Kirk Defies Federal Court; Vows To Run Schools And Skip Contempt Hearing

MIAMI, Florida (AP/AFRTS) -- Florida Governor Claude Kirk has voted to run the Manatee County schools in defiance of a Federal Court order.

Speaking in Bradenton, Kirk says he'll continue the take-over until the Supreme Court agrees to hear the issue of forced busing.

The governor adds he'll run the schools tomorrow, and not show up for the contempt hearing in Tampa.

Aides Arrested

The school system is under order to integrate. Earlier, United States deputy marshals placed four Kirk aides and six local law officers under arrest.

They were accused of obstructing the integration order, but they were not taken into custody.

A United States attorney said last night he'd been warned that the marshals would be fired upon if they tried to take the men into custody.

John Briggs said the warning came from the governor's office. A Kirk aide says no such (Cont'd on Pg.2)

WASHINGTON (AP/AFRTS) -- Reaction has been swift to President Nixon's statement that the Senate is unwilling to confirm a Supreme Court nominee from the South.

Critics of the Haynsworth and Carswell nominations assailed the President's comments. They used words as "incredible, mistaken, and damming evidence of a Southern strategy." But supporters of the two unsuccessful nominees said they agreed Nixon should nominate a conservative outside the South.

One day after the Senate's rejection of Carswell, Nixon called the vote an "act of regional discrimination." He said both Carswell and Haynsworth faced "victorious assaults" and were falsely accused of racism.

Democratic Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana said Nixon had overlooked several eminent legal minds in the South.

Massachusetts Republican Edward Brooke said the Senate decision was made "strictly on the merits of the nominee."

Both opposed Carswell.

Louisiana Democrat Allen Ellender charged the South has been "made a 'whipping boy.' He backed both Haynsworth and Carswell.

The talks will resume in Vienna a week from Thursday.

A Daytona Beach, Florida, housewife who complained a few weeks ago that fillings in her teeth were acting as radio receivers has a new set of fillings now, made out of plastic. All that is except for one. It's made of metal and is too complicated to change. She says she kept getting musical programs in her head, which is probably fine if you want them and can control them, but not very good if you don't want them, or when you want to sleep.

The woman even moved into a motel to get away from her own neighborhood. Electronics experts say she may have been picking up a wireless phonograph system in somebody's home.

It's too early to tell if the new fillings work. If the remaining metal one continues to pick up programs, she'll probably be driven to reaction.
