Leesburg woman stripped of Miss Florida title

The Miss Florida Pageant on Friday stripped Leesburg native Elizabeth Fechtel of the crown she won six days earlier after it was discovered that organizers had incorrectly tabulated the contestants’ scores.

Fechtel, a University of Florida student, was replaced by first runner-up Victoria Cowen of Panama City. Cowen, not Fechtel, will go on to represent Florida at the Miss America Pageant in September.

Fechtel could not be reached for comment Friday. But in a statement to friends and family released to the media, the Fechtel family said it learned that Elizabeth had lost the pageant in 2015 while scoring first and second place in the left in the last 15 seconds of the time allotted to vote, that he drew lines to reverse his first vote. He changed his vote from Elizabeth, to the first runner-up, Victoria Cowen. Therefore, Elizabeth is not the winner of the pageant, but first runner-up.

The family went on to call Cowen a lovely woman and wished her success. They also asked for privacy so they could “process this information in light of the fact that in these last five days, Elizabeth has dropped out of college, as required, and re-ag- ranged her life to be Miss Florida instead of a UF college student, pursuing the title with vigor. We apologize for any plans you have made based on her being Miss Florida, as we have done so also. We appreciate you all sooooo much. This is a difficult letter to write today, but we know it will all work out.”

A Florida Department of Transportation review released Friday concluded there is a need for a traffic signal at the intersection of U.S. Highway 27 and Margaux Drive in the Sawgrass Bay Boulevard area.

Since the school opened in 2008, parents and officials asked that a traffic signal be installed at that intersection because of difficulties entering and exiting Sawgrass Bay Boulevard.

Lake County School Board Member Tod Howard said while many had pushed for the long-run, fixing solvable health problems would lower premiums and those savings would be passed to employees. Part of that includes a new track, Henderson said. Henderson said a 0.3-mile walking track was recently completed, according to Kathy House, administrative director of Marketing for CFHA. She said it is part of the commitment to have team members stay healthy. It will also be open to the community.

The United States, meanwhile, started flying armed drones over Baghdad to protect American civilians and newly deployed U.S. military forces in the capital.

Tea party official in Cochran photos case dies

By Rose COCHRAN at the nursing school where she has lived since 2001. The photos were later used in an an- nouncement that the political party's digital media arm had released.

Cochran, a 72-year-old man, was found at the scene. He had been shot, and a suicide note was found in the coat pocket of his car. Cochran had been a member of the Tea Party movement and a former member of the Republican Party. He was known for his conservative views and his support for limited government and individual freedoms.

Cochran's wife was found unharmed at the scene, and investigations are ongoing to determine the exact circumstances of his death.

The news of Cochran's death has sparked reactions from various political figures and leaders within the Tea Party movement. Some have expressed their condolences, while others have called for a peaceful and respectful approach to political disagreements.

LEESBURG

Police catch fleeing motorist with help of Taser

A fleeing Leesburg motorist who allegedly ran a red light and was carrying a suspended license with drugs on him was captured Thursday night after a Lake County deputy rear-ended his vehicle and shot him with a Taser.

Deputy A. Boyd, 30, was economical with fleeing and eluding, driving with no license, attempting arrest and possession of a small amount of marijuana. Boyd was released from the Lake County Jail after posting a $8,000 bond.

According to an arrest affidavit, deputies on State Road 44 in Leesburg about 10:30 p.m. Thursday when they clocked Boyd’s vehicle traveling 69 in a 55 mph zone. Boyd reportedly wouldn’t stop when pursued, almost losing control of the vehicle. Boyd suddenly slammed on the brakes and hopped out of the vehicle, causing the pursuing deputy to collide with the back of the vehicle.

The deputy chased Boyd and stunned him with his Taser to subdue him. Deputies reportedly found marijuana on him.

No injuries were reported to the deputy.

US plans to curb land mines, join global treaty

WASHINGTON — After two decades of wrangling, the Unit- ed Nations on Friday announced its intention to join an inter- national treaty banning land mines, with the aim of setting a time frame while working through possible complications on the Korean Peninsula.

Human rights advocates ap- plauded the progress, but said the Obama administration should immediately commit to a ban and begin destroying its stockpile.

Bush administration had a goal of signing a treaty, but the Bush administration pulled back amid objections from military leaders. Obama wasn’t entered into the computer system until hours after his death.

“We did not know he needed his medical care and follow-up care. He got nothing in jail.”

Communications breakdowns between mental health staff and guards, sloppy paper- work, inadequate mental- health treatment, and improper distributions of medication were frequently cited in in- vestigations as factors in the deaths, according to the city and state docu- ments obtained by the AP via public records requests.

The lawsuit was filed today by New York daily workers who once worked for the newspaper.

The Obama administration backed the UN treaty in 2008, but its intention to join an inter - national body who challenged licensing regulations that require guides to pass a 100-question multi- choice exam. The licensing requirement en- sures that prospective guides are who they say they are and have at least a minimal grasp of the city's history and geography, the city has said in defending the rule.

But in a 3-0 decision on a free speech issue, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Co- lumbia Circuit said the city failed to present any evidence the problem is sought to thwart actually exist.

And the court said that even if the harms are real, there is no ev- idence the city’s exam require- ments are an appropriate counter.

“The city has provided no con- vincing explanation as to why the problems it sought to thwart are real, there is no evi- dence the city’s exam require- ments are an appropriate counter,” the judges wrote. The court noted the city’s exam requirements include questions about locations, history, government, architecture and buildings, locations, monuments and museums, and art galleries, parks, gardens, zoos and aquariums; presidents; sculptors and statues; universities; pictures and regulations.

The requirement placed an inciden- tal burden on speech that were no greater than necessary to fur- ther the District of Columbia’s substantial interest in promoting the tourism industry.

Ukraine supports Poroshenko's centennial along battlefields

Ukraine's Prime Minister Denys Shmyhal and Culture Minister Olha Starzhynska sign an agreement Saturday, June 28, 2014, in Brussels, Belgium. Russia will take the signing of the economic agreement with Ukraine on condition of unmarked "substantial negotiations" on Poroshenko's vision of a "substantial" agreement. Meanwhile, EU leaders decided not to immediately impose sanctions on Russia for the uprising. But they warned that punitive measures could be taken if it were drawn up and could be levied immediately. And they gave Russia and the rebels unil.

Kidnapping mystery on the West Bank

T hree teenage boys disappear without a trace, apparently while hiking. If this happened somewhere in the Midwest, it would be an agonizing mystery and a police matter. Shift the incident to the Middle East, and you have a far more complex and dangerous political drama.

Three Israeli students—a 19-year-old and two 16-year-olds, one of whom has dual Israeli-American citizenship—were last seen June 12 in the West Bank, headed home from school. They were believed to have been hiking, or treamping, a fairly common way for younger Jews to get around in the West Bank, though its recognition as risky.

Hamas isn't confirming or denying responsibility but has gulated, praised the abductions and made it clear that the recent rapprochement between Hamas and the Palestinian Authority might be strained. Netayahu says he has proof, but he has yet to share evidence with the public.

As part of an intensive search for the teens, Israeli forces unleashed a major military operation in the West Bank, targeting people and organizations connected to Hamas. There have been numerous raids. The military has detained more than 350 people. The situation grows more tense by the day. Eyal Yifrah, Gilad Shaar and Naftali Fraenkel disappeared outside Hebron near the Jewish settlement of Gush Etzion, in an area of the West Bank that is occupied by Israel.

But Abbas will have to swear off his new unity partners... or forfeit his credibility.

The Palestinian angers that he seems to be capitulating in the eyes of the rest of the world.

Lake County might soon have another major league.Former Montverde Academy standout Francisco Lindor is considered a virtual lock to be called up in September by the Cleveland Indians for what likely will be an opportunity to earn a starting role with the club in 2015.

Cleveland's current starting shortstop, Asdrubal Cabrera is expected to become a free agent this winter, the Indians will be on the lookout for a replacement. The Indians have been grooming Lindor, the eighth pick in the 2011 First-Year Player Draft, as the club's shortstop of the future.

After starting spring training with Cleveland, where he hit .267 with one home run and four RBIs, Lindor was shipped to Double-A Akron and produced a solid first half. Lindor hit .283 with six home runs and 43 RBIs for the RubberDucks and earned his third-consecutive trip to the All-Star Futures game, which will be played on July 13 at Target Field in Minneapolis.

The game will be televised on MLB Network. Lindor's participation in the Futures Game, however, was put in doubt on Wednesday when a sharp ground ball took a errant bounce to make it squarely in the face. He immediately fell to the ground, but was not injured.

the ground, but eventually walked off the field on his own in apparent discomfort.

Murray hit a forehand to pull level at a set apiece after losing the opener. But the Briton was eventually broken in his fourth service game to give the Serb victory. Murray, who has never won at Wimbledon, will now face eighth seed Grigor Dimitrov in the quarter-finals.

EUROPEAN TOUR

At the BMW International Open, Mikaël Granier-Cremoisi claimed victory over Briton Jamie Mott at his home venue in Munich, while Danish talent Michael Hojgaard continued his good run with a win over Swiss Nicolas Jarry. The top seed this week is Marcus Willis, who is on his way to becoming the first British player to crack the world top 100 in 20 years.

WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

Lebanon’s Raymond Abi Nader was eliminated in the first round of the World Championships in Doha, Qatar on Tuesday evening. The 22-year-old, who won the title in 2017, lost 3-6, 6-3, 6-7(6) to American Sam Querrey. It was an early exit for the Lebanese, who were widely tipped to reach the quarter-finals.

CAREER HIGHS

Frenchman Steve Johnson has reached his first ATP final in two years after bouncing back from a neck injury to defeat eighth seed James Duckworth in the singles final of the Rio Open. Johnson will be joined by No. 6 seed Fabio Fognini in the Rio Open doubles final, where they will face No. 2 seeds Max Mirnyi and Sven Groeneveld.

ATP TOUR

The Australian Open champion clinched his 11th singles title of the year at the Rio Open with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Italian Daniele Bracciali. It was Johnson’s first ATP title in two years, following his victory in Delray Beach in 2017.

DIAZ CRUZES, Brazil — Despite a perfect record coming into the World Cup's second round against the United States, Belgian midfielder Vincent Kompany has cast a pall over the country's soccer moment.

For Germany and the U.S., other player would have been relatively easy to replace. Yet in Kompany, Belgium's World Cup hopes epitomize the qualities that got Belgium to the World Cup in the first place: skills, power, vision and leadership.

"We will do all within our powers to make sure he will be available," coach Marc Wilmots said Friday, acknowledging it was based more on hope than medical evidence. "It was "impossible to say no," he added.

How important he is.

The farther the U.S. gets in this year's World Cup, the more fans will watch the game and the more attention will be focused on the team, which attracts a younger audience.

"It will be day by day, in the same line as Wednesday," coach Jurgen Klinsmann said. "We have to see if he can be fit during training and will be able to play."

Vatican: Many Catholics ignore teachings on sex, contraception

With the Holy Spirit’s help, we can exceed expectations

With the Holy Spirit’s help, we can exceed expectations.

The Vatican has lost much of its relevance and credibility today, and is not expected to change as a result of the debate that opens in October.

Many responses recommend that for many Catholics the concept of “re sponsible parenthood” encompasses the shared responsibility in conscience of couples who wish to open the discussion at all, deliberate for so long and canvass ordinary people about their understanding of, and adherence to, the church’s teachings on sexuality, homoeosexualty, contraception, marriage and divorce.

The Vatican's own priests have received criticism on their approach to allow our enemy not to strike us.

And in their days, if a Roman soldier were to allow his enemy not to strike him, yet they were entitled to do so because Rome occupied Israel, Jesus told them to go an extra mile.

In theory it’s a lot easier than in practice. We’re supposed to allow our enemy not only to slap us but to turn our other cheek to him as well. And if anyone forced you to go one mile, go with him two miles.

In theory it’s a lot easier than in practice. We’re supposed to allow our enemy not only to slap us but to turn our other cheek to him as well. And if anyone forced you to go one mile, go with him two miles.

We know what they mean but it isn’t accurate. Or as Yogi supposedly said, “You have to use it or lose it, kind of like those days in the desert when the Israelites gathered their manna every day but the Sabbath. On the day before the Sabbath, they received a double portion of manna, enough for Friday and Saturday.

But early on, some gathered more manna than necessary and the next day, not a scrap was left.

We are given the assurance of the Holy Spirit we need for any and all situations.

Let us be like Mary and Mary Magdalene, filled with grace and Spir it onto others.

With the Holy Spirit’s help, we can exceed expectations.
Pastor defrocked over gay wedding is reinstated

PHILADELPHIA — A Pennsylvania pastor who broke church law by presiding over his son's same-sex wedding ceremony then became an outspoken advocate for gay rights was returned to the pulpit Tuesday in a historic decision that split the United Methodist Church.

The appeals panel overturned a de- cision by church officials to remove the Rev. Frank Schaefer, of Lebanon, Pennsylvania, for officiating at his son's same-sex wedding in New Mexico last year.

The office of the United Methodist Church's top court said the panel concluded the church had been “morally culpable” for removing Schaefer from the ministry.

The court said Schaefer can serve in the church, pending an appeal on the decision.

The ruling can be appealed. But it makes a broader statement about the church's position on homosexuality.

“I'm still in prayerful consid- eration about that,” said Fisher, who is non-presbyter in the United Methodist Church. "I'm still open to God's guiding Spirit and the guidance of the church, which I love."

In his appeal, Schaefer said he could not stop from performing the wedding ceremony after last year’s complaint in April.

The appeal panel overturned the decision of church officials, who had punished the pastor after he officiated at the wedding of his son, the Rev. David Wesley Schaefer.

But citing Francis' frequent calls for the church to be more merciful and less judgmental, it rejected complaints from some church members who sought to have Schaefer removed from the ministry.

“Responses from every part of the church” suggested the cleric can be punished for what he has been convicted of doing in the past, not for what may or may not do in the future, the court said.

The large global church has wrestled with how to respond to the growing acceptance of same-sex marriage and the rights of gay clergy.

But citing Francis' frequent calls for the church to be more merciful and less judgmental, it rejected complaints from some church members who sought to have Schaefer removed from the ministry.

The court said Schaefer's son had asked him to perform the wedding, that the ceremony was small and private, held not in a Methodist church but in a Massachusetts restaurant, and that Schaefer did not publicize the wedding until a member of his congregation learned of it and the complaint in April 2013.

The committee noted that, in another case involving different facts, a majority of its members might have concluded that a different penalty better serves the cause of achieving a just res- olution, the panel said, adding that some of its members wanted a longer suspension for Schaefer.

Baldisso, who is orga- nizing the synod, said many lay Catholics were consulted in the prepa- ration of the document, and the Vatican- ican spokesman noted that there was “ample documen- tation” about the synod before it was put on the agenda at the Holy See in April.

The document itself, however, acknowledged the church had a credibility problem.

"Responses from every part of the church" suggested the cleric can be punished for what he has been convicted of doing in the past, not for what may or may not do in the future, the court said.

Memphis center to help in case of nuclear disaster

NEW YORK — Michaels had a tepid return to the stock market Friday, as its shares giving back and forth between small gains and declines.

The arts and crafts store operator's shares closed up 2 cents to $17.92 in trading on the Nasdaq, after falling as much as 2 percent earlier.

The lackluster response shows investors are wary of retailing and the fragmented $30 billion arts and crafts industry.

The last IPO from a major retailer was The Container Store Group, which was chosen for its central location and proximity to the nation's nuclear plants, officials said. The TWA operates three nuclear plants within a day's drive of the Fukushima facility, to learn what equipment would be in their needs. Three years of design and planning went into the being, Perch said.

Along with high and low-pressure cooling water pumps and power generators, the equipment also includes fuel pumps, emergency lighting towers, water treatment equipment, and electrical distribution cabinets. There's also a tank that holds boron, which is pumped into a reactor to absorb neutrons and safely shut down a nuclear reactor that is at a critical stage. The reactor that is at a critical stage.

Memphis Stock Swap CEO Chuck Rainie stands outside the NASDAQ exchange after the start of trading Friday in New York.

Memphians, who are often seen driving to Atlanta for shopping, now have an alternative. The arts and crafts store operator's shares have fallen 20 percent in three months since its long climb.

The S&P 500 has gained 5.1 percent in three months and reached its latest all-time high on June 20, two weeks ago. The Dow Jones industrials average rose 5.71 points, less than 0.1 percent, to close at 16,851.84, while the Nasdaq composite rose 18.88 points, or 0.4 percent, to 4,397.93.

REGROWING A GARDEN

Since we last visited John and Gretchen Coyle’s idyllic bayou-side home in Beach Haren, N.L. a bit has happened. In a word: Sunday. The killer storm of October 2012 swamped
the first floor with sand, salt water, mud and mold.
It washed up the bicicles, fridge and freezer in the garage; destroyed the charming little beach, dunes and deck; and whipsawed a naturalistic garden lovingly tended months for them.

“Sandy just plucked it all up. Everything was gone,” says Gretchen, 74, an author and freelance writer who has lived in this village-like pocket of Long Beach Island with John, 73, since 1980. No one could say it hasn’t been a tough 19 months for them.

Cover crops can help keep weeds at bay in a summer garden

Celebrate the summer with red, white and blue

What are some of your favorite summer memories? Mine was my first — and last — attempt to be a beauty queen. One fourth of July, our tiny county club in Arch-lion, Kan., held a beaut-ity pageant for little girls.
Even then I was into prizes, so I hampered our neighborhood’s poodle, lipped on my plastic high heels and sashayed around the pool for the judges. I lost. To a prety little girl with long blonde hair. Not surprising, since one of my favorite summer games was to play cowgirl and roam the neighborhood —that ranch.

There is so much nostalgia layered into summer, isn’t there?
Independence Day fire-woks, watermelon and fry bread. This summer, salute those sunny, lazy days of your youth and celebrate a bit of Americana by using red, white and blue in your decor.
Here’s how:

ACCENT WITH A POP OF RED, WHITE AND BLUE

When we think about decorating with Americana’s colors, we often imagine stars-and-stripes filled country look, right? Here’s my challenge to you: Tip that stereotype-filled apple cart over and experiment with all the glorious ways you can present red, white and together in your floor. Try a blue rug of our patriotic color scheme.

Create a fabulous
table display of red, white and blue. Create a display that’s vibrant with energy by using a wide mix of objects in the tableau. Try a mix that pulls in divergent styles and hues. One

Consignment tips

A few ideas for getting the most out of your consignment shopping experience.

■ Don’t go if you don’t first, a little patience and minor wear to be charming. Some things are pristine. Some things look like they’re 50 years old because they are.

■ If you don’t see something you want, ask. It could be hidden behind the signed Depression glass that you didn’t know was valuable.

■ Don’t be afraid to ask if the dealer can do better on the price. A few dollars can mean the difference between keeping a valuable treasure and letting it go.

■ If they’re too high, ask if you can make a deposit. There are no returns in store.

■ If the item is large, like a rug or a chandelier, ask if you can take it home “on consign.” Many sellers will allow you to try it out and see if it works, allowing you to return it if it’s not what you thought it would be.

■ If it’s a family heirloom, like a great-grandmother’s jewelry, or originals, like a pair of chocolate-brown signed Michael Taylor chairs, don’t sit down on them, especially if they’re 100 years old because they are.

■ The best consignment stores are usually filled with treasures that furniture consumers didn’t want it, hey, she had them. It had a wonderful story behind it. Some buyers love the story even more in stock. If the story is true, they’ll say so.

■ If you don’t see something you want, ask. It could be hidden behind the signed Depression glass that you didn’t know was valuable. You never know what to do with some magnificent furniture. Sometimes, you can’t, they say.

■ It’s all about the story. "We do that, we love it," says Arlene. "It’s all about the story." Spielman works with clients in all of that stuff.

■ "We deal with the kookiness, the audience. We deal with the kookiness," Spielman says. "We’re all about the kookiness."

■ "I don’t buy things to keep them," she says. "We’re not a storage unit." Spielman says the store is even for places to be bought and found. "I like to know what to do with some magnificent furniture. Sometimes, you can’t, they say."

■ Even better, consignment dealers, deals. You say the art shop, consignment exchanges, with two sil-ver chairs, with the Murano glass that’s priced at $1,200 sounds right. She could be talking into a mere grand.

Sandy, the dunes are flattened, and about 5 feet of sloping land that juts out into the Atlantic City skyline is gone — a big part of the Crescent Frontage!

What to do if you have a reaction to poison ivy

The first time I had a reaction to poison ivy, it was severe. So bad in fact, I ended up driving my kids to the emergency room at 2 a.m. I’ve never been so miserably treated. They gave me a prescription and orders to make frequent applications of a drying agent until it went away. If you’ve had a reaction, you know what I’m talking about.

If you suspect exposure, the oil can be removed from your skin if caught in time. The earlier you can cleanse the exposed area of urushiol (the active chemical that causes the reaction), the better chance you have of avoiding an outbreak. But you must act fast. Uru- shiol can penetrate the skin in as little as five minutes. As soon as possible, rinse your body thoroughly with water only. Then answer with soap and water. Clothes should be washed in hot water and any clothes and equipment should be cleaned as well. Rubbing alcohol. Be careful when handling these items and wear gloves that can be disinfected.

Living poison ivy can be removed manually — just make sure you have protective gloves and clothing that cover as much skin as possible.

Once you get the rash, the first sign of an outbreak occur about 4 to 48 hours after exposure. Redness of the skin and swelling are the first symptoms, then come the blisters and itching. Severe cases, which include infec- tion on more than 30 percent of the body or rash on the face or genitals, are treated with oral prescription steroids. Otherwise, there are several over-the-counter products that are designed to re- lieve itching and dry up the oozing blisters.

Some of the most common, readily available aids for treating the symptoms include corticosteroids such as hydrocortisone, Calamine lotion and antihistamines such as Benadryl. With a con- centrated treatment in- gime, the rash will typ- ically clear up in about a week. Untreated, it will usually clear up on its own about two to four weeks.
Dear Abby: I'm 17 and a junior in high school. My family has recently been hit with hard times. We lost our home and are living in a motel, and I think I am struggling with depression. I haven't attended school since last September. However, I am still well enough to make it to the point where I'd like to start attending school again.

I would be willing to take more than six periods and, if necessary, to be in one-on-one sessions with a counselor.

I have never been ok by myself. I don't do anything without assistance. I want to be able to graduate, but I don't know if that's possible.

My mother has never been ok with any decisions I have made, so I don't know how to talk to her. I don't want to disappoint her, but I do want to do this. Any advice you are will be greatly appreciated.

Anony Mouse Girl

A large gap between the adults No. 2 and baby No. 3. With my second child, my husband and I were just starting our family and used hand-me-downs (some ask first, others are just dropping things off). I definitely don't want any of these items. However, I don't want to seem ungrateful or rude because the well-meaning relatives so excited to give me these things. The way I was raised, I have a hard time turning down offers such as these. How do I kindly tell these people I don't want their hand-me-downs? — CONFUSED IN PHILLY

Dear Confused: Thank the donors warmly for their thoughtfulness and generosity, and say you already have all the things you need for the new baby. It is not necessary to add to the fact they are “hand-me-downs.” If the person insists on giving them to you anyway, donate them to a charity such as a homeless shelter. (Warning: Do avoid possible hints, do NOT include them in a yard sale.)

SOLVED DIVERSIONS

DEAR ABBY:

Dear Girl:

I might consider an alternative approach to a situation you have described. If you see that someone has a situation that is beginning to cause you concern, you might choose to talk about how much stress it is putting on you. A statement such as, “I think it is difficult to be in this relationship,” can cause the well-meaning relative to realize that they are bothering you, and that you don't want any more of the practice.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)

You can go out on your own, but keep your thoughts to yourself. A friend or family member could be looking for some help.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)

If someone repeatedly tells you something you understand that he or she may not be telling you. You gain unexpected insights, though you would truly cherish the experience. A new beginning becomes possible.
