PANAMA CITY — As the power infrastructure in the Cove neighborhood of Panama City reaches the end of its life cycle, Gulf Power will begin upgrades in a proj- ect expected to last several years. The multi-million dollar project will start this summer with transformer and power line upgrades, along with the addition of redundant systems that will hopefully help residents get their lights back on faster in the event of a power outage, according to the company.

With its abundance of trees, high population den- sity and winding streets, the area was identified as a priority by Gulf Power for power improvements.

The multi-million dollar project will start this summer with transformer and power line upgrades, along with the addition of redundant systems that will hopefully help residents get their lights back on faster in the event of a power outage, according to the company.

“With its abundance of trees, high population density and winding streets, the area was identified as a priority by Gulf Power for power improvements,” said Gulf Power spokesman Mark Butcher.

The upgrades will include the replacement of power poles and wires, as well as the installation of new transformers and circuit breakers. The company also plans to add redundant systems to improve reliability and reduce outages.

“This is an important project for our customers in Cove,” Butcher said. “We’re investing in the infrastructure that will provide reliable power for years to come.”

The project is expected to last several years, with work starting this summer. The work will be done in phases, with specific neighborhoods being affected at different times.

“Customers in Cove can expect some disruption to their daily lives as we work to improve the power system,” Butcher said. “We understand the inconvenience and will do our best to minimize the impact on our customers.”

For more information or to report an outage, customers can call Gulf Power at 850-747-5050.

Sumo comes to America

Bay High grad, wrestler, helping stage 2019 championships in Hawaii

PANAMA CITY BEACH — Cornelius Booker really didn’t have a preconceived notion about where sumo wrestling would take him when he got involved in the sport about three years ago. The former prep wrestler at Bay High School merely realized he still had an athletic itch that needed to be scratched.

Now that Booker’s involvement literally has taken him to Tokyo, his commitment to what best could be termed as a niche endeavor in this country has not only been confirmed but enhanced.

Booker, 26, said a fasci- nation with the East Asia culture first drew him to sumo. In late 2017, he was among a contingent representing the United States Sumo Federation that visited Japan for insight on hosting the world sumo championships.

FWC tries staggered scallop season

PORT ST. JOE — A pilot FWC program to stagger the scallop season in response to public comments has kicked off scalloping in some parts of the state, while Northwest Florida waits for its scallops to come a little later.

In Franklin County, the hunt doesn't start until July 1 and lasts through Sept. 24. The region stretches from the westernmost point of St. Vincent Island in Franklin County to Rock Island near the mouth of the Fenholloway River in Taylor County.

In Gulf County, the wait will be a little longer, with the season starting Aug. 17 and lasting through Sept. 30. The region includes from the Mexico Beach Canal to St. Vincent Island.

"Harvesting bay scallops is a fun outdoor activity for the whole family," said Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) Chairman Andy Newman in a prepared statement. "The conservation of this species is important for recreation and the economics of these coastal areas."

The season in Dixie and a portion of Taylor counties is already open, and runs through Sept. 10. In Levy, Citrus and Hernando counties the season will run from July 1 through Sept. 24. And Pasco County is a trial 10-day open season will occur from July 20-29, the region’s first season since 1994.

The staggered dates are part of an effort by FWC to adjust the season structure in response to feedback from the public and several years of challenging seasons.

Last year, the Gulf County season, for example, was

SANDY CREEK — First thing to look for is color: the darker, the better. Than, with a slight tug, they should leave the leaf. "If it snaps back it’s going to be too far," Mildon Daup-phin said, "If you tug too hard, it doesn’t come off easy. It’s a good indication that it isn’t ripe."

Dauphin, owner of the pick-your-own-blueberry farm Dauphin Farms Inc., stood in the shade Saturday as visitors carried buckets after bucket to a check-out counter. He is one of a handful of blueberry farms in Northwest Florida — among Farm's Farms in Cottondale, Gainer Farm in Chipley, Madonna Blueberry Patch in Vernon, Tison Farm in Bonifay, Veitch's Blueberry Farm in Sneads and Yates Farm in Franklin — that have come to life in the past few days with the start of the region’s blueberry season.

Many visitors had been mark ing the calendar for a day out in the field to get their fill. "It’s easy to just go out and buy them," said Brooke Jett after cashing out her bucket's worth. "It’s just more fun to get outdoors with the family, pick your own blueberries and come up with different things to use them for."

Jett, raised in Sandy Creek, said coming to Dauphin's farm has been a family tra dition for generations. Her mother, grandmother and other family members were still grazing among the blue berry bushes while holding her bucket.

Safeguard the Sun

If you’ve been out in the hot sun this summer, your skin may have become red or brown where the sun’s rays touched it. Sunlight helps our bodies produce vitamin D, and exposure to sunlight makes us feel happier. But exposure to the sun’s rays can also damage our skin and cause some health problems. That’s why, The Mini Page learns more about being safe in the sun.

What is UV light? Ultraviolet, or UV, radiation comes from the sun. Our eyes can’t see this light, but these are the rays that can burn our skin when we’re in the sun too long.

There are several types of UV radiation, but only UVA and UVB rays reach the surface of the Earth. Have you ever heard someone announce the UV Index on the news or weather report? The UV Index is a prediction of the intensity level of UV light in a certain region. For example, if it’s cloudy in your city today, the UV Index will be lower than if there is no sun shining.

The UV Index is a scale from 1 to 11+, where 1 represents a slight risk of too much exposure to the sun, and 11+ tells us that the risk is very high.

Skin and sun

Exposure to UV light is the biggest risk factor for skin cancer. But we can easily prevent damage to our skin from the sun and lower our chances of getting skin cancer.

Researchers believe that getting sunburns in childhood increases a person’s risk of having skin cancer. So it’s important to take care of your skin now and throughout your life.

Stay cool

Even though we think of summer as the sunniest time of the year, the sun’s rays strike us all year long. If you plan to be out in the sun for any length of time, use sunscreen.

People who need to be even more careful about sun exposure are those who have:

- pale skin
- blonde, red, or light brown hair
- a family member who has had skin cancer.

But skin protection is important for everyone. The Environmental Protection Agency advises people to:

- Wear clothing that covers the skin — long-sleeved shirts, pants, and broad-brimmed hats. Wear sunglasses.

Limit time in the sun, especially between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Words that remind us of safety are hidden in this puzzle. Some words are hidden backward or diagonally, and some letters are used twice. See if you can find:

- BURN, CANCER
- EXPOSE, DANGER EXPOSURE
- RUB, NOSKIN
- GLEE, BESIDE
- INDOOR, INTENSITY
- LIGHT, OZONE
- SAFETY, SHIRT

Cook’s Corner

Eggcellent White Omelet

You’ll need:

- 1/3 cup liquid egg whites from carton
- 1 tablespoon whipped cream cheese
- 1 3-egg yolk, cut into quarters

What to do:

1. Spray a small skillet with cooking spray.
2. Pour egg whites into skillet. Turn stove to medium heat.
3. Spoon cream cheese in a thin line in center of egg whites.
4. Add chopped tomatoes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.
5. Cook until edges set. (If one side over to form small omlet.)

7 Little Words for Kids

Use the letters in the boxes to make a word with the same meaning as the clue. The numbers in parentheses represent the number of letters in the solution. Each letter combination can be used only once, but all letter combinations will be necessary to solve the puzzle:

1. feeling when you’re scared (4)
2. curved yellow fruit (8)
3. one type of tracked (4)
4. what your shirt is made of (5)
5. not very wide (6)
6. where water leaves the sink (5)
7. wind instrument (5)

Sam: What would we call the Snowman if he had a sunburn?
Sak: A Puddin’!

Echo Note

A new species of “explosion fish” has been discovered in the remote rainforests of Borneo, Thailand, and Malaysia. The insects give their lives in selfless acts that produce a burst of toxic yellow goo to kill invaders, which are then threatened by other insects. The ants then actively nourish their body wall,” said lead researcher Alice Laciny of Austria’s Natural History Museum. “The ‘explosion releases a sticky, toxic liquid, which kills the ants to either kill or hold off the enemy.”

Indoor fun

On the hottest, brightest days, it may be a good idea to find fun inside. Here are some ideas for keeping your cool during the sunniest part of the day:

- Visit the library. Most libraries have many summer programs for kids. Or you can just borrow a good book and find a cool place to read.
- Take a trip to a cool museum.
- Explore the exhibits, go on a tour, or take a class for kids.
- Contact your fire department and arrange a tour for you and your friends.
- See a movie.

Slip, Slop, Slap & Wrap!
The EPA suggests an easy way to remember to take care of your skin:

- Slap on a shirt.
- Slop on sunscreen.
- SLAP on a hat.

Venezuela: a warning to the West

As is often the case, as economic liberties have enjoyed and taken pleasure does not translate to the word ‘rough’. It does not mean that maintaining close ties to trusted loved ones is a vital buffer against the external stressors. My research suggests that maintaining close ties to loved ones is a vital buffer against the external stressors we all face. So why is it that children are left devastated for life and death, because it is. “We fight as if it’s a matter of life and death, because it is.” But little minds and hearts can’t maintain that level of commitment so long before the children face a horrifying decision: Continue, through severe emotional pain, to call out for their parents, or proceed on the assumption that their parents are gone. As Dylan Gee of Yale University explained, for those who choose the latter path, their brains will start down a course of accelerated development.” They will mature more quickly. The problem is that rapid maturation often comes at the cost of cognitive and emotional instability later on, as well as the assumption that the world is extremely dangerous and that children must avoid automatic, without thinking. According to Gunnar, this assumption of perpetual danger will cause them to suffer from chronic, low-level inflammation, as well as a failure to develop a robust immune system.

When will you people get it? No one is saying ALL teachers are bad, and who are fully qualified and trained. Police do not ask all school shootings fast enough.

Soldier killed in Korea finally being laid to rest

By Don Babwin The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Not long after her father went missing during the Korean War, Carol Elkin spotted him in Arlington National Cemetery.

Elkin, her stepmother and her younger sister were at the cemetery for Memorial Day when a billboard with a photo of Army Maj. Elkin, of Chicago, flashed across the screen.

They realized they were looking at their father. He had been declared missing in action in 1952 near the Ch'ongch'on River in North Korea.

Elkin said she was told that her father had been declared dead, but she insisted that he was still living.

For the Urtamo family, the service is the final chapter of a story that began in late 1950 when the 32-year-old career soldier was declared missing in action after fierce fighting in one of the bloodiest battles of the war near the Ch'ongch'on River in North Korea.

The service comes a few years after the whereabouts of those who never returned from the 1950-53 war were pushed further into the news, with the commitment by the presidents of the two Koreas to continue searching for the remains of the nearly 7,700 U.S. prisoners of war who have never returned from the war near the Ch'ongch'on River.

Serbia beats Costa Rica 1-0

By Anne M. Peterson
The Associated Press

SAMARA, Russia — With a curling free kick that decided the outcome of the match, Aleksandar Kolarov immediately drew some comparisons to Cristiano Ronaldo.

The Serbia captain’s left-footed strike proved to be the difference in a 1-0 victory over Costa Rica on Sunday at the World Cup. It came two days after Ronaldo scored a similar goal to give Portugal a 3-3 draw with Spain.

“It was an amazing goal,” Costa Rica defender Bryan Oviedo said of Kolarov’s effort. “Maybe two out of 10 balls will go in like that.”

After Costa Rica midfielder David Guzman was handed a yellow card, Kolarov stepped up and curled his shot over the wall and into the net in the 56th minute. Keylor Navas, the Costa Rica goalkeeper who plays for Real Madrid, stretched but couldn’t stop the swerving ball.

“It was the third free kick goal so far at the World Cup: Russia midfielder Aleksandr Golovin had one in stoppage time in the 5-0 tournament opener against Saudi Arabia and Ronaldo capped his hat trick against Spain with the other.”

“We knew that set pieces were our forte,” said Kolarov, who now plays for Roma after a stint with Manchester City. “We practiced them on the training ground. I practiced set pieces, and this was enough for three points.”

The victory gave the Serbians the early advantage in a tough Group E, which also features Egypt, Switzerland and Sweden.

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — Brooks Koepka has the game to win a U.S. Open on any course.

One year after Koepka overpowered the wide fairways of Erin Hills in a U.S. Open remembered for low scoring, he navigated his way through the brutal conditions of Shinnecock Hills and closed with a 2-under 68 to become the first repeat champion in 29 years.

Curtis Strange, the last player to go back-to-back in this major, watched the entire final round Sunday as the Fox Sports reporter on the ground, and they shared a brief hug off the 18th green after Koepka tapped in for bogey and a one-shot victory.

“Man, it feels good to hold this thing again,” Koepka said with the silver trophy in his arms.

Doncic tops list of wings in NBA draft

By Aaron Beard

An international prospect with tantalizing potential and several college freshmen headline the list of wings in the NBA draft.

Luka Doncic, the 19-year-old Slovenian playing in Spain, is mentioned as a possible No. 1 overall pick. After Doncic is a group featuring Miami’s Lonnie Walker IV as a possible late lottery pick, as well as first-round prospects in Oregon’s Troy Brown and Villanova’s Donte DiVincenzo — the Final Four’s most outstanding player in April.

Here’s a look at the top wing prospects in Thursday’s draft:

Michael Porter Jr.’s draft spot anyone’s guess

By Tim Reynolds

Someone is going to gamble on Michael Porter Jr. He insists it’ll pay off.

There’s an element of danger involved with every NBA Draft pick, but Porter’s situation is unique. He has no choice but to go with the No. 2 pick by Sacramento after Kansas City’s No. 2 pick in 1969, for example, or the No. 6 pick by Orlando 1989, for another.

“I’m not going to use that word,” Porter Jr. said when asked if he’d gamble on him. “I can’t do that.”

The Associated Press

There’s still a chance he will be a workout deadline.

Draft night and teams have gone access to new media opportunity, which would seem to suggest he’s ready for the NBA, but still, skepticism may be understandable.

Find out Thursday night when the team believes him, too.

It’s a 6-foot-10 and is at the power forward, though in a way that’s volume- and positionless—Porter Jr. could be a lot of things. He’s already shown a complete skillset—passing, dribbling, shooting—that would translate to playing basically anywhere except point guard. He weighs 211 pounds last month at the Draft Combine, meaning his still plenty of room on his frame to add muscle.

His college highlights against Kansas, where Porter Jr. scored 50 points in 35 minutes of action, with the Tigers. Porter Jr. said it’s explainable as built on what he did as a Junior College player, that he considered the best prospect in the country, and his coach said that month around高等学校 was a lot earlier this month where he got rise.

“He showed that he’s above the rim and moving,” said K-State general manager Chris Wallace, whose team has the No. 4 pick and has been linked to Porter Jr. for months.

“I would say it,” Kansas State head coach Bruce Weber said. “I’m happy he made that decision.”

And I’m thankful that the kid’s got that because he was a terrific talent…

The Associated Press

He signed with Ohio State in November, then under the radar of Porter Jr. vows that was a mistake.

He insisted it’ll pay off.

“I’m thankful that the kid’s got that because he was a terrific talent.”

A 6-foot-8, 255-pound power forward, though in a way that’s volume- and positionless—Porter Jr. could be a lot of things, including a 5-10 guard, a 7-5 center, and a 4-6 point guard—disqualified him from being a one and half a week.

As No. 2 pick, which team believes him most.

I’d be a two-round pick — and has been linked to the Miami Heat and the Phoenix Suns.

There’s still a chance he will be a workout deadline. Draft night and teams have gone access to new media opportunity, which would seem to suggest he’s ready for the NBA, but still, skepticism may be understandable. Find out Thursday night when the team believes him, too.

It’s a 6-foot-10 and is at the power forward, though in a way that’s volume- and positionless—Porter Jr. could be a lot of things. He’s already shown a complete skillset—passing, dribbling, shooting—that would translate to playing basically anywhere except point guard. He weighs 211 pounds last month at the Draft Combine, meaning his still plenty of room on his frame to add muscle. His college highlights against Kansas, where Porter Jr. scored 50 points in 35 minutes of action, with the Tigers. Porter Jr. said it’s explainable as built on what he did as a Junior College player, that he considered the best prospect in the country, and his coach said that month around高等学校 was a lot earlier this month where he got rise.

“He showed that he’s above the rim and moving,” said K-State general manager Chris Wallace, whose team has the No. 4 pick and has been linked to Porter Jr. for months.

“I would say it,” Kansas State head coach Bruce Weber said. “I’m happy he made that decision.”

He signed with Ohio State in November, then under the radar of Porter Jr. vows that was a mistake.

He insisted it’ll pay off.

Arkansas rides 8-run inning to 11-5 CWS win over Longhorns

By Eric Olson
The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Once Arkansas' offense got rolling, the Longhorns of the sixth inning, nothing could stop the Razorbacks. Not even the weather. Five straight batters had reached base when the teams were pulled from the field for a 5-hour, 45-minute rain delay.

What turned into an eight-run inning for the Razorbacks carried the RainHawks to an 11-5 win in Game 14 of the College World Series opener on Sunday. "It's hard to have a balanced lineup, and we know when we're trying to do the same," Arkansas' Luke Hancock said. "I didn't know how many runs we were going to score, but I'll take it 11-5." Hancock had three hits, including a two-run double into the right-center field gap to put Arkansas in front.

"I'm not shell-shocked," Longhorns coach David Pierce said. "It's just part of it. It's not the way we wished it had gone. Unfortunately, it got away from us, and we couldn't overcome the deficit." Arkansas sent 14 batters to the plate and Texas used five pitchers in the extension. "One thing that made us think that maybe Arkansas had one at least one hit and a run after the rain," Hancock said.

"We went from down to up after the rain, and it happened with two outs," Arkansas coach Dave Van Horn said. "That was the most we were looking for to get us going a little bit. And then, obviously, we set up the big inning, had some opportunites, and a couple runs came through that gave us an opportunity to pull it out." The Razorbacks won 8-1.

"I don't think there was a whole lot of error on our part," Van Horn said. "A couple of mistakes, but overall, I thought we played as well as we could have played." The Razorbacks scored four runs in the top of the sixth inning to take a 9-5 lead.

Arkansas first baseman Blake Ely hit a 2-out single to left for a 3-2 lead in the fifth. Parker Joe Robinson took over for Texas starter Nate Raudenbush (5-5) to start the sixth and allowed two runs in the inning. "We had a couple more defensive errors," Texas coach Augie Garrido said. "That's what we struggled with not getting straight or got dinged for single after single. Texas had given up so many runs in the sixth, it was only a matter of time before it happened." The Longhorns scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to take a 9-5 lead.

"I don't think there's a whole lot of flaw in our pitching," Van Horn said. "I think we're better than we were last year. We had a lot of good pitching this year, and I think we're better than last year." The Razorbacks allowed six runs in the sixth inning.

"I think it was just a matter of getting a lead in the sixth," Pierce said. "It put some more pressure on me, and that's not a bad thing. I think it put some pressure on them to score more runs than they were going to score." The Razorbacks sent 14 batters to the plate in the sixth inning.

"We had a couple more defensive errors," Texas coach Augie Garrido said. "That's what we struggled with not getting straight or got dinged for single after single. Texas had given up so many runs in the sixth, it was only a matter of time before it happened."

Couple disagrees about adoption

DEAR ABBY

My husband and I have been happily married for two years. We both want

(a) biological child. Some time ago, my husband adopted a girl from Russia. The girl was unwanted and had nearly destroyed a medically indicate. Our children got everything she needed, and I was troubled by the experience of watching her develop into a healthy, healthy child.

I realize I had a desire to told my husband I wanted to adopt a child. He immediately shied the idea down and said he knew he was interested in raising child that wasn’t his. It broke my heart a little. I’m not willing to have marriage over this, but how can I incur her heartbreakings and take in the facts?

— FUTURE MAMA

DEAR FUTURE MAMA: Your

friend was fortunate because not all adoptions are successful, and not all blended families are happy. If your husband was honest with you, and you

other your family soon than you originally planned, do you and your husband are in agreement about the adoption?

DEAR ABBY: This has been bothering me for a while.

Why do people put very old draws of the deceased in obituary? The people haven’t looked like that for more than 40-plus years. I

When I look at the obituaries and see the picture, I think ugly, and I’m not sure how it is that the person died young. Then I read the article and see they were in their 30s or 40s, and the photo was taken when they were in their 40s or even younger.

I have seen high school pictures even. Close friends and family know what they looked like when they died. Do they think they are looking for anyone?

CURENT PENNY/CONTAGIOUS

DEAR CURRENT PHOTO:

Don’t come to conclusions.

I don’t think the pictures published by “old,” anybody.

This is how the family would like to remember their one — in the full bloom of youth. If you continue to think it, you should do this with the rest of it because it’s harmful to no one.
