In celebration of its 30th anniversary, the Isser and Rae Price Library of Judaica was awarded a UF Libraries mini-grant to digitize a small corpus of jubilee editions of Jewish newspapers from around the world.

The Jewish press of the twentieth century was an extremely vibrant entity and an important tool of social change. The newspaper editors were among the major Jewish writers of their day.

Thirty-two representative issues were selected out of a special, hidden collection of over 200 such newspapers held at the University of Florida.

The jubilee edition of a newspaper can provide a wealth of historical and social information. Jubilee editions help chart the history of the particular newspaper in question. An online collection of these jubilee editions provides a key resource for research into the history of the Jewish press in general.
