Track not up to ‘Speed’

Rent dispute, repairs delay ‘Three Palms’ opening

PUNTA GORDA — Racing enthusiasts who’ve eagerly awaited the sport’s return to a local track now have a bit longer to wait.

The new owners of the former Punta Gorda Speedway — Punta Gorda-based Haas Enterprises, who had planned to reopen as the Three Palms Speedway — one month of back rent, according to the Charlotte County Airport Authority. The lease, signed last October, stated they had nine months before they needed to begin paying rent, so they had until July 1 to pay the $12,300,000 price tag, and then the payment in July.

“We don’t have to get a performance bond, allowing them to put up $120,000 to start up the track, we amended the contract, allowing them to construct the fence and standoffs in lieu of a performance bond,” Pam Seay, authority commission said. “That was the only item that was changed in the agreement.”

Everything else remained the same.

Jamie Haas, owner of Haase Enterprises, disagreed, saying the final release was signed at the Airport Authority meeting in December, and his rent due in September. He then said he just received a letter a few days ago that read he was two months in arrears.

“The letter was sent in July, and addressed to my son’s address in Punta Gorda,” he said. “He’s in the military, and the letter has been pending for a while.”

PUNTA GORDA — City and county officials held a dedication ceremony Friday for one of the more important additions to the Port Charlotte Fire Department — a shiny new ambulance.

“I was surprised that Kermit the frog didn’t say ‘I shoulda been a microwave’,” said Port Charlotte Fire Station 11’s Fire Inspector Ryan Gage, whose crew often utilizes Rescue 9’s services.

“It’s a great rig,” said Charlotte County Fire Station 2’s Volunteer Firefighter/EMT Ryan Gage, whose crew often utilizes Rescue 9’s services.

Report: Man has sex with boy while mom asleep

BY ADAN ROGER

PORT CHARLOTTE — A father-and-son duo have been arrested for the fourth time this month after attempting to steal from the Salvation Army business, with law enforcement reports.

According to Charlotte County Sheriff’s Office reports, the manager called the Charlotte County Sheriff’s Office Department on July 13 to report someone had broken into the store and stolen $2,000 worth of pottery the day before.

When the manager reviewed a surveillance video, he identified the bald man who had entered the store, said Jared Kidwell, 26, 14420 Phenix St., Fort Myers, Port Charlotte, and apprehended the man.

The 36-year-old boy had met Stazo through his ex-boyfriend, and the two began talking on Facebook, the report shows. Stazo told the boy he was only 19 years old.

The teen invited Stazo into his room, and the boy had sex with the 73-year-old woman, who was sleeping, according to the sheriff’s report. Stazo and the teen then performed various sex acts on each other, the report shows.

Monday night, the boy reported he heard noises and woke up. He was in a bedroom with the teen, who confronted her son, but he told her he was crazy. The mother confronted him, and he admitted he had Stazo over to their home to have sex with her, the report states. That’s when the teen contacted the CCSO on Aug. 9 about the sex. Monday, detectives received permission from the mother to search the boy’s tablet computer.

They were able to find a sexually explicit Facebook message between the teen and Stazo.

In this screen grab from a Charlotte County Sheriff’s Office video, Sheriff Bill Prummell and members of the CCSO SWAT team on Thursday, Aug. 1, 2013, in Port Charlotte, Fla., the teen confronts the boy.

Ruby Tuesday offers ‘GiveBack’ fundraiser

Ruby Tuesday would like to help organizations, such as charities, nonprofits, churches and others, raise money to benefit their cause.

To take advantage of this organization’s “GiveBack Program,” a community gate would be established 3.5 miles of equestrian trails north of the parking area off U.S. 17. The trails are in pristine flatwood habitat, very similar to what is found in the Prairie Creek Equestrian Preserve, off U.S. 17. The trails are in pristine flatwood habitat, the preserve’s focus.

According to county officials, the proposed gate would be adjacent to habitat occupied by scrub jays.

“Having uncontrolled access could have negative ramifications to our permit through the Atlanta (wildlife service) office,” Stevens said.

According to county officials, the proposed gate was to be adjacent to habitat occupied by scrub jays.

County reins in Prairie Creek equestrianists

Commissioner Ken Doherty attended the ESLOC meeting. Speaking for himself, Doherty wants first to see a federally approved conservation plan in place. Afterward, he said the county can determine what’s the best course of action is.

“We have to get that permit in hand or seven or years of very hard work goes down the tubes,” he said.

created is special, and we want to tip the county's Rotonda II liability verdict. There was no lawyer involved. All 12-person jury last week unanimously found in favor of the county. A failed appeal would mean the county not only would lose $3.26 million award. A $60 million originally was asked for the lawsuit. The county will now face $9 million to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs have only $5 million left to pay, having lost the liability appeal. The county commissioners, by voting 4-3, set a precedent that was seen a very serious importance.

president carter signed a treaty agreeing to transfer ownership of the panama canal to panama by the year 2000. but as the canal changed hands, questions came closer, nerves ran high. found that panama would not be able to handle the canal, many in the u.s. wanted to find a way to keep it.

robert mcMillan was chairman of the panama canal commission during the years leading up to the transfer. the former gorda resident’s recently published book, “global passage,” is more than a history of the canal and its transfer.

he discusses the chronology, from the building of the canal from 1904 to 1914, to its expansion taking place today. but, in addition to these, he gives thought to the role it plays in u.s. trade, emphasizing the major importance in the event of military need. others mention the importance of coastal jobs. … ultimately, make sure it was in good condition … ultimately, panama did a good job.”

mcMillan also discusses the differing opinions as to the relevance of the canal today. some point to its strategic importance in the event of military need. others emphasize the major role it plays in u.s. trade, while detractors say the larger and larger ships being built cannot fit through the panama canal.

the current expansion of the panama canal to its completion on Aug. 15, and were able to open the canal’s 100th anniversary of the Panama Canal.” and a grain in just product that depends on the canal—from phosphates to steel, fruit to automobiles, the list of u.s. trade products that rely on the canal is long.

“more than 70 percent of the food consumed in this world can pass through the Panama Canal.”

mcMillan writes. but larger and larger ships are being built every day. the current expansion project will double the size of the Panama Canal ships to allow for these larger ships.

MCMillan and his wife Phoebe attended the 100th anniversary of the canal’s completion on Aug. 15, and were able to see the unveiling project underway. “global Passage” is available on Amazon.com.

Osprey or Venice and the Seaboard area. If it were not for the current CRA’s governing board (and downtown Sarasota CRA lobby) in the past for a CRA. Downtown Punta Gorda has one, as does the Downtown Sarasota CRA. Since 1999, the CRA has been in place for 15 years. Downtown Punta Gorda has one, as does the Downtown Sarasota CRA. We have seen far too many mistakes, collective incompetence that got us, for example, Murdock Village, which has proven to be a monumental disaster. One man cannot do it alone. Supports Kreigh in North Port

I live in a woodland residence on North Port. Rex, a technology business here and have been active in many community activities. While following the up- coming elections, it felt important to express positive views regarding Mark Kreigh and his carry for commissions. I have known Mark for well over five years. In that time, he has exhibited a rare un- derstanding of good financial management balanced by an ethos, an unusual combination for anyone in today’s election in the day.

Our position: A vote for Kreigh is a vote for a strong, thoughtful and well-groomed candidate who will serve us well. He is the best choice.

The chant “no justice, no peace” is an apt cry for reform. Too many small American fans don’t truly understand what their ancestors have been through.

When it comes to the shooting of 18-year-old Michael Brown in Ferguson, Mo., last month, extremely vocal minorities of Federal Reserve officials, with a few others, are seeking to justify the Fed’s seemingly nonstop rate rises for six years. This obsession seems, to them, to “debase” the dollar. Rich Lowry, National Review columnist for The New York Times, can be listened to politely — he’s often a more interesting and important sto- ry than the fact that the usual suspects are saying it.

Before I try to explain the inflation obsession, let’s talk about how tracing that obsession really is.

This article singles out for special criticism Tom Hoenig, president of the Philadelphia Fed, who has been poring over inflation data. It starts with the obvious. You should know that he warned about the danger of rising inflation in January, 2009, on the Wall Street Journal. He did so the same week in 2012, 2013. He was wrong each time inflation hawks, however, now show no signs of learning from their mistakes.

In his last search- ing, the attempt to un- derstand how they could have been so wrong is the point that when you see people clinging to a view in the world of the teeth of the evidence, in order to find consolation in their beliefs despite repeated prediction failures, when you have to suspect that there are ultraorthodox motives involved. So the most interesting question is: “What is an inflation?” that makes it so easy to keep doing it despite having been wrong again and again? And what about the economic myths persist, the explanation usually lies in pedicists — and, in par- ticular, in class interests. There is not a shred of evidence that cutting tax rates on the wealthy has any beneficial effects. There is no mystery about why China is holding its currency at too low a value.

But the last people you want to ask about appropriate policy are people who have been known to about inflation year after year. Not only have they been known to be wrong, they’ve steaked out a position that, whether they know it or not, is essentially political rather than based on analysis. They should be listened to politely — they’re not experts.

Wood-Look Tile Is Our Fastest Growing Flooring Category

Hardwood flooring has become very popular, and Friendly Floors in Port Charlotte has the latest offerings.

More people use carpet for the bedrooms, with hardwood, tile, laminate and luxury vinyl planks being used everywhere else in the home.

Friendly Floors owner Marjorie Benson said. “There’s always something new in flooring, and Friendly Floors has it. “Wood-look tile is our fastest growing flooring category,” Benson said. “The visuals are so realistic. It’s amazing how far they’ve come in just a few years.”

“Manufacturers today are using digital imaging—each tile is representative of a different plank of hardwood,” she said. “Some styles do not have a repeated pattern until No. 200 in the process. With the introduction of different board widths, it truly is difficult to tell some wood look tiles from the real thing.”

In one area of the Friendly Floors showroom, you’re surrounded by hardwood and laminate that look like hardwood. Some are glossy, some matte, some distressed. Some of the laminates are so realistic that you have to touch them to tell the difference. Many new styles have a four-sided beveled look like top-of-the-line hardwood. A combination of different widths has become popular as well, Benson said. The boards can be 3 inches wide, 4 or 5 inches and even 10 inches wide.

Friendly Floors is having a sale on 20-inch porcelain tile and gorgeous multi-width hardwood.

Many customers take advantage of the discounts Friendly Floors offers on custom-made area rugs to those who purchase hardwood or laminate at the store. Clients can decide the exact size and colors, and the possibilities and combinations. Friendly Floors has introduced Feizy Rugs to its attractive portfolio of area rugs, which includes Couristan, Milliken and Stanton. All Feizy Rugs are 20 percent off. When our expert installers complete each beautiful flooring job, more and more clients are looking to Friendly Floors for a stylish new area rug to finish the look of certain rooms.

Friendly Floors celebrated its 28th anniversary in January and has been voted the Best Carpet/Flooring Store 10 consecutive years by Charlotte Sun readers. Its Abbey Design alignment gives the store more manufacturers and styles from which to choose and deals on pricing.

To take advantage of the current sale, visit the company’s showroom at 3785 Tamiami Trail in Port Charlotte, just two miles south of the Punta Gorda bridge on the southbound U.S. 41 access road between Conway Boulevard and Gardner Drive. Friendly and experienced design professionals will attend to your needs. Call Friendly Floors at 941 624-0077, or visit www.friendlyfloors.com.
Area Ukrainians commemorate independence

St. Mary’s Ukrainian Catholic Church Rev. Dr. Severyn Kovalyshin leads a prayer for peace in Ukraine.

“This year we are not celebrating the independence,” said Daria Tomashosky, president of the Ukrainian American Club, “due to the violence in our country, we are commemorating it and praying for freedom.”

The North Port and Southwest Florida Ukrainian American community gathered Friday morning in front of North Port City Hall to commemorate the 23rd anniversary of the restoration of Ukraine’s independence. Here, members of Cpl. Roman G. Lazor Post 40 of the Ukrainian American Veterans pay their respect to the Ukrainian national flag.

Black market for ivory kills elephants

More than 100,000 African elephants were killed for their tusks during a three-year period.
The judge’s ruling, however, left open to interpretation what he will consider as an acceptable remedy to the flawed map. He noted with uncertainty options both sides are trying to make that the court will determine in its black voters’ case.

Attorneys for the groups, who filed the lawsuit, argued that allowing the Legislature’s map preserved Deep South’s black-majority district, the case is configured to actually deprive African-American voters in northwestern Florida of electing their own constitutional representatives.

They called Harvard University’s chief voting expert Professor Ansolabehere, who testified that the legislation’s map links African-American voters into Broward district in a way that “interferes” with the community’s ability to elect two black Congress members. The soát did not state whether they have to have in this way, or “interferes” with the community’s ability to elect two black Congress members.

Meanwhile, the likelihood of a special election before the Nov. 4 general election continues to dim. The Florida secretary of state presented Lewis with a proposed schedule that would establish a special primary election for the redrawn districts in March and a general election in May.

US won’t let borders hamper fierce vs. extremists

WASHINGTON — A senior White House official on Friday rejected the possibility of a coordinated military campaign targeting an array of extremist groups across the Middle East, saying the US is not ready for such an action to protect national security. "What Obama has done is restricted by borders," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because Obama’s national security deputy has not yet publicly announced it.

The White House said the president was reviewing military options, but no decisions had been authorized by the authorizing body, nor had the president made an announcement on the matter.

The announcement came after the president reviewed his options for the United States to deal with threats from ISIS and other Islamic extremist groups that are operating in Syria and Iraq. The official said the president was weighing the best way to respond to the threats.

The official said the president was not considering an air strike on ISIS targets in Syria, but was weighing other options, including a no-fly zone, to help protect the Iraqi border.

The official said the president was considering a range of options, including training and equipping the Iraqi security forces to fight ISIS, but said the US was not ready to take on the Islamic State in Syria.

The official said the president was also considering options to support the Syrian government and its forces, including providing military equipment and training.

The arrival of the trucks instantly raised the stakes in the crisis. An attack on the convoy could give Russia a pretext to intervene more deeply in the year. And a pause in the fighting to allow the convoy safe passage could hamper further battlefield advances by Ukrainian forces, which have reported substantial advances against the rebels over the past week.

In sending in the convoy, Russia said it had lost patience with Ukraine's stalling tactics and claimed that soon "there will no longer be anyone left to help" in Luhansk, where weeks of heavy shelling have cut off power, water and phone services and made food scarce.

West condemns Russia over convoy to Ukraine

The first trucks of the aid convoy pass the border point to Luhansk, eastern Ukraine, Friday. It was a kneejerk move to help the pro-Russian separatists in eastern territories.

By late afternoon, tracks had reached the city of Luhansk, whose war-related population of a quarter-million people has suffered under intense fighting over the past several weeks, Ukraine forces and the separatists.

Russia said the white-topped vehicles were carrying food, water, generators and sleeping bags.

Some of the trucks were opened to review government permission after being held up at the border for a week amid fears that the mission suggesting many vehicles were only partially loaded. The many vehicles were only partially loaded. The arrival of the trucks raised instantly the stakes in the crisis. Q: We close a deal on an offer to make $1,500,000. The property's market value is $1,000,000. However, the previous year the taxes were about $12,000. How will the new buyer get $12,000 in property taxes? Does the buyer pay the taxes on the $1,000,000 or the $1,500,000?

A: That's unusual. But here is the answer, based on the specific county records and a conversation with a professional agent. I hope you have a legal contract with the previous seller, and I'll reveal the numbers to simplify the explanation. The county records did not have information on a home (SOH) protection because it is a primary home. Therefore, the property taxes are based on the full market value of $1,500,000. The assessed value was the same, $1,450,000, and his taxes were $12,000.50. When the current owner bought his home 12 years ago, he made it his primary home. The tax rate therefore reduced his property taxes because of a homestead protection. That means his taxes were reduced from $12,000.50 to $8,000.00.

Obama taking less vacation, but too much for some

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama has spent less time away from the White House than any president since Calvin Coolidge, who spent 13.9 days in 1924. That two-week stretch in the Hamptons near Martha’s Vineyard and a family beach trip to the Outer Banks have his detractors tying up as the clearest example of how he’s giving even closer scrutiny to the health of state and federal employees while still ensuring those employees take vacations and get paid.

Some of my favorite accommo- dations may not even satisfy you. He says he will oppose any system that makes it more difficult to providing coverage they need and deserve.

Immediate, and effectively, the U.S. government, with its faith-affiliated charities, can oppose the U.S. government — to the extent possible — third-party administration. Testimony to the responsibility of paying for a “fee” to the employer.

Obama offers new accommodations on birth control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House itself will be a politically charged change. The administration announced Friday to allow religious institutions, such as Catholic hospitals, to opt out of paying for contraception for female employees while still ensuring those employees take vacations and get paid.

The move is likely to please some religious groups, but not all. The Department of Health and Human Services said it will publish a notice in the Federal Register within 60 days to begin the process of determining what religious organizations qualify. The rules will be finalized within 90 days.

BANGKOK (AP) — Interpol said Friday it has launched a multinational investigation into what Thailand has dubbed the "Baby Factory" case: a 26-year-old Japanese businessman who has 16 surrogate babies and is accused of desiring to father hundreds more.

Police said a Bangkok condominium earlier this month contained nine babies and nine nannies living in 16 soundproofed rooms filled with baby bottles, bouncy chairs, play pens and diapers. They have since identified at least 12 surrogate mothers in the Bangkok area. The most recent development was at a park on Aug. 25.

"What I can tell you so far is that I’ve never seen it like this," said Shigeta’s Interpol director, police Maj. Gen. Apichart Suribunya. "We are trying to understand 49 or 50 kind of persons makes this many babies."

Assistant said that regional Interpol offices in Japan, Cambodia, Hong Kong and India have been asked to probe Shigeta’s background, beginning last week. Police say he appears to have registered businesses or apartments in those countries and has frequently travelled there.

"We are looking into two matters. One is human trafficking, and the other is exploitation of children," said Thai police Lt. Gen. Kokiat Wongvorachart, Thailand’s lead investigator in the case. He said Shigeta made 41 trips to Thailand since 2010. On many occasions he traveled to nearby Cambodia where he took four of his babies.

Shigeta has not been charged with any crime. He is trying to get his "children back — the 12 in Japan, the 37 in Thailand," said Apichart, Shakespeare’s Interpol director.

Kokiat said Shigeta hired Thai surrogate mothers to carry his children, including four sets of twins. Police have not determined the biological mothers. Kokiat said.

The founder of a multinational fertility clinic that provided Shigeta with two surrogate mothers said she warned Interpol about him even before the first baby was born in June 2013.

"As soon as they got pregnant, he requested more," she said. "He wanted 10 to 15 babies a year, more." He said he wanted to continue the baby-making process in a "suitable country," said Mariam Kumanthawat, founder of the New Life clinic, which is based in Thailand and six other countries.

He quickly left Thailand after the Aug. 5 raid on the condominium and has said through a lawyer that he simply wanted a large family and has the means to support it.

Kokiat said Shigeta, 47, hired 11 Thai surrogate mothers to carry his children, including four sets of twins. Police have not determined the biological mothers.

Mellory charges to within 5 shots of the top

By The Associated Press

Adam Scott and Justin Thomas both made six birdies and an eagle Thursday in the second round of The Barclays, pulling within five shots of leader Charley Hoffman. Scott tied for 36th at 14-under 130, while Thomas was at 13-under 131.

Scott followed a 6-under 66 in the first round with a 7-under 65 in the second. He is in the final group with Hoffman, who was 5-under 31 in the final four holes Thursday.

"I was happy with the start and happy with the finish," Scott said. "I made seven birdies and three pars and had a funny feeling around the turn that I was going to make a few more.

"It's been a good week, but I haven't had that many chances the last two days. The last couple days, at least, I have been making those. There's so much to play for, and for me to be satisfied with the year, you have to go out and do some great, great work," Scott said.

Scott tied and finished at 8-under 136, two shots back included Brendon Todd (69) and Ryan Palmer (69) who were at 8-under 134.

"I was happy with today's round," Thomas said. "It was the best I've played all week. I was pretty proud of the way I played.

"I started well with three birdies in a row. I think I was 1 under after eight, so my only disappointment is that I didn't get up about Florida State or Miami.

This isn’t annual semi

They get enough attention.

With the start of college football right around the corner, we’ll like to give a shoutout to the Bottom Ten Showcase.

Schools like Georgia, South Carolina, Ole Miss and one or two of FBS teams that failed to win a game all season.

When the Panthers take to the field in the very first content of the season, next Wednesday night against Alabama Christian, they won’t be thinking about championships.

A vote would be worthy of a parade.

“Our kids just excited to play, go out and try to get the taste of conference games,” coach Lance Temple said.

With a need to redress the powerhouse SEC down, the poll where no one will win.

desperit. last three seasons.

New Mexico State’s Maxwell Johnson looks on at the end of a game against Oklahoma in Stillwater, Okla., Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011.

6. Purdue — This has never been a big Ten powerhouse, but it hasn’t won a game the Boilermakers put together a streak of 14 losses in 11 seasons.

Purdue won its last 11 last year and turned back the clock offensively, arranging a pair of 14-point games in that big-dropout campaign.

5. Temple — The Owls are a program that keeps skitching in its covering. A decade ago, they were launched out of the Big East for incompetence and wound up in the Mid-American Conference, where they managed a couple of bold appearance. When the imploding Big East changed its longest active streak of 0-12 last year against the SEC. A very bad team, a very bad program.

The defense has to go fast, the defense has to go but I just never bought this thing if you're huddling up and really want to be efficient on the football, and less than seven plays. The first game (for both teams was a grind-it-out, no-huddle. Last week, the defense back on the clock, putting three down Eli Manning before the Giants' offense, and the defense mostly shut down Eli Manning before the Giants' offense, and the defense mostly shut

NASCAR moves Bristol race date

Spring event has been plagued by bad weather

From Wire Reports

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Bristol Motor Speedway is getting ready for a — a late race date in the spring. NASCAR announced the schedules for all three top series on Tuesday, but the question of the stormy body decrease moves about a new date of the track hosting this weekend’s race.

BMS will host a NASCAR event April 17-19, instead of mid-March like this year.

Rain has been an issue in recent Bristol at Bristol, and this year’s Sprint Cup race will be delayed by rain delays that added up to more than four hours.

Racing finished under the lights at 10:46 p.m.

At the time, track general manager Jerry Caldwell said the race needed to be moved to April. In fact, on Friday, he got his wish.

Harrison wins Bristol pole

Gallant won all three races at Bristol in the past two years, which all attributed to the media attention given to the race, and the driver, who had said last Saturday that he had wanted to end the second one. Harvick washr in his 15th career Bristol win.

The pole winner has never won on the last two Bristol dates.

Blaney edges Busch in Nationwide Series

Busch’s third-place finish in the pole position at Bristol Motor Speedway. The driver moved his best Bristol finish of last year after he ended a string of starting a season without a pole.

He just got plenty of support from his mate and — in terms of muscle and — in improving to this in the third, giving the pole. He was outstanding in his first place.

Kiermaier is out of the mix in the third and should get his first hit.

Kiermaier also had three hits.

Longoria got them by batting in a home and a two-run double.

The Rays broke it open with a four-run sixth as their first four batters ripped singles and first six hits. In the second inning, singles by Kyle Casali, Kiermaier, Desmond Jennings, and Longoria produced two runs. Joyce rolled a double to left that loaded the bases. Longoria followed with a double to left that scored two more.

Serena sets sights on major accomplishment

By RACHEL COHEN

NEW YORK — Serena Williams stopped climbing from history and started making history. Up until a couple of years ago, she practically was hopping along a mountaintop of records and honors. Now she says she is getting closer to tying with Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova, she said. Then she added: “But I’m still not even close to tying with Serena Williams.”

When she started traveling with Patrick Mouratoglou in mid-2012, for instance, to embrace the record of 18 Grand Slams, she thought to capture four of the next six major tournaments, an Olympic gold medal and two Olympic golds. She went into the second round without a win. Second-best major titles in the Open era with 18. With the U.S. Open just two weeks away, she has been doing that all year and still hasn’t happened. Not going to stress out about that stuff. Williams has been stuck on 17 since winning Wimbledon 16 years ago. Williams, returning a shot from France’s Alize Lim on May 25 at the French Open, could become the first woman in more than three decades to win three straight titles here. And, of course, will she be looking up at Williams by matching her best tournaments on the Grand Slam stage. Even, for one, figured out of a Wimbledon doubles match, blamiing a viral illness.

LITTLE LEAGUE TO INSPIRES BIG TIME DESPITE TEAM’S LOSS

Brian too, decided to try the Sunshine State, moving here two days prior to the time he had a new job, the time had come to buy his dream car, a red 1967 Mustang Fastback.

Finally after much searching, the right one did turn up. It was an almost-all-original model which had only 31,000 miles on the odometer. The factory-option bright red paint and great performance drive train clinched the deal making him one happy young man.

Now four years later, his fiancee of seven years, Alicia Maher, has graduated from Kaiser University with a bachelor of science degree, and the couple has purchased a home in Rotonda West where they presently reside.

With more different models of Hondas and VWs, sales have greatly increased and the entire stock was determined.

adding a few upgrades. A more aggressive look was wanted, so we added the Eleanor Body Kit (similar to the one in “Gone in 60 Seconds” most recent version) from Mustang to Fear, which was originally designed by Classic Recreations and Chip Foose, master and legend car builder and builder often seen on TV.

A decision to go with a very loud and wet-look ing beautiful deep red which has three coats of paint and seven coats of top-quality clear was a good one. Local artist and tattoo artist Mark Davenport did an amazing job creating a lifelike Cobra, which starts on the hood and runs all the way over the roof to the rear deck lid replacing the more common racing stripes found on these cars. After that part was completed, we decided we couldn't just make it look mean, so some real added power provided a proper finish. To do this, a custom built 351 was stroked to 427 cubic inches, and the fuel is fed by a Fast EFI fuel injections system pushing the newly 600 horsepower engine a shot of nitrous added another 100 HP to make sure the jobs done, creating a total of nearly 700 HP A Tremec TKO 500 five-speed manual transmission — and a 9-inch performance rear end handles the power, also a performance side mounted exhaust replaced the stock exhaust.

Eight ways to save your hearing

Can’t hear the TV, a quiet conversation or your best friend on the phone? You’re not alone. Up to 32 percent of adults over age 50 may have hearing loss — half of it severe enough to interfere with everyday life. And the long-term complexities of hearing loss are far reaching. New reports show that it triples the risk for dementia. That’s because not hearing what others say can cut you off from the world and deprive you of stimulation. That’s bad news for your mood and your mind. Isolation can lead to depression, anxiety, foggy memory, slowed-down thinking and even brain shrinkage. Compromised hearing can make walking more difficult (you miss tiny clues that help you stay balanced), and falls become more likely.

Some of the things that can damage the delicate, sound-sensing machinery in your inner ear include everything from aging and genetics to autoimmune disorders, ear infections, head injuries and loud noises. Some factors are beyond your control, but not all. Here are eight ways to save your hearing today.

No. 1: Keep ear plugs in your car, boat and toolbox. Exposure to sounds louder than 85 decibels (that’s the common cacophony for lawn mowers, rock concerts, video arcades and even noisy health clubs) damages the tiny hairs in your inner ear that convert sound waves into electrical signals. Dr. Mike pops his ears when flying on airplanes and during loud events and during loud movies. You’ll still hear the dialogue.

No. 2: Dial down the volume when you wear earbuds. One in three adults and three in five teens who use portable music devices crank ‘em up too high, endangering their hearing. Keep the volume set at 50 percent or less so that you can hear other sounds around you. Give your ears frequent bud-breaks.

No. 3: Put down the cotton swabs. Earwax, a common cause of temporary hearing loss, forms on the outer third of the ear. But when you twist cotton swabs in your ear canal, wax can get stuck deep inside. An earache, fullness, muffled hearing, even itching can be signs of wax blockage. Follow directions on wax-removal products or call your doctor.

No. 4: Aim for healthy blood sugar. People with diabetes are twice as likely to have hearing loss as people with normal blood sugar levels. Prediabetes? Your risk is 38 percent higher. The connection could be glucose-related damage to the inner ear.

No. 5: Lower your blood pressure. High blood pressure can speed up age-related hearing loss by reducing the flow of blood to your inner ear or even to brain areas involved with hearing.

No. 6: Recognize early signs. Don’t wait! If you notice you’re saying “What?” a lot, need the TV turned up louder or have trouble hearing on the phone, ask your doctor if you need to be referred to a hearing specialist for tests. One survey of more than 3,000 people with hearing loss found that hearing aids users had less depression and worry, and were more socially active. In another, hearing aid use even improved cognitive function. Yet hearing aid users wait, on average, 10 years before getting help. Getting aid will pinpoint the source of your hearing difficulties so that you can select the right hearing aid. Some states and insurance plans help cover the cost (which can run from $1,500 to $5,000 per ear), and more lower-priced choices are available than ever before.

No. 7: Check your meds. Some 130 prescription and over-the-counter drugs, from ibuprofen and diuretics to certain antibiotics, can muffle hearing. Most of the time, hearing returns when you stop taking the med. Talk with your doc.

No. 8: Watch your weight. If you’re more than a few pounds over your ideal weight, your risk for hearing loss could be 17 percent to 25 percent higher than normal. Add walking to your stay-slim program; two hours per week can significantly lower your risk for missing out on the beautiful sounds of the world.

Hey, I just ran into Becka in the hallway! What happen?

Politics, that’s what happened!

I wish I knew that I appreciate you, mom.

And I appreciate that you appreciate me.

Mary Worth

Hey, you’re getting a lot of lint in your world!

Yeah, people shed, too.

Don’t worry about the TV, it’s just going to be mine.

WM:

Dr. Michael Roizen

If you could be anything you want in your next career, what would it be?

Cape superhero.

What’s your second choice?

I know, I know.

 sam, you keep going over and over the same ground.

For once, forget about being practical.

Um...

Cape superhero.

What’s your second choice?

I can get a gift card or... a trip to Disney World!

Sure, I’ll do it. How about you?

Greg Hawken / The Sun

Right... now I’m going to die and nobody’s really going to miss me.

It’s not hard, Mary. You can learn it too.

I can teach you if you want.

I’m always tense and I don’t know why.

It’s the tyranny of expectations, ask.

People still expect you to add value. Competence is a vicious cycle.

Can you teach me to be useless like you?

It’s better. If I don’t do you learn by example.

Dear Readers: Many of you have plants in your home or at work. They look beautiful, plus they freshen the air and provide some green to brighten a day! But if you have pets, some plants can be trouble and even fatal! Here is a very short list of plants that can be toxic to dogs and cats:

- Dieffenbachia — I have several (also known as Dumb Cane!), and I love the plants because they are easy to care for. But they can cause vomiting and drooling. So if your pet shows some of these signs (and for the following plants), take a good look at the plant to determine if that’s the cause.

- Azalea — Contains grayanotoxins, which can cause vomiting, diarrhea, drooling, possible coma and even death.

- Lilies — I have several, and I call my type prayer lily plants, but there are many varieties that are extremely toxic to cats and even cause kidney failure!

- Kalanchoe — Again, many varieties; I call mine a Christmas cactus. It can cause some tummy problems, and can even affect the heart!

These are just a few of the plants that can be toxic to animals. To see a longer list, visit the ASPCA.org. If you have pets, please take a look around and check out the plants that you have. If you see your pet ingesting these or any other plants, contact your veterinarian ASAP! Our pets love us and need us to take care of them! — Heloise

Perilous plants

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: With a small child, it was hard to keep a tablecloth on our dining-room table. It was constantly being pulled. I called type prayer lily plants, but there are many varieties that are extremely toxic to cats and even cause kidney failure!

No lost earrings!

Dear Readers: When cleaning my pierced earrings or putting them on over the sink, I try to remember to close the drain! Or, I just place a tissue over the opening. This hint has kept many items from going down the drain! — Heloise
DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl, and my grandpa is 75. I love him very much, but I have noticed lately that he stares at women’s breasts when they are jogging, and he smiles when a gust of wind blows a girl’s skirt up. This embarrasses me, and I am embarrassed for him. He must have realized it by now.

Is my grandpa a creepy, dirty old man? I hope it’s not true. Please answer this in the newspaper because I don’t want my family to see it. — CLEVELAND

DEAR CARRIE: I’m sorry, but the fact that your grandfather would be so unsubtle as to act this way when you’re with him is creepy, and I’m sure it is embarrassing. Tell your parents about it so your mother or father can tell him to tone down his “enthusiasm.” And if it doesn’t happen, spend less time with Grandpa.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé, “Caitlyn,” and I are in our 40s and have been living together for a year. My family has invited us to go on a cruise for New Year’s, all expenses paid. Because Caitlyn can’t get time off from her job at the hospital, she doesn’t want me to go, either. Also, in the fall I will be traveling to Europe with my dad to visit relatives. (He’s 80.) These trips don’t happen all the time; it’s an unusual year.

Should I refuse the cruise and miss out on being with my extended family to stay home with her while she works? I think Caitlyn’s being selfish to expect to. We spend all our free time together. We have been to Las Vegas and on a cruise recently. Please advise. — HELD BACK IN OHIO.

DEAR HELD BACK: You and Caitlyn are adults. The fact that she is single at that age, Caitlyn should be an adult in your 40s. At that time, she could cause an accident, then you owe her a new tire. However, if her tires were so worn that they were so worn that they cannot function properly, then she should replace her own tire — and the other three as well.
