POLK COUNTY – Ever since he was elected to the Polk County school board in 2016, Billy Townsend has repeatedly said and written that his job is not just setting school policy and rubber-stamping staff recommendations. Townsend has built a reputation for asking Superintendent Jacqueline Byrd difficult questions and challenging the reasoning of other board members on his blog site at www.billy-townsend.com.

For example, when Tenoroc High School Principal Jason Looney was investigated for sexual misconduct months ago, Townsend accused Superintendent Jacqueline Byrd that her investigation was incomplete and did not go far enough. Longtime school board member Tim Harris supported Looney, was verbally critical of Townsend, and chose not to run for re-election.

WH considering recharging aquifer

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III

WINTER HAVEN – City of Winter Haven staff were scheduled to seek approval from the city commission to study the feasibility of entering into a relationship with an area developer to start recharging the Upper Floridan Aquifer.

WINTER HAVEN – City of Winter Haven staff were scheduled to seek approval from the city commission to study the feasibility of entering into a relationship with an area developer to start recharging the Upper Floridan Aquifer.

Results of the Nov. 26 city commission discussion will be reported Dec. 5.

The Winter Haven Sun has repeatedly attempted to warn the public that so much water is being pumped out of the ground that the Upper Floridan Aquifer may not be able to provide enough water to match exploding population growth.

Mayors and commissioners from all over the county are working on this problem through something called the Polk Regional Water Cooperative or PRWC. The PRWC is mainly considering borrowing hundreds of millions of dollars to build two sets of wells to suck water out of the Lower Floridan Aquifer.

City of Winter Haven staff have said there are better solutions. Winter Haven Utility Services Department Director Gary Hubbard and Assistant Utility Services Director Mike Britt have helped to work out an agreement with a company called WSP USA, Inc to study the feasibility of pumping highly treated wastewater into the ground in an attempt to recharge the aquifer.

The City of Tampa and Hillsborough County have plans to pump around 10 million gallons of water into the ground in a similar solution. The City of Winter Haven wants to study pumping up to 6 mgd into the ground and or using the water for irrigation.

City staff believe such an effort may prevent Southwest Florida Water Management District staff from capping the amount of water being pumped from the ground in the coming years. Recharging the aquifer may also help Chain of Lakes and Peace River water levels.

The city has plans to build a reclaimed water use pipe roughly from Wahneta to the Chain of Lakes Fieldhouse for irrigation purposes. The line would run immediately adjacent to a development called Harmony at Lake Eloise, an area of Winter Haven that has been determined to be the best possible recharge areas of the city.

The proposed study will cost $300K over a two year period with half of the costs being paid by SWFWMD.

Know Who You’re Dealing with Online

WRITTEN BY
GRADY JUDD
Sheriff

I could make this a short article by reiterating what the headline says, “Know who you’re dealing with online.” That pretty much says it all, but let me tell you why that is so necessary.

A lot of computer viruses are spread through websites you may visit. You might not even intend on visiting these sites, but you’re redirected there by clicking on bad links on other websites or emails. Once you visit these sites, it may be too late. Your computer could be infected by a virus or malware which could compromise your personal information stored on your computer. Make sure your computer security software is up to date (McAfee, Norton, Kaspersky, Bitdefender, etc.).

I have another example of why you need to know who you’re dealing with online. A lot of people renew their vehicle registrations online, which is super convenient. However, some of these folks are searching (Google, Bing, or some other search engine) for the Florida registration renewals (various wording), and end up clicking on the very first site that comes up which is eTags.com. This is a business that pays to show up first in your search results. They are a real business, but they charge you way more than the Florida DMV or your local Tax Collector charges you. Beware.

It’s unfortunate we have to be this way, but always be cautious of every website you visit. Look at the website address before you click on it. Some Scammers create a website that is off by one letter and may look official. Check the spelling of the site, and make sure you know if the address is supposed to be a .com, .org, .gov, or something else.

Be suspicious, be wary, and be safe.
As existing cars. Could that mean lanes will need strong internet infrastructure? Electric vehicles will be needed. The cars running efforts. Recharge stations for electric technology is already impacting local plans.

Multi-Modal Planning Ben Walker spoke to that place. Future meetings will be about what locality imagine the magic that would still be a minority voice on the seven-member board.

With Fields defeating Jennifer Sabin in the election, Townsend may only now have two friends on the board, which would still be a minority voice on the seven-member board.

Fortney, Miller and Lynn Wilson, who ran unopposed, were also sworn into office Nov. 20.

“I am humbled and I intend to serve to the best of my abilities just like promised for the last two years. I will miss my classroom,” Fortney said.

For the most part, Fields remained quiet about these allegations but holding in feelings often leads to pent-up emotions. Fields let her emotions out Nov. 20 during a school board meeting.

“I’ve had some interesting campaigns but nothing compares to the one that I (just) experienced,” Fields said at the podium shortly after being sworn into office for her fifth four-year term last Tuesday. “To have a sitting school board member openly campaign to unseat a sitting school board member is just downright unconscionable. Mr. Townsend if you had just been kind and respectful of my opinions and that of others you would not have had to campaign so hard to unseat me. Your bullying and blogging false things about me and my husband just made me work that much harder to hold this seat.”

Fields said she had to read her speech to keep her emotions in check.

“All I can say to you is what goes around comes around and you will reap what you sow,” Fields said, looking directly at Townsend.

There were around two dozen area residents wearing bright green Sarah Fortney campaign t-shirts present for the swearing-in ceremony and many interrupted Fields with “boos” following Fields statement.

During comments at the end of the meeting, Townsend congratulated Fields on her campaign victory but offered no apology for opposing her campaign.

“I believe in political competition,” Townsend said. “I believe it makes us all better and believe it forces us to think about things. I welcome anybody who decides to run against me in 2020. That is part of the process. It is not about us.”

Many of those present clapped in approval.

Polk TPO thinking ahead to 2045

WINTER HAVEN – Representatives from the Polk Transportation Organization, the City of Winter Haven, Central Florida Development Council, business leaders and others met to talk about the future of transportation during a stakeholder group meeting at Nora Mayo Hall Nov. 15.

It was the second of multiple additional quarterly public meetings to discuss transportation-related investment strategy through 2045. The first two meetings were about emerging trends. Future meetings will be about what locals seem to want and how best to get to that place.

HTNB Corporation Florida Director of Multi-Modal Planning Ben Walker spoke about how emerging automotive technology is already impacting local planning efforts. Recharge stations for electric vehicles will be needed. The cars that speak with each other electronically will need strong internet infrastructure. Roads could be built that charge electric vehicles driving on them. Automated cars don’t have to be as large as existing cars. Could that mean lanes could be split in half allowing more traffic? Or do we want to plan for more pedestrian, bikes and mass transportation, eliminating the need for as many cars on the road? Walker said one percent of cars are electric now but within 25 years, half of all cars in use could be electric. That may mean less pollution from car exhaust but also may cause a need for more power plants.

City of Winter Haven “Smart City Officer” Hiep Nguyen and City Planner Manager Eric Labbe are currently thinking about how to implement some of these trends.

“Mobility and transportation infrastructure is critical to the economic success of any community,” Labbe said. “The future of transportation is electric, intelligent and autonomous. This realization requires us to rethink our mobility infrastructure and how it interacts with and accommodates for vehicles in the future. Planning now helps to position Winter Haven, Polk County and the region for continued economic prosperity for decades to come.”

For the past 15 years, the Winter Haven City Commission has authorized funding to place many miles of high-speed internet “dark fiber” cable underground. Nguyen said Winter Haven has been a leading community in reference to partnering with the Florida Department of Transportation to place internet cable underground whenever roads are being redone by FDOT. For example, the City of Winter Haven owns cable under parts of Interstate 4 that were placed all the way down US27 to Eagle Ridge Mall. Later a connection to downtown was made via Lucerne Park Road. Since then several miles of cable have much improved internet access in the downtown area and there is talk of connecting with Lakeland and Bartow in the near future. County leaders have a goal of hooking up schools, hospitals and government buildings first and ultimately provide high-speed internet access to 80 percent of county residents.

Assistant County Manager and Polk Transportation Planning Organization Executive Director Tom Deardorff said internet networks like this will be needed to control the traffic of the future and drive transportation planning.

Winter Haven residents may benefit beyond technological transport. The city owns this cable and is already leasing it out to the tune of $130K per year. Right now that money is paying for additional cable but one day Nguyen said it could generate a million dollars per year in revenue. Much like how Bartow uses profit from utility sales to lower property taxes, Winter Haven residents may one day have a similar benefit.

“To me, a smart city is one that is participatory, one that is engaging and inclusive, one that connects all of us,” Nguyen said. “We talk about connected cars. This is a connected community, one that is resourceful, one that is collaborative, one that leverages the capabilities in the community. Basically, a smart city connects us to our dreams and aspirations.”

Bartow has also been planning to invest $25M in this direction with 120 miles of fiber optic cable already in place. Lakeland has a large network but Nguyen said it was mostly used as part of running Lakeland Electric.

“What we do in Winter Haven helps drive the discussion in Lakeland and Bartow and if we can connect together regionally imagine the magic that occurs,” Nguyen said.

Nguyen said within a year, fiber optic cable to the Polk County Sheriff’s Office substation on Avenue G in Inwood would eventually connect to Lakeland via the K-ville neighborhood.
WH athlete earns third national title

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III

WINTER HAVEN – Zee Zamora Jr. is a 12-year-old Winter Haven athlete who recently won his fourth straight state amateur boxing championship and third national Sugar Bert Boxing championship in his age and weight class.

Zamora has also won two Junior Olympics championships. Next up for the champ is a chance to win his third silver gloves championship in West Palm Beach in mid-December.

“I want to keep doing this for years,” Zamora said.

At 110 pounds, Zamora is a scrappy, quick fighter who is trained by his father Zee Sr. and Marco Fazzini, co-owners of Group Winter Haven Boxing, housed on Avenue G in Inwood.

Once he turns 13, and if he continues to excel in the ring, Zamora would be eligible to travel the world with the Team USA Boxing Junior Olympic team. At age 16 he would qualify for a golden glove championship and possibly represent the county in the Summer Olympics someday.

To make this happen, Zamora trains Monday through Friday for at least two or three hours.

Three other Winter Haven athletes fared well at the Sugar Bert Championships in Kissimmee last week. Brandon Moore, 24 of Winter Haven, won his second Sugar Bert Championship belt. Rufino Cabrera, 10 of Davenport, and Abdin Lopez, 11 of Kissimmee, won non-sanctioned fights.

Ritz Theatre gets funding

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmgin.com

WINTER HAVEN – The Ritz Theatre in downtown Winter Haven started struggling financially ever since the Polk County Tourist Development Council voted to stop approving annual grants to support the theater over allegations of sloppy paperwork around 2015.

On July 26 shortly before the theater went out of business, former Ritz Theatre board member Steve Gold asked the Winter Haven City Commission for $10K in an attempt to avoid closing. Winter Haven City Attorney John Murphy advised the commission against approving the request, citing the fact that the Ritz Theatre was involved in civil litigation. Commissioners voted not to approve the request.

This litigation remains unresolved but on Nov. 26 when another group of Ritz Theatre supporters made the same request for $10K, Murphy did not advise against approving the request and the commissioners voted 4-0 to approve the request. After the city commission meeting, Murphy admitted changing his advice because a different person was asking for the money.

A local judge recently ruled to remove the entire Ritz Theatre board and replace them all with a third party “receiver” to take over operations. The appointed receiver is retired Judge Charles Davis who has been tasked with deciding whether to advise the court to either keep the theater running as a nonprofit with a new board or sell the building to the highest bidder.

Murphy said Judge Davis may be submitting his first report to the court sometime later this week. The Winter Haven Sun will be publishing more information about this and reactions to what happened on Dec. 5.
Lake Ina Mushroom – version 2019

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

WINTER HAVEN – Those born and raised around Winter Haven will certainly remember it, longtime residents may remember. Newer residents have likely never heard of the Lake Ina Mushroom.

When driving on Cypress Gardens Boulevard from the downtown area to Legoland, Lake Ina is the lake on the right-hand side just past IHOP. That area of the city looks much different than it did back in 1954 when the mushroom was built.

Up until around the turn of the century, Cypress Gardens Boulevard was a two-lane road and the mushroom was a very visible landmark on a man-made beach on Lake Ida that teenagers and other locals used to frequent. The mushroom was built by the owners of a hotel no longer in existence, somewhat like a large picnic table. When the eyes of hurricanes Charley, Frances and Jeanne traveled over Polk County in 2004, winds destroyed the mushroom and it was torn down a year later.

“Anyone who gave directions to anything in Winter Haven referred to that landmark as something that you would notice on your way wherever you were going,” said former Winter Haven Mayor David Dershimer Sr. Winter Haven resident Kurtis Flanders wants to bring it back to life.

Kurtis is a young adult who has been making his mark on the city of late. As a member of the City of Winter Haven Cultural Arts Advisory Committee, Kurtis has spearheaded a few efforts that may be becoming into fruition over the next few months. Bringing the mushroom back to life is one of his first ideas to work toward reality.

It will take around $10K to bring it back to life and for the last few months, Kurtis has been trying to figure out how to solve that problem. Between Nov. 28 and Dec. 28, Kurtis will be raffling off $20 tickets to win $1400 in rental space at The Garden Ballroom, an event venue business in downtown Winter Haven, where you could host your own party.

Arts Ensemble’s Outer Space Art Gallery and Studio will also have a live art auction Jan. 10 with proceeds going toward the mushroom project. The nonprofit staff have agreed to maintain the mushroom, and once built, artists would be invited to paint the mushroom twice per year.

Everett Whitehead Construction is currently working on the plans, and if enough money is donated, the mushroom could be fully built by early 2019.

Interested in helping out? Raffle tickets are available at www.artensemble.org by clicking the donate button and leaving the memo “Lake Ina Mushroom Project.” The winning ticket will be drawn on The Garden Ballroom Facebook page Dec. 30.

Beneath the Chinaberry Tree
Eagle Lake’s John Andrew Bingham...

WRITTEN BY BOB GERNERT

For more than one hundred years, John Andrew Bingham’s “Eagles Nest” cabin was a fixture overlooking Eagle Lake. Bingham, a rugged outdoorsman, built it for his wife Mary in 1881. His early life had been filled with adventure. At the age of 20 while attending Kemper College of St. Louis he left school to participate in the California gold rush. A lover of nature he marveled at the majesty of the Rocky Mountains and made this way back through Santa Fe, New Mexican and on to El Paso, Texas. Later he invested in a cotton plantation which proved to be a losing proposition. He served as a Colonel in the Civil War later traveling around Cape Horn.

He came to Bartow in 1881 and homesteaded 160 acres located between Eagle Lake, Spirit Lake and Crystal Lake. It was there that he built the cabin that would stand more than a century. Bingham kept elaborate diaries telling of his homesteading adventure. It is said that he named Eagle Lake for an eagle he found living in a high pine on his land. His diaries offer a window into the challenges he faced and the sights he loved. Writing in The History of Winter Haven, author Josephine Burr quoted this passage:

“Taylor came by and I let him have $10 to buy himself a barrel of flour. He and the boys are clearing up land for me at ‘Eagles Nest.’ Have the pines cut down and partially burned on nearly five acres. They will finish it off in a week or two. I pay them $5 per acre for removing the pines and small oaks leaving the stumps of the former. They have about 500 rails for which they charge me 50 cents per hundred. Heavy rains have fallen of late.”

Mary Elizabeth McKinney lived in Bartow and was 30 years younger than John Bingham when he began courting her. On December 13, 1882, John and Mary were married. Earlier that same year he waxed poetic in his journal, “Spent the day delightfully. Music from the blackbird bands all morning. These birds have a morning jamboree in the top of the pine trees feeding on the mast and the great forest rings with the sweetest melody. Words fail to express the delights of our surroundings. The weather is perfect - soft, cool, balmy with the most agreeable suggestion of approaching winter. Winter in South Florida.”

John and Mary Bingham had one son, John Andrew Jr. born in 1884. John Bingham lived until 1917 - just shy of his 90th birthday. Through his writings, it is clear that his lifelong passion was the wonder of nature and its beauty. Perhaps he summed it up best writing the following poem:

I have planted a garden,
So I know what faith is.
I have seen the birch trees swaying in the breeze,
So I know what grace is.
I have listened to a bird chording,
So I know what music is.
I have seen a morning without clouds after showers,
So I know what beauty is.
I have read a book beside a wood fire,
So I know what contentment is.
I have seen the miracle of a sunset,
So low what grandeur is.
And because I have seen all these things,
I know what wealth is.

This column is based on information from The History of Winter Haven by Josephine Burr and conversations with John Bingham’s late great granddaughter, Blanch Gay.

Mary Elizabeth McKinney lived in Bartow and was 30 years younger than John Bingham when he began courting her. On December 13, 1882, John and Mary were married. Earlier that same year he waxed poetic in his journal, “Spent the day delightfully. Music from the blackbird bands all morning. These birds have a morning jamboree in the top of the pine trees feeding on the mast and the great forest rings with the sweetest melody. Words fail to express the delights of our surroundings. The weather is perfect - soft, cool, balmy with the most agreeable suggestion of approaching winter. Winter in South Florida.”

John and Mary Bingham had one son, John Andrew Jr. born in 1884. John Bingham lived until 1917 - just shy of his 90th birthday. Through his writings, it is clear that his lifelong passion was the wonder of nature and its beauty. Perhaps he summed it up best writing the following poem:

I have planted a garden,
So I know what faith is.
I have seen the birch trees swaying in the breeze,
So I know what grace is.
I have listened to a bird choring,
So I know what music is.
I have seen a morning without clouds after showers,
So I know what beauty is.
I have read a book beside a wood fire,
So I know what contentment is.
I have seen the miracle of a sunset,
So low what grandeur is.
And because I have seen all these things,
I know what wealth is.

The Museum of Winter Haven History will reopen January 5, from 9 a.m. to Noon. Group tours are available for four or more people by appointment. The museum, located at 660 Pope Avenue and Lake Howard Drive, is free and open to the public. Come explore. For further information contact Bob Gernert, 863-206-6855 or bobgernert@gmail.com

Lee Boy’s headline Revue’s line up

This weekend’s Orange Blossom Revue in Lake Wales is much more than just barbecue. In fact, no less than 10 musical acts will take to the Review’s stage Friday and Saturday, an eclectic mix of acts on the shores of Lake Wailes. The nightly headliners are Jill’s Cashbox on Friday and The Lee Boys on Saturday.

Jill’s Cashbox is an Orlando based country and rock band recorded their first album in 2011, and have developed a large following, having shared the stage with the likes of Lynyrd Skynyrd, Alan Jackson, Sarah Evans, Dierks Bentley, Toby Keith, Joe Nichols, and Sheryl Crow.

The Lee Brothers are one of America’s finest African-American sacred steel ensembles. This family group consists of three brothers, Alvin Lee (guitar), Derrick Lee and Keith Lee (vocals) along with their three nephews, Roosevelt Collier (pedal steel guitar), Alvin Cordy Jr. (7-string bass) and Earl Walker (drums).

The event is the annual major fundraiser for the Lake Wales Noon Rotary Club and features a pro barbecue competition and craft beer festival.

Ticket information for the festival and craft beer festival are available at www.orangeblossomrevue.com.

Middle school forum set Jan. 10

LAKE WALES – A community forum to present and discuss the option of McLaughlin Middle School joining the Lake Wales Charter Schools system has been pushed back, with a new date of Jan. 10 announced.

City manager Ken Fields said the forum will be held at the Vanguard School auditorium on U.S. Highway 27. The city is sponsoring the public meeting after being asked to consider a resolution supporting the idea at a meeting several weeks ago.

“The charter schools and the public school staff are available on that date, so that’s the date we settled on,” Fields said. The meeting is set for 7 p.m.

Originally, the city was considering a date of Dec. 6. Fields said the Vanguard auditorium was big enough to accommodate several hundred people and was set up best for interaction between the audience members and school officials.

He added that there would be no way to webcast the forum live, like regular city commission are, but that special provisions would be made to tape the event and post it online afterward.

“It’s a forum for the parents and staff at McLaughlin in addition to the charter schools and public schools to talk about the current situation there and where we want to go as a community forward,” Fields added.

LW museum sets vision into next decade

LAKE WALES – Improving and expanding the services and reach of the Lake Wales History Museum is the goal of a new master plan that looks at the facility when it reaches a milestone next decade.

Four specific areas were identified along with strategies and goals including historic preservation of site and collections, public engagement and education, building presence and awareness, and ensuring the future of the facility.

“Dedicated to the past, present and future generations of Lake Walears, the museum seeks to be an authentic, inclusive, relevant and vibrant heritage museum experience for Polk County,” noted Executive Director Jennifer D’hollander. “With the help of our residents and supporters, the museum endeavors to meet and exceed the goals of this strategic plan to be a living legacy for history and heritage in the community by our 50th anniversary in 2026.”

The firm of Luci Creative was hired to help rewrite the plan, which was finalized after a number of collaborative efforts which included an August retreat at Bok Tower Gardens among museum stakeholders as well as two public open houses and public survey used to gather community input on the facility.

The city closed, reorganized and reopened the facility in 2015, which included a new and substantive yearly investment in the museum.

Among dozens of recommendations were digitizing the museum’s collection, producing multi-language interpretive materials, and redesigning the museum’s entrance and gift shop area and establishing a more cohesive plan for fundraising.

“This new strategic plan will be the roadmap to the museum’s future sustainability, increased community engagement, and historic preservation,” D’hollander added.

LW commissioner frustrated over record request suit

WRITTEN BY

LAKE WALES – A Lake Wales commissioner expressed frustration last week the city again was involved in a public records dispute – this time regarding the municipal airport – and that as the liaison to that facility he was unaware of it.

Curtis Gibson said he became aware of the matter at an airport authority meeting on Nov. 19, a gathering he termed “tense.”

Gibson brought the matter to light during a city commission meeting Nov. 20, indicating that the city had been taken to court over not properly handling a public records request from an airport tenant.

“Actually not know it was going on was concerning to me, to find out we lost the case and the taxpayers had to pay those attorney fees, and we also have to pay our attorney fees,” Gibson said. “This isn’t the first time. When someone requests public information, just give it to them. Just do it. It’s their right.”

In 2015, the city in general, and City Manager Ken Fields specifically, was harshly criticized by the State Attorney’s Office in Bartow for how it was handling public information requests. No sanctions were imposed, and city officials at the time indicated they were revamping and updating protocols on how such requests would be handled.

“Just so you understand, we didn’t refuse to provide the information, the dispute is over the amount of time it took to gather that information, and what they will pay for,” Fields told Gibson. “There’s still ongoing discussions in that case. In terms of the airport, there are security concerns, there’s redaction that has to take place. You can’t just turn over the documents as is necessary.”

Neither Gibson or Fields indicated who filed the request, or what information they were seeking.

Gibson also wanted additional information about the airport’s finances.

“I want to make sure we are on the right direction as far as moving forward with building hangars out there,” Gibson added. “I’m just trying to see what is our approach at the airport. I would like to know the direction.”

Fields said he would return to the commission in a few months with an update on the airport since a major runway extension project there is almost finished.

“That’s going to change the nature of the airport I believe very significantly,” Fields said.

For many years, the city contracted out operations at the airport. In the past couple of years, the city assumed full operation of the facility, hiring a full-time airport manager among other investments there.

From dirt piles to dreams

WRITTEN BY BRIAN ACKLEY
Sports Correspondent

Those big mounds of dirt near Cypress Garden Boulevard and U.S Highway 27 are a bit unsightly at the moment.

But they are a beautiful thing, at least if you’re Mark Jackson, who can already envision what the impact of the field house being built there will be.

Jackson, as the head of the county group that spends much of its time globetroting to sell Polk as a sports and recreation destination for everything from softball to pistol shooting, knows the frustration his workers have felt at not having the right property to attract national, high profile events.

Sure, the NBA G-League’s Lakeland Magic will call it their practice home, but that is small potatoes compared to what Jackson expects the facility will bring as a return on the $23 million investment.

In fact, county officials are predicting that is about what the direct economic impact the facility will have in the greater Winter Haven area every year.

“I don’t think people realize how much of a game changer a building like this can be, not just for us here at PCTSM, but for Winter Haven as well,” Jackson said. “Polk County has a deficit of available court time for sports. Nowhere is that more evident than Winter Haven, where residents participate in indoor sports at only 60 percent of the national average. Right now, we can’t compete with other venues for some indoor sports, for example, volleyball. The field house broadens the scope of the sports we can recruit. That is a need, not a want.”

Slated to be opened in late 2019, its addition to the Polk portfolio is a natural extension of the city’s growth since the opening of Legoland, especially things like lodging and restaurants which continue to pop up here and around East Polk.

Winter Haven already has everything the meeting or convention planner looks for,” said Jackson. “Plenty of rooms at every budget, great local restaurants and unique venues, a variety of activities for attendees and a central location between two major airports. We add to the mix a professional staff who can ensure that their event is a world-class experience. All we needed to add to the mix was a building.”

Even still, success isn’t always guaranteed with such buildings, Jackson admits. But in Polk’s case, those concerns are mitigated greatly because they know the need is there.

“If you build it, they will come, that’s not true. There’s a lot of facilities going bankrupt simply because they didn’t have a good business plan or demand in hand. We have both,” Jackson, a Winter Haven resident himself, said. “It’s going to provide an economic engine, a sustainable economic engine that will never, ever go away as long as we market it properly.”

In other words, about those mounds, call them our dirt piles of dreams.

CAN’T WIN ’EM ALL - It’s actually not a shock when the Winter Haven girl’s basketball team loses a game or two in the regular season. They play an intentionally difficult slate of games outside their district, all in an effort to toughen up for the post-season. So when you see that the Blue Devils are just 3-2 so far this year, don’t panic. They’re young, but talented, and will be better in February than they are in March. Their road odyssey continues this week with trips to Ft. Pierce and Pensacola in an effort to play the best teams they can find.

DYNAMIC DUO - Lake Wales usually has pretty good girl’s soccer teams, and this year seems to be no exception, led by a pair of underclassmen who are filling the frame with regularity. Sophomore Chanley Pfingston (8) and Junior Elizabeth Wyrodick have combined for 14 goals as the Lady Highlanders have opened the season with three straight wins. Including wins at Winter Haven and Lakeland.

JUNIOR JACKETS - Bartow parks and rec will be firing up its popular “Junior Jackets” youth basketball program right after the holidays. It will run from Jan. 12 to Feb. 16 and is open to kids ages 5-14. Participants will learn fundamental skills of shooting, dribbling and rebounding along with offensive and defensive strategies. Players will then be drafted onto teams to play games. Registration fee includes jersey and shorts. Call 863-534-0120 for more details.

LET’S GET TROPICAL - The Florida Tropics of the Major Arena Soccer League will kick off their third season of high-flying, high-scoring professional indoor soccer Saturday night when they host the St. Louis Ambush.

The team is looking for an "Orange Out" for the opener. Expect plenty of goals and lots of fun as the Tropics bring the world's game indoors for all of Polk to enjoy. Team and game details at www.fltropics.com

Wonder House gets one step closer

JEFF ROSLOW
News Correspondent

BARTOW – The owners of the Wonder House are one step closer to bringing back tours of the estate after the city commissioners unanimously approved amendments to the development code at a public hearing Monday, Nov. 12.

While the amendments don't specifically go to helping the Wonder House achieve its goal of being a full-time single-family residence that would have paid tours, it clears language in four articles for use in situations that could arise.

"It was prompted by what they want to do, but this does not have to do (directly) with the Wonder House," Wiegers told commissioners. He said the development code was not clear in some areas and should be updated.

While commissioners approved the changes unanimously and no one spoke, commissioners will have a second public hearing scheduled at its Dec. 3 meeting to make the changes final. That meeting begins at 6 p.m.

Many of the changes to the development code came through a neighborhood meeting held at the end of October in which 25-30 people present didn't mind that the Wonder House would be open for tours but suggested limitations to lighting, parking, and other items, because the structure is in an area, zoned residential.

In Article 3 some of the changes include that hours of operation would be between 10 a.m.-8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and other days and times would be determined by the owner. The application is good only for the current owner and if the property sells or someone else moves in and wants to continue to operate as a museum, a new application is necessary. On-site parking will be provided by the owner and visitors. Parking on the street is allowed but must have streets that are 30 feet wide and adjacent to the site and the number of cars as provided by the business plan. Outdoor lighting will shine only on the property and away from public streets or the residential area. The street in front of the Wonder House is 24 feet wide.

Special functions, such as weddings, will be subject to the same application and review of the original application. They will be allowed from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Saturday and from noon-6 p.m. Sunday. Other days can be requested to the city by the owner.

Amendments were also added to Article 7 and Article 9, which pertains to the definition of what qualifies as a museum and buildings that qualify as something else. A museum in the code is a building that has public significance by reason of its architecture, former use, occupancy or a building servicing as a repository for a collection of natural, scientific, literary curiosities, objects of interest or works or art for public viewing with or without a public charge. This, Wiegers said, would keep existing museum locations in Bartow – Polk County History Center, L.B. Brown House and Museum, the African-American Museum – in compliance. Wiegers pointed out in the Amendments, specifically in Article 2 – only puts a more concrete meaning to the development code, and there are "no changes to churches," he said.

Questioning the changes, Commissioner Trish Pfeiffer said in its previous use, the Wonder House was used for parties and various functions, so as an example, she said if Chamber of Commerce wanted to take a Leadership Bartow function and do it on a Thursday would the owners have to come back to the city for permission?

"If someone wants to do something outside the ordinary and it's not held every year they would," Wiegers said.

Pfeiffer understood but added she hopes the couple doesn't "pigeon hole" themselves and knows what they are getting into.

Longworth: Fight for Home Rule

BARTOW – Bartow mayor and the president of the Florida League of Cities Leo Longworth took to the podium at the end of the State of City address and pushed the community to champion Home Rule.

It is the position of the League of Cities to tell statewide in the 412 cities, towns and villages it represents, to fight the legislature's move to taking away local authority.

"All local governments should be met by local needs and local solutions as long as they don't interfere with state and federal laws," he told the audience of about 150 at the Bartow Civic Center on Wednesday, Nov. 14.

He said the state legislature is making rules to treat each city in the state as "one size fits all."

"This is not the case. It doesn't work that way and it isn't going to work that way," he said.

The most recent attempt was on the Nov. 6 Election Day ballot. It asked people to increase the homestead exemption on their property taxes to $50,000 from the current $25,000, depending on the price of the house. Legislators came up with the idea without consulting any county or city governments, the ones which would be most hurt if it passed. Republicans in the Legislature said it would lower taxes for about 60 percent of homesteaded properties. Opponents said cities, counties and special districts would lose about $753 million statewide and those agencies would have to collect money elsewhere to make up for it.

It didn't pass. Fifty-eight percent voted yes and 42 percent voted no. In Polk County, 57.5 percent voted yes and 42.5 percent voted no. A 60 percent yes vote was needed for it to pass.

Longworth said this is just one example of what the Legislature is trying to do. The League of Cities has a website where it states that there have been 141 "attacks" on Home Rule in the last two years and last week Longworth said it will continue and on those that didn't pass, it will likely come up again when the state session starts on March 5.

Some laws being considered the League objects to includes vacation rentals, small cell equipment, times of local elections and unfunded mandates to name a few.

"(The state law) would say when we could have an election," he said, citing that Bartow's city commission election is in April “because it works for Bartow, but maybe that wouldn't work in Jacksonville.”

Throughout the state League of Cities, members will be talking to as many people as possible to make sure local governments are responsible for their towns. The League says each city is different and the best decisions can be made by local governments who know the town. Part of the problem, Longworth said, is a lot of people are not aware of the situation and without the knowledge, authority will be stripped from local governments.

"They are hijacking your hometown. We live local and we want the politicians to listen to us. We know what is best," he said.

"Make yourself be heard and share the message. Let them know that we live local," Longworth said.

Let's give the season a name

News Columnist

For many years, as our spirit of celebration morphs from Thanksgiving into Christmas, I have urged my readers to eschew the all too familiar “Xmas” and to spell out the name for which X is an abbreviation.

Let’s bring ourselves to devote the full six letters and call the occasion Christmas.

I am aware of the liturgical correctness of abbreviating the name of Christ with the letter X. It has to do with the Greek letter Chi, spelled X, which begins the Greek spelling of Christ.

It is probably the only time that those of us who know barely enough Spanish to say “yes” or “no” in that language resort to the Greek alphabet to communicate with one another.

Given that most of us choose to use English for the rest of the year, I have urged that we do the same when writing the name of the holiday that has profound meaning — both religious and secular — on our calendar.

Christmas, more than any other holiday, is a celebration that has a following shared by those who find deep religious meaning in it and those who don’t.

With increasing frequency in recent years, we have become afraid to erect manger scenes on public property lest the symbolism which is the basis of the holiday be challenged as an improper use of public property.

And with each passing year, calling the season and the holiday that we celebrate “Christmas” is falling victim to political correctness.

We now have “Winter holidays” and purchase “holiday trees” as euphemisms lest we speak the name of Christ and offend someone.

Each time a passerby or a friendly cashier wishes me “Happy Holidays,” I struggle inwardly not to ask, “Which holiday would that be? Does it have a name?”

I will gladly wish my limited number of Jewish friends a Happy Hanukkah, the Jewish Festival of Lights that is similar in some respects to Christmas.

And I will extend wishes to them for a Merry Christmas without fear of giving offense.

All manner of bizarre and sometimes offensive linguistics is tolerated in the name of political correctness.

Let us refuse to allow political correctness to eliminate the mention of “Christmas” from our celebration at this joyous time of year.

(S. L. Frisbie is retired. He finds little that is correct in political correctness. And he wishes you and yours a Merry Christmas. Or a Happy Hanukkah.)

Roadside bomb kills 3 US soldiers, injures 3 others, in Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A roadside bomb killed three American soldiers in eastern Afghanistan on Tuesday, the U.S. military said, in what appeared to be the deadliest attack on U.S. forces in Afghanistan in the last 17 months. The Taliban claimed周二 said no other service members were wounded when the bomb went off near the city of Ghazni. An American contractor was also wounded, it said. The military did not immediately identify any of the casualties.
Parkland teachers protest reassignments

More than 50 teachers chanting “take them back,” demanding the return of four administrators who were reassigned

By CORT ANDERSON

FORT LAUDERDALE — More than 50 teachers chanted “take them back,” as the hearse of Stoneman Douglas High School shooting victim Samon Boppart was carried inside the church on Monday by the return of four administrators who some teachers say had not been consulted or listened to by school officials.

The suspect, former Nikkei reporter John Liu, was arrested late Tuesday in a Fort Lauderdale courthouse parking lot after a brief struggle with police officers. Crude language was heard, but no one was injured. A suspect in the shooting of Cruz’s last assigned day, while he was suspected of spying for North Korea.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A British newspaper alleges that Paul Manafort secretly met WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange at the Ecuadorian Embassy in London within days or weeks of being brought aboard Donald Trump’s presidential campaign.

Lawyers for Assange and Manafort denounced the report as false.

If confirmed, the report Tuesday would suggest a direct connection between the Trump campaign and WikiLeaks, which released tens of thousands of emails from a Russian bribery scandal during the 2016 election.

The campaign seized on the emails to undermine Trump’s rival, Hillary Clinton. The Guardian, which did not identify the source for its reporting, said that Manafort met with Assange “around March 2016” — the same month that Russian hackers began their all-out effort to steal emails from the Clinton campaign.

In a statement, Manafort called the story “totally false, deliberately libelous” and said the source was considering his legal options against the Guardian.

“He have never met Julian Assange or anyone connected to him,” Manafort said. “He never been contacted by anyone connected to WikiLeaks, either directly or indirectly. I have never reached out to Assange or WikiLeaks on any matter.”

Assange’s Ecuadorian lawyer, Carlos Poveda, said the Guardian report was false. And WikiLeaks said on Twitter that it was “willing to bet the Guardian a million dollars and its editor’s character that Manafort never met Assange.” It later noted that Assange had instructed his lawyers to say their sources for the story were false.

The Guardian was not immediately reached for comment.

The two sides are likely to rise higher a day after a big gain on the emails to unbind WikiLeaks, either directly or indirectly. I have never reached out to Assange or WikiLeaks on any matter.”

The absurd packaging.”

Mom stays close to married son through a tracking app

DEAR ABBY:
I have been married to my husband for five years. We live in the same town as my in-laws, and for the most part, we get along great.

However, my mother-in-law does something that makes me uneasy. She uses an app to track my husband. She pressured him into installing the tracker as a substitute for the tracking app on his phone or delete it. Since then, he says it doesn’t really bother him that she tracks him.

Part of me feels that he wants to lie to his mother to keep her from worrying, but that’s his business. But another part of me feels this is an invasion of my privacy as well, since we are together much of the time. It also worries me that he’s so used to caving to his mother’s wishes.

What is my best move? What can I do to get my mother-in-law to stop this invasion of privacy? — LIBERTY IN KANSAS

DEAR UNEASY:
It’s not surprising your husband should revoke the location permissions on the app on his phone or delete it altogether.

If what your mother is doing is sick. She is using the tracker as a substitute for the umbilical cord that should have been severed when her son was born. It’s an invasion of your privacy and your husband’s personal space.

In the United States, you typically are not required to hand over your phone to law enforcement if you are not under arrest. However, if you are under arrest or are suspected of a crime, you are required to hand over your phone, and your mother may be able to get a warrant to access the information.

You may be Abel to stop your mother from using the tracker.

ANSWER:
There is another side to the story. Your brother and his wife may have their own reasons for wanting to track your husband.

If you are concerned about the tracker, you might consider speaking with a mental health professional for suggestions on how to handle the situation.
ARIES (March 21-April 19). You're not sure why you feel the way you do, but you can be sure that there's a good reason. There's a gift in these feelings that will be presented as you heed them or explore them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You're brilliantly intuitive, but smart to keep it to yourself today. While your best guess might be correct, it won't be a good idea to share the speculation, certainly not publicly, and especially not in writing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The giving you do will be better when there's no price tag involved. Here's the best gift: Tell someone the story of where your love started and how it grows. There's no story sweeter.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Ask for it in writing. Start a paper trail. Take a picture. You trust people, but everyone behaves better when the systems of accountability are obviously in place. Records matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The expected norms and safely appropriate behaviors aren't usually high on your list of fun things to adhere to, but today they'll give you a thrill anyway. You'll approach them as an artist and a diplomat to excellent effect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Close your eyes and imagine the best version of you. This is who you really are. Now that you have this image, bring it forward and put it at the front of your mind so that you can appreciate it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Today, everything you say and do matters, and the feedback you receive to the choices, experiences and the way you feel you are connected is your ultimate guide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Your life is an expression of your soul. When you align with that idea, making a good impression seems a lot simpler, and this is what might happen anyway, quite by accident.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You understand your role better than ever. Because you know what it feels like to get to the place where a sense of appreciation, excitement and pride kick in, you'll find it impossible to stop before you get there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The sunrise is a spectacular reminder that most people ignore on their daily. While we need the sun, it's the sky and the earth that give us the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Once you figure out that the remote control you hold doesn't go to the device you're pointing it at, you set it down and go looking for the right controller. Letting go doesn't take courage; it takes intelligence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It is possible for a person to change your energy just by existing in the vicinity. It's why spiritual protection is a necessary measure for a person or an object when it's not under your personal power. Pisces and Aries adore you.

Today's Birthday (Nov. 28). This year features stellar alliances. The obstacle preventing the strongest flow of love and success will appear to be neutralized by the first fluff of a fellowino's smile, something you can't comprehend. You just know you should let your partner teach you and know the numbers 6, 11, 3, 3 and 48.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE
WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump is threatening to impose new tariffs on $5 billion in Canadian goods in a political battle that could undermine the historic North American Free Trade Agreement.

Trump announced the threat on Tuesday and said he was prepared to act with or without Canada's cooperation. The president's announcement came hours after Canada's foreign minister, Chrystia Freeland, said that talks to save the deal had failed, and that Canada would consider other options.

In a tweet, Trump said that Canada had broken its obligations under the trade deal and that the United States would impose tariffs on Canadian products, including automobiles, wooden furniture, and some cheeses. He also threatened to impose tariffs on some of Canada's other exports, such as softwood lumber.
