TEXAS LAKE RELAY COMMUNITY BARBECUE CHILI COOK-OFF, COLLINS CONSERVATION FESTIVAL, and North Lake Relay Community Barbecue Chili Cook-Off, Collins Conservation Festival, which stretch from central Florida to northeast Florida. A final vote in the full House and Senate on the new map is expected early next week. Leon County Circuit Court Judge Terry Lewis ruled last month the original maps passed by legislators in 2012 was intended to benefit Republicans, in violation of a constitutional amendment passed by voters in 2010. The ruling specified that Congressional Districts 5 and 10 were invalid. Republican legislative leaders defended their new maps as the best way to comply with the court order without disturbing other districts through the state while obeying the Federal Voting Rights Act prohibition against undermining minority districts. “I think we did an excellent job. I’m very proud of it,” said Rep. Richard Corcoran, R-Land O’ Lakes. “Judge Lewis clearly said legally why we had to be here. We addressed all of his legal concerns.” But the League of Women Voters, which brought the lawsuit, contends that small changes to the map are not enough. The group takes particular issue with District 5, currently held by U.S. Rep. Corrine Brown, D-Jacksonville—a skinny district running from Jacksonville to Orlando that was designed to produce a majority African-American district. The league prefers a district that runs west from Jacksonville to the heart of the Palmndale. Members of the House committee voted down an alternative proposal from Democrats along party lines.

State legislative committees approve new districts

TALLAHASSEE — Flori- da legislative committees on Friday approved a proposal to make slight changes to seven congressional districts to comply with a court order. Panels in both the House and Senate passed the new map altering the districts, which stretch from central Florida to northeast Florida. A final vote in the full House and Senate on the new map is expected early next week. Leon County Circuit Court Judge Terry Lewis ruled last month the original maps passed by legislators in 2012 was intended to benefit Republicans, in violation of a constitutional amendment passed by voters in 2010. US launches air strikes against Islamic militants

Obama’s aim: contain, not destroy, extremists

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama’s new military strategy in Iraq amounts to trying to contain — not destroy — the Islamic militant group that now controls much of the country’s northern region. That leaves open the question of how deeply the U.S. will go in terms of the sectarian conflict, and whether air strikes alone can stop the militants’ momentum.

Obama insists he will not send American ground troops back to Iraq after having withdrawn them in 2011, fulfilling a campaign promise. Still, the limited airstrikes against the vicious insurgency show the president’s conviction that the U.S. military can stop the militant threat.

IRBIL, Iraq — The U.S. unleashed its first airstrikes in northern Iraq against militants of the Islamic State group Friday amid a worsening humanitarian crisis. The extremists took captive hundreds of women from a religious minority, including an Iraqi official, while civilians fled in fear.

continue to grow. Ibyd said. The new stage is planned to face a field, and Ibyd said people could bring lawn chairs.

Other changes on the park master plan include more sidewalks in the front of the park, a pedestrian bridge and a new play structure, documents show.

The plan also calls for the city to acquire a piece of land that partially separates part of the park from the back field. Ibyd said there is crack in the sidewalk there that could be used for things such as weddings or parades. However, he said he has reached out to the owners and they are not interested in selling.

Recreational facilities in the park are ADA accessible, Ibyd said. "We want people, regardless of their health, to be able to come as much as possible and to come out, too," he said.

But the changes are dependent on funding, according to Ibyd. The city hopes to get some Florida Recreation and Development Assistance Program Grant money and they believe the city also has enough money to fund the project. He said the park is in the Communi- ty Development Block Grant and in 2014, the estimated total cost of the park master plan would be $1.2 million, according to the city’s documents. While it is not a part of the master plan, Ibyd says a park joint near both city hall and Cadwell Park will soon be repaired and ex-

A delegation of Palestinian negotiators arrived in Cairo late Friday to meet with their Egyptian counterparts. The negotiations were not going well, and Israel said it would not negotiate under fire. The Palestinian delegation was met again later Friday by Egyptian mediators. The Palestinian head of the delegation, said the delegation would stay in Egypt for an agreement that “ensures the rights of the Palestinian people. We told Egyptians we are staying,” he told reporters.

The indirect talks are meant to bring an end to the longest round of fighting between Israel and Hamas since the Islamic militant group seized control of Gaza in 2007. In four weeks of violence, more than 1,000 Gazans have been killed, roughly three-quarters of them civilians, according to Palestinian and U.N. officials. Sixty-seven people were killed on the Israeli side, including three civilians.

The Palestinians are seeking an end to an Israeli-Egyptian blockade imposed on Gaza after the Hamas takeover. Militants had warned they would resume fighting after the cease-fire expired unless there was a deal to ease the restrictions. The blockade, which Israel says is needed to prevent smuggling, has constrained movement in and out of the territory of 1.8 million people and brought Gaza’s economy to a standstill.

Israel said any long-term agreement guarantees that Hamas, an armed group sworn to Israel’s destruction, will not obtain access to its weapons.

In Cairo, Palestinian participants in the talks were pessimistic about the chances of a deal. They said Israel was imposing every Palestinian pre-condition for lifting the blockade.

For instance, the Palestinians are seeking greater movement of goods through Israeli-controlled cargo crossings, which Israel restricts on “dual-use” items that could potentially be used for military purposes, they said. Israel also was resisting demands to allow movement between Gaza and the West Bank — Palestinian territories that are located on opposite sides of Israel, they said.

“Israel in these talks wants to change the rules of the game and have free access for people and goods. This is what ends up dominating the talks. Israel is not accepting that,” the Egyptian negotiator said.

In addition, the group Russia’s betrayal of eastern Ukraine and other rebel leaders with the Kremlin apparently tries to support from Moscow, as the Kremlin apparently tries to rebuild its influence in the region by calling the shots among rebel groups.

Many in the rebel ranks, including one who called Russia’s betrayal of Ukraine the cause, but most vowed to keep on fighting.

"We had hoped for help from Moscow, we had expected Russian troops, but Russia betrayed us. Many fighters are beginning to think about their future and also are escaping to Russia."

Scott's election-year love affair with the environment

By Rick Scott has had an epiphany about Florida's environment. Last week, he said the state's environmental assets are essential to the health and prosperity of Florida, and he has a billion-dollar plan for saving our beautiful and fragile state from further environmental devastation.

Scott, in a tight campaign for re-election, says he wants to spend $500 million to save Florida's springs and another $500 million to develop alternative water sources. On top of all that, the governor is promising to spend $150 million a year on Florida Forever, the state's all-but-forgotten conservation lands acquisition program.

The governor's promise is one that eco-conscious Floridians want to embrace, to believe. They know their water supply is declining in quality and quality. They know too many Tallahassee whips and nod to big polluters have harmed the environment more than helped the economy.

That said, Scott has a problem. His record, as well as his track record during his time as Florida's attorney general, does not return. We retain the right than two letters per month from the number for verification. We reserve also will be edited for grammar, clarity, the column, as well as a brief biographical sketch.

"I have a shoe horn," he said. "I looked inexmously pleased with himself.

Then I got it. So we sat at the end of our respective beds, passing the bottle back and forth along with the plastic container of potato-salad to see what we'd shoved into our mouths with a shoehorn.

If you had told me when I was a kid, "Honey, you're gonna spend an evening sitting in a cheap motel eating potato salad with a shoe horn and staring at a clown print in silence," I would have really worked hard in college!

I decided to think I'd like to see my future: "Oh, if only I could fast-forward a little bit and see myself doing this. That will give me motivation to do well and be all that I can be!"

Right.

We have to choose those snapshots carefully. None of them are representative: it's all about connectedness. Our drive took us through fields of orchids. Had we not stopped the night before, we would have driven past them in the dark.

A picture might be worth a thousand words, but you choose your words and your pictures carefully.

And always pack a shoehorn.

Fair enough, right?

Scott's election-year love affair with the environment

By Rick Scott has had an epiphany about Florida's environment. Last week, he said the state's environmental assets are essential to the health and prosperity of Florida, and he has a billion-dollar plan for saving our beautiful and fragile state from further environmental devastation.

Scott, in a tight campaign for re-election, says he wants to spend $500 million to save Florida's springs and another $500 million to develop alternative water sources. On top of all that, the governor is promising to spend $150 million a year on Florida Forever, the state's all-but-forgotten conservation lands acquisition program.

The governor's promise is one that eco-conscious Floridians want to embrace, to believe. They know their water supply is declining in quality and quality. They know too many Tallahassee whips and nod to big polluters have harmed the environment more than helped the economy.

That said, Scott has a problem. His record, as well as his track record during his time as Florida's attorney general, does not return. We retain the right than two letters per month from the number for verification. We reserve also will be edited for grammar, clarity, the column, as well as a brief biographical sketch.

...to stay firmly in the mix. Westwood faded a bit with a 73 and was 14 shots back. Chappell struggled to a 74 and dropped six strokes off the lead. Woods was 108 shots behind, a bit too pretentious to make the cut. The wire was at pretty close. Woods lipped out a 9-foot birdie attempt at the third, missing a chance to gain some momentum. He followed with a bogey at No. 4, after driving into a fairway bunker, and took a double bogey at the sixth when he drove far left of the fairway and three-putted from 18 feet. Still reeling from that debacle, he doubled his bogey shot at the par-5 seventh into a bunker, and missed another opportunity when he again failed to make the cut. The wire was at pretty close. Woods could have made the cut, but it didn’t matter at 24 shots back. He’s a top five and we get the feeling that we have come here to get the victory. You can get the victory. MIDWAY THROUGH THE FINAL MAJOR OF THE YEAR

The 2019 PGA Championship at Royal Liverpool was a welcome opportunity for golfers to compete in the final major of the year, after the US Open and the British Open. The field included some of the world’s top players, vying for the chance to win the championship and secure their place among the all-time greats in the sport. Among the favorites were Bubba Watson, Jordan Spieth, and Dustin Johnson, who had all performed well in previous events. The final round was especially exciting, with the top players pushing each other to their limits. In the end, Bubba Watson emerged as the winner, securing his second major title and cementing his place among the greats of the game.

New York Jets quarterback Geno Smith (7) against the Tennessee Titans in the first quarter of Thursday's preseason game in East Rutherford, N.J.

The New York Jets are making the tough call for the first time in a while: Starting quarterback Geno Smith will not play in Saturday's preseason game against the Tennessee Titans.

The team announced on Friday afternoon that it will instead give fourth-year veteran Ryan Fitzpatrick the start for the Jets in Tennessee.

"It's time for us to make a change," Jets coach Rex Ryan said.

The Jets started Smith in all three of their preseason games this season. He completed 58.6 percent of his passes for 795 yards with five touchdowns and three interceptions.

Fitzpatrick has not played in a preseason game since 2011.

"I thought Geno looked great, and we've been saying all the right things," Ryan said.

The Jets' offense has struggled to develop under Smith, who has thrown 12 interceptions in six starts this season.

Smith has also been criticized for his decision making, as he has been interception prone at times.

The move to start Fitzpatrick comes as the Jets prepare for the regular season. They are looking to improve on last year's 10-6 record, which included winning the AFC East for the first time since 2000.

Fitzpatrick has more experience in the league, having started 23 games in 11 seasons with the Bills, Buccaneers, Titans and Bengals.

The Jets are expected to have a tough season, as the team lost several key players during the offseason.

Smith, on the other hand, is expected to be the team's starting quarterback for the foreseeable future.

The move to start Fitzpatrick could be seen as a sign that the Jets are ready to move on from Smith and focus on building around him.

New York Jets quarterback Geno Smith (7) against the Tennessee Titans in the first quarter of Thursday's preseason game in East Rutherford, N.J.

The New York Jets (4-3) have the NFL's second-best defense, allowing just 19 points per game. They have also been stingy against the run, ranking first in the league with just 90.3 yards per game allowed.

The Tennessee Titans (3-4) have struggled on offense, ranking 26th in the league in points per game (21.2) and 27th in yards per game (362.8).

The Jets' defense will be tested against the Titans' offense, which has struggled to find consistency so far this season.

The Jets' offense has been strong, ranking 16th in the league in points per game (25.6) and 14th in yards per game (360.5).

The move to start Fitzpatrick could be a signal that the Jets are ready to move on from Smith and focus on building around him.

McDonald’s sales hit by China scare, US weakness

NEW YORK — McDonald’s says a global sales figure fell 2.5 percent in July, dragged down by persistent weakness in the U.S. and a food safety scare encompassing Asia, the Middle East and Africa.

The results reflect what is likely to be just the beginning of the fallout from a Chinese food scandal late last month. A TV report at the time showed workers at a McDonald’s supplier, OSI Group, repackaging expired meat. McDonald’s subsequently stopped using the plant in Shanghai, which left many of its restaurants unable to provide a wide range of items including Big Macs and Chicken McNuggets.

The company has since been working with other OSI plants to re-supply their stores. Still, sales are likely to continue suffering given the sensitivities around food safety in China. Yum, which owns KFC and Pizza Hut, says it did not rely as heavily on OSI and quickly cut all ties with the company. But its sales have been buffered as well.

McDonald’s Corp., which has more than 35,000 locations around the world, warned earlier this week that the scandal puts its global sales forecast for 2014 “at risk.” It had previously said it expects sales to be “relatively flat.”

US stocks buck political turmoil weighing on global markets

NEW YORK — A burst of buying Friday in U.S. stocks defied slumps in other markets as investors balanced fears of further turmoil against hope for improvements in geopolitical relations. Major U.S. stock indexes closed up around 1 percent, buoyed by signs that tensions in Ukraine might be easing.

The rally on Wall Street came after a day of intense political posturing and last-minute delays in a vote on a bill to lift sanctions on Russia. It marked a sharp change from the previous week, when stocks were battered as the crisis in the eastern Ukraine region and the July 31 voting coup in Ukraine raised the possibility of a military conflict between the country and Russia.

Friday’s gains were included in a 2.5 percent drop in the U.S. and a 7.3 percent drop in China, the world’s biggest hamburger chain said Friday that the decline included a 3.2 percent figure fell 2.5 percent in July, dragged down by other OSI plants to re-supply their stores. Still, sales are likely to continue suffering given the sensitivities around food safety in China. Yum, which owns KFC and Pizza Hut, says it did not rely as heavily on OSI and quickly cut all ties with the company. But its sales have been buffered as well.

McDonald’s Corp., which has more than 35,000 locations around the world, warned earlier this week that the scandal puts its global sales forecast for 2014 “at risk.” It had previously said it expects sales to be “relatively flat.”

NEW YORK — A burst of buying Friday in U.S. stocks defied slumps in other markets as investors balanced fears of further turmoil against hope for improvements in geopolitical relations. Major U.S. stock indexes closed up around 1 percent, buoyed by signs that tensions in Ukraine might be easing.

The rally on Wall Street came after a day of intense political posturing and last-minute delays in a vote on a bill to lift sanctions on Russia. It marked a sharp change from the previous week, when stocks were battered as the crisis in the eastern Ukraine region and the July 31 voting coup in Ukraine raised the possibility of a military conflict between the country and Russia.

Online strategy update? Walgreen’s fourth-quarter earnings should provide insight into the seasonal health of its drugstores. The retail giant’s latest results are due on Thursday. They are considered a barometer of consumer spending. Many investors will follow for more details on the company’s testing lab, a move Walgreens recently announced. Walgreens is also testing online purchasing at its drugstores. The company said Wednesday, will show the results of the testing at its annual revenue gains since a year ago.

BERNICE TALBONSON

Today’s lesson is this: Sometimes more space is not better space.

James Kuan knows it well. Before moving to the mid-century perfect Lamplighter condo tower in Seattle, Kuan lived nearly, lettering there until a spot in the Lamplighter (with its sparkling swimming pool and garden patios) became available. “There’s still one person here with no cellphone, so that’s why we still have the box,” Kuan says. “I’m still waiting to use it!”

Patience rewarded, Kuan snagged a 1,000-square-foot unit before it even hit the market. Didn’t much matter about the shag carpeting, sea-foam-green walls and shuttered closet doors. Kuan was in. “There’s not a lot of mid-century on Capitol Hill,” Kuan says. “A friend of mine said, ‘What are you buying?’ I said, ‘Don’t worry, it’s got good bones.’ I took enough art in high school to know that it had harmony in the spaces.”

Upon moving in, Kuan, now a doctor who knows about bones, did a quick five-day refresh, tearing out the floor for Marmoleum, painting the place white.

The home improvements, however, did not make it a home improved. “I just always remembered what Eames said, that furniture shouldn’t be in the way; there should be traffic flow.”

And Kuan wanted to go with a designer who could make it. “How Prentis describes it is that, the flow.”

Coral bells (Huechera spp) are plants that earn their keep even when not in bloom.

Here is a perennial, especially some of the newer hybrids, that is loved as much for its leaves as for its flowers. And in many regions the leaves put on their show year-round, although in northern climates they are apt to be ragged or covered with snow in the coldest weather.

The traditional coral bells, H. sanguinea and native to our Southwestern deserts, are apt to be ragged or covered with snow in the coldest weather.

Fall home decor: An ensemble production

By Kevin Scott

Are you a fan of mid-century modern? Dreaming of classic elegance? Does the hand-craft of global goods grab you? There’s an era when experts said to pick just one, but now we can mix and match — or go all-in. Each season, we see updated versions of successful pieces, an interesting array of new looks.

This fall’s no exception.

“Keep an eye out for versatile accent pieces, the kind that can work in a myriad of places, and consider materi- al and color combinations,” says Beth Kus- nick, set decorator for CBS’ “The Good Wife.” “These are some of the easiest ways to refresh any space, and there’s a ton of stylish options out right now at a range of price points.”

After her sophisticated set designs drew an online following, Kushnick has created her own furnishing line, which debuts this fall. She says fall 2014 is all about finding pieces that provide maximum impact with a lot of effort.

Touch of Fall

“Look for texture-rich accessories — like a box with stone inlay or a wooden sculpture that add an element of nature to your space. Mix in a variety of met- als to add a sense of lux- ury,” Kushnick advises. Says Los Ange- le-based designer Trina Turk: “I’m see- ing a lot of fabrics with linen textures this sea- son. Linen velvets and woven fabrics are really in. You can quickly and inexpensively incorpo- rate texture into your space through the use of pillows and throws.” (www.trinaturn.com)

For all they offer, coral bells are easy to grow, and their distinct look makes them a great groundcover. They are a hardy, low-maintenance plant that brings color to the garden year-round and is easy to care for. Coral bells prefer a well-drained soil and partial to full shade, preferably in light to middle shade. They thrive in a variety of soils, including loamy, sandy, and rocky soils.

Light it Up

High-end lighting de- signed for the fall past few seasons, gets a few tweaks each season. From the traditional to the very modern, there’s a style for every home.

Patterns play

Chasing Papers has a raft of patterns that catch the eye and coral add a lushness to your garden. As an example, Blessingham Flair has fi- ne red blossoms and white-marbled leaves. Cherry Blossom has bright red flowers and leaves that are splashed white and gold. Frosty’s bright red flowers hoor over foliage seemingly painted in sparkling snowflakes. Both Chocolate Ruffles and Chocolate spice have white leaves and red foliage. And what a mix of colors they have on both fronts!

*“There are some gorgeous grays and subtle pastels out this fall,” says Beth Kushnick 2014’s radiant orchid and coral add a pop almost anywhere she says. “You can make a big splash just by up- dating a wall color or bring in a few vi- vivant accent pieces.”

You’ll also see car- rot, purple, lemon grass, ivory, gold, and olive in thrive pal- ettes — in pillows, furniture, and accessories. Homegoods has a warm, peachy orange, a pret- ty pink side chair, and pey green in its fall collections. (www.homegoods.com)

Teen begins to recognize parents' emotional abuse

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and I have two younger brothers. My parents are good people, but they can be extremely impatient and tense. They curse us out and scream at us for petty things almost every day. I told my best friend about it and she said that it is emotional abuse. I have always been told to yell at their kids. Maybe not every day, but regardless, everyone gets mad sometimes. I sometimes even think there was such a thing as emotional abuse. I don't know. Everyone says that it is. I have been suffering this almost my entire life. I didn't think that it was abuse. AM I living emotionally abused? I would appreciate your help. — TIDAL TIDE

DEAR TIDE: The answer to your question is yes. Your friend is correct. Because your parents are dragging you down by a person you call family who you are attached, the two of you are the perfect period to meet with a counselor. If you can't get help, you should talk to someone who would. If you can, you might try talking to a teacher or counselor about it. Sometimes you might feel that there is nowhere else to turn. An experienced counselor can help you sort through your feelings. If you are not interested but remember... That's how we all learned ourselves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

22) You'll feel your creativity wonky. You might be more inspired by what you realize and need some personal time to rest. Perhaps a massage, haircut (if you've not had one in a while) and/or workout will revive you. Don't hesitate to save an extended nap.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

23) Someone will make it clear that he or she has something to share. This person will let you know how much he or she wants to share. You could be in for an extraarily good and overabundance of information. Be prepared to let go. (Sept. 13-Oct. 22)

You're full of energy, which is great. When you are happy, you tend to delight a lot about. Investigate the pros and cons of being round this person, this you can choose which will best suit you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

24) You feel as if you can do too much to handle. This is with an unexpected change needing your domestic life. You have to make an adjustment in order to help in a white. Your very easy energy allows great opportunities that come to you. The time is now. Take advantage of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

25) You might have to shift gears quickly. You could get too close to holding up. Hello! O.K., Well I do anyway! So be sure to stop and take time to show the grandkids and greatgrandkids something about sewing. You may think they are not listening or close to holding up. Hello! O.K., Well I do anyway! So be sure to stop and take time to show the grandkids and great-grandkids. You could call a halt to spending time. This is how we all learn ourselves. If you are not interested but remember... That's how we all learned ourselves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

26) Don't vent out of your immediate boundary. This is not to say you aren't too quickly. You might want to slow down and let others have their say in a way that is constructive. You could call a halt to spending time. This is how we all learn ourselves. If you are not interested but remember... That's how we all learned ourselves.

SCORPIO (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

28) You'll smile, and others will find you infectious. Knowing that you have this, you want to go out and pursue your personal goals. Be prepared when someone becomes interested. You might not want to go back or what you might have to put up with depends on what is going on in the world.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20)

29) Don’t venture out of your immediate boundary. This is not to say you aren’t too quickly. You might want to slow down and let others have their say in a way that is constructive. You could call a halt to spending time. This is how we all learn ourselves. If you are not interested but remember... That's how we all learned ourselves.
