

the fainting boy from the floor, and placed him on his bed, while he used every means for his restoration, and soon Herbie had the joy of seeing him open his eyes and hold out his hand to him; and the little fellow sprang joyfully to his side.

