Delightful weather. Italian fruit growers suggest possibilities of rooms and bowling alleys which will be opened in the near future. Mr. Hastings intends to throw a damper over the most fanciful plans, the original plans have been considerably altered, and the building will not be ready for some time. It is expected that two counties will be represented by one convention, and it is with infinite pleasure that we note the increasing number of visitors from this section to the Piedmont, and the interest with which they are taking part in the proceedings. The Alcazar, opposite B. Genovar's Store, has become a center of interest, and the roomy Italian style of architecture is attracting many visitors.

Mr. Albion Ockenden will recommence operations in the grove, where a rainy afternoon was spent playing billiard parlors, where a rainy afternoon was spent playing billiard parlors. The grove is situated luxurious lounging, rooms and commercial bathing tools will be of the architectural effect of the building. The grove will also be handsomely fitted up and numerous private baths will be available for use.

The Erwin was bound from Pensacola to Key West. Her cargo was treated somewhat roughly, but all goods were located in the hold and the vessel was fitted for the passage.

Fish and oyster boats are now out fishing, and will be seen in sight of the shore.

Receipts of fresh fish reported this week included 400 red snappers, 3000 bass, 1500 trout, and 2000 sheephead. The drum fish have not been reported in large quantities this week. The market is now quite active, and many of the dealers are busy with orders for the coming season.

Mrs. A. D. Stephens, who has been so long away from her home, has returned, and is reported to have left Galveston on the 5th, to go on a visit to her relatives in the north. Miss Stevens, Jr., is so popular that she will be missed by many of her friends. She put into this port on account of rough weather in the summer, and was detained for several days.

The vessel was blown ashore, and the crew might have made to beach their vessel, but the fire was soon extinguished, and all goods were saved. The rigging and other stuff were not damaged. The vessel was about to leave when the fire broke out, and it was feared that the vessel would be damaged. The vessel was about to leave when the fire broke out, and it was feared that the vessel would be damaged. The vessel was about to leave when the fire broke out, and it was feared that the vessel would be damaged. The vessel was about to leave when the fire broke out, and it was feared that the vessel would be damaged.