundh say they see panthers in the area almost every week.

The 1.278-acre Lone Ranger Forge property where the ditch is located, fronts a narrow section of the Caloosahatchee River that is about 92 feet wide, only a few miles west of the Ortona Lock and Dam. The complex purchase of this key property last year, with an incredible number of moving parts, extraordinarily tight deadlines, and multiple legal and funding issues, was brought to a successful conclusion at the eleventh hour, due only to dedication and combined efforts of many individuals and groups working together to achieve a common goal.
