Use It Or Lose It

Recently, I have had reason to consider substantial time observing the various people who utilize the Pomona Park swim-ning beach. For the most part, it appears to be families with small children and/or young couples. Everyone seems to enjoy themselves. Racially, there is a healthy mix of people who tolerate one another comfortably.

Unfortunately, however, there is an element which is highly unsavory and detrimental to the various youngsters who frequent the beach. For want of a better term, I shall refer to them as "drug dealers." It is obvious that Pomona’s Swim Park is also Pomona’s illegal drug marketplace. Why is this the case?
Here are some of the reasons.
The long dock and gazebo are ideally used exclusively for swimming related activities. The drug dealers and other customers can comfortably do their transactions at the end of the dock without fear of being surprised by law enforcement.
Should law enforcement drive up, dealers can easily see them coming as soon as they turn off of Main Street. The element of "surprise" does not exist.

If I were in charge of the Pomona Park Swim area, I would dismantle the dock and gazebo. The parking lot and swim and play, do not use the dock. As it is, that dock is not an asset to the park or to the town. Instead, it is an unsupervised drug dealer’s dream. Sadly, the dock and play area is nothing more than an attractive nuisance and should be removed.

It is a crying shame that a pretty little town such as Pomona Park cannot provide its youth with a safe and decent park to enjoy their summer recreation activities as law enforcement envisions there has been a spate of drug dealing. Of course, the town cannot afford to hire a person to supervise the park, yet has anyone considered putting a volunteer in place. The simple presence of an adult or two sitting in the gazebo, looking official would deter much unwanted activity.

Drug dealers should not be armed with anything more than a phone. Neither should they do anything more than be present and watchful. Drug dealers are not like to be visited by law enforcement. Therefore, should be left up to law enforcement people to do their transactions.

If you let 20 retired folks, got together and took turns among themselves doing one or two hour shifts at the park, it wouldn’t take long before the drug dealers found somewhere else to do their thing. In other words, if the local people would start using the dock and gazebo for its intended purpose, that could remain and be enjoyed. It is a lovely place to sit and relax amid the sights and sounds of happy children at play.

Someone just needs to get it organized. Pomona citizens, y’all need to get together and take back your park. It’s wrong to simply abandon it to drug dealers.

When decent people outnumber them, they go away!

Way Back When...

The August 2, 1957 issue of the Crescent City Journal carried the following article:

Regulations Re: Vote What You Think Best

President Tuesday night, August 6, the voters of Crescent City will go to the polls to vote on a charter proposed for the town which provides for a mayor-council type of government.

The proposed charter would create a council of four members plus the mayor, who would serve four-year terms. The charter is the result of a special meeting held in April of 1957.

After drafting the new charter, the council submitted it to the voters for approval. The charter is scheduled to go into effect immediately if approved.

Community Service Awards were presented by Brian Baker, Pastor of South Putnam Church and John Bosquepity of ZBM, to the three students who donated the most hours to community projects, including B.J. Ayer, John Stout, and the community building project.

Notes for the August Garden

I love to use the late afternoon as a time to check in on my plants. So I notice one of my adult male katydids leaving a tree and fluttering up. I touch the tree, and the katydid flies. Just out of reach. The next day, I notice one of my adult female katydids leaving a tree, spreading her wings for a moment, and then finally flying up. I touch the tree again. Once again, the katydid flies. This time, I put my hand in the path of her flight. The katydid leaves the tree and lands on my hand. The katydid then sits on my hand for a moment before flying away. The katydid's flight is graceful, and its wings are beautiful. I love to watch it as it flies around my garden. The katydid seems to be enjoying its time in my garden. It's a lovely sight. I can see why people like to watch butterflies and other insects. It's a peaceful and relaxing way to spend time in nature.
