

Resources for Locating Existing Citizen Science Programs

- Zooniverse – one of the most well-known databases of citizen science and crowdsourcing projects.
- SciStarter.com – Projects searchable by topic, including projects tagged "agriculture" as well as environment and ecology. Also searchable by location.
- CitSci.org - has a lot of natural resources projects and data.
- Scientific American - projects searchable by type of involvement, i.e. observation, survey, analysis, etc.
- Wikipedia - not much curation, but a list of several projects, plus history of citizen science at the main citizen science entry.

- Other sources for project listings may be state Extension, Master Naturalist or Master Gardener sites, such as the Florida Master Naturalist list of Citizen Science Opportunities or Maine's 4-H Extension office opportunities.
