

---

because she was too late for the good bread and butter? We should never have found out anything about her if we had not gone there, and then, you know, she must have lived in the workhouse after her mother died, which would have been so very uncomfortable for her.