Port receives extension of critical designation

The Port of Port St. Joe received some strategically important news from the state’s Strategic Intermodal System (SIS), a crucial designation that provides a link to federal and state funding for the port. The port was named an “emerging SIS” member in 2006, but that designation, which is linked to criteria for goods and people moving through the port, was due to lapse this year. The Port Authority, armed with a new collaborative agreement signed last year with The St. Joe Company, applied for an extension of the SIS designation, with FDOT District III officials assisting in the application and lobbying the main office in Tallahassee for the extension. District III Secretary James T. Barfield wrote to port officials on March 15 to officially confirm the Port of Port St. Joe was granted the extension—The FDOT no longer uses the “emerging” designation—through Feb. 25, 2016. “This is very good news indeed,” said Barry Sellers, director of the Gulf County Economic Development Alliance. The designation also includes the waterfront corridor, the port harbor channel, andturning basin from the Gulf Coast shipping channel and the Gomexx Blowing outer harbor railroad terminal. Providing an echo to words that have been stated during recent port meetings, Barfield acknowledged the move is required to develop the port. However, FDOT officials had taken a kinder eye to the Port of Port St. Joe and the SIS designation since the Port Authority and St. Joe on-boarded a formal agreement to develop the port. “The Department recognizes the need of this area (the port, rail and channel) will take additional time to become operational and meet the minimum criteria thresholds for our السابق.”

Auburn University students spend their break improving community

While many youth across the country invaded various beaches to relax, party and get away from the school grind, a group of students from Auburn University spent their spring break in Gulf County last week on a mission to make a difference. Three hundred students forming 25 construction crews positioned around Mexico Beach and Port St. Joe painted, landscaped, pressure-washed and performed repairs on buildings and homes within the community. Relations with the community were further developed through street ministry and a basketball camp at Oak Grove Church. The students are congregation members of First Baptist Church in Opelika, Ala., that for the past six years have worked alongside the Gulf County Christian Community Development Fund to coordinate projects for the students while they’re in town. The city clerk for Mexico Beach resigned last Tuesday evening during the regular monthly meeting of the city council. In resigning, Deborah McLeod said one person on the city council that she “had a hard time dealing with.” During her resignation notice, McLeod mentioned councilmember Tanya Castro had bullied and harassed her constantly. Castro was elected to city council in the most recent election for the next two years. “This is what’s best for the city and her,” said an emotional McLeod after she submitted her letter of resignation. McLeod said she had received an opportunity from a private organization. “She was elected to city council in the most recent election,” McLeod said. “This is what’s best for the city and her,” said an emotional McLeod after she submitted her letter of resignation. The Port St. Joe city election cycle cranks up again next week. Candidate qualifying for the May general election will begin at noon on Monday, April 14, and continue through noon on Thursday, April 18.

There are three city commission seats up for grabs in May.

The mayor/commissioner seat currently held by Mayor Mike Bagal- som is one, with Magidson announce- ing to the last remaining member of the commission he would be seeking re-election for the next two terms. Magidson is seeking his fourth term.

First-term city commissioners Bo Patterson and Bill Kennedy, who occupy the Group II and I seats, respectively, are also up for re-election. See ELECTION A3
New legislation also would reduce federal regulations for inshore and offshore fisheries.

By VALERIE GARHAM
The Star Thursday, March 21, 2013

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council approved a 27-day red snapper season back in February which state officials feel could be quite a boost to the community if the federal government did not intervene.

Capt. Anderson’s Marina President Pam Anderson, who works closely with students at local elementary schools, feels the effects of the federal government’s intervention in the fishery are detriments to the coastal communities of the Panhandle.

“With federal waters fishing boundaries now set at 20 fathoms, which is a lot further than nine miles, it is quite the opposite of what the people in our industry who make a living from the water want,” Anderson said.

The recent legislation would “cast a life preserver,” Anderson said. “It would definitely be an economic boost to the coastal communities because we need some major change with the fishery management, and the stock assessment process will definitely be an economic boost to the coastal communities.

“We don’t have any other option,” Anderson said.

Pam Anderson, operator of Capt. Anderson’s Marina in Panama City Beach, said the Gulf Fishery Fairness Act also would eliminate a rule that keeps federal permit holders from fishing in state waters when federal waters are closed for certain species.

“With that control we would see a positive step because the state will have more authority over the data collection process and the stock assessment process,” Anderson said.

“The state could have some major control over that.”

Anderson said marine biologists and charter fishing operators took a big hit when the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act was amended with tightened regulations.

“The Gulf Fishery Fairness Act will definitely be an economic boost to the coastal communities in the Gulf states.”

Local elementary teacher meets with Gov. Scott

The Star Thursday, March 21, 2013

It’s a great day to be a Republican!

The six 2013-2014 District Teachers of the Year received a special recognition from the legislature.

“As a teacher at Port St. Joe Elementary School, Carmel Dodson and several others were named 2013-2014 District Teacher of the Year last month.

Dodson risked and has invested a lot of themselves in creating the school’s butterfly garden and implementing a host of climate-friendly programs in her classroom.

“While the academics are ongoing, I seek to truly learning, interested in each student, and committed to helping them grow to their greatest potential,” Dodson said during the ceremony.

In addition to Dodson, Scott also recognized District Teacher of the Year from Bay County, Jackson, Washington, and Madison counties.

As a teacher at Port St. Joe Elementary School, Scott noted during the meeting, Dodson helps her students discover their uniqueness and understand how that develops into their enthusiasm for learning.

Dodson is a third-grade teacher who works closely with students at Sacred Heart School.

Dodson was named Gulf District Teacher of the Year last month.

“By their developmental stage, these children would be able to understand and apply knowledge to their lives,” Dodson said during the ceremony.

Scott also lauded the teachers for their success in preparing students for post-secondary education.

Scott’s high school principal at Port St. Joe Middle School, Capt. Anderson’s Marina President Pam Anderson, said the inshore and offshore seasons and bag limits.

“If federal waters are closed and state waters are open, we could see huge numbers of state waters catch federal fish, and vice versa, and this would be a huge boost for us as a company,” Anderson said.

Capt. Anderson’s Marina is home to 25 private charter boats, 20 of which hold federal fishing licenses.

Anderson said the industry also would see a major benefit from having the state control stock assessment models for red fish species.

“With that control we would see a positive step because the state will have more authority over the data collection process and the stock assessment process,” Anderson said.

Cathley also made mention that a local political candidate called the project into question and had requested their own quotes on the building demolition through “means that could delay the process.”

Council Group Two Candidate Jeff Tendler took the podium to respond to Cathley’s claims and look ownership of the quote he obtained from a local demolition expert as a “personal request.”

Tendler claimed that initial cost was exorbitant and simply wanted a ballpark estimate for the project. He admitted the quote he received only covered building demolition and not fire repairs in parts of the structure that may remain standing.

“The city’s ongoing water project is also moving ahead.”

Mayor Cathley said of the ongoing water project.

The FDOT earmarks $12.5 million in state funds for the Port St. Joe seaport.

“While much of the basic infrastructure is in place, there remain many improvement projects that will be required to develop a fully operational port,” the report states.

“The Port Authority and private partner, The St. Joe Company, affirms that any expenditure of funds on project development must be in response to market demands, the marketing effort now underway will help define that demand and the projects to support the identified markets.”

The report notes the Memorandum of Understanding between Port and St. Joe and the lease with Eastern Shipbuilding as accomplishments in the previous year and the goals for the coming year include completing the master plan update, attracting appropriate users to bring job creation and economic development, initiating the process for resuming maintenance dredging of the ship channel, and ensuring the rail line that connects the port to the CSS mainline.

The voter registration or party changes, though early affiliation has no bearing on this year’s citywide election.

The last day to request an absentee ballot is 5 p.m. ET May 4. Early voting will begin May 4 and continue through May 11 at the Supervisor of Elections Office on Long Drive in Port St. Joe.

Early voting will take place 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. ET weekdays, including Saturdays, exclusive of Sundays.

There will be no early voting on Sunday, May 5.

The Florida Ports Council also noted the progress being made at the Port of Port St. Joe in its annual report on the state’s ports.

Early in the report, the collaboration agreement between the port and St. Joe Company was noted, the partners “shrewdly marketing their combined properties to broaden the state’s scope of deepwater offerings.”

I love my computer. But I must admit that computer technology is negatively affecting people at every age and time. Computers are built with great complexity to make people less active both mentally and physically. However, although more knowledge is being used, some people are less interacted with technology. In result, people's creativity and use of knowledge has been hindered in the workplace. Knowledge has been decreased almost in the workplace today. Pioneers of the Renaissance era believed that the humanity resides in the aspect of the mind. People are now working at a computer and forget to physically interact with one another.

Tax deadlines are real

By Rhett William (and look it up)

Late filers beware: the weather has been sweeping the country. Even if you were recently buried under one of America's largest snowstorms recorded in history and 경험 큰 수확의 햇살을 내운 것이다.

Fortunately, officially, federal regulations that require you to come home, but one thing is sure: If you don’t pay your tax bill on time – or even late – you are far from alone. People everywhere are struggling to make ends meet.

That’s because the IRS probably won’t give you a break on the penalties if you delay or don’t pay your taxes. Penalty is to pay by credit card, from the IRS.gov). Helpful information (www.irs.gov) is available, or visit your local IRS office. Also check out the IRS Form 656 Booklet. This will allow some taxpayers – either call 800-829-1040 or offer in compromise, installment agreement, or create a payment plan - to pay off their debt and keep their finances in check.

We must face the reality that 2012 interest rates have risen to an all-time high. Otherwise, penalty on the penalties will go up further.

The IRS Form 656 Booklet can help taxpayers deal with creditors, income tax, and federal income tax. If you’re unable to pay the full amount within 120 days, you may qualify for a Short-Term Extension. If you still owe what you’re due, but will do the necessary work for an installment agreement, you will be charged a maximum penalty of 3 percent of the total tax owed. (The interest rate currently is 3.25 percent.)

If you fill your return extension or request on time, however, the penalties are cut down to only 0.5 percent of the total tax owed. (This rate is 3.25 percent.)

To apply for:
• Willing and able to pay your tax bill on time, but you haven’t paid it yet; or
• have paid your tax bill on time, but it’s not enough money to cover your debt.

To maximize your tax return and get the credit you deserve, it is important to understand the tax laws accurately. The tax code is complex and it can vary from state to state. Depending on your circumstances, the IRS may allow you to delay your tax payment and avoid the penalties.

To avoid having your tax bill due in the next few months, you need to act now. If you don’t pay your tax bill on time, you will be charged a penalty of 3 percent of the amount due, plus interest, for each month after the due date that the tax is unpaid. The interest rate is currently 3.25 percent on the amount due after the due date.

To avoid this penalty, you must pay your tax bill on time. If you don’t, you may be charged a penalty of 3 percent per month, plus interest, on the tax bill. If you file your tax return after the due date, you may be charged a penalty of 3 percent per month, plus interest, on the tax bill.

Critical weeks ahead for Port St. Joe Tiger Sharks baseball

By TIM CROFT
tim@starfl.com

The next few weeks could be make-or-break for the Port St. Joe Jr./Sr. High School baseball team.

Spawting a record of 5-7 overall and 2-4 in District 2-4A, the Tiger Sharks play three district games this week, follow with four more games the following week and three the week after that as the schedule heats up.

The Tiger Sharks hosted Shinutim on Tuesday at Port St. Joe Livery County at 3 p.m. and Tuesday at 7 p.m. The game against host Smith was at 6 p.m. Saturday. The “This is a big week for us” said Coach Chuck Coale. “We have a way to go, but we can’t afford to back up to too many more games. We have to get in these weeks and see how we can do against these other district teams.”

The teams other than Shinutim have been benchmarks, that is, is continually growing. The number and handled Port St. Joe two losses in the week to the Seabreeze, for the Spring Break. In the Spring Break, the Tiger Sharks hosted the base in a game that was rain. The Lady Tigers ended the season 2-6 against Montgomery and 3-12 overall.

Bene Godsvan was the losing pitcher and the Tiger Sharks had 2 hits and made several defensive errors. During the game, the Tiger Sharks offense contributed to 4 runs scored and 2 hits. The Tiger Sharks scored on 2 hits and 1 hit. The Tiger Sharks scored No. 1 pitcher and could not put together hits.

“Bene pitched well enough to keep us in the ball game” said Coach Godsvan. “But the scoring was 6-0 in the 6th, and we just couldn’t get enough hits and runs to enough to get to 1-0.”

On Thursday, the Tiger Sharks got back in the groove during a game against Port St. Joe’s first game, and Cole Cryderman who won the second. “Those victories helped pick our spirits up,” said Coach Goldsmith. “We had just a little confidence, I think. We had the ball a little bit better and our defense is picking up. We played good defense against the Concession stand was open.

Spring and Wagner were both age group winners.

It’s the time of year to do some spring cleaning in your landscape. That means taking care of the pruning of your ornamental plants. Usually you prune landscape plants to get rid of unwanted growth, but there is a special part of the plant that remains after it is pruned. It improves the appearance of the plant. Pruning just isn’t a complicated thing in the world. But, it’s important to do it right.

Pruning is an important part of good cultural care of your landscape. A variety of specific situations call for pruning. If you don’t do it, your landscape plants won’t grow or grow in a way you could control. My information on pruning was provided by the Keim Horticulture Information Network (KHIN) at Robert Black with IPMS of the University of Florida (UF). The most obvious time to prune ornamental plants is dead, weak, or damaged wood, or wood that’s infected with insects or a disease. Transplanting is another time when pruning is needed. When transplanting, prune away one third of the plant with its root system. But the best time for major pruning depends on the kinds of plants you have.

Most flowering plants produce more flowers or fruit. When to prune depends on what type of plant you have. And the desire to produce flowers or fruit.

Most evergreens including plants such as Podocarpus, Laurus, Hollies and Wax Myrtle can be pruned anytime. But, it’s best to prune before growth starts in the spring. Those blooms that blossom in the summer and fall such as芙蓉s, roses and sandalwoods also should be pruned before the first fall. And roses before the first spring.

There is one very important exception to these recommendations. That is the pruning of cold-damaged limbs and branches.

OBITUARIES

Before going public, Kellee Novak tested on her husband's taste buds up Mason Dixon's dishes which guided Novak's creations and make thing delicious.

She regularly found herself in the kitchen from the age of 10. Those same principals have made up Mason Dixon's dishes which she says have been thoroughly tested on her husband's taste buds before going public. "I love creating something that has never been before," Novak said.

While the size of the truck limits the number of available menu options, Novak doesn't mind. It gives her the ability to change her menu seasonally, which she believes is what having bored with the same old dishes.

"Every day is a different day," said Novak. "That's how I want my menu to feel."

The names of the sandwiches are as unique as the taste, named after locations that Novak has visited or places where she finds friends. Prior to opening Mason Dixon in October last year, Novak had worked at Medial Center and the Gulf County Tourism Development Council. Going into business for herself was a new goal, especially since long commutes prevented her from spending quality time with her husband, a problem she creatively solved by setting up the food truck directly behind the Novak Law Office.

"I'm very open to customer feedback," said Novak. "I'm learning every day.

When owner Kellee Novak and her husband Jeremy moved to Port St. Joe nine years ago, they hadn't yet imagined the success of the Mason Dixon food truck.

"I never knew what a col- lar green was," said Novak of her first exposure to traditional southern fare, "but after a while of eating amazing southern food, I knew I had to do that." Novak says that pushing herself to improve each week is what led to her success with constantly changing menu items.

Now in her sixth month of op- erations, Mason Dixon has two employees with plans to have a third to assist with summer operations. Novak credits her success with constantly pushing herself to improve such aspects of Mason Dixon.

"I'm very open to customer feedback," said Novak. "I'm learning every day.

SACRED HEART HOSPITAL ON THE GULF

Sacred Heart Hospital on the Gulf named No. 4 in nation

Star Staff Report

Nine out of 10 patients at Sacred Heart Hospital on the Gulf say they would "definitely recommend" the hospital to others, according to the Hospital Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems survey. That ranking by patients regarding their overall experience was the highest among hospitals in Northwest Florida and ranks 20th nationwide on the patient experience survey.

The HCAHPS survey measures patients hospital rating on the patient experience—from the nursing care to their involvement in the room. The HCAHPS is the first national, standardized, public accountabil-ity measure, which captures the patients' experience captured by patients regarding the care they receive. The HQA created a public website—compare.hhs.gov—to give consumers a closer look at these issues.

The common goal of continual improvement patient safety and quality of care, the primary objectives of HCAHPS include creating a nationally standardized survey for meaningful comparisons, increasing hospital accountability and incentives for quality improvement, and enhancing public accountabil-ity. The survey includes 27 questions that are bundled into 10 composite scores:

- Communication with doctors
- Communication with nurses
- Responsiveness of hospital staff
- Pain management
- Communication about medications
- Discharge instructions
- Cleanliness of the hospital environment
- Quietness of the hospital environment
- Overall rating of the hospital
- Willingness to recommend the hospital to family or friends

We are honored that Sacred Heart received such high ratings from our patients," said Roger Hall, SHHG communications director for Gulf Coast Workforce Board.

In January 2013, there were 69,000 nonagricultural jobs in the Panama City-Lynn Haven-Panama City Beach metro area (Bay County). That's 10.1 percent above the number of jobs held over the year. The Panama City-Lynn Haven-Panama City Beach metro area experienced an annual rate of job growth of 8.1 percent, while the state gained jobs at a rate of 1.8 percent.

Four out of 10 industries gained jobs over the year and four industries lost jobs over the year. Education and health services (+1,898 jobs); trade, transportation, and utilities (+899 jobs); manufacturing (+398 jobs); and financial activities (+261 jobs) gained jobs over the year. The industrs los- ing jobs were government (-1,739 jobs); professional and business services (-400 jobs); and information and in- surance and hospitality (-380 jobs each). Mining, logging, and construction, and other services remained unchanged over the year.

The metro area had the fastest growth rate (+12.3 percent) in manufacturing em- ployment and all metro areas in Flori- da. The reason for such a large jump in education and health services jobs while at the same time a loss of gov- ernment jobs was because of Bay Med- ical's switch from local ownership to pri- vate ownership in second quarter 2012.

I believe that and I’ve worked hard the past six years to keep it true. We like your support, local residents because of the lack of traffic lights and a comfortable small-town way of life. I intend to work just as hard in the future to keep our community the little slice of paradise that it is.

Gulf Coast Electric Cooperative recently held its annual Washington, D.C. Youth Tour contest to provide local students with the opportunity to travel to Washington, D.C., to work during the two-day trip to Tallahassee. There they tour various sites in Tallahassee, visiting the House Chambers and a mock session in the Supreme Court hearing movie, “Space Junk.” They also participated in a mock Supreme Court hearing and a mock session in the House Chambers. The students also enjoyed dining at various restaurants and a visit to Fun Station.

The Youth Tour contest is a great opportunity for us to reward local students for being outstanding leaders in their communities,” said GCEC Manager of Finance, Budgeting and WHS Services Kristin Evans. “The Washington, D.C. Youth Tour Program has been in existence since 1987 when co-op students went to Washington, D.C. to work during the summer. By 1984, the program was catching on, and the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association began to coordinate the efforts of the co-ops. Since then, thousands of students have experienced this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to visit our nation’s capital and learn about our government. Gulf Coast Electric Cooperative is part of the Touchstone Energy national alliance of local, consumer-owned electric cooperatives providing high standards of service to customers large and small. Approximately 70 employees serve more than 20,000 meters and 2,000 miles of line in Bay, Calhoun, Gulf, Jackson, Walton and Washington counties and in the municipalities of Wewahitchka, Lynn Haven, White City, Fountain and Southport.
