

N: He's trying to think of some that I taught him, but I don't know what I....

R: Oh, is that what it is?

N: Uh huh. You don't remember the old train song, do you?

C: You guys can help me now, I used to....

N: I used to play an autoharp in this thing, but I don't know where I know it, remember it or not. On....

(All): a dark stormy night.

C: Now, wait a minute.

(All): On a dark stormy night

Not a _____ was in sight

As the north wind came howling down the line

To the brave engineer

And his sweetheart so dear

And orders to pull old Number 9

She kissed him goodbye with a tear in her eye

And joy of his heart he could not hide

He nearly....

N: Let me think just a minute.

Joy he could not hide for he knew tomorrow she'd be his.... What is it -- be his blushing bride?

C: Yeah. That's it.

(All): Mmm....

For he knew that she'd be his blushing bride.

The train sped along

And the, his hummed a song.... No, wait.

The wheel's hummed along

As the train sped along

And the bride's eyes came shining in his face

He uttered a prayer

As he ~~threw~~ on the air

For he knew this would be his final race

* Lots of train songs - would be like a Jimmy Rogers one!
