Supervision courses popular locally

By ANA PRIESTE

North Port’s Property Standards Division Manager Domino Matarese said he was floored by a class he is taking at Punta Gorda’s college on the dynamics of supervision through Florida Gulf Coast University.

The instructor, Charles A Bruns, visits his students’ workplaces all of them. And after six years teaching the class at FGCU’s Center in Punta Gorda — along with another two years through former Imperial University — Bruns has been in class with at least 150 students, he said.

From jails and police cars to banks and more, Bruns spends a lot of time outside the classroom to bring lessons back in. “I ride on the fire truck with them... At the bank, I sit with them... he said. “It adds a uniqueness to the class.”

There are other management training options in the area as well. For example, Florida SouthWestern State College also offers courses in management and supervisory skills in Charlotte County; however, not through open enrollment, such as how FSW will customize classes for specific industries.

The bottom line: This is the second of a two-day series illustrating the impact of global warming on the region. For more information. To see part one, go to yoursun.com.

SARASOTA — Had the town manager’s key been entirely within Sarasota County, George L. Detert last year, the county would have shot $5.4 million in additional property tax revenue, enough to plug the gap property tax revenues, $5.4 million in additional tax revenue, have seen an additional year, the county would have

Bullock said that over the years, more and more popular and propety values expired, Gallagher rate differences between Sarasota County and Manatee County resulted in a “tax equity gap”.

“It’s no one’s fault,” Bullock said. “It is an artifice of drawing a fine line, the town being incorporated within that line in 1921, the state leg-

Sarasota County. The state legislature created Sarasota County by splitting the southern portion of Manatee County with the line between the two counties drawn along an alignment on the site of U.S. 41 in a 1921 bill. It allowed the present-day University Bay and divided the present-day University of Sarasota with property values. We think it’s fair to say we get no additional service for that money,” Bullock said.

Bullock pointed out, too, that the town being split between two counties had “a number of issues” that town residents would have to address. Major Terry Gans were not seeking action during discussions with town residents. Bullock said they would take part in a meeting with meeting with Manatee County commissioners in February.

According to Bullock, one-third of the town’s properties are located in Manatee County. Those Manatee County properties, as stated, would be “in a different world” from the town.

Our VIEW

Cut waste, not Medicare

I am outraged over the responsibility of the representatives and senators who voted for the budget resolution that includes provisions that will do irreparable harm to Medicare. It has served generations of Americans so well as a medical safety net. The resolution is difficult to understand. It amounts to just such a tax on someone’s ground for passage through the budget reorganization process. The recommendation in the budget resolution to cut $473 billions from Medicare over the next 10 years is unacceptable. The language indicates Speaker Paul Ryan’s “premium support” plan would be introduced in subsequent legislation that would destroy Medicare as we know it. This is yet another subterfuge by Congressman Ryan to benefit private insurance companies.

Speaker Ryan has been trying for years to privatize Medicare. The “premium support” plan will force America’s seniors to buy private insurance, to face more expenses, at a cost of $473 billions from Medicare over the next 10 years. Medicare beneficiaries will rise more rapidly than it does now. Ryan’s “premium support” plan will prove to be the most wasteful savings Medicare has ever seen.

There are less disputable ways that Congress should address to reduce the cost of Medicare — eliminate waste and improper payments. The government made improper payments of $133 billions in 2016, which is misleading at Medicare. There are less disputable ways that Congress should address to reduce the cost of Medicare — eliminate waste and improper payments. The government made improper payments of $133 billions in 2016, which is misleading at Medicare.

In fact, Medicare has been more efficient than private insurance companies because they have been trying to serve Medicare’s population. The cost per person today is $3,000 while Medicare beneficiaries were served by $14.3 billions from Medicare over the next 10 years.

As for all this over black and white people, here is some food for thought. What is your life? Do you have to worry about a car being born with, so get used to it. No one even is your color is white or black. To try to take our nation’s history away from us is disgraceful, and our nation needs to be preserved.

My great-grandfather was a Union soldier. So he fought for our country and it is starting to see a little black. Sorry, but we call you another name.

Then there was Dottie Williams, a small guy who works as a nurse at Fawcett Memorial Hospital. When I entered the emergency room, there was a nurse helping in the room and I didn’t think she was of the same color. But if you’re of the green color, the same as for the gas plant, the emissions of about 800 tons of CO2 per year.

K ep calm and carry on. Those words, scrawled at the beginning of an official memo written in 1940 to prepare government employees for a possible nuclear attack, have come to represent the U.S. government's accumulated experience over decades, at least in the realm of national security. Yet in the midst of a contentious congressional debate on tax reform, many of the same ideas that underpinned the Atomic Age are again being debated.

Trump dissidents: Just keep calm and carry on

The debate over the Republican tax plan, much like the Cold War, is predicated on two opposing visions: an apocalyptic, nuclear option versus the more measured and measured strategy of containment.

In the Cold War, the United States and the Soviet Union each maintained vast arsenals of nuclear weapons, each prepared to use them against the other in the event of an attack. The goal of the U.S. government was to deter the Soviet Union from发起 aggression, not necessarily to win a war. Similarly, the goal of the tax reform debate is to avoid triggering a financial crisis that could bring down the economy, not necessarily to enact the perfect tax code.

Just as the U.S. government in the Cold War had to balance the need for a strong military with the risk of provoking a war, the Republicans in Congress have to balance the need for a tax code that stimulates economic growth with the risk of creating a fiscal crisis that could undermine the economic recovery.

Just as the U.S. government in the Cold War had to be willing to escalate in order to deter aggression, the Republicans in Congress have to be willing to make major changes to the tax code in order to achieve their goals.

Just as the U.S. government in the Cold War had to work with the Soviet Union on arms control agreements, the Republicans in Congress have to work with the Democrats on tax policy.

Just as the U.S. government in the Cold War had to be prepared to use nuclear weapons as a last resort, the Republicans in Congress have to be prepared to use tax breaks and incentives as a last resort to stimulate the economy.

Just as the U.S. government in the Cold War had to balance the need for a strong military with the risk of provoking a war, the Republicans in Congress have to balance the need for a tax code that stimulates economic growth with the risk of creating a fiscal crisis that could undermine the economic recovery.

More cases of West Nile found in local chickens

By ELANE ALLEN-EMRICH
Community News Editor

Six more sentinel chickens infected with West Nile Virus detection last week. In September, six cases were reported. So far this year, the Sun Centers for Disease Control reported 212 sentinel chickens tested positive for West Nile Virus and three for St. Louis encephalitis. With so many new cases, the Florida Department of Health in Sarasota County tracks the virus in chickens and other animals. A warning to residents about the risk of transmission is increased.

Sarasota County ranks near the top in the state for sentinel chickens infected with West Nile Virus and other diseases this year, according to a report from the CDC. Charlotte County, where a sentinel chicken tested positive for West Nile Virus last year, is up to six so far this year. Chickens are used because they develop antibodies to West Nile and other viruses after being bitten by an infected mosquito. If someone is found to have the disease, it is not returned to the flock. The CDC tracks sentinel chickens in each county and produces an online weekly arboriculture surveillance and prevention efforts.

The Charleston County Sheriff’s Office reported the following arrests:

In September, six cases were reported. So far this year, the Florida Department of Health in Sarasota County issued three reports for West Nile Virus infection. For disease and health department warnings. In a statement, the Department of Health in Sarasota wrote, “County Mosquito Control and DOH-Sarasota continue surveillance and prevention efforts.”

After many names, this plant now answers to heliconia

Heliconias do not grow well in Florida. This plant, however, is very popular among Americans who love to grow tropical flowers. The heliconia has a ripening bud. This bud blooms and produces a showy petal-like flower that is followed by a fruit that contains many seeds. These seeds are dispersed by wind, birds, or insects. The heliconia is known for its vibrant colors and exotic appearance. It is a popular choice for landscaping in tropical regions.

Northern mockingbirds are sensational singers.

Before I moved to Florida, I thought I would miss the cheery call of the black-capped chinkadee but then I met a northern mockingbird (Mimus polyglottos).

About a week after we planted holly trees in our yard, a male northern mockingbird moved in. This medium-sized songbird amused us with its repertoire of melodies, boldly mimicking blackbirds, blue jays, cardinals and others.

When this brownish-gray bird found a mate, he ceased his nightly lullaby, "Hush little baby, don't say a word, Mama's going to buy you a mockingbird." I hadn't thought about the history of northern mockingbirds. President Thomas Jefferson kept a pet mockingbird named Dick. In the 18th century, mockingbirds who sang long and loud were sold for $50 in cities on the east coast. Because of their popularity, people stole nestlings and captured adult birds, so the mockingbird population declined dramatically. However, once these birds were protected by the Migratory Bird Act of 1918, they rebounded. It is illegal to destroy, relocate or possess songbirds, their nests or their eggs.

Mockingbirds mate for life. They guard their established territory, chasing other mockingbirds away. Both males and females build their nests, in thick trees or shrubs. In our yard, we've spotted nests hidden in our holly and Lamar trees, as well as our hibiscus and firebrush shrubs. These birds brood a couple of chicks.

Mockingbirds are sensational singers. They sing different songs in the spring. A male northern mockingbird can learn up to 200 different songs, and he sings different songs in the fall than in the spring. Although males, especially males trying to attract a mate, are louder and sing longer. They often mimic birds and sounds around them, even sirens. A male mockingbird can learn up to 50 songs in the spring. Although I'd sang the fadak "Hush little baby, don't say a word. Mama's going to buy you a mockingbird."  Mueller probe a political time bomb that could detonate in 2018

By DAVID SOKOLSTEIN

WASHINGTON — Republicans enter the new election cycle already carrying the weight of Stephen Breyer does the party in power gain seats in midterm congressional elections. But in 2018, they have an additional burden to bear, as Special Counsel Robert Mueller’s investigation into whether Donald Trump’s campaign colluded with Russia drags into the campaign season.

“Certainly if we’re in a scenario where it’s totally consuming the news cycle, it will be very hard for Republicans to point to accomplishments,” said Kevin Madden, a Republican communications strategist and top adviser to Mitt Romney, the party’s 2012 presidential nominee. “You could have a very animated opposition that could help Democrats really energize their base to show up on Election Day.”

John Weaver, the chief strategist for Ohio Gov. John Kasich’s unsuccessful 2016 presidential bid, offered a more lyrical description of the prevailing Trump-Bush climate. “There will be a bit of a wind blowing that will make it difficult for the party in power to win anyway, much less with Siberian clouds moving in.

Mueller’s investigation is likely to continue through next year, if not longer. Several veteran prosecutors have said that the glide path and cooperation of George Papadopoulos, an oblique, low-level campaign foreign policy adviser who sought out Russian contacts, shows

NEW YORK — Five days after an attacker killed eight people and injured 12 others in Lower Manhattan, the annual New York City Marathon ran without a hitch Sunday, as New Yorkers expressed determination to go about their lives.

The New York Police Department lined the 26-mile route that winds through Central Park and around the New York City Marathon on Sunday, killing 26 people and wounding about 20 others in the deadliest mass shooting in the state’s history, the governor said.

The man authorities have identified as the gunman in a mass shooting at a Texas church faced court-martial and was discharged from the Air Force for allegedly assaulting his wife and child, according to an Air Force spokesperson.

The spokesperson, Ann Stefanov, said Saturday that Devin Kelley was sentenced to 12 months’ confinement after a 2012 court-martial. He ultimately received a bad-conduct discharge and reduction in rank.

She said Kelley served in Logistics Readiness at Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico from 2010 to 2011.

Official didn’t identify the attacker during a news conference Sunday night, but two other officials — one a U.S. official and one in law enforcement — each said they were briefed on the investigation identified him as Devin Kelley. They spoke to The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity because they weren’t authorized to discuss the investigation.

The U.S. official said Kelley lived in San Antonio suburb and doesn’t appear to be linked to organized terrorist groups. The official said investigators are looking at social media posts Kelley may have made in the days before Sunday’s attack, including one that appeared to show an AR-15 semiautomatic weapon.

Authorities said a civilian with a gun confronted the attacker and chased him away.

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii (AP) — Authorities are investigating the cause of a fire that killed a couple and their dog and found the body of a man in a house on the Big Island. Hawaii County Fire Department spokesman Jayson Arakaki said they saw the fire about 10:30 a.m. on Friday near Honomu, just north of Kailua-Kona on the Big Island.

‘One minute there was nothing, the next thing — boom, it was a wall of smoke,’ Arakaki said.

If there were any survivors, they were not found. Arakaki said the fire was reported about 12:15 p.m. Hawaiian Time.

Case stirs question of school liability for student suicides

By ALANNA DURKIN RICHER

BOSTON — Han Nguyen was consumed by depression and anxiety and, like anyone of the world’s most prestigious universities, “the word was out” that he was going to kill himself. He continued to decline until one day, seemingly confident, a professor confronted him about an offensive email, the 25-year-old jumped from the top of a campus building to his death.

Nguyen’s suicide sparked a contentious legal battle headed to Massachusetts’ highest court over whether schools can be held responsible when students take their own lives. The case is being closely watched by colleges and universities, who say a decision against them could lead to an unreasonable burden on untrained employees to stop suicides.

“It could be groundbreaking,” said Gary Peveler, an attorney for the school and policy issues in higher education and author of a book about legal questions surrounding student suicides. “It would cause alarm in higher education.”

The student’s family says his death was preventable and that the school was legally liable to use reasonable care to prevent such an outcome. They have sued multiple professors and other MIT officials for their negligence. Nguyen’s family says his suicide was a risk, but failed to get him the help he needed, an attorney for Nguyen’s family argued.

Sources: “Mr. Nguyen’s death, a professor encouraged his colleagues to pose him or they might have ‘blood on their hands,’” attorney Beeler declined to comment and said Nguyen’s family didn’t want to speak to the media.

MIT said the school wasn’t aware of the severity of his condition and he was treated as one of its students who referred themselves on-campus resources.

None of the nine professionals who treated Nguyen while he was at MIT have been found to be an imminent risk of killing themselves, they said.

“Mr. Nguyen’s suicide was a tragedy. That does not warrant a legal conclusion that MIT or any individual associated with MIT had a legal duty to notify” attorneys for the school, said a lawyer named in the lawsuit in court documents.

MIT, which refused to answer questions about Nguyen’s case, said in a statement it “remains committed to providing swift and effective care to its students, offering a robust network of mental health resources, including comprehensive mental health services.”

Nguyen’s family attorney disputes the idea that the man didn’t receive care and has accused MIT of blinding itself from truth.

No state supreme court has ever found an issue and universities have a legal duty to protect student suicides, MIT’s attorneys say Courts have generally been reluctant to do so because, among other things, suicide is an act that’s difficult to predict, police said.

A Massachusetts trial court judge ruled in 2005 that an MIT professor and dean could be held responsible for the death of a woman who lit herself on fire in her dorm room. But Elizabeth Sclafani, that case, was later settled before going to trial, never reached the state’s highest court.

The Supreme Judicial Court will hear the case on Tuesday and will likely go without legal comment.

A group of 18 colleges and universities, including Harvard University and Boston College, filed a joint court request to say the case is premature and that the family could have devastating consequences.

Fears of liability may cause professors and others without mental health expertise to overreact to concerns, in turn could discourage students from coming forward with their problems, the schools say.

Dr. Paul Appelbaum, a psychiatry expert at Columbia University, agrees.

“To the extent that you heighten every resident student’s sensitivity to the risk of suicidality, with the threat of liability hanging over them, they are far more likely to over intervene, see it when it’s not, Appelbaum said.

The Nguyen family attorney and their supporters including the Massachusetts Academy of Trial Attorneys — say the schools’ concerns are baseless.

Beeler, in his filing, said he never wants the court to affirm that the duty to provide care a reasonable care “extends to the ivory tower at it does every other civilized corner of the Commonwealth.”

Thomas Murphy, chair of the amicus committee of the Massachusetts Academy of Trial Attorneys, a jury should get to decide whether MIT was negligent and cause Nguyen’s suicide.

“She the school can convince them that they didn’t cause Nguyen’s suicide and it was going to happen anyway,” he said.
The gunman was later identified as Devin Patrick Kelley, a 26-year-old who had attended a church on several weekends.

The Department of Public Safety official said at a news conference that investigators weren’t sure what their focus would be, and that the attack might have been in retaliation for something.

Frank Pomeroy, a 51-year-old Richard Garat said.

“It would come as no surprise to me, of course,” she said. “It would be a mistake not to have faith.”

“Somebody went in there for revenge,” she said. “I can’t imagine it being anything else.”

The shooting occurred in the 14-year-old daughter of the church’s pastor, Frank Pomeroy, and of the church’s intern, and resulted in three people being shot dead.

“Eunice Hong brought the 310th day of 2017. There is 85. Singer P.J. Proby (The Jive Five) is 71. Today’s birthdays

The beauty of the Mueller investigation is that we know the facts, and it’s not about trying to find them. The real question is, what does it make that it’s un-Protestant code in the Bible that thinks about conservation and the environment. It’s un-Protestant code in the Bible that says, “We can’t not live our life in a way that helps preserve the environment.”

Is daylight saving time worth the trouble?

The research shows that it is more burden than boon

By LAURA GRANT
Assistant Professor of ECONOMICS, CLAREMONT McKENNA COLLEGE

Today the sun is shining brightly, making my commute home from work easier. But this year there was no public service announcements to fall back to “Fall back” ending daylight saving time by setting our clocks an hour earlier on Nov. 5. On Nov. 6, many of us will have to adjust our routine to compensate for the loss of an hour in the dark. This semiannual ritual shifts our rhythms and temporariness makes us groggy at times when we normally feel alert. Moreover, many Americans are confused about why we spring forward in March and fall back in November, and whether it is worth the trouble.

The practice of resetting clocks is not designed for farmers, whose clocks follow the sun regardless of what time clocks say it is. And it does increase the number of daylight – it simply shifts how people align their activities to seasonal changes and to routine.

The key question is how people respond to this time shift. Most people have to be at work at a certain time, so 8 a.m. – and if that time comes an hour earlier, they simply get up an hour earlier. The effect on society is another question. Here, the research shows that daylight saving time is more burden than boon.

No energy savings

Benjamin Franklin was one of the first thinkers to endorse the idea of gaining more use of daylight. Although he lived well before the invention of electric bulbs, Franklin observed that people who slept better in the morning and less in the evening. He also recommended the use of candles later in the evening. Franklin observed that people who slept better in the morning and less in the evening. He also recommended the use of candles later in the evening.

Evidence on crime rates

Fewer murders and sexual assaults occur during daylight saving time because fewer potential victims are out after dark. Overall, net benefits from these three-dimensional effects of crime, recreation and energy use – that is, impacts that last for the duration of the time change – are murky.

Other consequences

Other consequences of daylight saving time are ephemeral. I think of them as bookend effects, since they occur when we change our clocks. When we “spring forward” in March we lose an hour, which comes disproportionately from resting hours rather than from working time. Therefore, many problems associated with springing forward stem from sleep deprivation. With less rest, people make more mistakes, which appear to cause more traffic accidents and workplace injuries. Inverse relationship productivity due to cyberslacking and power saving on some air travel.

Even when we gain an hour back in the fall, we may readjust our routines over several days because the sun and our alarm clocks feel out of synchronization, much like jet lag. Some impacts are serious. During breaks between classes, children in higher latitudes go to school in the dark, which increases the risk of pedophiles finding their targets. Dark commutes are less safe for pedestrians that New York City is repeating the “Dark and Dangerous” safety campaign that it launched in 2011. And heart attacks increase after the spring time shift – it is thought because of lack of sleep – but decrease to a lesser extent after the fall shift. Collectively, these bookend effects represent net costs and strong arguments against retaining daylight saving time.

Pick your own time zone?

Spurred by many of these arguments, at least 16 states have considered changes to daylight saving time this year. Some bills would end daylight saving time, while others would make it permanent. For example, Massachusetts is considering whether to move in coordination with other New England states to Atlantic Daylight Time. Other states have different ideas about the length of the time zone.

When the evidence shows that costs and benefits are mixed but we need to make coordinated choices, how should we make decisions? The strongest arguments, with the exception of energy costs, support not only doing away with the switches but keeping the nation on daylight saving time year-round. This provides the benefits of after-school work, keeping the nation on daylight saving time year-round. PARIS — Prominent French women challenged President Emmanuel Macron on Sunday to organize an “attack plan” against sexual violence and harassment, saying in a blunt petition that women and girls must have done something to stop them.

The petition published in the daily newspaper Le Monde said far-right leader Marine Le Pen called the report “shocking, shameful.”

The easy rapport with Japan, he said, was important to the conflict “because we are closer to Japan than we are to Europe.”

Macron’s government also is working on a bill that could make it easier for women to_dsue assault and, unusually, outline what counts as sexual harassment in the streets.

The petition published on Sunday urges more aggressive action, signaling that the government to require companies and firms to prevent sexual harassment, draw up action plans and provide training for employees.

Dear Dave,

What are some ways to teach parents the value of giving versus getting during the holiday season?

— Phil

Dear Phil,

As a parent, one of the best things you can do is be a living, breathing example of the importance of giving and caring about others. There’s nothing wrong with having some stuff, but many of today’s teens believe it’s all about them. And the sad truth is advertising firms have co-opted them, with their teaching more aggressive than parents are in theirs.

I would encourage you to find giving experiences to which you can participate as a family. Volunteer at a soup kitchen, or take kids to a homeless shelter. There’s no better example of giving that requires absolutely no money. Or maybe you could pull out your wallet, and spend the day shopping for groceries and Christmas gifts for families who are financially less fortunate. Make sure your kids are involved physically, mentally, and emotionally in the entire giving process. Let them experience the gratitude, and then on a regular basis, encourage them to go along with giving up a little bit of their own. And depending on their age, you can create some incredible teaching and family bonding experiences that will change everyone’s lives forever.

Dear Dave,

I have a medical condition, and I finally got an appointment with a specialist I’d like to see. The office requires credit card, debit card, or bank card, but many of today’s teens think it’s wrong with having some stuff, but many of today’s teens believe it’s all about them. And the sad truth is advertising firms have co-opted them, with their teaching more aggressive than parents are in theirs.

Dear Dave,

If you’re uncomfortable with this practice having no personal information, then you should also be uncomfortable with any medical opinions they would render. If you don’t feel they’re trustworthy enough to professionally handle something like a debit card or bank account number, then they’re not trustworthy enough to treat you — period.

I hope that wasn’t unclear.

5 rehabilitated harbor seal pups released on beach

Staff and volunteers with the Mystic Aquarium’s Marine Animal Rescue Team prepare to release five harbor seal pups on the sands of Blue Shutters Beach in Charlestown, RI, Friday.

CHARLESTOWN, R.I. — Connecticut’s Mystic Aquarium has released five rehabilitated harbor seal pups on a Rhode Island beach.

Mystic Aquarium officials say the pups were abandoned shortly after birth and then rescued this past spring and summer. The Day reports they were released Friday on Blue Shutters Beach in Charlestown, Rhode Island.

The four females and one male are the last rehabilitated animals to be released this year by the aquarium.

The pups — named Blossom, Matilda, Georgia, Indy and Vega — weighed between 14 and 20 pounds at rescue and now weigh at least 30 pounds.

FORT WORTH, Texas — Kevin Harvick won an intense battle against Martin Truex Jr. for the lead on the 324th of 334 laps, then stayed in front of the rest of the way to win the Cup Series race at Texas on Sunday and earn his final championship shot in two weeks.

Harvick and Kyle Busch clinched championship spots with their wins during the third round of the playoffs. That leaves only one spot for the final four at Phoenix, where Harvick leads Truex by 19 points.

Jaguars allow season-low 148 yards in win over Bengals

By MARK LONG

JACKSONVILLE — As effortlessly as he has been the Cincinnati Bengals were to start the season, they were even worse Sunday at Jacksonville.

The Bengals finished with a season-low 21 yards in a 27-0 loss that showed — again — just how dominant the Jaguars can be.

The game will be remembered for a fight between receiver A.J. Green and corner back Jalen Ramsey. But it was the one that really got whipped.

It was the team’s worst output since a 27-3 drubbing at Indianapolis in 2014 in which Cincy managed 153 yards. The Bengals (3-7) might not have reached the end zone in this one had it not had for a 59-yard pass play from Andy Dalton to Tyler Kroft during which two defenders collided while trying to make a tackle. Rookie Joe Mixon scored two plays later.

Jacksonville dominated from there, controlling the ball for more than 80 minutes in a血脉 at that could have been much more lauded.

“When we’re playing like that, do you really do with us?” Jag- ners’ corner back Aoron Colvin said. “Where you want to go with the ball? Where you want to go with the ball? We keep trying to tell y’all. We keep trying to tell y’all. There’s no second chance. That’s better than us. We’re trying to show y’all. Eventually everybody will catch on.”

Blake Bortles threw for 237 yards and a touchdown.

“We obviously aren’t very good, and I think that’s what we’re trying to tell y’all: There’s no second chance. That’s better than us. We’re trying to show y’all.”

CLEVELAND — Dennis Philon scored 28 points and led the injury-riddled Atlanta Hawks to an 87-85 victory over the rebuilding Cleveland Cavaliers 117-115 in overtime. The Hawks were missing three starters, but still poured their first victory over the Cavs in 17 months. Dewayne “Wallop” Fife led the way with 21 points. The Cavaliers have also struggled on offense in New Orleans, Indiana and Detroit, scoring just 90.5 points per game. They have struggled defensively, but have still been able to outscore their opponents, 105.1 points per game. The Cavaliers lost their second straight after blowing a 25-point lead, coming back to beat the Los Angeles Clippers 125-124 on Sunday. In the second half, the Clippers began the fourth quarter with a 14-3 run and looked to take a 103-102 edge with 2 minutes and 8 seconds left. Miami’s Bam Adebayo scored a pair of free throws, but Hassan Whiteside had 21 points and 17 rebounds to lead the Heat and Tyler Johnson missed a pair for Miami. Johnson put Miami ahead and, after a Blake Griffin miss, a 3-pointer by Richaun Holmes added two more points for the Pacers. Holmes had 20 points and 17 rebounds as well. The game’s best defender, Miami’s Jay Cutler, back after missing one game with a cracked rib, completed his first 10-for-10 shooting and finished 14 for 14 on the season. His three saves. His touch-down was 1.3 with 1.2 left cut the deficit to three points, but Johnson recovered the ensuing offensive rebound with 10.7 seconds left. Portland Trail Blazers 114-112. The Heat got off to a fast start. Oklahoma City’s defense and sharp offensive execution led the way, building a lead that swelled to as many as 10 points. Miami was up 92-80 at halftime. The Clippers missed 15 of 20 shots in the first quarter, and went 7-for-27 from the field in the second half. The Heat went 10-for-22 from the field in the first quarter. Realtors Welcome!
It’s Garage Sale Time!

Six Steps to Success

1. Tired of trying to make your way around that old blender, bassinet, those bikes and boxes of cast-off clothing? Schedule a garage sale to convert those extra items into cash.

2. Ask your friends if they want to join in. More merchandise means more shoppers and more money for everyone.

3. Clean and polish your items. Fold clothes neatly and arrange them by size and gender. Group small pieces (like jewelry) together into plastic bags so they’re easy to price and display.

4. Arrange for plenty of tables and hanging items so you can display everything prominently. When it’s time, set up your sale so people can move around easily.

5. Make a list of your best items, and then call The Sun Classified to schedule your ad. Your ad rep can help you create an ad that’s sure to get customers calling!

6. Through The Sun Classified, you’ll send the news of your sale to thousands of potential buyers. So, get out your change box and get ready to sell!

Southwest Florida’s ONLY weekly outdoor recreation magazine
DEAR DR. ROACH: I have talked to numerous doctors about my problem, but no one has an answer, and most don’t take it seriously. I have a terrible taste in my mouth all the time. Sometimes it is bearable, but often it is so bad that it makes me gag and choke. The only way I can stand it is by sucking on sugar-free mints, but those also make me sick to my stomach. I have been on dialysis for three and a half years. My kidney doctor says that this shouldn’t cause the problem, but the time coincides with the bad taste. This is reducing the quality of my life in a huge way. — J.S.

ANSWER: Bad taste in the mouth (we use the Greek term for “bad taste,” which is “dysgeusia”) can be caused by several diseases, as well as by medications. While it certainly is associated with people developing end-stage kidney disease, it is uncommon in people who are on dialysis. For some people, increasing the time on dialysis can help (either through more times per week or by more hours per time). Eating less protein has helped some people, but it’s always wise to look at all of the possibilities. I would check with your dentist, since dental issues are one common cause. Too much of some metals (chrome, zinc, lead, copper) and too little of another (zinc, again) can cause taste changes. Neurological problems, like Parkinson’s disease and multiple sclerosis, can cause it, but I have never seen someone have that as an initial symptom.

I would check with an ear/nose/throat doctor (otolaryngologist, also called a head and neck surgeon) would be a good resource.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My husband beat small cell lung cancer with chemo and radiation, but after a few months he was walking with a cane. A few months later, he had a walker; now, since December, he has been in a wheelchair. He has peripheral neuropathy. What can I do to help my husband? — A.S.

ANSWER: When a new symptom arises in someone with cancer, the clinician should consider whether it is due to the cancer, due to the treatment or unrelated to either. All of these are possibilities for your husband.

Small cell lung cancer in particular is associated with what we call “paraneoplastic syndromes.” These are clinical syndromes that are related to the cancer, not directly due to the tumor. They often are associated with antibodies attacking different parts of the body, and the nervous system is a frequent target. Sometimes, the antibodies can be found in the blood. I would consider having a discussion with a neurologist who has expertise in paraneoplastic syndromes.

Treatment for the cancer is another likely possibility. I don’t know what chemotherapy your husband received, but platinum-based chemotherapy is typical with small cell lung cancer, and is a very common cause of peripheral neuropathy. Radiation to the brain is not a usual cause of peripheral neuropathy.

If your husband does not have identifiable antibodies consistent with a paraneoplastic syndrome and did receive platinum chemotherapy, I would think that the chemo would be the likely cause, as his course was very consistent with this condition. Treatment to relieve symptoms is possible: An antidepressant drug, duloxetine, has been particularly helpful for some people. However, physical therapy may be the most effective treatment. You can find some help at www.foundationforpn.org.

Dear Readers: Today's sound off is about the fees charged by stores for the privilege of shopping there:

"Dear Heloise: There are a couple of large discount stores that charge a fee to shop there, and frankly, I don't understand why I need to pay for a discount! I asked the clerk why I had to pay for the 'privilege' of spending my money in that store, and the clerk said that they have a low markup on all items, and the fees are the main source of the company's revenue. As a businesswoman, I find that difficult to believe."

Fast facts

Dear Readers: Here are some uses for stale bread:

- Make croutons out of it and freeze them for future use.
- Stale bread is best for bread pudding.
- You can crumble it and put it in a meatloaf or use it in stews (to thicken the sauce). — Heloise

Dear Heloise: In response to cleaning silk flowers, a designer of silk flowers recommended using a hair dryer once a month to blow dust off flowers. It works! — Judy L., The Villages, Fla.

Hints from Heloise

A devoted reader

Dear Heloise: I love reading your column in our local Free Lance-Star newspaper! Here are two hints I'd like to share:

1. An empty tea-light holder is a perfect place to store your rolled-up fabric measuring tape.
2. The plastic cover from a store-bought cake can be reused/recycled as a drip tray for a plant. — Dawn W., Fredericksburg, Va.

Wedding-day views

Dear Heloise: Please tell brides to step outside for a moment when trying on wedding gowns, especially if they are having an outdoor ceremony. This way, they can tell whether sunlight shows everything under the skirt. I had to make a last-minute slip out of a nightgown when I discovered this mistake at my wedding. If I had known about this before the wedding, I'd have bought a half slip! — Juliana T., Bettendorf, Iowa
New carpet provokes old complaints from husband

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 45 years. My husband and I get along fine. We each have our little quirks, but after all these years, we are used to each other. There is just one thing that really bugs me about him. When repairs need to be done outside the house, we have it done — new roof, new siding, driveway paved, even solar panels. We have also done some work inside, such as remodeling the kitchen and bathrooms.

Twelve years after moving into our home, I finally insisted that it be repainted on the inside. My husband griped about it nonstop. I told him he didn’t have to do the painting; we would hire someone to do the job. (He did have to help me move the furniture.)

Well, now it’s time to replace that carpet. It’s original. It’s 30 years old, stained and worn out. Again, he’s griping and complaining. It drives a wedge between us. Money isn’t the issue. He says I am “always bothering him with one thing after another.” Is it asking too much to have these things done inside my home after so many years?

“NAGGING” WIFE

DEAR ABBY: I don’t think so. Nothing looks forever, and that includes furniture. Make a deal with him — you will hire someone to move the furniture this time if he will stop complaining. The disruption will be over in a few days, and the interior of your home will look fresher and newer once that carpet is history.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I don’t think you have ever addressed. Both of my tires have been removed. Fortunately, they were not cancerous. It is either my husband’s or my bacon, which is a blessing. Most support groups are for cancer survivors, and I’m wondering if you know of any groups for men like me. Some days I still can’t come to grips with it because this is part of being a man. Any suggestions? — TRYING TO COPE IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: The doctor who saw you through the procedure may be able to refer you to a group or a therapist who can help you with your adjustment. If you haven’t already contacted that physician, it would be a good place to start. Although most members of support groups are probably cancer survivors, you still will have much in common, so keep an open mind before dismissing the idea entirely.

DEAR ABBY: What is the appropriate response when I get an invitation to go somewhere and I must decline because I can’t afford it or don’t want to pay for it? I’m trying to cut my expenses, and I’m embarrassed that I can’t afford any new expenses. I appreciate the invitations, and sometimes, if it’s worth it to me, I will accept. I don’t want to lie when I really want to say, “This expense isn’t worth it to me.” What can I say that won’t hurt anyone’s feelings and won’t get me caught in a lie? — DON’T WANT TO LIE

DEAR ABBY: It isn’t shameful to admit to someone that money is tight and you have to cut expenses, so you can’t attend an event. It’s something that everyone should be able to identify with. However, you should refrain from saying the expense “isn’t worth it to you,” because it comes across as judgmental, and the person may take offense.

DEAR ABBY: I have a few observations that might help you with your readers.

VENUS (May 21-June 21): Everyone wants to feel loved, but only briefly. Before you know it, they’re processed and gone.

MARS (June 22-July 22): Everyone wants to feel better, including you. Because you’re already feeling strong, you’re willing to do the hard work to feel better instead of going for a quick fix.

CANCER (July 23-Aug. 22): Your mind is sharp and your body is strong. Furthermore, there’s a wave of positive energy in the atmosphere, so you can take advantage of the opportunity. Make your move, and you’ll travel in April. Cancer and Leo adore each other, and you’ll travel in April.

LEO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have heard enough complaining and don’t want to do any more. You do care about your health leading your energy in the most effective and efficient ways.

VIRGO (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your view of the world is one that doesn’t come around very often; a very generous nature of effort to others. Minimal work will accomplish a maximum result. Fingers crossed!

LIBRA (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): You love to watch the way people put on their best face when they tell you what they love me. You already have a clear vision of where your going next and what steps will take you there.

SCORPIO (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): You are concerned about your future, and you’re worried about making the right decisions. Be patient, and you will get the next three weeks. You’ll be able to assist others.

SAGITTARIUS (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It’s the time to start. Although most memories are already in place, you will be able to assist others.

CAPRICORN (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will be in a position to take control. There’s something you’re in charge of. Your mind is sharp and your body is strong. You can take advantage of it.

AQUARIUS (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Ask for help, whether or not you think you need it. People will like helping you today, and they’ll like you even more than they already do because helping will build a bond between you.

TODAY’S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 6): Rather than give for a different reason as you once did, you’ll embrace the current circumstances and work them to your advantage. Your evolved nature will make a brilliant result in the next few weeks. You’ll also be able to assist your family as a result. There is a wonderful combination of February and Leo that will allow you and Leo adore each other.
